Miss Rose Hamilton, looking quite herself again after her recent illness, scores an instantaneous success with "If we all had what we wanted in the world," and her skit on acting showed Miss Hamilton to advantage as a genuine comedienne. Mr. Harry Pleon relates many stories, new and old, concluding with a smart parody on popular ballads, which is greatly enjoyed; Tennis and Laune (Edie and Gertie) have excellent voices, and render in good style "Miriam" and "Sunny Ceylon," finishing with a neat little dance; Miss Georgette Thierry's company, including Mr. Bernard Liell in the dramatic sketch The Daughter of the Revolution, a story of the year 1793, is well received; Miss Flo Cecil has a piquant song in "We don't know what to think about Matilda," and "I do like to be where the money is," and her dancing is a feature of her contribution. Mr. A. G. Uno amuses with "That's mine" and "I know a thing or two"; the Three Stewards are clever acrobats, and Ruffell's Bioscope presents many interesting films, the Messina Earthquake scenes being extremely good. The new musical director, Mr. Kennedy Russell, wields the bâton in masterly manner.

Scott's Circus, Wednesbury.

THE Circus still continues to draw packed and enthusiastic houses nightly. The variety programme, which is an excellent one, includes the Bros. Athalie in their refined Herculean athletic performance, the triple jockey act by the Bros. Scott, and an interesting arenic drama of the historical Dick Turpin's ride to York also proves an immense attraction. The Emperor statue by the great white horse stallion also proves a big hit.

MRS. LILIAN CHARLESWORTH, who was professionally known as Miss Lily Landon, wife of C. B. Charlesworth, of De Montfort, Streatham, and Conyngham Hall, Knaresborough, Yorkshire, wishes it known she is in no way connected with the Charlesworths, of the Charlesworth mystery.

THE latest quotations for music hall shares are as follow:—Alhambra, 1 9-16; Canterbury, ½; Empire (15s. paid), 1½; Empire (10s. paid), 1⅝; London Pavilion Ord., 4⅛; London Pavilion Pref., 5; Metropolitan, 14s.; Moss Empire, 5; Moss Empire 5 per cent. Pref., 4¼; Oxford, 6⅜; Palace, 15-16; Tivoli, 5⅜; United Varieties, 1; Varieties Consolidated Theatres, 11s. 6d.

AT the Exeter Police Court on the 17th application was made by the proprietors of the Exeter Hippodrome for permission for Christine Miriam Green, aged twelve, of Rochdale, to take part in a sketch. Mr. Fredk. Sandy, manager, gave his word that the child should be out of the hall by 9.30 at night, and he said the father was there to vouch for her education and good health. She took part in Christmas Eve, a sketch of less than half an hour. The father stated that the money earned was banked for the girl's exclusive use, and the Bench granted the application.

THE patronage bestowed on the Fun City at Olympia still continues on a large scale, and this is accounted for by the new features which are added each week to the programme. Next week the bill of the free vaudeville entertainment will contain Fieretti and Elly, speciality barrel jumpers, and Cole and Rags, American humourists. The International Ladies' Wrestling Tournament will enter its third week, and on Friday next there will be a market porters' basket carrying race for experts from Covent Garden.

SHAKESPEARE AND MILTON.

"The more I study the matter," writes Mr. George Hookham in an article on "The Shakespearean Problem" in the National Review, "the more has one thing been borne in on me, and grown with ever-increasing strength—the conviction that, on the literary side—for us the all-important side—Shakespeare was not merely not fully and generally appreciated in his own day, but was universally and hopelessly unappreciated; high authorities to the contrary notwithstanding. So sane a critic as Professor Walker, of Lampeteir, for instance, tells us that, like Vergil and Goethe, Shakespeare was known 'to his own age as a giant overtopping all his fellows.' I cannot conceive on what facts such a statement is founded. Believing that I am aware of all the evidence quoted as bearing on the point, I go so far as to say that the author of the plays must have died a bitterly disappointed man, perhaps even with his own faith in his work shaken; which, indeed, might account for some things that puzzle us. I say boldly that he was reckoned a bad second to Ben Jonson—the proofs are overwhelming—by the most cultivated men of the day. Compare merely the commendatory verses on the two dramatists as contributed by contemporary poets and scholars. In the First Folio list, barring Jonson himself, they are practically anonymous. But among those who praise Ben Jonson we have Chapman, Donne, Beaumont, Fletcher, Field, Selden, Waller, Herrick ('arch-poet Jonson'), Henry King, Habington, Shirley, Cartwright, Ford, and scholars, to me unknown, who write overflowingly in Greek and Latin verse. One of these in the course of a long poem in fluent and idiomatic, if not strictly Augustan, hexameters informs us that, just as the uncultured strain of Lucretius and the formless numbers of Ennius led up to the perfect Vergil, so and not otherwise did the toys of Chaucer and his rude followers and the 'twin bards' (apparently Beaumont and Fletcher, though the dates seem awkward) and Shakespeare lead up to the divine Jonson. He addresses them as 'divi,' Johnson as 'Deus'—'Sed, parcite, divi, Si majora vocant, si pagina sanctior urget'—meaning Jonson's. A number of them specifically compare the two dramatists, and invariably to the disadvantage of Shakespeare. If we turn to Dr. Ingleby's 'Century of Praise,' we find ourselves in the region of farce. Much of that artless collection is not praise at all, but something very different; and whatever contemporary praise there is, that is at all superlative, is bestowed not on the plays but on the poems. And what of Jonson himself and his verses on Shakespeare? Is it to be supposed for a moment that Ben Jonson, of all men, when everybody else was placing him first, placed himself second? As to the First Folio verses, is it not obvious to suspect that they are purely official? We know pretty well what the Elizabethans could do in the way of panegyric, when they gave their minds to it. Jonson all but idolised the author, and he would give his plays a good send-off. But what he really thought he imparts elsewhere in a sort of confidence: as, that Shakespeare 'wanted art'; 'often fell into those things could not escape laughter'; but that, after all, 'he redeemed his vices with his virtues. There was ever more in him to be praised than to be pardoned'—not too reverent a way to speak of a giant universally recognised as overtopping all his fellows. It really will not hold water. The opinion of all was his opinion—that Jonson had all that Shakespeare lacked. No doubt he was the man, and art would die with him. That was what Ben Jonson thought, and, in effect, probably said.

"Incidentally, but most significantly, it is to be noticed—so far as I know it has not been noticed before—that one star, and that one a star that 'had no fellow in the firmament,' is conspicuous for its absence from this galaxy of praising poets—the 'consummate orb' of Milton: and why? 'Jonsonus Virbius' was many months in preparation; every literary man must have known what was in the wind. Why did not Milton contribute? Clearly because he could not subscribe. He for one could not place Jonson first, and must stand severely aloof. Seven years before—he was now in his thirtieth year—he had written his poem (not a sonnet, by the bye, as De Quincey and others call it) on Shakespeare—the very first adequate appreciation in literature of the greatest of the immortals. This was prefixed to, and possibly written for, the Second (1632) Folio. Tribute of 'wonder the astonishment' is paid to the overpowering force of the great poet, but the tenderness of universal genius has its due appreciation also; 'sweetest Shakespeare' he elsewhere calls him, and 'my Shakespeare' in this poem, as though the sole devotee claimed a sort of proprietorship in the divinity he had discovered. It would be a singular and interesting thing in the history of English poetry if Milton should prove to be the first to discover Shakespeare; and it certainly looks very much like it."

MISS MERCEDES BLASCO, the polygot singer, will be heard at the Coliseum on Monday, in no fewer than four languages—Spanish, Italian, Portuguese, and French.

MISS ALICE HUGHES will start on a tour for several weeks with her screaming comedietta, Star of the Bazaar, afterwards opening at all the principal London halls.

GLEN ALVA, versatile comedian, finishes a five weeks' run at the Theatre Royal, Paisley, on Saturday, and opens at the Theatre Royal, Perth, for two weeks with Govan, Londonderry, &c., to follow.

"A SCOTTISH EXILE'S DREAM," as produced by John Donald, has proved a wonderful success. All round Macnaghten circuit, in Wales as well as Scotland, his fine voice and novel turn fairly took them by storm.

MISS VICTORIA CROSS, who is termed the Scottish Louie Freear, as the Scotch slavey in Red Riding Hood at the Prince's Theatre, Bradford, sings "Ma Heilan Mary," written and composed by herself, which is undoubtedly one of the hits of the pantomime.

MR. JOHN LAWSON is presenting the evergreen Humanity to overflowing houses at the Canterbury and Poplar Hippodrome this week. At the latter hall a new set was used for the first time, every article being in white and gold—a scene to be remembered. At the former house there was also a new set, the design being green and gold, with oak balcony, staircase, &c.

MR. FRED ODELL, the well-known versatile entertainer, has executed a very fine painting in oils of the late Tom Lovell—"Our Tom." He wishes to sell this for 30s.; a portion of this amount would go to the benefit of the Lovell family. Mr. Odell was a student at the Kensington Art Schools, and gained certificates there; he was also a life student at the National Gallery.

MR. THEO. BOUWMEESTER, the Dutch protean actor, has just returned from Madrid, where he played at the Teatro Español, in the Spanish language, and where he had the pleasure to be invited by Royal Command to play at the Royal Palace. Mr. Bouwmeester is becoming rapidly a polyglot actor, as he speaks and writes excellent English.

The composer has penned a sufficient number of lively tunes, and it may be added quite truthfully we never heard a better chorus.
The Daily Chronicle says:—
A bright musical comedy, with many pleasing musical numbers.
The Morning Leader says:—
"The Flower Girl" is well played by Mr. Charles M. Bestic's company.
The Star says:—
"The Flower Girl" is admirably presented by Mr. Charles M. Bestic's company.
The Referee says:—
The fun is both fast and furious, and provoked uproarious laughter.

BOROUGH OF RAMSGATE.

ROYAL VICTORIA PAVILION

THE TOWN COUNCIL
INVITE TENDERS

for a lease of the following parts of the above premises, for three years from March 25, 1909:—

A. The Great Hall (130ft. by 65ft.), with Stage, Dressing-rooms, &c., well adapted for Theatrical, Musical, and Variety Entertainments, licensed for Music and Dancing, &c., together with the Upper Promenade (revenue from charges of admission) and Inside Lavatories.

B. The spacious, beautifully-decorated Restaurant and Buffet (two Bars, one for the use of persons attending performances in the Great Hall), with extensive cellarage, &c., fully licensed.

C. The Colonnade Tea and Refreshment Rooms.

D. A Lock-up Shop, now communicating and used in connection with Part C, but can be let separately for a business satisfactory to the Council.

Rates, Taxes, and other outgoings will be paid by the Tenant or Tenants.

Applications must be enclosed in a sealed envelope, marked "Hire of Pavilion," addressed to the Chairman, General Purposes Committee, Albion House, Ramsgate, and delivered on or before Saturday, Jan. 30, 1909.

Plan and further particulars may be obtained from the undersigned, at whose office a draft of the proposed Lease may be seen.

The Council do not bind themselves to accept the highest or any Tender or Tenders.

A. BLASDALE CLARKE,
Town Clerk.

Albion House,
Ramsgate.
Jan. 14, 1909.

BOROUGH OF SOUTHEND-ON-SEA.

OPEN-AIR ENTERTAINMENTS.

THE CORPORATION

for the privilege of GIVING ENTERTAINMENTS in the HAPPY VALLEY BANDSTAND on the Cliff Slopes for one or three years from Saturday, 15th May, to Saturday, 2nd October (Sundays excluded).

Extensive alterations to the site are now being made, and the area available for seating accommodation will be increased to 1,500 square yards, thus giving 2½ times the accommodation formerly available. The Bandstand on the Cliffs hitherto used by the Military Band will be removed to the Happy Valley, and will give more convenience and accommodation to the Artists. Plans of the proposed alterations may be inspected at my Office during Office Hours.

The successful tenderer will be allowed to make collections and to place chairs round the Bandstand and to charge for the use thereof, and will be held responsible for the payment of the rates apportioned on the premises.

Full particulars of nature of entertainments must be given, and sealed offers, endorsed "Happy Valley," must be sent to my Office not later than Wednesday, the 10th day of February, 1909.

By Order,
H. J. WORWOOD,
Town Clerk (pro tem.).

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1909.

"The Era" Annual for 1909 is, as usual, an excellent book of reference for all connected with the stage. Its lighter side consists of stories by actors and managers who are in the forefront of their profession. Mr. George Alexander is responsible for the following delightful story:—"I shall be sorry to see the last of the London cabman, but I suppose the day is not far distant. Will the taxicab driver develop a humour of his own? I hope so, or the gaiety of nations will suffer. Being in a hurry to get home from the theatre a few days ago, I walked to the corner of King-street. An old cabman with his hansom was the first on the rank, but I shook my head at him, and called a taxicab. As I approached it the hansom cabby said: 'So, Mr. G. A., you've no use for 'osses now; but you'll 'ave to 'ave one to take you on the day you're buried.' I went home in that hansom after all."—Express, Jan. 13, 1909.

IMPORTANT NOTICES.

RE APPLICATIONS FOR ENGAGEMENTS.

All applications by either Artists or their Agents must be made to the Head Office. Lowest terms must be stated, and distinction made between salaries required for larger and smaller towns. Vacant dates should be stated. If a list of existing bookings be sent, it will render selection easier.

Artists employing Agents should accredit one only at one time, as the friction arising when several Agents are employed at the same time, all expecting the one booking to go through each of them, often renders it expedient to avoid that booking altogether rather than give undeserved offence to several Agents.

New Acts seeking Engagements, or turns not rebooked (possibly because they have played a series of dates without introducing new business), will facilitate matters by having their acts seen by our District Managers. Their Districts and Postal Addresses are as follow :—

EDINBURGH, GLASGOW, NEWCASTLE, AND DISTRICT.
MR. S. GETHING, Empire Theatre, Glasgow.

BIRMINGHAM, NOTTINGHAM, LEICESTER, AND DISTRICT.
MR. HATTON WHARTON, Empire Theatre, Nottingham.

SOUTH WALES DISTRICT.
MR. ALBERT MITCHELL, Empire Theatre, Cardiff.

LEEDS, SHEFFIELD, HULL, BRADFORD, AND DISTRICT.
MR. T. GERALD MORTON, Empire Palace, Leeds.

LIVERPOOL, MANCHESTER, AND DISTRICT.
MR. ALBERT BULMER, The Empire, Liverpool.

LONDON DISTRICT.
MR. J. CHRISTIE, Empire Theatre, Shepherd's Bush, W.

N.B.—Mr. OSWALD STOLL or Mr. FRANK ALLEN can be seen by appointment on all matters arising out of the above, and for the discussion of entirely new Numbers.

All Artists or Agents who communicate with our District Representatives must have made definite applications, in accordance with above directions, to the Head Office, at the same time, or just previously.

Artists and Agents are requested to note that the Alexandra Theatre, Stoke Newington, Standard Theatre, Shoreditch, and the Terriss Theatre, Rotherhithe, come within the areas absolutely barred by us. Artists and Agents are also requested to note that the Hippodrome, Aston, Birmingham, comes within the area absolutely barred by the Grand Theatre and Empire Palace, Birmingham.

INSTRUCTIONS TO ARTISTS.

Artists must have at least Fourteen Band Parts for English Orchestrations, and Seventeen Band Parts for Foreign Orchestrations. Matter of Bill, Blocks, and Specimens of Pictorials FOR ALL THE ABOVE THEATRES must be sent to Co-operative Offices, at above address, THREE WEEKS before Opening, failing which Artists will run the risk of having their Engagements cancelled.

IMPORTANT.—Artists must forward Copies of Songs to the STAGE DEPARTMENT, ABOVE ADDRESS, TWO WEEKS previous to opening, with Assignments for same, which will be returned. Artists are requested to note carefully that the clause in their contracts relating to rehearsals will in future be strictly enforced. Artists' Scenery, Properties, &c., MUST be fireproofed in accordance with the regulations of the Licensing Authorities.

ARTISTS WILL CLEARLY UNDERSTAND THAT THEIR BUSINESS MUST BE FREE FROM ALL VULGARITY.

No order or contract for goods or services must be accepted for any of the foregoing theatres except upon receipt of an Official Form, issued from the Co-operative Offices, London, and signed by either Mr. Oswald Stoll, Mr. Frank Allen, or the Chief Accountant, otherwise the Company concerned will not be responsible for same, and will refuse payment. In special cases, where goods are required at once, suppliers must look to the individual placing the order, who will be personally liable, unless an official confirmatory order, signed as above, is received within forty-eight hours. Invoices must be sent to the Theatre, but monthly statements should be sent to the Co-operative Offices. The individual Company on whose behalf orders are signed is solely responsible for payment. The Management will not hold themselves responsible in the event of loss of or damage to any MSS., Songs, &c., submitted for consideration.

THIS WEEK'S NOVELTIES.

THE EARTHQUAKE OF DEC. 28th., 1908 (Second Edition).

Code Word, "GONDOLE."

Views of the rubble at Messina, Reggio, and Scilla.

379ft. The Subject, £6 6s. 4d.

KATE'S BIRTHDAY.

Code Word, "FRANC."

Robert cannot offer Kate, his sweetheart, the least keepsake for her birthday, for after turning his pockets inside out he finds that he has not got a single penny left. Kate is so disappointed that he goes to his old maiden aunt and asks for a cheque, but the lady has feelings only towards her little dog, and the poor nephew is sent away with his hands empty. On his way back, he sees the darling dog, Jack, out for a walk with the man-servant. Robert has a brilliant idea. He kidnaps Jack, and the old lady having had a notice circulated to the effect that she will give £4 reward to the person who brings her back her dog, Robert receives the coveted prize, that will allow him to keep his promise to his girl.

460ft. The Subject, £7 13s. 4d.

CHAUFFEUR AND CABWOMAN.

Code Word, "FONCTION."

A chauffeur, having had one of his tyres punctured, is seen in the street by a cabwoman, who has pity on him, and allows his motor car to be towed by her cab. They marry soon after, but at their first quarrel they emphasize their arguments with the whip and petroleum cans. To escape the present state of affairs, the chauffeur runs away in his motor car; she follows him in her cab, and another accident to the heavy machinery delivers the helpless husband into the hands of his infuriated wife.

396ft. The Subject, £6 12s. 0d.

A CHILD'S LOVE.

Code Word, "FRAISE."

Mr. Skittish has a charming wife and a pretty daughter, but this does not prevent him from making love to a dancer. Poor Mrs. Skittish is breaking her heart at home at the idea of her husband's fickleness; and her little girl, after puzzling her young mind as to the cause of this sorrow, discovers that it is the dancer who is the cause of all this. Her loving little heart tells her to go and entreat the other woman to send away her father; she uses such convincing arguments that the actress yields to her entreaties, and happiness is once more restored in the Skittish home.

528ft. The Subject, £8 16s. 0d. Colouring and Toning, £4 15s. 0d.

A GOOD MAN.

Code Word, "FRACAS."

412ft. The Subject, £6 17s. 4d. Toning, 16s.

VERCINGETORIX (Gaul's Hero).

Code Word, "FRUITIER."

The daughter of one of Gaul's chiefs is offering the cup to Vercingetorix, her future husband, according to the custom of the time. A rejected rival challenges the happy young chief, who, however, grants him his life, for he does not wish to blacken the day of his betrothal with a crime. The traitor offers his services to Cæsar, promising him to lead his army into the Gauls' camp. After the battle of Alesia, the Romans enter the town. Woe to the vanquished! Vercingetorix has to ride over to Cæsar's camp, and throws his weapons at the conqueror's feet. The hero is then imprisoned, and while his tearful wife is comforting him in his cell, the executioners enter and strangle him before her very eyes.

660ft. The Subject, £11 0s. 0d. Colouring and Toning, £5 18s. 8d.

AT THE ZOOLOGICAL GARDENS, LONDON.

Code Word, "FUSEE."

Titles of pictures:—Arctic bears playing water-polo—Zebras—Giraffes—Hippopotami—Eagles—Brown bears—Monkeys—Reindeer—Bison—Rhinoceros—Pelicans—Flamingoes—Beavers—Secretary vulture—Black hornbill—Capybara—Hyenas—The walrus pond—The king of beasts.

595ft. The Subject, £9 18s. 4d.

THE CRIMINAL GUARDIAN.

Code Word, "FRICHE."

A wealthy young lady plans an abduction with her lover, a young factory owner of the neighbourhood, whom her guardian will not accept as the girl's suitor, for this would deprive him of a considerable profit. Surprising them in the garden, he loads his revolver, and kills his ward. The servants, attracted by the noise, find the young man weeping over the body. Appearances are against him, and he is arrested. In the examining magistrate's office, however, the guardian has a vision. He sees the dead girl reproaching him with his crime, and demanding him to take the law into his own hands. Finally, he blows out his brains with the very same weapon which has served to kill her.

495ft. The Subject, £8 5s. 0d. Toning, 10s.

A HOUSE FULL OF EXCITEMENT.

Code Word, "FRETIN."

On the top floor several starving Bohemians are boring a hole through the floor into the room underneath. This enables them to partake of a hearty meal, which costs them nothing. On discovering the theft, the neighbours arm themselves with brooms, but they only find an army of rats, which they fight desperately. The rain, pouring in through the opening in the roof, floods the place. Gendarmes, arriving on the spot, march off all these excited people.

346ft. The Subject, £5 15s. 4d.

A PUZZLING ENIGMA.

Code Word, "FOURGON."

LAST WEEK'S NOVELTIES.

THE STORY OF PSYCHE.

Code Word, "FRINGALE."

This mythological scene was enacted amid picturesque surroundings, and its photographic quality is equal to that of our best subjects. Psyche, the king's daughter, sacrifices herself for the welfare of her country, and as she is wandering alone on the beach, she is carried up in the air by the Furies. After rambling about Cupid's gardens, she sits down near a spring and weeps. Venus, who was the first cause of Psyche's misfortune, relents on seeing her so sad, and causes her to marry Cupid, who is in love with the beautiful princess.

956ft. The Subject, £15 18s. 8d. Colouring and Toning, £8 18s. 0d.

THE DIFFERENT AEROPLANES.

Code Word, "FROTTIS."

This interesting series of aeroplanes shows the different types of flying machines ever since the beginning of the aviation craze. The most prominent figures of this special world are here photographed: Messrs. Wilbur Wright, Santos-Dumont, Kapferer, Archdeacon, Delagrange, &c.

460ft. The Subject, £7 13s. 4d.

DEADLY PLANT.

Code Word, "FILTRAGE."

Two young people, one boy and one girl, under age, were left by their father's will to the care of Dr. Marsan, who goes with them during the summer to the mountains to gather plants. The boy, who has just found a deadly plant, boils it, and gives the juice to his sister to drink. The good doctor has his suspicions, and when he sees the young lady writhing with the pain caused by the poison, he understands what has taken place, and gives her a suitable remedy. She recovers quickly, while the young would-be murderer is handed over to the police.

445ft. The Subject, £7 8s. 4d.

CALL ON THE

NEW BIOSCOPE TRADING CO.

AND

WE WILL TELL YOU, and put you in the way of getting it. This business run by

BRAINS AND ABILITY,

not by an unlimited amount of public invested capital. We do not read all the advertisements in the papers and pick out the best lines, as others do. We do not send round to our opponents to learn how to conduct our business. We know

THE ENGINES OF THE CAR ARE KNOCKING AGAIN.

Why have not some of our opponents used our motto

SLEEP EASY IN YOUR BEDS?

Because they have not.

THE DREADNOUGHT,

The finest Bioscope in the market.

You must agree with us that

THE BEST IS NOT TOO GOOD FOR YOU.

Then why not go where you can obtain it? Success does not inflate our heads. We are accustomed to it? We do not go round to showmen with our hats in our hands, saying, "Please, sir, cannot we supply you. We are very big people," but have built up our present enormous business from the recommendations of showmen we have served so well in the past. We do not cut prices to obtain new customers, give them a fine programme for a week or so, and then say, "Anything will do for them now."

WE ALWAYS GIVE YOU THE BEST.

A. R. DEAN & SONS

Beg to thank their many Clients, Proprietors, Managers, and Architects for making last year the most successful of their career.

During the last 30 years A. R. DEAN & SONS have either completely or partly furnished upwards of 1,842 THEATRES, HALLS, and PUBLIC BUILDINGS.

Last year alone, 108 THEATRES, HALLS, HOTELS, and Public Buildings were either completely or partly decorated and furnished by them. This is a record which has not been approached by A. R. DEAN & SONS before.

Fully 9s per cent. of the Contracts going for this class of work last year (1908) was gained by A. R. DEAN & SONS.

Notwithstanding the immense amount of work entailed in completing these Contracts, A. R. DEAN & SONS are proud to say that every Contract was completed to time, and has invariably given the greatest satisfaction.

In December, 1908, A. R. DEAN & SONS completed their Contracts, and saw opened the following Theatres and Halls:

NEW PAVILION, WEYMOUTH.
NEW HIPPODROME, BOSCOMBE.
NEW PALACE THEATRE, OLDHAM
NEW EMPIRE, OLDHAM.

NEW CINEMA. PALACE, RICHMOND
NEW HIPPODROME, ASTON.
NEW PALACE, ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE.
NEW HIPPODROME, BIRKENHEAD.

This Year (1909) A. R. DEAN & SONS intend to beat their past records.

Already, although the year is young, they have in hand for completion the whole of the Re-upholstery and Re-carpeting (including 3,000 yards of the Best Wilton Carpet) of

The ALHAMBRA THEATRE, PARIS.
The complete Reseating of the NEW HOLLOWAY HALL, Holloway, London. Upwards of 900 Tip-up Chairs.
The NEW KING'S HALL, TOOTING. Seating for 1,000 people.
The NEW HIPPODROME, ILKESTON. Complete Furnishing and Seating.

NEW ROYAL HIPPODROME, BLACKBURN. The whole of the Plastic Decorations and Furnishing throughout at a cost of upwards of £2,000.
NEW PALACE HIPPODROME, DUNDEE. Complete Furnishing throughout.
&c., &c., &c.

A. R. DEAN & SONS' Chairs and Seating are far away the Best and Cheapest in the Market.
A. R. DEAN & SONS give four years' guarantee with all their Seats from the cheapest to the highest price goods.
A. R. DEAN & SONS have made a study of the requirements of

PICTURE SHOWS
AND SHOWS OF A SIMILAR KIND.

Last year A. R. DEAN & SONS seated 22 Picture Palaces, including most of the ELECTRIC THEATRE COMPANY'S.
A. R. DEAN & SONS this year have several New Styles in this class of Goods.
A. R. DEAN & SONS succeed in retaining their Old Clients, and making New Clients every day.

The Reason why A. R. DEAN & SONS are always Up to Date.

A. R. DEAN & SONS only employ as Managers and Foremen men who have made a Study of this class of Work; who are reliable; and have been in the employ of the Firm for many years.
A. R. DEAN & SONS' Goods are manufactured in good, clean, and wholesome Works and Factories complying in every way with the Rules of the Factory Act.
A. R. DEAN & SONS' Managers will, at all times, wait upon Architects, Proprietors, and Managers, to prepare Schemes and Estimates, Free of all Charge. Distance no object. Any part of England, Ireland, or Scotland.

NO CONTRACT TOO LARGE. NO ORDER TOO SMALL.

The Largest Theatre or Opera House. The Smallest Portable Theatre or Hall or Booth.

A. R. DEAN & SONS' System of Business is—Honesty, Promptitude, and Civility.
A. R. DEAN & SONS' Reputation has not been gained in one year, but in 30 years.

PROVINCIAL THEATRICALS.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

ABERAMAN.—GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. A. Jackson Withers.—Mr. A. Clifton Alderson's company is here this week in The Coal King. Mr. Ulick Burke gives a powerful rendering of the title-rôle; Mr. A. Clifton Alderson plays Tom Roberts in an impressive manner; Mr. Escott Robson shows to advantage as Walter Hartford; Miss Winifred Love gives a praiseworthy rendering of Grace Shirley; and Miss Joan Wellman as Mad Ann submits a touching portrayal. Mr. Sam Roberts as Jim Williams is successful; and Mr. Frank Dalton makes the most of the part of Dick Shirley.

ABERDARE.—NEW THEATRE.—Proprietors, The Aberdare Public Hall Theatre and Billposting Co., Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Z. Andrews; Acting-Manager, Mr. B. Richards.—Mr. Reginald Dance is paying a return visit to this town with his company in Raffles. Mr. Dance scores a tremendous success in the title-rôle; Mr. P. Alexander is a dignified Lord Amersteth; Mr. Edward Irwin presents an effective impersonation of Mr. Curtis Bedford, a detective; Mr. Oswald Griffiths gave a very clever character sketch of Crawshay, a burglar; and Mr. A. P. Bell is good as Harry Manners. Miss Frances Titheradge submits a capital impersonation of Gwendoline Conran; Miss Molly Tremaine is seen to great advantage as Mrs. Vidal; Miss Marguerite Urett is very pleasing as Lady Ethel; whilst Miss Kitty Lofting is a stately Lady Melrose. As Marie Miss Doris Digby made a good impression.

HAGGAR'S BIOSCOPE Co. have taken possession of the Market Hall for some weeks. They have the latest up-to-date pictures in their répertoire, and include the Cinephone in their programme. As a result of a special concert last Sunday, twenty guineas were handed to the fund for the Messina survivors. Actual pictures of the earthquake disaster were shown. The adjoining villages are also being visited by members of the enterprising Haggar family.

ABERDEEN. — H. M. THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Adair Nelson.—Mr. William Mollison's company is fulfilling a fortnight's engagement with Rob Roy. Mr. Mollison's Willie was a faultless piece of character portraiture, and Mr. Calvert plays with conspicuous power as Rob Roy. Miss Evelyn McNay was an admirable Helen; Mr. Whitford Keane was a successful villain as Rashleigh, and Mr. Drysdal gave a highly amusing representation of the Dugal "cratur"; Miss Retta Macallister acted with spirit and sang tunefully as Diana; and the part of Francis Osbaldestone was taken by the great tenor Mr. Ben Davies. Mr. Davies was in rare voice, and, needless to say, all his songs were rapturously encored. Mr. Mollison devotes next week to Shakespearean representations.

PALACE THEATRE.—Lessees, The United County Theatres, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Walter Gilbert.—Messrs. Albert and Edmund's talented company appear with the utmost success in a capital musical farce Neighbours; the Marvellous Steens give a startling exhibition of various occult arts; the Esdale Brothers, comedians, are very popular; Sira excels as a one-legged dancer; Major Arnold shows both originality and versatility as a magician; Mr. Mike Gray contributes a very droll juggling turn; Mr. George James is a resourceful comedian; and Little Rosé Pink dances gracefully and sings some delightful coon songs.

ALHAMBRA MUSIC HALL.—Manager, Mr. James Montague.—This popular and long-established house was opened on Monday under the management of Mr. Montague, of the Empire. Owing to the public interest aroused by the change, and the excellence of the programme announced, crowds had to be turned away from the doors. Mr. Calder and Mr. Montague are to work the Alhambra in conjunction with their other house, the Empire. Their combination of artists has been considerably augmented, the most notable of the new-comers being Miss Minnie Osborne and Mr. Jack Belton. The entertainments at both places on Monday were greatly successful.

ABERTILLERY.—THEATRE METROPOLE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. C. J. Seaborn.—The Nihilist is being presented here. Mr. Walter Bentley gives a skilful impersonation of Ivan Nowasky; Miss Edna Clare portrays the part of Alexina in impressive style; Princess Olga is capably delineated by Miss Florrie Kelsey; Mr. O. Silverthone handles the villainous character of Prince Alexander in capital style; Mr. J. Brunelle Harvey does justice to Gourko, the exiled priest; Little May Ediss gives a natural rendition of Little Alexina; and comedy is well supplied by Mr. Henry Wright as Bobbie Smart.

THE PAVILION.—Lessees, E. and H. Tilney; Manager, Mr. E. Pryce.—Mr. J. Rice Cassidy presents here this week to good houses the interesting play In Holy Russia. Mr. Cassidy never fails to amuse as Mickey Nolan; Renée Rubinoff receives full justice from Mrs. J. Rice Cassidy, who is highly appreciated for her skilful impersonation; Mr. Henry Compton makes a capital Colonel Forrest, and Sir Harry Beresford finds a clever exponent in Mr. Frank Copeland; Baron von Pleve is dramatically portrayed by Mr. Carl Beechey; Mr. George Frere is good as Michael Natolski; Mr. George Doyle shows great skill as Laurice Steragoff; Count Gregori Petrolski is excellently rendered by Mr. Rolf Leslie; and Catski Lavoiski is effectively played by Miss Amy McNeill. The mounting of the piece is good.

ACCRINGTON.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. B. Ormerod; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. E. Barnes.—Pantomime has been inaugurated here this week by Mr. Edward Marris's company in Dick Whittington. The excellence of the entertainment is being recognised and appreciated by crowded and delighted audiences at every performance. Everything is bright and attractive, the music tuneful, the setting rich, and the dresses superb. Miss Etty Waldron's admirable rendering of the title-rôle has been received with every manifestation of approval; Miss Doris Gilbert sustains the part of Alice Fitzwarren with brightness and spirit; the Sisters Clifton as Lieut. Jackbuoy and Lieut. Bellbuoy are favourably received in their respective parts. Mr. Joe Waldron has made a palpable hit as Idle Jack, and his antics evoke loud shouts of laughter; Mr. Herbert Pearce excels in the part of Alderman Fitzwarren, and Mr. Billy Watson scores as Captain Kettle; Mr. Will Vestor is exceedingly droll and clever as Julie, the cook, and Mr. Arthur Lawrence sings and acts well as the Emperor of Morocco; Tinkabell, his daughter, is capitally portrayed by Miss Nora Doone; Mr. Dick Nash is very good in his business as the Cat, and the Belasco Trio render several songs in a tuneful and harmonious manner. Mr. E. H. Bertram is the general-manager, and we were pleased to notice an old favourite in Mr. George Fox as the advance representative.

NEW HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, The Accrington Hippodrome Co.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Walter Mould.—Haley's Juveniles, in their magnificent Carnival scena, are the leading feature here this week, and occasion highly-favourable comment; Kartelli, in his novelty wire act, is received with well-deserved applause; the Zenary Bros. perform smart acrobatic feats; Lennard and Verriker are pleasing with their illustrated songs; and Chas. Johnson is a capital vocalist and dancer. Miss Flo Warner proves herself a charming comedienne; the Schavonys, society acrobats, are undoubtedly one of the best turns in the bill, and are repeatedly recalled; Walter Wade, comedian, achieves success; and the Bioscope completes the bill.

ALDERSHOT.—ROYAL AND HIPPODROME.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Clarence Sounee; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. Gladwin.—For the last week of the present dramatic season another pantomime is being presented, Mr. J. D. Hunter's Robinson Crusoe proving acceptable in its way. Besides many features in the ordinary run, several specialities are introduced by the Lupinos, the Melroses, Dennis and Morris, and Miss Judith Espinoss. The best attraction of the whole performance is the Mahomed Ben Mahomed troupe of Suasa Arabs, whose marvellous acrobatic business causes vociferous applause and re-demands. Miss Cynthia Lupino is capital as Crusoe, and Miss Lellah Melrose as Polly is chic and sings one or two catchy songs. Mr. Matt Melrose helps in the fun-providing as Mrs. Crusoe, and Messrs. Dennis and Morris as Jack and Jimmy also add to the amusement with their gags and comedy business. Mr. G. Lupino makes an excellent Friday, and Mr. A. Leoville as Will Atkins does well. The choruses are well rendered, and the dressing and staging are all that could be wished for.

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill, jun.—Hardie and Von Leer's company is here with The Sailor's Wedding. As Lieut. Gordon Drake Mr. C. W. Standing gives an excellent interpretation; Mr. Cecil Klein finds scope for his talent as Sir Victor Lascelles; Mr. Hodgson Taylor as the villain Giovanni Ferici is capably callous; and Mr. F. Finch Smiles as Giacomo, of the evil eye, is made dramatically repulsive and nerve-trying. Miss Mary Pemberton as Mary plays the part of a self-sacrificing woman with great tenderness; Miss Winifred Pearson as Lenore, an adventuress, gives a finished impersonation of feminine cunning. Minor rôles are successfully interpreted by Misses Laura Hansen, Cicely Wade, and M. Sadie, and by Messrs. Cole Aspinall, G. Ford, H. Reynolds, Emsdale, and Childs.

EMPIRE HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr W. Leech; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Jesse Burslem.—Mr. John Tiller's Red Riding Hood is a very amusing pantomime, full of fun and frolic, some good singing, dancing, and spectacular effects being also supplied. Little Red Riding Hood is represented by Miss Decima Brooke, who sings sweetly and dances neatly; Miss Emmie Franks is a commanding Lieut. Tommy Tucker; Miss Louie Davies is a piquant Marjory Daw; Little Miss Muffit, Boy Blue, Polly Dimple, and Jack Spratt are characters forming the Poppy Quartette of Dancers. Miss Maisie is a charming Prince Charming. The Baron as played by Mr. Fred Russell is made a very diverting personage, and Mr. Howard Ward is a masculine female as Dame Crump; Will Lytton and Walter Watson, a couple of funny fellows as Johnny Stout and Johnny Green; Miss Florry Page as Goodwill makes an attractive fairy; David Laird as Redfangs is a prowling wolf of a vicious nature. The Excelsior Troupe of Children is an extra attraction.

NEW PAVILION.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Leech; Assistant-Manager, Mr. T. Edwd. Owen.—The week's pictures contain many of a novel character. Rifle Bill is an exciting film, and great fun is caused by the pursuit of the Goose in the Streets of Paris. At Home Day is also a comical subject. Pictures of a striking character are Stage Romance, The White Chief, Inn of Death, &c. The vaudeville turns are Jack Hartley, the Yorkshire comedian, in song and patter, and the Sisters Terry, dainty duettists, who sing and dance admirably.

THE PICTUREDROME. — Lessees, Messrs. Weisker Bros; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Marks.—A further series of scenes from Messina are the main attraction, conspicuous among them being the rescue of a Catholic Bishop, who, while helping at rescue, was himself entombed and liberated after twelve days. China of To-day is a set of stirring scenes, showing ancient and modern means of locomotion in striking contrast; Face to Face is a pathetic circus story, introducing a capital fire scene; and in A Good Tip an exciting steeplechase is represented. Comic pictures include Rover's Christmas, The Sexton's Sleepwalk, Drinkers' Fancies, The Servant in the Acrobatic Family, and The Volcanic Chimney. Variety interludes are also given.

ATTERCLIFFE.—THEATRE ROYAL, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. Macnaghten; Resident-Manageress, Miss Ethel J. Hope.—This week sees a return to pictures. A goodly selection includes Christmas Eve Dream, An American Sees London in Ten Minutes, A Genuine Old Time Harlequin, The Earthquake Disaster in Italy, Sherlock Holmes, and a most interesting travel series, Around Brussels. Chorus songs are given by Mr. Bert Rainor.

PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. Bert Dent; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Harry Sanders. — This week's programme is worthily headed by Mr. James Willard and company, in a thrilling and sensational playlet, The Ace of Hearts, the parts being presented with full dramatic force by Mr. James Willard as John Fairburn, Mr. Jackson Wilcox as Dick Royston, and Miss Muriel Palmer as Lola Vane. Other turns are provided by Burke, Andrus, and Frisco, in a laughable absurdity, Trafalgar Square, London; Lona, a pleasing juvenile instrumentalist; Mr. William Arthur, popular bass vocalist; Macintosh and Royal, expert dancers; Miss Lily Ray, vocalist and dancer; Hugo and Smit, comedy acrobats and bar performers; Mr. Charles Rose, comedian and dancer; and the Attergraph pictures. This week, Mr. Dent, the enterprising manager, has introduced a "burlesque wrestling contest," for cash prizes, which provokes hearty laughter.

BACUP.—NEW COURT THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Denman-Wood.—Mr. Walter Melville's company with The Girl Who Took the Wrong Turning forms a strong attraction here this week. Mr. F. Ronald Adair gives a vigorous rendering of Willie Mason, and is ably supported in some trying scenes by Miss Jessie Belmore as Sophie Coventry; Miss Nannie Meade submits a forcible delineation of Vesta le Clere; Mr. Sidney Sarl makes an effective Bill Slater; Mr. F. R. Robertson does full justice to the character of Jack Fenton; Johnny Walker finds a capable exponent in Mr. Fred Ingram; Mr. Raymond Wood ably depicts the villain; and Miss Zoe Davis is successful as Lucy Coventry.

BARROW-IN-FURNESS.—ROYALTY THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Stone.—Mr. Wm. MacLaren's company in Claudian is here. Mr. MacLaren is exceptionally good in the title-rôle, and Mr. George Roberts declaims finely as the Holy Clement; Miss Amy Hardcastle is a capable Serena, and the Belos of Mr. Chal. T. Chaloner and the Edessa of Miss Ruth Trafford are humorously done; Mr. Bernard Elliott is a capital Tetrarch, and Mr. Douglas Earle a typical Agazil. Miss Lucy C. Bandmann plays with grace and power as Almida.

HIS MAJESTY'S.—Lessees and Managers, Mr. and Mrs. Calvert Routledge.—Mr. Charles Constant's pantomime Blue Beard is here. Miss Daisy Lake makes a winsome Selim, and Miss Mary Duncan an engaging Fatima; Mr. Johnny Clegg is an amusing Sister Ann, and the Bamboozulum of Mr. Jack Parker is good comedy. Specialities are contributed by Messrs. Harlin and Hanlon, the Florodorians, Russell and Gage, the Sando Girls, and Walter B. Frear and Dolly Ward.

TIVOLI.—Lessee and Manager, Signor Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. Edgar G. Laban.—The Four Athos are the premier turn here this week. They are capital acrobats, and their ball manipulation is exceedingly clever. Bi-Bo-Bi supplies a musical treat of the mirthful type; Flo Connelly is very pleasing in her songs and dances; Adkin causes amusement with his ventriloquial turn; Sam Williams, comedian, is much enjoyed; Vernon's Bioscope has some very interesting pictures; and Lozelle gives a clean and clever athletic turn.

NEW HIPPODROME.—Owners and Managers, Mr. and Mrs. Calvert Routledge.—Pictures of a very interesting character are here this week, the programme being interspersed with items by Miss Lena Allen and Messrs. Brown and Duff.

BARRY DOCK.—NEW THEATRE AND HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Arthur Carlton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Brogden.—Mr. Roland Yorke presented The Old Home to a well-filled house on Monday. Mr. Charles Franmore acted the rôle of Daddy Dean to perfection, and Miss Gertrude Bonser scored a well-deserved success as Hazel Dean; the Rev. Eric Armstrong, in the hands of Mr. Horace Denton, left nothing to be desired, and as Lord Avondale Mr. Roland Yorke gave an artistic study. The comedy parts were well sustained by Miss Mattie Crawford and Mr. Fred Connynghame. Miss Sophie Shenton as Bridget was very amusing; Mr. Roland Bridge made a typical Dr. Warburton. The staging is thoroughly adequate.

BATH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Egbert Lewis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lewis A. Long.—Miss Lena Ashwell's Diana of Dobson's company on a return visit proves as entertaining as ever. Miss Emilie Polini now undertakes Diana, of whom she gives a fine rendering, being particularly good in the scene in the third act with Captain Bretherton, a character recently taken up by Mr. Leslie Rea with no little success; Miss Elspeth Dudgeon as the match-making and inquisitive Mrs. Cantelupe is commendable; Miss G. de Serville invests her impersonation of Mrs. White-Fraser with ladylike ease; Mr. W. Kingsford Pearce enacts Sir Jabez Grinlay with the extravagant hauteur characteristic of the self-made man; Miss Dorothy Bell as Kitty Brant clearly shows she has histrionic ability; and the other assistants at Dobson's are portrayed by Miss Violet Gould, Miss Nannie Griffin (who also doubled as an old woman in the last act), and Miss Eva Leonard Boyne; Miss Daisy England essaying the small part of Miss Pringle; P.C. Fellowes was invested with the necessary importance by Mr. J. Benedick Butler. The Bishop's Candlesticks is again the curtain-raiser.

PALACE THEATRE. — Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Chas. Schuberth.—Brightness characterises this week's bill, including as it does Alice Hughes and company in a well-written musical comedietta, Star of the Bazaar, in which Miss Hughes shines to conspicuous advantage; the Three Floradora Girls, in song and dance, retain their popularity; the Waltons in their eccentric Chinese acrobatic act work with the greatest ease and effect; Walker and May, with new and goey numbers, gain loud plaudits; better dancing than that of the Milton Trio has not been seen on the local boards for many a day; Harry Luck as a comedian makes a success with some funny ditties; Maudie Fordé shines as a sand dancer. Raymond's bio-tableaux are a fixed attraction.

BEDFORD.—ROYAL COUNTY THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. E. Graham Falcon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter R. Wilson.—Mr. William Greet's chief company has this week been presenting Wilson Barrett's famous play The Sign of the Cross. Mr. Cyril Austin-Lee was an admirable Marcus, Mr. C. Yorke's rendering of Nero was very impressive, and Mr. Frank Wood gave an amusing study of Glabrio. Mr. Charles Aldred cleverly depicted the sinister traits of Tigellinus; Mr. H. Thurston Harris was sufficiently repulsive as the spy Servilius; and Mr. Walter Fleet was dignified as Favius. Miss Beryl Hamilton played the part of Poppœa in queenly fashion; Miss Lily Ward portrayed the beautiful patrician Berenice with fine emotion; Miss Cissy Carlton was bright and dainty as Dacia; Stephanus was well represented by Miss Edith Drayson; and Miss Constance Little acted earnestly and sympathetically as Mercia. The scenery was well painted and effective.

BELFAST.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr. James M. McCann.—Mr. E. Oswald Brooks's company opened her on Monday with The New Housemaid. In the rôle of Peter Pinkerton, J.P., Mr. Edward Mervyn was most successful; while Dulcie was charmingly portrayed by Miss Babs Stuart; Mr. Reginald Hargreaves as Frank Pinkerton was all that could be desired; and Mr. Howard L. Tracey furnished a clever impersonation of the Hon. Bertie Rashleigh, his make-up as the "new housemaid" being remarkably good. Mr. P. Ramsey Forman made the most of his opportunities as Marmsbury Doom, the detective; and Mr. Herbert Colley was capital as the amorous butler Roseberry; Miss Dot Sellby filled the rôle of Caroline with much acceptance; and other parts were sustained by Miss Renee de L'Estrade, Miss J. Middleton, Miss Ruby Wyndham, and Messrs. A. Selwyn and A. White. Brokers Ahead, by E. Oswald Brooks, formed an acceptable curtain-raiser, the various rôles being well sustained by Miss J. Middleton, Miss Renee de L'Estrade, and Messrs. Edward Mervyn, Reginald Hargreaves, and H. Colley.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. Fred Willmott and Will Sley; Resident-Manager, Mr. Henry T. Downs.—Houdini, the handcuff king, is here this week, and his extraordinary feats have created quite a sensation; the equilibristic feats of the Three Stewarts are exceedingly smart; and the charming Della Sisters, "the ladies in black," have been accorded a good reception; the Eiduns, comedy duettists, appear with much success in their speciality, The Garden; while the sweet tenor vocalism of Master Richard May has been applauded to the echo; also here are Les Ados, hand-balancers; Mr. E. S. Kempton, the silent comedian and dancer; Mr. Harold Heath, coon impersonator and dancer; Mr. Syd Herman, vocalist; and the Hipposcope, with some up-to-date pictures.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LIMITED.—General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr. John A. Walker.—The chief feature of the bill here is the military sketch, The Daughter of the Regiment, presented with much éclat, by Mr. Ernest Charles Gittens. The various characters have been ably presented, Mlle. Adele Prescott appearing in the title-rôle with much success; the Tennessee Guards appear in their skilful manœuvres, wall scaling, &c., and their reception at every performance has been terrific; Mr. Cliff Ryland returns to this city, and his patter is funnier than ever; and Mr. Jack Crawley deserves much praise for his clever little song scena, Lights Out; also here are Miss Florence Gardner, comedienne; Mr. Ernest Clifford, comedian; Marjutti, a graceful contortionist, in her original creation From Demon and Fairyland; and the Bioscope.

NEW ALHAMBRA THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Will White.—In addition to a number of excellent pictures, Hearne and Palmer, The Hebrew and the Barmaid; and Mr. J. H. Crewe, a very smart comedian, appear with much success.

ST. GEORGE'S HALL.—General-Manager, Mr. Robert Wilson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred L. Arthur.—Some capital and up-to-date pictures are exhibited here. Also appearing are Mr. Jack Holness in The Commercial's Club-room; and Mr. Isaac Lee, comedian.

CLIFTONVILLE HALL.—General-Manager, Colonel Fred T. Cummins.—The delights of roller skating continue to draw great crowds daily here. The mile championship takes place on 8th, 9th, and 10th prox.

BILSTON.—NEW ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. John M. Dawson; Business Manager, Mr. S. Hadskiss Dawson.—This week we have the ever-popular drama, The Face at the Window, presented by Messrs. Armadale and Warren's company.

DRILL HALL.—The Anglo-American animated picture company, which has occupied this hall during the past two weeks, is meeting with capital support, and for this, its third week, has a considerable variety of pictures, humorous and sentimental.

BIRKENHEAD.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr. W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr. Reginald Grant; Secretary, Miss Isabel Morris.—The annual week of grand opera by the Moody-Manners Opera Company is being celebrated with the customary eclat. On Monday a fine performance of Gounod's Faust was given before a crowded and fashionable attendance, with Mr. Charles Carter as Faust, Mr. William Anderson as Mephistopheles, and Miss Raymond Amy as Marguerite. On Tuesday Tannhauser was produced, with Mr. Paul Weiss in the title-rôle, Miss Enriqueta Crichton as Elizabeth; and on Wednesday Carmen was the opera selected, with Miss Rosina Benyon in the chief character. The week's productions have also included Cavalleria Rusticana, Pagliacci, Bohemian Girl, Madame Butterfly, and Maritana. All the operas have, without exception, been artistically rendered and effectively staged. The chorus is numerous and efficient, and the augmented orchestra is under the direction of Mr. Cuthbert Hawley.

ARGYLE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. D. J. Clarke.—Callahan and St. George, in their Irish character sketch The Old Neighbourhood, are a turn new to this town, and have made a decided hit; Mr. Dave Carter, a tenor vocalist of exceptional merit, is high in favour; and Harry Thorpe and Zoe Coe, in their comedietta My Burglar, are renewing previous successes. Jackson's Eight Lancashire Lads, accomplished vocalists and dancers, are a leading feature, and an excellent company also includes Miss Edie Gray and her coons, in a pleasing entertainment; Mr. Frank Harwood, a versatile comedian; Jack Weil, Scotch comedian; Henry and Francis, instrumentalists and vocalists; Arthur Harris, descriptive vocalist; and Brown's Royal Bioscope.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Ball.—Mr. Charles T. Aldrich, a versatile entertainer, is a prominent attraction, and Slippere, the blind musician, gives an artistic entertainment. Other interesting turns are contributed by Avon and Crest, amusing comedians; Minnie Leslie and Edgar Stevens, in their sketch Love Levels All; Julian Ross, comedian; Dex, comedian; King Luis and partner in a risley act; and the Hippodrome pictures.

BIRMINGHAM.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Tom B. Davis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Philip Rodway.—Dick Whittington is increasing its returns every week, and should run till not far short of Easter.

PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. Rodgers, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. J. F. Graham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Henry Johnston.—Boy Blue is the biggest success the "Wales" has produced for years, and its run should far exceed the span usually allotted.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE. — Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Lester Collingwood; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. T. Guest.—Little Red Riding Hood is filling this theatre more and more every week, and it is the more expensive parts of the house that are the more crowded, thus comes "success to enterprise."

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Andrew Melville; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Hindle Taylor.—The Beggar Girl's Wedding is appearing here for the "first time out of London," with Mr. Walter Melville's company. Miss Vashti Wynne imparts intense feeling to the titular rôle, holding the house fascinated to the end; Mr. Otto Minister gives the character of Jack Cunningham a fine air of gobility, making the rôle extremely popular; Mr. Frank McClellan makes capital use of his opportunities as Dr. Millbank; Mr. Herbert Lloyd proves an indescribably comic Dicky Storm, and Miss Daisy Meynard is also very humorous as Tina Torkington; Mr. Herbert Morgan reveals the villainous character of the false friend Gilbert Lindsay with many vivid strokes; Mr. Ernest G. Batley makes a thoroughly acceptable Norman Marsh. Miss Doris Whyte being a charming character as Elsie Cunningham; and Miss Olive Warne as Maud Villiers is very effective.

CARLTON THEATRE, SALTLEY.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. James Alexander.—The Outcast of the Family is presented here successfully by Mrs. F. Wybert Clive's company. Mr. Cecil A. Olgar ably sustains the rôle of the despitefully-used hero Harry Thorne; Mr. Miles Platting plays the part of the Baronet, Sir Henry, with care and dignity; Mr. C. Hicolen fully realises the treacherous character of the nephew, Richard Martin; Miss Florence M. Daly gives a true touch of pathos to the rôle of the sorely-tried wife, Ruth; Miss Ethel Tooney supplies a clever infusion of love and hate as the jealous rival, Grace Redburn; and the humours of Joe Bushell and Nancy Bray are carried out to the letter by Mr. J. Laurie Clifton and Miss Vera Neville.

THEATRE ROYAL, ASTON.—Lessee, Mr. Charles Barnard; General-Manager, Mr. E. Hewitson; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. J. Robertson.—Miss Edith St. Clare is giving patrons here a pleasant course of pantomime, Aladdin to wit, and which is heartily received. Miss St. Clare's personification of the hero is, despite her recent bout with pneumonia, very bright and animated; Mr. Ernie Myers gives a highly farcical impersonation of the magician, Abanazar; Miss Lily Lonsdale is pretty and gifted as the Princess; Mr. Fred W. Graham is a lively and droll Widow; Mr. Frank A. Wood makes a fine Emperor; Mr. Geo. Parry makes a mirthful part of Wot-iz-it; the Bros. Brooks are another source of merriment as Hu-go and Hi-li; and the Sisters Brand as the second lovers show ability and grace. The scenery and dresses are good, and the Krakes and the Canton Girls excel among the specialities.

PALACE THEATRE, BORDESLEY.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Goodwin Woodward.—This now very successful home of drama is playing The Prince and the Beggar Maid, with Messrs. Paumier and Howard's company. Miss Annie Saker displays both charm and power in her acting of the Princess Monica; the author, Mr. Walter Howard, acts as Prince Olaf in an heroic and romantic style, evoking volumes of cheers; Mr. Ivan Cleveland looks and acts the evil rôle of Prince Hildred with perfect similitude; Mr. Graeme Campbell deals with the difficult part of Prince Michael in a signally successful style; Miss Ivy Millais acts with tender expression as Camiola; Mr. Reginald Payne and Miss Elsie Walton afford excellent humorous relief as the lovers, Karl and Viola; and Messrs. Francis Hawley, Kendall Chalmers, and Reginald Stephens assist most appreciably in the success.

BISHOP AUCKLAND. — EDEN THEATRE. — Lessees, Messrs. R. Addison, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. J. Huntley.—Messrs. Fred J. Little and Fred Darcy's pantomime Dick Whittington opened to a large house on Monday. Mr. J. Templar Ellis delighted the audience with his drollery as Alderman Fitzwarren; Mr. James Kurry brought out the fun of Idle Jack effectively; and as Sarah Mr. Syd Crossley scored a success; Messrs. Herbert and Rennie (Toby Fore) and (Bob Alt) were good their dancing deserving much praise; Mr. Jas Stratton worked hard as the Cat; Miss Beatrice Yarley was a worthy exponent of the title rôle and Miss Ida Brophy won admiration as Alice Miss Vera Dudley was a fascinating Captain Ralph Mainbrace, and the Princess Zorilda of Miss Beatrice Moore was charming, her singing gaining much approval. The Enrico Martialo Trio presented a clever performance, and the chorus was strong.

BLACKPOOL.—HER MAJESTY'S OPERA HOUSE.—General-Manager, Mr. J. R. Huddlestone.—Miss Lole Esmond's company has possession here this week. The pièce de résistance submitted in the early part of the week was a version of The Sorrows of Satan, with Mr. Edward Neville as Prince Lucio, and Miss Rosie Neville playing with considerable skill the part of Lady Sybil Elton. During the latter part of the week Nana was the principal attraction. The curtain-raiser each night has been The Green-Eyed Monster.

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Sergenson; Responsible Tenant and Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Hunter.—Mr. Fred Granville's company is playing The Babes in the Wood twice nightly here this week and the fun runs fast and furious. Specialities are introduced by Miss Cissie Paris, a capital vocalist; Miss Marie Elsie, a quaint comedienne; the Kimberley Boys, comedians and knockabouts; Boden and Wilson, clever juveniles; Mr. Alf Brookes "ye funny dame"; Baby Boden, a clever child actress; and the Six Emerald Gems.

PALACE.—General-Manager, Mr. Geo. H. Harrop; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Walker.—An unusually good programme is provided here this week. Albert Bellman and Lottie Moone meet with the most cordial reception in their sketch A Bit of Vaudeville, and the Daunton Shaw troupe of cyclists are also much appreciated; Walter King the doleful humorist, delights everyone; Fred Shepherd is a clever comedy vocalist; the Florias excel as wire equilibrists; Les Currys are most pleasing musical entertainers; David Poole is a novel ventriloquist; Belle Braham sings with pictures obbligato; whilst Horace and Olga provide a turn with their performing dogs and cats.

BOLTON. — THEATRE ROYAL, LTD. — Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr John Moncur.—A crowded house on Monday extended a hearty welcome to Miss Ada Reeve's company on its first visit to Bolton with Butterflies. The doings in the Palace of Puck form an enjoyable entertainment, and to Miss Georgie Corlass as Rhodanthe, the Witch, much of the success of the play is due, her singing, acting, and dancing being charming. The Christopher Podmore of Mr. Blake Adams is a performance of undeniable merit; Mr. W. Louis Bradfield's light comedy is well suited to the part of Widgery Blake (Puck); Mr. Richard Green, as Max Riadore, has a good acting part and several fine songs; and Mr. Arthur Hyde, a pleasant tenor vocalist, plays the young lover, Gilbert. The romantic Mrs. Nora Podmore is played with much humour by Miss Stella St. Audrie, and her daughter, Elsie Podmore, is charmingly acted by Miss Constance Clive. Mr William Spray as Yarker, the chauffeur, is most amusing; Miss Alice Sands makes an attractive Lalage; and Miss Elsie Aston as Myra is fascinating. The parts of Peter (Mr. Roy Sydney), "the young man without a penny," Salome (Miss Cissy Gilbert), and Paul (Mr. Alfred Selby) are also well filled. The play is beautifully staged and costumed. In Act 3 the classical dance entitled "La Naissance du Papillon" is charmingly executed by Miss Phyllis Monkman. The orchestra is under the direction of Mr. J. A. Robertson, the composer.

GRAND THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Kenyon.—A good variety company here is headed by Miss Helen Roberts, who appears in the Salome dance and Mendelssohn's "Spring Song" dances. Hardie Palm, comedian; Janette Hall, lady baritone vocalist; Tom Gott, Yorkshire comedian; Wills and Mackenzie, operatic vocalists; the Gladenbacks, in their acrobatic speciality act; Arthur Ferris and Ethel May, in the musical comedy sketch Two's Company—Three's——? Tony Iveson, comedian at the piano; Ted Waite, the spasmodic comedian; the Colonials, in their novel musical scena Unexpected Guests; and Vernon's Imperial Bioscope are included in the programme.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Thomas Hargreaves; General-Manager, Mr. Thomas Hargreaves, jun.; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. R. Harrison.—The St. Joseph's Amateur Operatic Society are giving a week's performance of the operas Maritana and The Bohemian Girl in aid of local charities.

BOURNEMOUTH. — THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietors, David Allen and Sons; Sole Lessee, Mr. Mouillot; Manager, Mr. Hubert Dunbar.—Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Benson and their company are drawing crowded houses as is usual with them when visiting this town. During the week the following plays were given:—The Taming of the Shrew, Henry the Fifth, Macbeth, The School for Scandal, Julius Cæsar, and Richard the Second.

BRADFORD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. John Hart; General Manager, Mr. T. F. Doyle; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Richardson.—Jack and Jill continues to attract big audiences, and going with a swing the pantomime guarantees substantial support for a long time. The lovely scenery and dainty costumes elicit frequent marks of admiration, and the efforts of the principals of the clever company are productive of continuous applause and laughter.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Lessee, Councillor Francis Laidler; Acting-Manager, Mr. N. Hepworth.—Red Riding Hood's career here is a bright and merry one, and large audiences nightly applaud the feast of brilliancy and colour in the stage effects and roar with laughter at the efforts of the comedians, who are unfailing fun-producers.

THE EMPIRE.—Moss Empires, Limited; Resident Manager, Mr. Percival Craig.—George Gray and his big company are here this week on a return visit with the popular sketch The Fighting Parson. Mr. Gray is, as usual, capitally supported in his telling impersonation of the muscular Christian, and the incidents in the animated sketch are depicted with rare spirit. Nellie Wallace, the rare exponent of good and genuine broad comedy, is also here again, eliciting much laughter; Victor Travers submits good eccentric comedy successfully, and another comedian of parts is Charles Vincent. The coloured Meisters are a male quartet of much excellence vocally; the Mayvilles are very diverting with their clever illusion of Lilliputian actors; Married All of a Sudden is a very merry comedy-sketch submitted by the lively Bright and Claire Trio; and in another sketch, viz., Fun in a Barber's Shop, Brix and Annie are unique and very entertaining. There are some striking and most interesting pictures of the terrible Messina Earthquake shown by the Bioscope.

PALACE THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. E. Harrison.—Jake Friedman and his big company reappeared here on Monday in the bright and diverting Dutch operetta Happy Holland. As Jakey Oodl capital turn; Helen Charles, entertainer at the piano, provides a pleasing and much appreciated society turn; Fregoli and Deep score as contortionists, &c.; Beale and Broadway are successful in harmony singing and dancing; Nellie Navette, comedienne, sings and dances in excellent style; Zarmo, comic juggler, amuses with his eccentricities; Nellie Hewitt and Elsie May do a good musical and Indian club act; Ida Lorimer is a pleasing Scotch comedienne and dancer; the Knick-Knacks do well as versatile entertainers and eccentric dancers; Will Brockton, vocal comedian, is successful; and Ken Jones, comedian, obtains applause. Interesting animated pictures conclude the entertainment.

COLSTON HALL.—The "Joseph" Poole myriorama is still here, and doing good business. The variety show is strong this week, including the Four Eugenes, in their aerial act; the Brooklyn Comedy Four; and many other artists of note.

BROUGHTON.—VICTORIA THEATRE, LTD.—Manager and Licensee, Mr. J. Fred Watson.—Matthew H. Glenville and Fred Osmond's funny pantomime Aladdin was enthusiastically received on Monday by a packed house. The cast is well balanced, and several comical quartettes were much enjoyed. Miss Hettie Zillwood is a smart hero as Aladdin, and she gets much applause for her fine singing of "I don't care if there's a girl there," "Have you seen my Johnny in his uniform?" and "Afraid to come home in the dark." Miss Maggie Hobart as the Princess also pleasingly sings "Little silver moonbeam" and "Some day when dreams come true." Widow Twankey is well presented by Mr. Arthur E. Behan; Mr. Freddie Edwards is a good Wishee Washee; Mr. Mathew H. Glenville (Emperor) and Mr. Fred Osmond (Vizier) are comical; Abanazar is well presented by Mr. Fowler Thatcher; the Brothers Lavelle as Pee-Lah and Kopp-Ah are amusing; Pekoe and Chee-Kee are well presented by Misses Cissy and Kittie Behan; Miss Lou Charlesworth sings well as Electral. In adition to the charming singing of Miss Hettie Zillwood and Miss Maggie Hobart, the Ella Willmer Troupe of dancers give a smart performance; the Brothers Lavelle's speciality shows some very clever acrobatic work; the Three Behans in their quick-change comedy act were much aplauded; the Gando (Male) Sextette sing well. The music, composed by, and under the baton of, Mr. E. Graham Dunstan, is catchy and very pleasing. The dresses and scenery are beautiful. The choruses are well done.

BURNLEY.—VICTORIA OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—The pantomime Aladdin is here this week, presented by Chas. Constant's company. Mr. Victor Stevens is the producer. Miss Lilly Blythe is the Aladdin, and pleases with her charming acting, and Miss Dorothy Dempsey is good as the Princess. Miss Louie Danby makes an excellent Pekoe, and Maggie Bowman as Chee Kee is pleasing. Much humour is shown by Mr. Tom J. Morton as Abanazar, and Mr. Martin D. Pitts sings splendidly as the Emperor. Mr. V. Stevens is distinctly funny as Widow Twankey, and Mr. Alf. Summers is a most lively Cat. The excellent specialities are supplied by Bowman and Morton, Stuart and Stuart, the Three Brendas, the Panama Sextette, and Miss Maude Murray in her beautiful electrical aerial dances, which meet with warm approbation. The mounting is excellent.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—Warm applause is accorded here to Frank L. Gregory's troupe of seven hoop-rollers and jugglers for their novelty and smartness, and Wright and Lawson provide a clever contortionist knockabout turn. Bert Terrell, Dutch comedian, wins appreciation, and Colonel Smith and Miss Julie Wesson are clever exponents of marksmanship without dangerous tricks. Fred Bamford, newsboy whistler, is good, and Devon and Earl are smart simultaneous dancers. Miss Ghita Corri, dramatic soprano, in "Character Types," is most cordially received; and a Little Toy—a glorious dream—is given by the Empire Theatrescope.

PALACE THEATRE AND HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. Julius Simpson.—Minerva, handcuff queen, is mystifying the audiences here with her sensational water-barrel escape, which is an exceedingly clever trick, and her release from a strait-jacket in a very short time. The Warsaw Brothers figure in an excellent musical burlesque on Gounod's Faust; and the Hyde and Cody Trio are a funny turn, with clever acrobatic feats. Olena and Carbeth contribute several excellent juggling tricks; and Mack Olfive, assisted by Miss Daisy Baldry, is much applauded for a whistling scene. Adah Payne proves herself an accomplished vocalist, and Eileen Douglas is a dainty musical comedy girl. Sable Fern, comedienne, is greatly appreciated for "Between the Lines," and Nick Carter and the Jewel Robbery are shown by Raymond's Bio-Tableaux.

BURSLEM.—HIPPODROME.—Lessee, Mr. R. Colin; Manager, Mr. Matt Hall.—The capital picturee here this week are much enjoyed. The artists appearing are Charles Howarth, a clever quick-change scena artist; Roland Oliver, who is successful in song and mimicry; and Ali Vera, an Arabian illusionist and balancer, assisted by Mlle. Jeanetta.

BURTON-ON-TRENT.—OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Bennett and Bennett; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. de Hague Body.—The attraction here this week is Mr. Arthur Carlton's pantomime Puss in Boots. Mlle. Lucretia, who is a local favourite, again achieves success as Colin, and sings some popular songs in good style; Miss Evelyn Dess, who dances well, is a pleasing Princess Iris; and Miss Louie Love sings delightfully as Felina, the fairy; Miss Nancy Renshaw is successful as Pompey, and Miss Josephine does well as Phyllis; Mr. E. D. Nicholls keeps the audience highly amused by his impersonation of the Baron; Mr. Fred Lyndo as the King, and Mr. Michael Madden as the Queen cause no end of fun; Carl and Carr as Rufus and Uriah, and Mr. Jack Osmond as the donkey, are also responsible for a great deal of laughter; Mr. Byden Currie is extremely good as the Cat, and also introduces a clever performing dog; Mr. Sam Lockridge acts and sings well as the Ogre.

BURY (Lancs).—ROYAL.—Northern Theatres Co., Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Assistant-Manager, Mr. H. H. Potter.—The first week of pantomime here is proving decidedly popular, and Dick Whittington, as presented by Messrs. Dottridge and Longden, meets with well-merited approval. Miss Florrie Gallimore, an old favourite with local audiences, plays the title-rôle with her usual skill and finish. Her rendering of "My Gal's a Yorkshire Girl," brings the house down. Another performance which stands out prominently is that of Miss Josie Delaine, who makes a delightful Alice, her dancing being worthy of special mention; Miss Rose Tilley and Miss Dolly Victor lend valuable aid as Viscount Piccadilly and Molly respectively; Miss Rose Alderman gives evidence of vocal ability; Mr. H. O. Wills appears to excellent advantage as Idle Jack, his quaint humour keeping the audience in continuous laughter; Mr. Jack McKenzie is a typical Dame as Sarah the Cook; Mr. Jimmy Wood as Fitzwarren, Mr. Alf. Clegg (the Cat), and Mr. Leo King as King Rat are all successful. The specialities of the Herald Comedy Four are a pleasing diversion. The pantomime is elaborately staged.

CIRCUS OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Northern Theatres Co., Ltd.; General Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Assistant-Manager, Mr. H. H. Potter.—The Five Whiteleys, versatile and clever people, head the bill, and meet with a flattering reception; a display of juggling is submitted by the Wallye; Florence Kay is successful as a contralto vocalist; a Scotch scena by Lambeth and Robertson is an enjoyable turn; Harry Taylor, Lancashire comedian; Maxwell and Francis, comedy couple; the Great Vincent, tumbler; and Arthur Holland, character vocalist, contribute enjoyable items.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Resident-Acting-Manager, Mr. C. F. Wilson.—Billy Williams, billed as the star, is unable to appear, owing to indisposition, and La Vails, expert gymnasts, &c., are acceptable substitutes, giving a clever and original performance. A skilful turn is that of Dalton and Euston, black and white comedians and dancers; Dorien and Daritz present an auto-mechanical novelty act, entitled The Erratic Hotel, which is well received. Other good turns include Burn and Burnard, vocalists; the Wyffs, comedy duo; Ben Silvo, gymnast; Victoria Troupe of vocalists and musicians; and J. F. Franklin, comedian. The Earthquake and Ruins of Messina is an interesting film.

BURY ST. EDMUNDS.—THEATRE ROYAL.—General-Manager, Mr. Auguste A. Peuleve.—Mr. Arthur Carlton's pantomime Cinderella has been a great success here. Mr. Keane Harker (Pimple), Mr. H. A. Griffiths (the Baron), and Messrs. Harley and Melton as the Broker's Men sustain the fun ably; Mr. Frank Lennard (Malignant) displays a good basso; Cinderella's sisters are humorously played by Miss Anna Beaumont and Miss Fanny Wallace; Miss Ella Willmer makes a winsome heroine, her dancing being truly artistic; Miss Victoria Carmen sings and acts well as Prince Charming; a smart Dandini is found in Miss Ida Dorrie; and the Fairy Godmother is successfully represented by Miss Ray Fairfax.

CAMBRIDGE.—NEW THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. B. Redfern, J.P., D.L.—Miss May Palfrey as Mrs. Dot made a delightful impression here on Monday, and played the part charmingly; Gerald Halstane gave Mr. Hugh C. Buckler many openings, of which he took full advantage; Freddie Perkins was capitally played by Mr. Basil Hallam, who made a hit in the part; Miss Evelyn Kerry (Nellie Sellenger) rendered the part in an easy and natural manner; Mr. F. Kinsey Peile made an amusing character of James Blenkinsop; Lady Sellinger was well portrayed by Miss Emily Patterson. Mr. McIntyre Wicksteed, Mr. R. Toussaint, Mr. A. E. Ackerman, Mr. T. Richards, and Mr. C. Morgan also filled minor rôles with every satisfaction.

CARDIFF.—NEW THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Robert Redford.—Next week will see the final performance of the successful Cinderella pantomime.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. H. S. Dring.—At the head of a strong bill this week are Zeynard's wonderful lilliputians in equestrian and speciality acts. These little people certainly contribute an interesting and entertaining performance and enact some amazing feats for their size. An exceptionally clever illusionist is John Warren, whose mystifying scena The Magic Carpet astounds everyone, while his miscellaneous tricks are equally as bewildering; quite welcome in a return visit is Carrie Laurie's "Kindergarten"; Walter Bellonini, the renowned juggler, is well known to Cardiff audiences for his remarkable skill; Larry Lewis is another favourite; Virto and Venita present a talented and refined musical act; and the Trentanovi Sisters gained loud applause for their transformation gymnastic act. Violet Stockville comedienne; and the Bioscope are also on the programme.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Under the management of Mr. Rollo Balmain.—A welcome return visit is made this week of the romantic play Robin Hood, presented by Mr. Lewis Waller's principal company. Mr. Ethelbert Edwards fills the title-rôle with much vigour, and makes a commanding impersonation; Miss Cahill as Lady Marion de Vaux presents a charming and thoroughly convincing delineation; the hearty Little John is enacted with much skill by Mr. F. Clive Ross, while clever representations are most correctly filled by Mr. Bruce Winston (Friar Tuck), Mr. J. N. Briant (King Richard), Mr. H. Elliott Ball (Prince John), Mr. Ernest Gray (Fitz Alwynne), and Mr. Frank Litchfield (Hugo de Longespee). As Adela Miss Laurie Flockton is both captivating and vivacious; Miss Roberta Pulleyse acts Queen Eleanor with considerable power. Mention should also be made of Mr. Laurence Tressier's Will Scarlet.

PALACE AND HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Burton.—Claud Duval, a sketch presented by Fred Ginnett and Wal Pink's company, is the chief attraction at the Palace this week. The title-rôle is admirably filled by Mr. Arthur Max. Miss Ray Haydon has a prominent part, and Mr. Harry Calver is well to the fore. Among other popular turns there is Venturini, a clever illusionist; Ted Karno and company appear in a funny knockabout sketch, entitled Dinner-hour; Captain Devereux proves a great draw with his cleverly-trained dogs; and Edith Courtney, vocalist; Dolly, Agnes, and Maud, the factory nightingales; and Cherry Lass, comedienne and dancer, are also in the bill.

CARLISLE.—H. M. THEATRE.—Lessees, Mr. Thos. Courtice and Mrs. R. Stewart McKim; Manager, Mr. Thos. Courtice.—Mr. Milton Bode's comic pantomime The Forty Thieves, under the direction of Messrs. Fred J. Little and Fred D'Arcy, is a big attraction this week. The company is strong in comedians, the scenery and dresses bright and attractive, and the whole performance goes with a merry swing from start to finish. That excellent Scotch comedian Mr. Wal Croft is the Ali Baba, and with funny patter, quaint songs, and comic business he keeps the house in roars of laughter; a capital Dame is Mr. Reg Ewen, full of vivacity and always handy; Mr. Ted Wootten sings some excellent songs with fine effect; and Messrs. Sandy and Carl are responsible for a lot of clever and laughable business in knockabout parts; the donkey Bossi is well done by Mr. Harry Alvey, who works hard and with much success; Miss Mary Poulton makes a dashing principal boy, singing and dancing to the evident satisfaction of her audience; as principal girl Mlle. Carita is a strong favourite, her principal number, "A tiny seed of love," being enthusiastically encored; Miss Isa Bell as the Captain of the Forty Thieves makes the very most of her opportunities; in the Palace scene the Five X-Rays, described as the mad athletes, score an undoubted hit; the Gavallotti Bros. contribute a clever musical act; and the Esmeralda Girls give a nice display of dancing. Mr. George D. Fox conducted the orchestra with spirited effect, and had a large chorus well in hand. Mr. Charles Boult is the courteous general-manager of the company.

THE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Signor Rino Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. F. Morgan.—A programme full of interesting variety is drawing big houses this week. Dave Samuels, the Hebrew comedian, occupies pride of place, and creates enthusiasm over his funny patter and parodies; Palles and Cussick, who bottom the bill, also give a most popular performance, their sketch, The Funny Side of Life, being brimful of humour; Howard and Collinson in The Porter and the Parcel repeat their big success; the Crown Trio sing good-class music with dramatic effect; Ellis and Ellis as song and dance artists again give proof of their ability; and the Brothers Idento's smart juggling act meets with warm approval; Miss Sybil Montague is a charming vocalist with a voice and style which commanded instant recognition; and some fine pictures by the Pepiscope complete an enjoyable entertainment.

CASTLEFORD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor and Licensee, Mr. Chas. Gadsby; Business-Manager, Cr. Hy. Masterman, J.P.—A great attraction is afforded the local playgoers here this week in a first visit of Mr. Allan Wilkie and company, who opened to a large and appreciative audience on Monday with the Shakespearean play Richard III. Mr. Wilkie as Richard gives a finely vigorous and martial performance, and the simulation of disturbed sleep in the ghost scene is excellently done; Miss Hunter Watts plays with much effect as the distraught Elizabeth, and Miss Haidée Gunn gives a most pleasing performance of Lady Ann, her tones being full of feeling. We must also favourably comment on the well contrasted delineations of the Princes, played by Miss E. Wood and Miss Ethel Smith; Mr. Alexander Marsh does some careful work as Clarence; Mr. John Paley gives a finished performance of Buckingham; and the Richmond of Mr. Frank Royde has some excellent qualities. The capital portrayals of Messrs. Sinclair Neil and Edwin Beverley, and Miss Agnes Gagan as Stanley, Catesby, and the Duchess of York respectively, stand out conspicuously among a cast of much efficiency. The company is also presenting Hamlet, The Sleigh Bells, David Garrick, The Merchant of Venice, and The Two Orphans of Paris.

QUEEN'S THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs. Chas. Beauland and W. H. Emerson; General-Manager, Mr. Will H. Emerson.—Topping the bill here is John Grun Marx, who gives a fine exhibition of physical strength; Harry Tomlin, a smart singing vocalist, is a great favourite; Morander and Darius are smart gymnasts and clever violinists; Phillips and Terry in a comedy duologue, Taming the Lion, are heartily applauded; the Maddison Bros., burlesque boxers, cause much laughter; Biff Hall, as the melancholy Hebrew, is fully appreciated; Chas. Kaye, described as tall, typical, and topical, is responsible for a couple of interesting songs; and Marie Rae displays energy as a vocalist. Some interesting up-to-date films are contributed by the Loyal Dominion Co.

CHATHAM.—BARNARD'S PALACE.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. L. B. Barnard.—Here we have the Six Brothers Luck's company in the melodramatic absurdity The Hermit, which runs as briskly as ever; Arthur Pier scores in Dreams; Leo Carle is freely applauded for his smartly-worked one-man drama The Betrayed Professor; the Langfords are a trio who dance together with much precision; Arthur Woodville pleases with "My home's wherever you are," and dances neatly; Lacey's Erascope has a screaming film, It is the House Decorator; while Pattie Bella, comedienne, and Mario, juggler and equilibrist, complete the company.

CHELTENHAM.—OPERA HOUSE.—General-Manager, Mr. H. Oswald Redford.—The first performance out of London of Idols was given here on Monday, and provincial playgoers are again indebted to the Hutchison management for a most artistic replica of a famous London production. The mounting and stage-management are excellent, particularly in the great scene in the Assize Court. In this scene Miss Edith Goodall as Irene Merriam does her most effective work, her acting being finely impassioned. Mr. A. B. Imeson gives a clever realisation of the part of Gerald Merriam; Mr. Herbert Ford in the rôle of Hugh Coleman performs a difficult task in praiseworthy manner; the rôle of the Jewess, Minna Hart, is effectively sustained by Miss Moyra Creegan; Mr. Frank Powell's study of Jacob Hart, the Jew financier, is artistic and convincing; Mr. Alfred Ibberson's portrayal of the drunken Saunders is excellent; Mr. A. E. Grahame cleverly impersonates the counsel for the defence, the opposing counsel being ably represented by Mr. Harvey Braban; Mr. F. Harrison as the doctor and Mr. George Child as the policeman are natural; and Mr. George Conroy is capital as the learned judge. Miss Adelaine Lester as Anna Josephs and Miss Kathleen Maude and Mr. Gilbert Clark as the Harroways do well.

VICTORIA ROOMS.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. E. B. Shenton.—Mr. Ernest Sheldon's Britannia Animated Pictures are being shown here this week, supported by the Sisters Milton (vocalists) and Claude Ludo (coster comedian and effleur).

CHESTER.—ROYALTY THEATRE.—On Monday the ever-successful Davy Garrick was preceded, for the first time in Chester, by an excellent one-act comedy, entitled Proteus in Petticoats, from the pen of Frank Ernest Potter. This piece was noteworthy for the fact that the leading rôle was taken by Miss Viola Compton, who as the Mlle. Diane de Dio (of the Theatre at St. Cloud) of this charming playlet, proved herself possessed of that grace, power, and versatility which the impersonation of several distinct parts necessitates, and the portrayal of which was a test Miss Compton successfully passed. The scene is laid in the garden of the Chateau de Foisseul, at St. Cloud, near Paris, and the period that of Louis XV. A song composed by Miss Nathalie Davenport, and a dance arranged by Miss Christine Churte, provided an opportunity for Miss Compton to display her abilities in this respect, for which she was accorded the well-merited applause of the audience. Miss Compton undoubtedly inherits, in no small degree, that histrionic power for which the Compton family, past and present, is famous. Miss Compton was well supported by Miss Marie Hassell as the Duchesse de Foisseul, and Miss Jess Morton as the maid, Marie. Messrs. Wallace Johnston and Philip Gordon, in their respective characters of the Duc de Foisseul and Monsieur Marigny (director of the Comédie Française) were capital.

CHORLEY (Lancs).—GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. G. T. Santé; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Santé.—For Love and the King is being presented by Mr. C. Watson Mill's company. Magnificent costumes and scenery considerably enhance the production, which is interpreted by a strong cast, including Mr. C. Watson Mill, in an admirable impersonation of Jarval, an English soldier of fortune. Mr. Villiers Stanley is decidedly good as Prince Uros Dragomir; Mr. Frank Lyndon depicts King Kara Dragomir with effect; Mr. Geoffrey Chate as Duke Fernand Dragomir and Mr. John Burton as Michael Obernovic are also good. Mr. Jim K. Woods rendering Carl Oppenheim in competent style. Miss Rosaline Tate wins entire approbation as the Princess of Athene, Miss Joan Ellis convincingly undertaking Natila; Edith Meredith is in the capable hands of Miss Frances Tierney; while Miss Laura Munro and Miss Lily Winter are well suited as Princess Milania and Grazia Obernovic respectively.

COLCHESTER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Chas. Macdona; Lessee and Manager, Mr. F. Graham Macdona.—Farcical comedy is the order here this week, viz., Mr. Eugene C. Stafford's company in The Private Secretary. Mr. W. Hargreaves in that most unique of characters Mr. Cattermole gave a droll impersonation of the Anglo-Indian. Mr. Donald Price-Evans contributed a humorous portrayal of the Rev. Robt. Spalding; Mr. Herbert Garthorne and Mr. Alex Begbie performed the parts of Douglas Cattermole and Harry Marsland in praiseworthy fashion; and Edith and Eva were charmingly presented by Miss Nan Macrae and Miss Janet Warden respectively. The Wild Man from Borneo preceded.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Colchester Hippodrome Company; Directors, Messrs. Fredk. Mouillot and Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Ben de Frece.—Pictures form the great bulk of this week's bill. The programme is supported by James Basnett, a singer of happily-chosen songs, and Violet Fernie, comedienne.

CONSETT.—NEW THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. Lloyd Clarance.—Mr. Frank M. Thorne's company, with The Woman Who Pays, had a excellent reception here on Monday. Mr. Phil Harper was a highly creditable Sid Armstrong; and as Roger Marchant Mr. J. Davidson was very good. Mr. Beresford Innes was successful as Cyrus Treadgold; and as Luke Morland Mr. Dunlop Stewart gave entire satisfaction. Miss Maud Russell submitted an excellent impersonation of the part of Madge Armstrong; Miss Kate Blair was pleasing as Nell Moriand; and Miss Florence Thorne made an able Tibatha. The comedy element was well sustained by Mr. Frank M. Thorne as Micky Maloney, and Miss Anena Walton as Polly Stokes. The remaining characters were well filled.

CORK.—OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr. R. J. Bell.—Moody-Manners' company opened a fortnight's engagement here on Monday in The Meistersingers. It was the first time this opera was performed here, and the house was filled to overflowing. The opera was very much enjoyed and the principals were recalled at the close of each act. Mr. Philip Brozel as Walter von Stolzing was extremely successful. The trial song and prize song were admirably delivered, and throughout the opera his voice retained its sweetness and strength. No less worthy was the Beckmesser of Mr. William Dever, who showed a nice sense of humour and sang in cultivated style. Mr. Lewys James as Hans Sachs acquitted himself creditably, his voice being quite equal to all demands made upon it; Yeit Pogner was effectively undertaken by Mr. Charles Magrath, whose rich voice and dramatic acting were equally admired; Mr. F. Davis filled the part of David with conscientious care. Miss Kate Anderson as Eva sang with purity of tone and much expression. She was a most capable exponent of the part. The same remark applies to Miss Yoni Seiter, who supplied a spirited and attractive performance of Magdalene. The minor parts were well filled. The chorus did its work extremely well; the staging was effective and striking. The orchestra, under the baton of Herr Richard Eckhold, achieved great things. La Traviata, Faust, Eugene Onegin, Il Trovatore, Cavalleria Rusticana, and Pagliacci are in the répertoire.

PALACE THEATRE, LTD.—Manager, Mr. Thos. F. O'Brien.—The Great Roland, illusionist, gives a very clever performance; the Lashmars give diverting burlesques of melodrama and grand opera; Miss Agnese and Arthur Lynch, in American picture songs, are very entertaining; Nellie Chandos is a dainty comedienne, whose songs and dances please; the Three Orros give a clever act on silver chains; the Three Comedy Chanters, in humorous and harmonious interludes, contribute an enjoyable musical turn; Eldra and his trained dog Prince give a clever equilibristic turn; Blake and Amber, frivolity artists, are at home in an acrobatic act; and the Palascope presents some excellent pictures.

COVENTRY.—OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor, Mr. Wm. Bennett.—Good houses nightly are always guaranteed when Mr. J. W. Turner's opera company pay a visit. Martha was given on Monday, Mr. Turner making a decided hit of Lionel; Mr. Tom Griffiths successfully renders Plunkett; and Mr. George Ridding suits the part of Sir Tristram admirably. Miss Sarah Williams undertakes the character of Lady Harriett admirably; Miss Jessie Dennis being responsible for Nancy. During the week the following pieces were played:—Faust, Tuesday; Daughter of the Regiment, Wednesday; Lily of Killarney, Il Trovatore, and Maritana, Thursday, Friday, and Saturday respectively.

HIPPODROME THEATRE.—Managing Director, Mr. S. T. Newsome; Resident-Director, Mr. J. E. Wright.—Miss Dolly Elsworthy and her company head the bill this week with Sweet Mistress Dorothy. Taking the title-rôle herself, Miss Elsworthy is ably assisted by Messrs. L. Mannering, E. Percy, C. Zarnes, and A. Wills; and Miss M. Grace. The piece is admirably staged and obtains great applause. Lily Burnand, a favourite with Coventry audiences, appears in her latest successes, viz., "The Honeymooning Widow," "Cheek," and "The Flying Machine"; roars of laughter greet Leslie, Lyn, and Willie, three funny fellows, who give a very good musical entertainment; the Great Albas perform some wonderful feats on the wire; the Bros. Lawrence are popular vocalists and dancers; the Tossing Austins are exceedingly clever dancers and jugglers; and Percy Farrimond and Ernie Garner add to the success of the entertainment.

EMPIRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Geo. Dance; Manager, Mr. K. Draco.—The chief turn this week is a musical scena, entitled A Japanese Love Story, presented by Marie Santoi and company, who give a pleasing performance; Jack and Evelyn appear in a skit Come into the Office, their singing, dancing, and jokes being very smart; Culpitt is a skilful conjurer and facial artist; Harry Maxam and Harry Hayton are clever comedians; Molly O'Connor is a charming comedienne; the Raglans give a pleasing comedy ball-manipulating act; and the Bioscope pictures conclude.

CRADLEY HEATH.—EMPIRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Jno. H. Morton.—Lena Stanton and Harry Joseph's company is presenting the pantomime Aladdin for a week. Miss Kitty Avey makes a charming Princess Badroulbadour; Miss Janet Lawton in the title-rôle is a capital principal boy; Mr. Will Terry as Abanazar gives a first-class show; Mr. Geo. Melville is entrusted with the part of the Emperor, and right well does he acquit himself; Mr. Harry Harcourt is certainly a "merry" widow; Mr. W. Shepherd and Mr. F. Shepherd as What O and What Hi are comedians of the first rank; Mr. Fred Southwell as the Vizier fully justifies his selection for the part; Miss Rene Willoughby and Miss Nellie Nava are realistic Fairies; and Miss Minnie Millwarde deserves mention for her Slavee Slo. The other characters are equally well sustained.

CREWE.—OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. G. Dudley Bennett; Resident-Manager, Mr. Alfred Cuthbert.—Mr. C. Watson Mill's company, in A Warning to Women, is here. Miss Blanche St. Albans plays the difficult rôle of Moira Kennion cleverly; Miss Ellen Beverley is successful as Molly O'Moore; Miss Edith Rutland is an effective Myles O'Moore; and Miss Winifred Rutland a capable Sheila Kennion. Mr. Harry C. Robinson as Dr. Marcus Dread makes a strong impression; Mr. William Vane admirably sustains the character of Shaun, a wandering minstrel; Mr. Henry Rutland is a masterful Squire Kennion; Mr. Chas. O'Connor a good Fergus M'Naughton; Mr. Leicester Jackson a highly amusing Lord Eversleigh; and Mr. W. Palliser Acock as the Frenchman, Ferdinand de Joulee, is excellent.

CROYDON.—GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Roland Daniel; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Ernest Archer.—The D'Oyly Carte Opera Company is here this week in The Gondoliers, Patience, Mikado, Iolanthe, Yeomen of the Guard, H.M.S. Pinafore, and After All. In the first-named on Monday Mr. Charles R. Walenn was very successful in the rôle of the Duke of Plaza-Toro; Mr. Sydney Granville was seen and heard to advantage as Luiz; Mr. Fred Billington was exhilarating as Don Alhambra de Bolero; Mr. Strafford Moss made a favourable impression as Marco Palmieri; Mr. Leicester Tunks was in excellent voice as Giuseppe Palmieri; Mr. Fred Drawater made a first-rate Antonio; and Messrs. Hugh Blackmore, Allen Morris, and H. Blake Johnston rendered useful service as Francesco, Giorgio, and Annibale. Miss Ethel Morrison made an aristocratic Duchess of Plaza-Toro; Miss Mabel Graham was a charming Casilda; Miss Clara Dow sang sweetly and did full justice to the rôle of Gianetta; Miss Beatrice Meredith made a pleasing appearance as Teesa, and her songs were redemanded; Miss Godwynn Loraine was a fascinating Vittoria; Miss Bertha Lewis gave her lines with expression as Inez; and Misses Lillias Engholm and Tessa Sneison looked pretty as Giulia and Flametta. The chorus and dresses are satisfactory.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll.—Large numbers are attending here this week to see the American Bioscope pictures. The Cinephone is introduced, and is a novel and welcome feature. The illustrated songs are also enjoyable, the vocalists being Miss Minnie Newman and Mr. James Hope.

EMPIRE PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. Walter Gibbons and Thomas Barrasford; Manager, Mr. Eustace Jay.—Mr. Dan Thomas is presenting his pantomime Dick Whittington here this week. Miss Daisy Yates makes a fascinating Dick; Miss Constance Moire is a great favourite as Alice; Miss Lily Parker is a lively Dolly Dimple; Miss Ethel Robertson is a cheery Hon. Bertie; Miss Gracie Woodleigh is admirable as the Princess; and Mlle. Lelaine is well placed as the Fairy. Mr. Dan Thomas is a host in himself, and never fails to amuse as Betsy; Mr. H. D. Lyndon makes a whimsical Alderman Fitzwarren; Mr. J. Harris is droll as Idle Jack; Mr. M. H. Maddison scores as Captain Kettle; Mr. R. Morris makes capital out of the rôle of Bill Blower; Mr. Arthur Wade deserves a word as the Emperor of Morocco; Mr. Pete Almonte's Cat would be hard to improve upon; Master W. Franklin is commendable as King Rat; and Mr. Harry Carter is adequate as Chopper.

HORNIMAN'S HALL.—Mr. Wyllie McCoy, the talented elocutionist, gave a series of humorous, dramatic, and pathetic recitals here on Tuesday. Frank Desprez's exquisite Texas story, "Lasca," was very finely rendered; Tennyson's "The Revenge," Longfellow's "Robert of Sicily," and Bungay's "Creeds of the Bells" were given with all the skill and tact of an accomplished artist. Mr. McCoy's renderings of "The Lovers' Quarrel," "The Vagabonds," "Jackdaw of Rheims," "Bogies," and "Dogberry's Instructions to the Watch" brought his excellent histrionic abilities into full play.

DARLINGTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. James Bell; Mr. J. F. Elliston's pantomime Humpty Dumpty is playing to full houses. It is beautifully staged, and the company are excellent. Mr. J. Lonnen Meadows as dame and Miss Barbara Babington as principal boy both make decided hits; Mr. Willie Black as King Solemn is very droll; Mr. George Danvers is good as Humpty Dumpty; Mr. Rex Kempton causes roars of laughter with his songs and funny sayings; the Lecardo Brothers are clever acrobats; Miss Dolly Ross is a great favourite as Prince Spritely; the Quality Quartette are capital glee singers; Miss Rosa Sims as Fays dances in very pleasing style; and Miss Nell Carmichael as Cherry is charming. With a full chorus and orchestra under the direction of Mr. Carlile Vernon the pantomime is sure of a good week.

NEW HIPPODROME, LTD.—Managing-Director, Signor Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. Hersee.—Park's Eton Boys and Girton Girls occupy the premier position on the programme, and their efforts as singers are a success; Seener and Fridkins, Imperial Russian singers and dancers, give a really fine performance; Sibb and Sibb, trapeze artists, gain applause; the Five Vernons, xylophone players, appear to advantage; James Shingleton, the singing collier, is particularly good; and additions to the evening's entertainment are made by Harry Morris, comedian, the Two Errolls, in their comedy tumbling and leaping act, and the Pepiscope pictures.

PUBLIC HALL AND PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Lessees, Messrs. Thomson, Leivers, and Bennett; Manager, Mr. J. B. Thomson; Assistant-Manager, Mr. J. Kerrigan.—Chiko, equilibrist, is applauded for his clever foot and hand balancing; Bella Leabura is pleasing in her chorus songs; Harry McMerry causes laughter with his comical singing; and James Fish is well received in his concertina playing. The latest singing pictures are introduced.

DERBY.—GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietor and General-Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Charles Denley.—The house was crowded on Monday night, when the Royal Carl Rosa Opera Company opened their annual visit with a fine production of Carmen. Miss Doris Woodhall gave a finished interpretation of the name-part, and completely charmed her audience; Mr. Edward Davies, who played José, is possessed of a voice of remarkable purity and sweetness; the Escamillo of Mr. Hebden Foster was another feature of the performance, and the famous Toreador song was deservedly applauded; Mr. Frederick Clendon gave an excellent performance of Dancairo; and Mr. William O'Connor extracted all the possible fun from the character of Remendado; while Mr. Alexander Richard was sufficiently manly as Captain Zuniga, whose songs he rendered exceedingly well; Miss Elizabeth Burgess was a captivating Micaela; Miss Annie Walker and Miss Christine Ritz were in every way successful as Frasquita and Mercedes; and the parts of Morales and Lillas Pastia were in the capable hands of Mr. William Rousell and Mr. Albert Felton. The chorus acquitted themselves admirably, and, with the orchestra, reflected the highest credit on Mr. Walter van Noorden. On Tuesday night Faust was the attraction. Madame Ina Hill's Marguerite was submitted in faultless fashion, and fairly enslaved the audience; the Faust of Mr. Walter Wheatley was a perfect performance, and did him infinite credit; Mr. Arthur Winckworth as Mephistopheles repeated his acknowledged success in this rôle; Mr. Hebden Foster did remarkably well as Valentine; Miss Christine Ritz was in every way efficient as Siebel; Miss Douglas Wilson was capital as Martha; and Mr. Alex Richard made a satisfactory Wagner. Il Trovatore was given on Wednesday, Tannhäuser on Thursday, and last night (Friday) was to witness the production of Lohengrin, with the first appearance of Signor Tamini. Cavalleria Rusticana and Pagliacci were to be produced at to-day's matinée, and The Bohemian Girl at the evening performance.

PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes.—Occupying first place is Mephisto, who, assisted by Miss Winifred Attondue, presents a series of weird illusions in a manner which stamps him a first-class artist; another capital turn is that of Ajax and George, gymnastic wonders, whose clever and business-like performance leaves nothing to be desired; the Two Clares appear to distinct advantage in a song scena, "The Troubles of a Motor-car"; Harry Vardon causes much amusement with an excellent ventriloquial sketch; Ruby Emmerson, comedienne, maintains a high local reputation; Fred Erick is a quaint comedian, who is soon on the best of terms with his audience; Argo as a farmyard mimic gives a good all-round entertainment. The Bioscope pictures of the Ruins of Messina convey a vivid impression of that terrible incident.

DEVONPORT.—THEATRE METROPOLE.—Manager, Mr. G. S. King.—Robinson Crusoe has now entered on his fifth and last week's run, and its popularity has quite equalled any DOVER.—ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Sidney W. Winter; District-Manager, Mr. George Egbert; Resident-Manager, Mr. E. W. Holford.—Mlle. Oceana, queen of mystery, releases herself from a strait-jacket with remarkable ease, and also introduces her barrel illusion, which excites much interest; a pretty song with a goey chorus, "Keep on rocking me, Charlie," is piquantly rendered by Florence Schuberth; another vocalist who is clever and entertaining is Lizzie Kirk, who sings a couple of good songs; the Lewis Family present a charming marionette show; Harry Harris's imitations are lifelike, and his characterisation of a Hebrew-American amusing; and an excellent balancing act is given by Paul Corrix, assisted by his juggling boy. Mr. and Mrs. Thomas and Baby and Diamond Thieves are the films shown on the Bioscope.

DUBLIN.—GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mrs. Michael Gunn; General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. Charles Hyland.—Crowds have been drawn here this week to witness the second edition of the successful pantomime Robinson Crusoe, and the new songs, dances, and local allusions have caught on immensely. Miss Winifred Hare, Miss Elsie Molloy, Miss Kathleen Gray, Miss Gladys White, Mr. J. J. Dallas, Mr. Barney Armstrong, Mr. Walter Barrett, Mr. Harry Lappo, and Mr. Fred Gala, all of whom are popular favourites, are to be highly commended on the genuine success obtained.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Parrington.—The production of Jack and Jill here has been looked forward to with much interest. The pantomime, which has been previously produced in Belfast, is written by Mr. J. Hickory Wood, and the locals by Mr. P. Byrne are quite up to date. The music is bright, tuneful, and catchy, and the scenery and dresses are beautiful in the extreme. Miss Dorothy Ward, a dashing principal boy, and Miss Edith Fink a charming and impressive Jill, her singing being particularly worthy of notice; Messrs. J. A. Warden and George Miller work hard as Baron Bounce and the Widow Cobble, and cause no end of laughter; Miss Stella de Marney is conspicuous in the rôle of Margery. The part of Jack Straw could scarcely be in better hands than those of Mr. Fred Conquest, who is both clever and funny; Mr. George Lashwood gives a fine representation of Prince Opulent, rendering his songs in excellent fashion; Miss May Rawlinson is highly competent as the Fairy Princess; Zoe and the First Witch are played by Misses Kitty Baughton and Gwendoline Francis, who are to be congratulated on their success; and the rôles of the Demon Glum and Mr. Chatter, the Baron's solicitor, are well sustained by Messrs. Harry Trevanion and J. G. McMahon. Tiller's Superba Quartette are a smart lot of dancers, and the chorus and orchestra under the direction of Mr. John Moody render valuable assistance.

EMPIRE — General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager and Secretary, Mr. George H. Marsh.—An attractive programme here this week is headed by Rameses, "the Egyptian wonder-worker," whose marvellous performance quite mystifies the audience; as instrumentalists and vocalists the Canworths are both clever and entertaining; Madge Bryce proves herself a comedienne of high order; the Eight of Hearts, American song and dance artists, meet with a flattering reception; Terry and Bentley, refined comedy artists, score a distinct success; Elton Black, humorous Scotch comedian, makes a decided hit; E. J. Sheldon gains appreciative notice; Harry Leybourn, female impersonator, is the recipient of loud applause; and the Empire pictures are the concluding item in an interesting programme.

TIVOLI.—General-Manager, Mr. Charles M. Jones; Assistant-Manager, Mr. H. A. Murphy.—At the top of this week's bill is Carrie Wilbur, who, assisted by a capable company, presents an American comedy act, entitled 61, Prospect-street, which provokes hearty laughter; the Three Fidardys, acrobatic comedians, are awarded a big reception; and Ada Gatley is an accomplished wire-walker and juggler. The vocal comedy contributions of Chant and Chant are much enjoyed, and Amy Russell, soprano, and Harry Meegan, eccentric comedian, achieve success; Denaro Brothers, juvenile equilibrists, earn the hearty plaudits of the audience, and Rose Gower's catchy chorus songs are well appreciated; Leonard Gale is a smart vocal comedian, and the Bioscope depicting Baby's Chum completes an excellent programme.

ROUND ROOM ROTUNDA. — The Irish Animated Picture Company is being patronised by large audiences daily. The company have again provided films of an instructive and entertaining character, which are keenly appreciated. The vocal items rendered by Mr. Patrick O'Shea (tenor), Mr. Ralph Goggin (baritone), and the selections by the Granpierre Orchestra add much to the success of the programme.

WORLD'S FAIR AND MUSIC HALL.—Proprietor, Mr. C. A. James.—The programme here this week includes Harry Whitby, eccentric comedian and dancer; the Stanleys, comedy entertainers; Miss Nell Glynn, coon vocalist and dancer; Harry Desborough, character vocalist; Gunn Cooke, tenor; Miss Queenie Swifte, comedienne and dancer; Glynn and Glynn, duologue artists; and the Cinematograph.

DUDLEY.—OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. Maurice Clement; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. W. Tilley.—Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Levy and Mr. J. E. Cardwell, after a brief interval, have another juvenile pantomime here this week, The Babes in the Wood. Heading the cast as the Babes are the two little Misses Peggy McDonnell and Cissie Wyse, who are quite juvenile prodigies. Miss Daisy Wood makes a bold and sprightly Robin Hood; Mr. J. Watson as Lucinda Lovejoy displays clever humour; Mr. J. E. Aitken as Sandy Simple causes continuous merriment; Messrs. Graham and Barron as the Ruffians are clever and grotesque knockabouts. A special word of praise must be given to Miss Jennie Hughes, who as Fairy Dewdrop proved herself a singer above the common order; Miss Dolly Dodds as Marion gains further popularity at each visit. The pantomime is remarkable for its spectacular ballets.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, The Midland Entertainment Corporation; Resident-Manager, Mr. F. H. Waters.—An episode of Parisian life, entitled A Daughter of Pleasure, is proving a powerful attraction here this week, the characters of Jack Redfern and Elsie de Berthville are in the hands of Mr. J. G. Grahame, jun., and Miss Zerlina Harrington respectively, who act together excellently. Mr. H. Naverny is good as Alphonse. Remarkable feats of strength are easily performed by the Indian Hercules; a clever couple are the Dalgarnos, in their sketch Caught Napping; Miss Edie King is a sprightly and attractive comedienne and dancer; Bert Delmar is a smart and original humorist and mimic; songs and dances of a pleasing order are given by Mabelle May, dainty vocalist; and Chas. Cardle completes a capital company of artists.

DUNDEE.—HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Manager, Mr. Louis Karpe.—Mr. Frederick Mouillot's principal company in A Message from Mars is proving a big attraction here this week. The mounting of the piece is excellent, the cleverly-worked scenic effects adding much to the enjoyment of the play. Mr. Wallace Widdicombe gives an admirable rendering of the difficult part of Horace Parker; Mr. William H. Brougham as the Messenger is very effective; Mr. Norman Clark is responsible for a fine character study of the Tramp; Miss Rose Helene is a delightfully sweet and sympathetic Minnie Templar; Miss Winifred Knightly plays with convincing effect as Miss Parker; Mr. Alfred Drayton is exceptionally good as the Policeman; and other parts were capably enacted by Mr. Robert Grey as Arthur Dicey, Mr. Guy O'Neil as Dr. Chapman, Miss Mary Glanbrane as Mrs. Clarence, and Miss Ethel St. Barbe as Bella.

PALACE THEATRE.—Lessees, The United County Theatres, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. S. McIntosh.—Master Edward Garrett (a most precocious youngster) appears with huge success in a racing playlet entitled An Outside Chance; an artistic and novel turn is given by Mlle. Eldee, "the girl in the golden frame"; Sterling and Cashen engage successfully in a smart comedy act, their dancing being an outstanding feature; Reszki and Raszki introduce some very funny business in their clever gymnastic act; George Lawrence, an actor-vocalist of unusual ability, takes well; Robert Brown, "Scotland's midget Hercules," performs some remarkable feats of strength; Sharon, the musical tramp, is very entertaining; Nellie Walton, the Lancashire singing mill girl, finds unbounded admiration for her songs; and Professor Glennie's Mannikins in The Babes in the Wood provide enjoyable entertainment. The Palascope shows some very fine scenes of the recent earthquake at Messina.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Lessee, Mrs. Lillie Williams; Licensee and Manager, Mr. W. E. Potts; Business Manager, Mr. Frank Percival; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. Edwards Evans.—Miss Winifred Chalmers' company is appearing here this week in the stirring drama A Woman's Revenge. Miss V. St. Lawrence gives a very fine representation of the part of Mabel Wentworth, Miss Lilian Burns as the heroine plays with dignity and grace, and Mr. Henry L. Osmond as Frank Drummond, the hero, acts with great force and discrimination. An excellent cast includes Miss Mabel Tremere, Mr. Cuthbert Taylor, Mr. B. C. Hacking, Mr. J. C. Carlyle, Mr. Harry Cooke, Mr. Charles Tolcher, Mr. J. C. Lyle, and Mr. Charles O'Connor.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Lessee and Manageress, Mrs. Lillie Williams; Business-Manager, Mr. Frank Percival.—Newman's British Empire Picture Co. is drawing large crowds to this comfortable hall this week, an interesting variety of films being exhibited. The Kinders, illustrated songsters, are great favourites; Charles Lestree, comedy juggler, causes much merriment by his witty patter; and Hugh Rogers and Doris are duettists of more than usual merit.

NEWMAN'S PICTURE PALACE.—Mr. Fred Newman's series of films this week forms a capital selection. Additional interest is given to the entertainment by a cake-walk competition.

GILFILLAN HALL.—The famous Bessies o' th' Barn Band is drawing big houses, giving two concerts daily, and creating quite a furore.

AMERICAN RINK.—Managing-Directors, Mr. C. P. Crawford and Mr. F. A. Wilkins; Manager, Mr. Bert Crump.—This spacious rink is proving a very popular haunt of Dundonians. Under the capable direction of Mr. Arthur Grimshaw, the courteous floor-manager, everything goes along smoothly, and skaters are enabled to enjoy themselves to their heart's content. This week Professor Monahan gives a marvellous display of his prowess on the rollers, his feat of leaping over nine chairs without losing his balance being very thrilling.

EASTBOURNE.—DEVONSHIRE PARK THEATRE.—Sole Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Murray King and Clark.—Under most favourable circumstances Messrs. King and Clark's company commenced their visit here in Toddles. Mr. Murray King in his own humorous manner delights the large audiences as Toddles, and keeps the laughter ringing until the curtain falls to a storm of applause at the end of Act III. Mr. Ardene Linden contributes a particularly clever and successful performance as Joblyn; Mr. Mattie Cheshire does capable work as Boolby, the society entertainer; Mr. J. V. Bryant is a refined and pleasing Doctor Baird; Mr. Alec Chumley is an amusing Freddy Gunner; Mr. C. Douglas Cox gives excellent help as Haslit; and Mr. Alexander Lee is a smart and capable Valet. Miss Doris Langdon plays prettily and gracefully as Constance Joblyn, and her songs and pleasing dance in the second act call for special praise; Miss Evelyn Shelley's fine work as Mrs. Joblyn counts very materially in the general success achieved; Miss Naomi Nelson is delightfully natural as Lady Dover; Miss Ada Champion gives a skilful rendering of the part of Countess de Chambry; and Miss Mabel Ormonde is a bright and entertaining Mrs. Bowler.

THE ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Sidney W. Winter; District-Manager, Mr. George Egbert; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Holloway.—At the head of the bill this week are the Seventeen Gordon Highlanders, and their brilliantly smart work and evolutions arouse much enthusiasm; Wilson's Miniature Circus pleases the audience; Mr. Mark Tedwell is a clever comedian with a pleasing style; the Armins are very successful in a musical scena, in which the lady plays a cornet ably and the gentleman sings well; Pueblo and Cropp are finished and happy sand-dancers; Miss Beatrice Rene sings and dances very daintily; Miss Rose Cambray is an effective singer and dancer; and new attractive films are shown on the Bioscope.

THE PIER PAVILION THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. George Hayes.—Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr. Mark Blow's company is appearing here in Cripple Creek and From Slave to Princess. In the latter, as Vera, the slave, Miss Dorothy Lart holds the interest and sympathy of the audience; Miss Agnes Verity is a distinct and dignified Princess Claudia; and Miss Daisy Carlton as Amelia never allows a dull moment to creep into her comedy work. Mr. Austin Milroy is a fine, manly and earnest Prince Julian; Mr. Roy Jackson is a keen, impressive Michael Bardoni; Mr. H. Harley-West gives able and consistent help as Lieut. Alexis; Mr. Fred Clifford acts forcefully as Peter; Mr. Fred Hilliard's work as Otto deserves praise; and Mr. Will Hook as Patrick O'Brien adds to the comedy in able fashion.

ECCLES. — CROWN THEATRE — Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. Albert Rogers.—Mr. Harry Burns is presenting a pantomime entitled Robinson Crusoe, which is excellently staged and dressed. In the title-rôle Madame Du Roche is a decided success; as Polly Perkins Miss Marie Belle fits the part like a glove; Miss Nina May, who impersonates Fairy Pearl well, renders several good numbers; Mr. Henry Curwen creates a lot of fun as Dame Crusoe; Mr. Billy Hubbard as Man Friday is clever; as the Pirates Messrs. Geo. Hastings and Geo. Harkaway deserve credit. The Yankee Doodle Girls prove themselves a troupe of well-trained dancers.

EDINBURGH.—ROYAL LYCEUM THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Howard and Wyndham, Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. Geo. T. Minshull; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. M. Downie.—Mr. Geo. Edwardes's company is having a great success here with A Waltz Dream. The houses are crowded, and the audiences enthusiastic. Mr. Robert Evett's performance of Lieutenant Niki is admirable in every respect; and Miss Ethel Cadman, a graceful actress and expressive singer, is an attractive Princess. Miss De Sousa's acting as leader of the ladies' orchestra, is piquant, and has a note of pathos, while she sings with great vivacity and charm; Miss May Morton's clever impersonation of Fifi is distinctly amusing; and Miss Amy Augarde shows to much advantage as Frederika. The fun of the piece is prominent by the grotesque drolleries of Mr. Eric Thome, and the excellent humour of Mr. Leslie Holland, who also dances with conspicuous neatness. Mr. Hamish McCunn proves himself a first-rate conductor, alike of the choral and orchestral work of the play. On Monday evening last, at the close of the piece, the members of the company, led by Mr. Evett, sang "Auld Lang Syne," in which the audience, upstanding, joined lustily.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Whitehead.—Large audiences, in good holiday humour, continue to enjoy the Dick Whittington pantomime, wherein some half-dozen comedians find scope for jests and business, of which their hearers never seen to tire. Mr. Phil Ray and Mr. Will Evans have most of the plums, in their respective rôles of Alderman Fitzwarren and Idle Jack; and they are duly supported by Mr. William Downes as Captain Jack, Mr. Ernest J. Langford as Rupert Ruffles, Mr. Harry Bickley in a Dame part, and most actively by Mr. Albert Felino as the Cat. Miss Jane Eyre is a pleasing principal boy, and with Miss Ethel Erskine as Alice, Miss Mena Brae as Zoe, and Miss Molly Maguire as the Fairy Bluebell, divides the honours as far as songs and dances go; the Tintos Troupe supply a good acrobatic turn; George Kirby's flying ballet give a characteristic exhibition; and the Scala Girls are prominent in several displays of terpsichorean gymnastics.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. Aynsley Cook.—Miss Lydia Yeamans, assisted by Mr. Frederick J. Titus, at the piano, gives an outstanding turn, which is made delightful by the lady's artistic rendering of her various songs and impersonations; Reano and his famous band excite considerable enthusiasm by the extremely energetic methods of the conductor and the intrumentalists in the performance of varied orchestral selections, which secure an exceedingly demonstrative reception; the Miles Stavordale Quintette provide another pleasing entertainment with their skilful combination of the harp and banjo, producing some wonderful imitations of the human voice; a graceful gymnastic display, introducing novel features, is presented by the Vetter Brothers; Mr. Pat Rafferty contributes a genial turn as an Irish comedian; Mr. G. S. Melvin is a promising young Scotch comedian and dancer; Miss Bessie Slaughter makes a notable success as a phenomenal contralto vocalist; Miss Rhoda Paul appears in several smart male impersonations; Miss Stella Stahl creates a favourable impression as a comedienne and dancer; Mr. Jack Lorimer keeps the audience in a roar by his versatility as a Scotch entertainer; and the Bioscope pictures are of special interest.

KING'S THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Amand Mascard.—The variety programmes are resumed here this week with a strong company, in which Miss Esther Palliser, a vocalist of taste and power, charms the audiences with her rendering of several popular airs; Mr. Leo Dryden gives in his dramatic manner extracts from his répertoire of song playlets; and the Sisters Macarte, in a pleasant sketch, The Land of the Lotus, provide an interesting and delightful performance. There are many other admirable turns, including Ryde and Beeman, grotesque eccentrics; Valentine Lister, a clever juvenile dancer; the Mars Trio, three dashing gymnasts, in their military speciality; Miss Dorothy Sephton, "the white girl"; Mr. J. H. Blaine, comedian and mimic; and up-to-date views by the Bioscope.

COOKE'S CIRCUS.—Proprietor, Mr. John Henry Cooke; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. C. Burns.—The pantomime King Gold; or, the Lucky Little Lassie, which has been so successful here, will be withdrawn on Saturday next, to make way for a revival, on an elaborate scale, of Dick Turpin's Ride to York. The pantomime is still a great attraction, and the fun of Talberto and Douglas, the excellent grouping of the children representing fairy tale heroes and heroines, combine excellent humour and spectacular effect. The general programme is changed again this week, the scenes in the arena comprising clever animal performers, introduced by the Tessimans; and admirable juggling by the Zanonis, smart children, who provide a capital entertainment. The clowning is noteworthy, and a laughable sketch, Courtship Under Difficulties, adds to the hilarity of the audiences.

EXETER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Chairman and Managing-Director, Mr. Edward J. Domville, J.P.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy M. Dunsford.—Mr. Mouillot's pantomime entered upon the concluding week of its stay here on Monday, but abundant evidence is afforded by the crowded houses at every performance that Cinderella has endeared herself to local playgoers. Mr. Kennedy Allen is as mirth-provoking as ever as Baron Blighter, and in the laughter-raising business he is well seconded by Messrs. Frank Weir and Frederick Park as the Ugly Sisters. Mr. Willie Atom is a particularly smart Buttons, a part which suits him to a nicety; Miss Violet Hollom continues her success in the name part in company with Miss Edith Housley, who has been aptly cast for the rôle of Prince Charming. Dandini is attractively portrayed by Miss Minnie Love, and Miss Ethel Monks has won popular favour as the Lord Chamberlain. Miss Kitty Allen, in the rôle of Martha, is a smart little actress; and well-merited successes are scored by Miss Kathleen Flynn as the Baroness Blighter and Miss Elsie James as Fairy Crystal. Excellent interludes are provided by the Berlin Belles, dancing troupe, and the Three Martinettes; and for this week a special attraction has been provided by the engagement of Les Avalos in their pleasing and novel acrobatic business.

NEW HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Fred Karno and A. H. Edwards; Resident-Manager, Mr. Frederick Sandy.—Dutch Daly, who tops the bill here this week, delights his audiences with his clever concertina selections and funny stories; Frank Leon meets with a deservedly popular reception for his exceedingly smart dancing; and an original and much-appreciated turn is that of the Barton and Franklin Trio of musical entertainers. A wonderful example of canine intelligence and training is provided by Stelling and his amusing little dog Kiswaski; and other clever items were contributed by George Phillips, swell comedian and dancer; Hughes and Elliott, in their refined singing and dancing act; and the Westbrooks, in their smart little scena Two Little Maids from School. The success of the programme is aided by the realistic Hippodrome pictures.

FALKIRK.—GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. H. W Ebbutt.—Mr. Seymour Hicks's company in The Gay Gordons has been greeted by large and delighted audiences this week. The smart and popular musical comedy is equipped with splendid scenery and appointments and costly wardrobe. It commanded the utmost appreciation. Miss Marie West, a charming Peggy Quainton, captivated the audience with her fine acting and singing, and in conjunction with Mr. Charles Childerstone as Angus Graeme assured the success of the piece. The low comedy work of Edward Carlton as Nervy Nat, Mr. Robert Rivers as Edmund Siddons, and Miss Louie Emery as Charlotte Siddons was very fine. Others prominent in a very strong and capable cast were Harry W. Johnston as Andrew Quainton and Miss Florence Somers as Victoria Siddons.

FOLKESTONE. — THE PLEASURE GARDENS THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland.—The attraction for this week was Mr. E. Graham-Falcon's pantomime Aladdin. Miss Amy Bellwood was a bright and dashing Aladdin, fully equal to the requirements of the part; as the Princess Miss Daisy Kersey was dainty, and sang with sweetness; Miss Georgie Mansell made a charming Slave of the Ring; as Pekoe Miss Edith Maynard sang a couple of tuneful songs with a charm particularly her own. In Mr. J. G. Forde (the Magician), Mr. Albert Lawrence (Widow Twankey), Mr. Will Burton (the Emperor), and Mr. Percy Galino (the Vizier) the management had secured the services of comedians of the highest merit, their drolleries and humorous ditties being keenly appreciated. The extempore verses of Mr. J. G. Forde proved a pleasing novelty. The speciality entertainment included the brilliant La Dor troupe of acrobats, the Yokels, and the Warners, a clever dancing trio. The entertaining harlequinade by the La Dor troupe contributed in no small measure to the success of the paitomime, which was bright, laughable, and thoroughly up to date.

GAINSBOROUGH.—KING'S THEATRE.—Lessees, Gainsborough Theatre Co.; Managing-Director, Mr. Fred Leighton.—Mr. Chas. March and company appeared here on Monday and Tuesday in The Gamester of Metz. Mr. March gave his usual excellent rendering of Paul Badlot, introducing some clever changes of character, and he was well supported by Mr. Wm. Bradford as the Captain. George Bohee, the well-known minstrel, introduced some pleasing songs and selections on the banjo. The rest of the week is given over to a variety company.

GATESHEAD. — KING'S THEATRE. — Lessees, United County Theatres, Ltd.; Resident-Manager and Licensee, Mr. Harold Arnold.—Les Piccolinos are a trio of midget performers whose work warrants praise; Miss Teddy Edmonds and company give the sporting farce The Lady Jockey, which goes with delightful freedom; George Acre, character vocalist, is highly popular; Paul Edwards and Louie Dacre, in What a Life, renew acquaintance with the audience; Miss Sylvestor, contortionist, shows something out of the ordinary; and "Pop" Dearly, coon impersonator, and Tiny Arnold, comedienne, also attract much attention.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. F. W. Bolam; General-Manager, Mr. Robert G. Elder; Acting Manager, Mr. Ernest Dixon.—A splendid company, sent out by Mr. J. A. Campbell, is playing The Old Folks at Home here this week. Mr. Frank Liston is a natural Lord Howard; Andrew Ross is most ably treated by Mr. H. E. Herberte; a capital character-study is submitted by Mr. Eugene Santley; a lady fitted in every way to embody Dorothy Robin is Miss Maud Warburton; Miss Clara Santley's Martha Robin is a sound study; and Miss Kate Froud ably fills the rôle of Patricia Bathurst.

GILLINGHAM (Kent).—PUBLIC HALL.—The Rustics Comedy Concert Party, who scored such a success in the Park last season, paid a highly successful visit to the above hall last week. The party consisted of Miss Kate Willey (soprano), Miss Blanche Myles (contralto and comedienne), Mr. James Flynne (baritone), Mr. Bert Peachall (humorist), and Mr. Alfrod Donaldson (humorist and accompanist).

GLASGOW.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy Humphrys.—Cinderella continues its successful career here, and is drawing good houses. On Monday the performance was varied by the presentation on the stage of the prizes won in Mr. George Robey's Marathon race and charity football match. Being the anniversary of the birth of Scotland's favourite poet, Robert Burns, several special items were introduced, Miss Edith Kirkwood (Fairy Queen) making a hit with her singing of "The bonnie lass o' Ballochmyle" and "The bluebells of Scotland." The fun worked up by Messrs. George Robey and Harry Dent is intensely amusing, and Mr. Willie Garvey as the Baroness, and the Bros. Obo as the Ugly Sisters, are also well to the fore; Miss Violet Lorraine, the dashing Prince, is unfortunately, severely handicapped by a bad cold at present; Miss Iris Hoey as Cinderella has gained many admirers, and lively little Miss Meg Hamylton always takes well, and was the recipient of a distinctly novel present on Monday.

GRAND.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. B. G. Maclachlan; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. Christie Grant.—Cinderella is still going briskly and drawing good houses. The principals as individuals, and as a combination, are good, and keep the auditorium in a continual roar of laughter. Special mention must be made of Mr. George French as the Baron. His performance is decidedly funny, particularly in his song, "Maggie frae Dundee," and a burlesque wrestling bout; the latter is simply side-splitting. Mr. Tom Conway as Tiny is delightful; Mr. Barry Lupino is also very clever and funny; while the popular comedian, Mr. Whit Cunliffe makes a most artistic yet amusing Dandini, and delights everybody with quite a budget of good catchy, topical songs. The lady principals, Miss Violet Halls as the Prince and Miss Queenie Finnis as Cinderella, give most satisfactory performances, and bear a big share in the general success; Miss Kate Walbran and Miss Nelly Cozens as the daughters of the Baroness, parts usually assigned to male members, make quite a good impression; while the various scenes are staged in a manner that commands unanimous admiration. It must be admitted that good wholesome fun is really the outstanding feature of the pantomime. Further variety is lent to the show by the introduction of nimble dancing turns by the Lottie Stone Troupe.

ROYAL PRINCESS'S.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich. Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Hugh Murdoch.—The pantomime Diccory Dok still goes swimmingly along before full houses. Miss Ella Retford as Winsome Winnie is still as piquant as ever, and Miss Flora Cromer as Dick makes quite a manly young principal boy. Then there is a perfect galaxy of beautiful boys and girls, all of the sex desirable in pantomime nowadays. Miss Maggie Fraser and Miss Edith Haley are a lovely pair, and so are the Misses Violet and Daisy Bartholomew; then we have in Miss May Beatrice, a handsome Demon Discord, who makes a pleasing change from the basso-profundo demon, whose eyes usually glare in the red light; then such an array of comedians as Mr. Peter Bermingham, with his Scotch humour, his Glasgow accent, and his lively antics, all provocative of hearty laughter; also Mr. Syd Walker, whose every gesture and every inflection of voice is full of humour, with Mr. Cliff Lake, who ably assists him; we have also Mr. Harry A. Gribben as the Squire of Eagle-sham—Glasgow people call it Eagles-ham—who adds a lot to the fun; though last, not least, we have from Fairyland Miss Ivy Proudfoot as Sweet Briar, whose charming voice lingers long in the memory. Altogether this brilliant pantomime is likely to have a long and successful run.

METROPOLE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Gordon Jefferson.—Mr. Frederick Melville's company are paying a return visit here with Her Forbidden Marriage which was excellently presented by a fine company. George Madison was ably sustained by Mr. Henry Lonsdale with power and dramatic zeal; Mr. Louis Hector displays sound ability as Charles Devereux; Miss Isla Garnet Vayne is pathetic and telling in the part of Lucy; and Miss Grace Lester does splendid work as the Mather Superior; a strong portrait of Lady Lancaster is presented by Miss Florence Hunt; and Mr. W. Mansfield is an impressive Sir George Lancaster; Geoffrey Broughton is powerfully played by Mr. C. Davidson; as also was the Rev. Mr. Dean of Mr. Conrad Stratford. The comedy side of the play, which was of a very high standard, was in the able hands of Mr. Fred De Vere as Timothy Tuttutt and Miss Grace Emery as Patty Lovejoy. Other parts are in safe hands, and the drama has the advantage of being very well mounted.

LYCEUM.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich. Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. H. Oakden.—The attraction here this week is the stirring romantic drama Her Love Against the World, which is presented by Messrs. W. H. Hallatt and Walter Howard's company. The play is well staged, and the various parts are in excellent hands. Mr. Fred Emery acts with distinction as Eric, Earl of Strathmere, and a clever performance is that of Miss Rossie St. John as Lionel; Miss Grace Heywood gives a strong performance as Princess Iris; Mr. Lewis Gilbert as Ulric plays his part well; and Mr. W. H. Hallatt is excellent as Prince Othmar; the Prince Maurice of Mr. Victor Rowland is another good performance; Miss Blanche Steele as the Countess of Rasselyn imparts an air of distinction to the character; and Miss Julie de Esco is well suited as Corona, the Austrian dancer.

EMPIRE.—District-Manager, Mr. S. Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Manners.—The management is offering special attractions this week in commemoration of the third jubilee of the poet Burns. These include a Scottish overture by Mr. W. B. Moore's splendid orchestra; arrangements of Burn's songs, expressively sung by the Toynbee Choir, and in the latter half of the week by the Park Thistle Choir; also, appropriate to the occasion, Mr. Tom Costello appears in his highly artistic scena For Auld Lang Syne; and finally Mr. Tom Child sings several Burns' lyrics with his usual taste and feeling. Mr. Frederick Melville's Moto Girl is a wonderfully clever bit of simulation; the famous correspondent, Frederick Villiers, proves most interesting in his Fifteen Minutes on the Warpath; Victor Newman's impersonations are as intense as ever; Duncan and Godfrey's coster sketch is still popular; the Four Figaros' international songs and dances are pleasing; as is also the Scotch comedy business o Jean Macduff.

ZOO-HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Councillor E. H. Bostock; Assistant-Manager, Mr. E. H. A. Bostock.—Still another pantomime is added to the list here, the latest being a very bright and lively version of Aladdin, played by Mr. Wilmot Edson's company. Miss Minnie Olive makes a handsome Aladdin, and sings with her wonted vivacity a the latest tuneful ditties; Miss Alice Digby is a graceful and charming Princess and a neat dancer; the Widow Twankey of Mr. Charles Adeson is a wonderfully good performance, full of quaint and original touches of humour; another clever comedian is Mr. Bert Danson as Abanazar, a part which he fairly revels in, and his quiet but taking style of fun caught on immensely; Mr. Jack Barrington Weeks also adds much to the hilarity of the evening by his performance of the Grand Vizier; Mr. Bob Owen makes a cheery and jovial Emperor, and sings well; Miss Gwen Clifford is most amusing as Scrubbee-Tubbee, and her speciality at the piano was much enjoyed; Miss Josephine Ellis as Pekoe and Miss Dickers Harris as Mi Pet make an attractive second boy and girl; Miss Edith Jenner is a striking figure as the Herald; Mr. John Reed proves an amusing Wishee Washee; and as the Slave of the Ring Miss Daphne Gelstone is notable for her singing. The fun waxes fast and furious, more especially in the Bath Scene, and a noteworthy feature is the originality of the songs sung by all the comedians.

PAVILION, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Samuel Lloyd; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Evan Good.—Tom Hearn tops the bill here, and "the lazy juggler" is, if possible, funnier than ever in all the business of his turn; Arden and Abel's company in Three of a Kind again cause roars of laughter by their comic acting in this smart and racy sketch; the Four Black Diamonds give a smart turn, with clever dancing and well-sung quartettes in coon, Tyrolese, and other styles; Mysticus gives an ingenious turn of the chameleon changing order, with many smart transformations; Dolly Harmer again gains hearty applause for her comedy songs; the Lombards give a really artistic and astonishing display of hand-balancing; Yolande Noble sings some smart new ditties, and she is well received; and B. Troba, juggler with heavy cannon balls and shells, completes a wonderful turn with balancing a sentry-box and sentry on his chin—a daring feat.

PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich. Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry McKelvie.—The chief attraction this week is the Original Ten Loonies, and once again the house is convulsed with the antics of the mad musicians; Rose Elliott is one of the most popular singers that come to this hall; Nat Watkins' originality and humour ensure a very cordial reception; the piano sketch of Victor Courtney is exceedingly funny; the swell coon, Mark Leslie, sings and dances with much finish; the musical sketch A Winning Double, by Carr and Rose is cleverly performed; Hamilton Hill's fine baritone voice is heard to advantage in several songs; an attractive comedienne is seen in Lena Leslie; and Charlie Carr looks picturesque in his cowboy garb.

COLISEUM.—District-Manager, Mr. S. Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Burdette.—Special engagements have this week been made to commemorate the Burns' anniversary, the chief being a Scottish juvenile spectacle, entitled The Gathering of the Clans. Mr. W. Selkirk is responsible for its production, and the piece is well carried through by one hundred local children. No one proves more popular than Bertha Stuart, and this dainty artist fully merits the grand reception she receives. Her voice is good, and her singing of "Caller Herrin'" is quite a feature of the evening's entertainment. Fred Eustace and company are responsible for a little comedy sketch, The Amber Light, which is capitally played and thoroughly enjoyed; Walter Aubrey in coon songs is well received, while his buck-dancing at once goes to make him a favourite; Melia and Mozarabar provide a capital little turn with their skilfully-trained ravens and pigeons; while Karl Reinsch, with his mare, Miss Lucie, also show to what degree patience and careful training of animals has reached; Arthur Astill, in his various whistling mimicries, does well; Burneti in his impersonations of Chirgwin, Van Biene, Dutch Daly, &c., makes a very successful appearance; and Frank Cass' turn of numerous Scotch songs proves an appropriate item on a good programme. The Bioscope films are interesting and terminate a pleasant evening.

GAIETY.—General-Manager, Mr. Harry Bowerman.—Sill and Sillcott, the silent comedians, are the principal attraction, and their acrobatic skit Lively Luggage was thoroughly amusing; Ray and Delmore contribute a farcical absurdity, In a Fiz, which was also specially favoured; and the Sisters Henderson are a capable pair of speciality artists. Other entertaining turns include Grace Darling, ballad songstress; Bouverie Pleydell, comedienne and dancer; George Milbay, negro comedian; and the Bioscope with a fine set of pictures. The popular manager, Mr. Bowerman, takes his benefit this week, for which a special programme has been arranged. Whit Cunliffe, Rose Elliott, Dolly Harmer, Frank Cass, Tom Costello, and others have promised their assistance.

PANOPTICON.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. A. E. Pickard.—Flo Leoville, queen of mysteries, contributes a smart conjuring entertainment, and the audience on the opening night were very appreciative; Melvin and Mac, speciality artists, are a clever pair, and do exceedingly well; Vesta Rae is a pleasing comedienne; and Allen and Aldis, Scotch comedians, created great laughter with their quaint patter. The Bioscope pictures are full of interest, and were closely followed by the audience.

GLOSSOP.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Sydney Spenser.—Miss Winifred Maude and her company are presenting (Monday, Tuesday, and Friday) The Stowaway. Mr. Victor Du Cane in the rôle of Dicky Dials is highly successful; Mr. Gordon Ingram provides an impressive portrayal of Tom Inglis; Mr. Leonard S. Harrison as Charlie Etherington is responsible for a praiseworthy effort; as Paul Inglis Mr. Maurice Jones is to be highly commended; Mr. Rupert Talbot ably depicts Percy Ewart, and Mr. W. E. Simpson is a typical loafer as Sanay Prouse; as Althea Dale Miss Winifred Maude affords evidence of histrionic talent of a high order; Miss Jenny Hatchett achieves success as Chucky, a London newsboy, and Miss Wingold Lawrence as Florence Etherington submits a convincing study. For Wednesday, Thursday, and Saturday The Convict is billed.

GLOUCESTER. — PALACE.—Managing-Director, C. W. Poole, Esq.; Acting-Manager, Mr. R. T. Rea.—Muir and Bartlett's laughable farce The Collar Stud is repeating the success of its former visit; Les Frasettis are expert xylophone players, and with harp and violin give a nice musical show; Miss Ada Fawn proves a versatile artist, and the Delawares, with Fun in a Billiard Saloon, go through some clever dancing; Sam Dalton sings two good comic songs heart, An American's Visit to London, &c. The vocal and instrumental selections contributed by Mr. Frank Stanart are greatly appreciated.

GRIMSBY.—PRINCE OF WALES THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. H. Curry; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. W. North.—Mr. J. Gar Kiddie is presenting his version of The Babes in the Wood. Mr. Dawson Dewick as Sammy is the most prominent of an excellent contingent of comedians, and introduces a generous fund of humour; Mr. T. D. Tandy amusingly burlesques the villainy of the wicked uncle, Sir Brokah de Pawn; Mr. Mark Stuart realises the humorous possibilities of the Dame to the full; Messrs. Conan and Doyle extract endless fun from the parts of the Robbers; Miss Marion Scott as Robin Hood makes a capital principal boy, and has some good songs; Miss Margaret Cathcart acts with equal charm as Maid Marion; the Babes are cleverly played by the Twin Sisters Mawdsley, who sing and dance very prettily; Miss Emmie Hands as Sylvania and Mr. Edwin Lambert as Infernalito are respectively the good and evil spirits of the pantomime; and specialities are introduced by the Lohrenz quartette of dancers and Messrs. Taylor and Elliott.

THE PALACE.—General-Manager, Mr. G. Rhodes Parry.—Jack Sheppard is giving an interesting display of his skill in escaping from handcuffs and other forms of manacles, and also introduces a puzzling trunk mystery; the dramatic episode Blackmail is full of remarkable situations, and is well played by Henry Hearne and company; Les Montaldos' educated cockatoos are wonderfully clever birds, and perform a variety of novel feats; Coverdale and Huxley's juveniles give a pretty musical scena; W. G. Webber is a talented bass vocalist; George Bernard is a popular actor-vocalist; and George Griffan is an entertaining Scotch comedian.

HALIFAX.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling.—Dottridge and Longden's pantomime Aladdin is here this week. Miss Ray Wallace is a vivacious and successful Aladdin. Her impersonations of popular variety stars are cleverly done, and received hearty applause. Bert Harrow keeps the fun rolling as Abanazar. He has a lot of new gags and patter, and is a first-class comedian. Mr. Avery took up the part of Widow Twankey on Monday after the curtain had gone up (at a moment's notice), in consequence of the indisposition of Mr. Robins, and acquitted himself very well indeed, especially in the later scenes. Miss Gibson also playing very well as the Princess, in place of Miss Bryan, indisposed. Wishee-Washee finds a clever exponent in Mr. Hugh Cedar; the Pekin Police, Messrs. Maxford and O'Neil, and the Emperor of China, Mr. Leonard Russell, are also good. The music of Aladdin is a marked feature, and reflects credit on the composer and conductor, Mr. Walter Scott. Beautiful scenery and dresses and the splendid singing of the Cestrian Quartette add to the success of the pantomime.

GRAND THEATRE, LTD. — Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Resident-Manager, Mr. S. Winks.—The Eyes of the World is doing good business at the Grand this week. The treatment of the play is away from the beaten track of popular drama. Miss Ethel Van Praagh finds a part well suited to her talents in Helene de L'Orme, and shines conspicuously; Mr. J. E. Whitty plays well as Achille; Mr. George D. Daiper's Hector de L'Orme is a good performance; Mr. Will Casey gives a good rendering as Carnac; Mr. Charles Stirling is admirable as Octave; Mr. Charles Sewell's Paul Roqueville is a fine performance; Miss Irene Stanhope is fascinating as Avice; Miss Beatrice Fitzhugh plays with force and spirit as Esme De Carnac; and Miss Nellie Garside is successful as Susanne.

PALACE AND HIPPODROME, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Reg. H. Foster.—The Palace management present a very entertaining programme this week, which includes the Gallimore Trio, successful comedy artists and dancers; the Fordyces, two clever youthful dancers—the young male will make his mark as a comedian; Three Transfields, clever and pretty lady musicians; Lisbon and Barker, comedians; Shenton and Chicks, in The Children's Birthday Party; Pyck, Tholl, and Taylor, in a clever dancing absurdity, The Dancing Master; the Donaldson Bros., in the side-splitting Sports in a Jungle; and the pictures.

HANLEY. — ROYAL. — Proprietors, Hanley Theatres and Circus Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. G. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. Douglas Elphinstone.—Mother Goose finishes this week a highly successful season. Mr. J. F. Elliston has for the third successive season produced the pantomime.

GRAND.—Proprietors, Hanley Theatres and Circus Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. G. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. Arthur Rand.—A fine programme is headed by the Boisset Troupe, with The Dock Strike; C. Torbay, comedy silhouettist, is successful; the Sisters Gilby, in a musical act, win applause; and Alec Kendal, comedian, also appears; Fred Land is also a good comedian; Aida Martine is a decidedly good dancer; Raymond's Bio-tableaux shows two excellent films; and Brinn, in a most sensational act, which is thoroughly enjoyed, completes a splendid bill of fare.

KING'S.—Lessees, Messrs. Moore and Kennedy; Manager, Mr. Hy. Kennedy.—The pictures shown this week are proving a powerful lodestone, packed houses witnessing the show. Mr. Edward Ind, eccentric comedian and vocalist, is received with much favour.

HARROGATE.—GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr. Eric Fielding Smith.—Ernest Shand is the predominant star of the week's variety entertainment; Leolin with his juggling is dexterous; Les Wambas are wonderful gymnasts; and the Three Cascaellas, the Bon-Bons, melodists, Evelyn and Norrie, in a sketch, Leslie and Player, and Will Gordon complete the bill.

HARTLEPOOL.—EMPRESS.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Albert Matham.—Another week of pictures, provided by Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope Co., is being enjoyed. The list, which is extensive, includes a film of Jack Johnson, the Champion of the World.

HASTINGS.—GAIETY THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland; Resident-Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles E. Scutt.—A week's visit opened here on Monday by Mr. Geo. Brydon-Phillips's company in the pantomime Little Red Riding Hood, which proved to be a most successful production, and delighted a crowded house. The scenic effects are excellent, and the picturesque raiment worn in every scene culminates in the last in one of gorgeous and artistic splendour. Miss Kittie Rayburn came here with a glowing record, which she fully maintained as Prince Amoroso, her songs evoking enthusiasm, in particular, "Come to me in Canada"; Miss Ena Corelli is a sweet Little Red Riding Hood, and won all hearts by her charming dancing; the Fairy Gossamer has a very dainty exponent in Miss Edith Jefferies, who rendered her song, with picture effects, very sweetly, the lantern being cleverly manipulated by Mr. A. Miles; Miss Maisie Mildare, who played as Jill, executed a clever pas seul. The comedians are a constant source of mirth; Bishop and Vale, associated as Simple Simon and Johnny Stout, exercise a risible influence that is irresistible, and are clever knockabouts; Will and Alice Vokes are associated as the Squire and Marjory Daw, and are very humorous and dance cleverly; Harry and James Ewins are associated as the Wolf and the Poodle, and their comic antics evoked much merriment; Mr. Tom Carrick is quaintly humorous as the Dame; Mr. Henry de Solla as Lawyer Slyfox is entertaining in his nefarious designs upon the heroine. The chorus acquit themselves well, and Mr. Ernest Hurman, who conducted, is responsible for the tuneful music. At the matinées a children's harlequinade is arranged by Mr. Harry Ewins as Clown, assisted by Messrs. James Ewins, H. Gates, and Miss Maisie Mildare.

HIPPODROME.—General-Manager, Mr. H. Vivian-Fisher; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Walter Norman.—An interesting programme is opened by Marie Tilley, a sprightly comedienne and dancer; some beautiful pictures of a Royal Court in the olden time are shown by the Alhambra Bioscope; Phern and Phern are skilful musicians on a great variety of instruments; the noises of animals in a country farmyard are wonderfully imitated by Harry Carsdale; Miss Dot Stevens, an accomplished vocalist, gives impressions of popular artists, and represents a pathetic story of street life as a flower girl; Dave Wallace is a truly eccentric comedian; and some clever and remarkable specimens of lasso throwing and lariat manipulation by the Four Mexicans is shown and described.

PIER PAVILION.—General-Manager, Mr. J. D. Hunter.—The exciting novel "Moths" allows of most effective dramatising, which is taken advantage of by Mr. A. B. Tapping and his specially-selected company, who are producing the drama with great success. The play is staged with commendable completeness. The character of the villain, Prince Zouroff, although repellent, is admirably conceived by Mr. Tapping, who gives it a polished interpretation; the Duke of Mull is effectively embodied by Mr. Edward Harrison; Lords Jura and Ivan are both taken by Mr. W. Maule Cole; Mr. Frederick Moyes gives a sturdy and convincing rendering of the operatic tenor Raphael de Correze. A most worldly and unfeeling mother is most ably personified by Miss Eugenie Vernie in the part of Lady Dolly Vanderdecken; Fuchsia Leach, the American heiress, is taken by Miss Clarissa Selwyne with much talent and conviction. The very reprehensible character of the Duchesse de Yonnaz is splendidly taken by Miss Ella Dixon. Nothing could be more captivating or charming than Miss Alice Farleigh as Lady Dolly's daughter, Vere, whose comedy is excellent throughout.

HORWICH.—PRINCE'S.—Lessees, The Horwich Theatre Co.; Manager, Mr. R. H. White.—Mr. Louis Elgar's Jack and the Beanstalk company opened on Monday to a crowded house, and had a very enthusiastic reception. The musical numbers are very bright and catchy, under the able conduct of Mr. Rowland Hill, and the scenery and dresses very handsome. Miss Isa Bernard is a dashing principal boy, and her songs are highly applauded; Miss Rena Rees is a very winsome Phyllis, whose vocal efforts are also very successful; Miss Lizzie Palmer gives a capital rendering of Dick Tempest, Jack's friend; Miss Isa Davis as Daisy Dimple scores immediately, her impersonation of the leading variety stars ranging from Miss Vesta Tilley to Harry Lauder, creating rounds of applause; the Godfrey Girls (Misses Carrie, Florrie, and Trixie) sing and dance themselves into the affections of the audience, and work very hard; the Misses Annie Sims, Alice Spicer, Myra Sutcliffe, Lily Tailford, Emily Jones, and Madge White keep the ball rolling in good style; Dame Trot is very safely trusted to Mr. Harry May, described as "the personification of beauty and grace," who renders a very good account of himself; Mr. Harry Hoyland plays the Baron in good style; Mr. Bert Allen as Simple Simon is responsible for more laughter than is good for the average individual, his ballad vocalisation is of a very high order, and his grotesque business is genuinely funny; Mr. Louis Elgar and Mr. Will Belasco as Flippit and Floppit work very hard, and are responsible for some thoroughly good comedy; and Mr. Belasco's dulcimer selections are very enjoyable. Mr. Syd Deene plays the Giant, Mr. Chris. Sylvene the widow's cow Oxo, and Mr. Joe Wallace the noisy town-crier, and are very good; Mr. Chas. Presto gives a fine exposition of card manipulation and hoop illusion; and Bernard and May, in song, dance, and story, help to make a very enjoyable evening's entertainment.

HUDDERSFIELD.—HIPPODROME, LTD.—Resident-Manager, Mr. N. M. Robinson.—Mr. James Kiddie's Dick Whittington is being presented here twice nightly. As Dick, Miss Lena Page gives a bright and refined impersonation, singing and acting with easy grace; she is ably supported by Miss Nellie Merton as Alice, Miss Florence Hilton as de Mash, Mr. Dennis McCarthy as Fitzwarren, Mr. George Ryden as Idle Jack, Mr. Fred Spencer as the Cook, and the Hannaway Brothers as Peter and Larry, knockabouts. Miss Dorothy Dryden appears as principal dancer. Many of the season's favourite songs are given during the evening.

HULL.—GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Mortons, Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. W. F. Morton.—The Fair One With Golden Locks has entered upon its last stage, and the management have reaped full advantage in catering so well for the juveniles. Plenty of fun has been provided, and the credit lies with the comedians, at whose head stands Mr. J. Chippendale, one of the best of pantomime Dames. Another striking feature of the pantomime has been the songs, which have appealed to the public taste.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr. W. Morton; Manager, Mr. Tom Bogue.—Pinero's play His House in Order has secured a success here this week. Miss Elsie Rogers is a very acceptable Nina; praise should be accorded Mr. Herbert Beaumont for the manner in which he fills the rôle of Hillary; the part of Derek falls to Miss Peggy Rae, who fills it with conspicuous success; Mr. Randolph Reade does well as Manrewarde.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Mortons, Ltd.—Manager, Mr. Geo. Morton.—The Love of a Princess has caught the taste of the patrons of this house. The love episodes are finely brought out by Miss Maisie Hanbury, who, with Mr. Wilson Coleman, has gained a place in the affections of the audience. Miss Hanbury is a possessor of talents of a high order. Miss Olive Lloyd furnishes a good picture as Lady Irene; the Queen of Miss Nellie Taylor is far above the ordinary in its conception; and Mr. Ernest Imeson is a capital Danilo. The play is one full of strong interests.

THE HIPPODROME.—Lessee, Mr. Alfred Graham; Manager, Mr. Harry Dunford.—Appearing here are J. Clempert, who goes through a smart performance; Henry and Tyler, clever trick cyclists; Leah Arden, a nice vocalist; Mlle. Pollo, Bert Bowden, Mr. and Mrs. Shelley, and the Vanderbilts.

THE EMPIRE.—Lessee, Mr. Harry Slingsby.—The Five Bombays are a clever top turn; Alice Maude a good mimic; R. C. Note an excellent chorus vocalist; and Cliffe and Vanston and Jules Kiaro, complete.

THE CIRCUS.—Manager, Mr. E. Emerson.—Animated pictures still running.

ILKESTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. L. F. A. Rogers.—Captain Clayton's company is here in the pantomime Cinderella. Miss Amy Allnutt is seen to advantage as Prince Charming; Miss Nita Dunville meets with approval as Cinderella; and Mr. Fred Dunville as Buttons and Mr. C. Turner as Nervous Joe are successful. The Zola Troupe of acrobats have a good reception, and the Dunvilles, musicians, are clever. P. J. Durney (globe walker), La Belle Mascot (wire performer), and other specialities also appear.

IPSWICH.—LYCEUM THEATRE.—Messrs. Austin and Dixon occupy the theatre for the week with their company in the pantomime of Mother Goose. Miss Mabel Austin as Lubin, principal boy, acts gracefully and sings well, and Miss Winifred Murray as Daisy, the village belle, is an actress and vocalist of considerable ability; Miss Cissie Astbury and Miss Gertrude Bond are successful in their respective parts; Mr. Sidney James in the part of Mother Goose is a versatile comedian, who commands laughter and approbation in all his efforts; Mr. Eric Dean is a good Squire Close; Mr. Ted Lockstone as Billy, Mr. Jack Harrington as Parchment, Will Raglon and Tom Read as two policemen, are good, and the Goose as played by Fred Fox is very mirth provoking. The spectacular effects, staging, and costumes are attractive.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. E. H. Bostock.—Messrs. Conway and Leland, under the title of the Merry Monopedes, are extremely clever acrobats who have certainly turned their misfortunes to good account; Ike and Will, in a naval and military sketch, are very funny and mirth provoking; the New York Comedy Four are paying a return visit, and had a hearty welcome back; Mlle. Renee is a clever instrumentalist on the saxophone, post horn, piano, cornet, and ocarina; Gwennie Haste sings well and is an agile dancer; Arthur Slater whistles like life and imitates various birds and animals most amusingly; Ryan and Hall are burlesque wrestlers and acrobats; and Walter Emmerson is an old favourite here and sings as well as ever. The Bioscope concludes.

JARROW.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. H. Locke.—A first visit is being paid here by Mr. E. Hill Mitchelson's company with The King and the Unknown Woman. Mr. James Stillwell gives an admirable reading of Prince Loris; Mr. Stephen E. Scanlan plays with force and skill the part of Prince Menski; Mr. W. R. Winning is well placed as General Platz; Mr. Cyril Harrison does remarkably well as Captain Gara; and some excellent comedy is provided by Mr. William E. Passmore, ably assisted by Miss Cissie Podmore; Miss F. Conyers Radcliffe proves herself a talented actress; Miss Muriel Inglis is equally successful in the part of Countess Melveitch; and some excellent work is done by Miss Norma Dumayne as Else and Miss Elsie Clark as Cascar.

JERSEY.—OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee, Mr. Edward Marris; Acting-Manager, Mr. Stanley Hope.—Mr. John A. Thomson is presenting the second edition of his pantomime The Babes in the Wood this week, and is meeting with phenomenal success. Miss Pattie McCarthy, the handsome and shapely Robin Hood, has made herself a great favourite; Mr. Frank Halpin's fine bass voice is much appreciated, and his duet with Miss Norah Prendergrast gains a big encore at every performance; Miss Cissie Williams is a particularly good-looking boy Babe and gives a smart sand dance; whilst La Belle Sylvia is a pretty and taking girl Babe, whose acrobatic dancing brings down the house. The first robber, Mr. Lovell Rowlands, is responsible for most of the low comedy, and the star turn is the daring gymnastic exhibition given by Les Millicent Frères. Messrs. John A. Thomson and Henry Eglinton, the joint authors, may be congratulated on having produced a thoroughly healthy, clean, and delightful evening's amusement.

KETTERING.—AVENUE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Payne.—Mr. Harry Tilbury and company are here with His Dishonoured Wife. Mr. Victor Ray is an admirable Frank Lindon, and Miss Belle Tilbury appears to advantage as Florence Lindon; Mr. Harry Tilbury contributes some capital fun as Micky Doolan, and is ably supported by Miss Ettie Spalding as Araminta.

KIDDERMINSTER.—NEW OPERA HOUSE.—Licensee and Managing-Director, Mr. Jas. P. Moore; Acting-Manager, Mr. R. C. Gudgeon.—Messrs. Fred Little and Fred Darcy's Sinbad the Sailor pantomime has been produced here this week, and the result does them every credit. Miss Marie Reeve, pleasing, attractive, and bright, takes the part of Sinbad, and her singing is very successful; Miss Gertie Webster is smart as Selim, and Miss Molly Hackett makes a dainty Zoreida, and her work is most acceptable; Miss Marian Ellis as Lustre, the Good Fairy, is stately and sings well; Mr. Walter Adams as Tinbad works well, and his share in keeping the fun going is a large one; Mr. Willie Barrett is a highly amusing Mrs. Sinbad; Messrs. Newco and Sullo as Baccah and Stoppah are expert dancers, and add materially to the general success; Mr. Fred Taylor as Captain Cook is effective. Special turns are given by the Acme Quartette of Clever Dancers, Mons. and Mlle. Van Lachterop, operatic vocalists, the Westwoods, whose expert trick cycle riding is remarkably clever, and Halma, the great Scotch juggler. The piece is well staged.

KIRKCALDY.—NEW PAVILION.—Lessee, Dr. Walford Bodie.—Capital pictures continue to be provided this week, and very good turns are given by Cooper and Knox, patter comedians and acrobats; Miss Helen Duncanson, illustrated song singer; Master Hendry, juvenile comedian and dancer; and Mr. George Westland, Scotch comedian.

LANCASTER.—GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. C. Howitt.—Messrs. R. C. Buchanan and Mr. Ernest Stevens' company is presenting Jack the Giant Killer. To Miss Madge Allen is allotted the part of Jack, and right well does she play it, her songs being up-to-date and catchy. As Margery Daw Miss Lilian Errol does good work; Miss Madge O'Neill wins favour as Mephisto, and Mlle. Telka is acceptable as the Spirit of Love. The Dame could not be in better hands than those of Mr. Harry Farrow, and Johnny M'Elroy is capital as Simple Simon.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Porter and Fergusson.—Another first rate programme is arranged this week, the premier place being occupied by J. W. Wilson and Nellie Waring, in a comedy act, A Bit of Nonsense; Polo and Florence supply a pleasing equilibrist turn; Tom McAskell, comical conjurer, wins hearty applause; Will Walton, Suffragette, is recalled each house; and Violet George has some good songs. The McAleaveys, barrel jumpers, are excellent, and George Rae, Scotch comedian, does very well. The Hippograph completes the bill.

LEAMINGTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Manager, Mr. George G. Ridley. —During the earlier part of the week Mr. Harry Benet's company appeared here in the musical comedy Sergeant Brue. Mr. Denis Lyndon gave a capital representation of the Sergeant, whilst the character of that drollest of criminals, Crookie Scrubbs, was in the capable hands of Mr. H. Quiningborough, who provided intense amusement in the part. Miss Ray Anderson was a charming Lady Bickenall, and Miss Daisy Dale excellent as Aurora. Mr. Tom G. Warren was a quaint Mr. Crank, and as Daisy Miss Kittie Clayton was a distinct success. Mr. Lister Morrah was commendable as Michael Brue, and sang with good effect. The other characters were ably sustained, and an augmented orchestra and chorus, under the direction of Mr. Ernest Wolfe, added much to the success of the piece. For the remainder of the week Mr. George Dance's company is announced in Havana.

LEICESTER.—PALACE THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; District-Manager, Mr. Hatton Wharton; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. Finch-Hatton; Assistant-Manager, Mr. W. S. Buccleuch.—At the head of a most attractive programme here is Fred Edwards and company, including Miss Bertha Northam, in Kleptomaniacs; Oswald Williams, who is supported by Winifred La Barte and company, is a remarkably smart illusionist; May Edouin, the well-known musical comedy artist, is making a hit with a turn brimful of versatility; the Jackson Family of refined instrumentalists score their usual success with a thoroughly enjoyable turn; an unusual "show" is submitted by the Martineks in their novelty The Rag Doll; J. P. Ling is a smart mimic; Lee and Bentley, comedy duologue artists, create plenty of merriment; Phil Parsons, a native of Leicester, sings a couple of songs; and the Chronomegaphone (Gaumont's patent) gives selections of Victoria Monks and George Robey.

PAVILION THEATRE. — Proprietor and Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr. Joe Lawrence.—Mr. Bernard Mervyn and company are here in the petite drama 'Twixt Dusk and Dawn; the Stebro Brothers are amusing and clever in their vaulting speciality; the Sisters Desmond are attractive duettists; and other artists include Clack and Clack, lady acrobatic barrel jumpers; Tom Crawley, comedian and dancer; Ted Lawrey, comedian; and Dolly Dewar, soubrette. Walter H. Pallister's Bioscope is a special attraction.

THE EMPIRE.—Lessees, the New Bioscope Trading Company; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles R. Craig. —At this home of animated pictures and varieties there is again this week a really fine assortment of films, including Calabria (a wonderfully clever picture), An Indian's Honour, Rescued from the Eagle's Nest, and others. A most successful first appearance is being made here by Shawlene, a remarkably clever silfleur.

THEATRE ROYAL.—The attraction here this week is a return visit of Mr. John Gerant's well-known company in the interesting military drama At Duty's Call, in which Mr. John Gerant plays with his usual success the part of Harold Alison, excellent assistance coming from Miss Beatrice Western as Dora Desmond, Mr. Ernest St. John as General Gordon, Miss Ada Roscoe as Salema, and other members of a capable cast.

OPERA HOUSE.—The pantomime of Jack the Giant Killer, which has served its purpose as an entertainment since Boxing Day, enters on its last week on Monday next. Several of the artists engaged have already achieved success in pantomime in Leicester, notably Miss Gracie Grahame, who scored in the principal part in the palmy days of the Royal as a flourishing pantomime house, and Mr. Rolando Martin, a comedian of much cleverness, who appeared under the banner of Colonel Winstanley at the Opera House. The various parts have been taken by the following, who are all to be heartily complimented on the manner in which they have worked for its success:—Jack, Miss Gracie Grahame, a vivacious and popular principal boy, who makes a well-deserved hit with her songs, especially "Oh, oh, Antonio"; Martha, Miss Veronica Brady, who plays the part in a typical and smart manner, her dancing earning high praise; Simple Simon, Mr. Rolando Martin, a really funny performance; Trim and Trott, Messrs. Cribb and Cribb, a pair of mirth-provoking comedians; Dame Durdan, Mr. Julian Mack, a dame of great merit; Blunderbore (the Giant), Mr. Harry Courtin, deserving of much praise; King Marvel, Mr. Clifford Morgan, who plays well, and uses a good voice to excellent advantage; Princess Pansy, Miss Lily Eyton, who sings and acts delightfully; Prince Rupert, Miss Nora Guy, who is capital; and Flora, Miss Cecilia Leslie, who deserves special commendation. Others in the cast are Miss Marion Harris (Dolly Varden), Miss Ettie Beaumont (Mirette), Miss Doris Cooke (Florette), Miss Nellie Cassidy (Pretty Polly), Miss Norah Cooke (Sir Roger), and Miss Flo Vernon (Sir Oliver). The Eight See-Saw Girls introduce some entertaining dances. Mr. D. Ross is the successful producer of the "show."

LEIGH.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor, Mr. J. W. Cragg; Manager, Mr. W. Heath. —The Girl Who Went Astray is being presented here by Mr. F. Bulmer's company. Captain Frank Julian is admirably portrayed by Mr. J. B. Shinton; Mr. Fred Lloyd makes a good Rupert Murdock; Miss G. Warren an excellent Madge Harvey; Miss Ada M. Ryder a charming Violet Harvey; and Miss Sybil Haughton a successful Eleanor Merton. Mr. E. F. Melrose is well placed as Sergeant John Harvey; Mr. Evan Roland admirably sustains the rôle of Adolphus Boomer; Miss Mary Dalby is a pleasing Molly Smart; and Mr. Todd Squire causes much laughter as James Yellowsocks.

GRAND THEATRE AND HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, the Leigh Grand Theatre and Hippodrome, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. W. Benson; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Woolstencroft.—An excellent programme is headed by Ando's Happy Little Japs, who supply a wonderful exhibition of acrobatic skill. Miss Ida Kessanly's fox-terriers are accorded a hearty welcome; Mr. Jack Truman's tenor voice is heard to advantage; Miss Agnes Molteno, in her scena A Dolly and a Coach, has proved a huge success; Mr. Barney Stuart, actor-vocalist, is well received; and Hans and Lux, comedy duo, are very amusing. Other turns are Miss Kitty Lascelles, comedienne; Mlle. Le Breton, gymnast; and the Bioscope.

LEITH.—NEW GAIETY THEATRE.—Licensee and Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. John Darlison.—The pantomime of Beauty and the Beast, produced by Mr. Fred Granville, has succeeded Dick Whittington, and an excellent all-round company provides very pleasant entertainment. The Three Sisters Sprightly are prominent in leading rôles, which they carry through with much charm and spirit; Miss Hilda de Grey, the Misses Norah and Eddie Kebble, and Mlle. Benita are conspicuous by their vocal abilities; while diverting variety specialities are contributed by Kennedy's Kiddies, Messrs. Deno and Drew, Mr. Leslie Austin, Barry and Wood, and a troupe of Ju-jitsu dancers. The comedians, Mr. Sidney Milton, Mr. Sam Foster, and Mr. Juan Wood provoke much merriment; and almost unlimited recalls indicate the success of the many bright and amusing numbers with which the piece abounds.

LICHFIELD.—ST. JAMES'S HALL.—Miss Inez Howard's company appeared here on Monday in The Soldier's Wedding. The play was excellently staged, and the company did ample justice to its interesting plot. Miss Doris Kelvey as Peggy in the leading part, Miss Jean Wigney as the juvenile lead, and Miss Helene Forest as Julie de Beauvrais were effective in their respective rôles. Mr. Charles A. Baker as the hero, Mr. Cecil H. Raymond, the low comedian of the company, Mr. Frank V. Fenn as Charles Courtney, and Mr. Lanceley as Colonel James Graham contributed to the forcible presentation of the exciting incidents of the play.

LIVERPOOL.—ROTUNDA THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery.—On Monday Mr. J. F. Ellis-ton's pantomime Puss in Boots commenced a fortnight's visit at this popular house. The production was a particularly fine one, the comedians keeping the ball rolling in excellent fashion, while the scenery and dresses left little to be desired. Included among the principal fun-makers were Messrs. Harry Edlin (the Baron), and Harry Rogerson (the King), both of whom caused shouts of laughter; Miss Ethel Ra-Leslie proved a most vivacious principal boy, possessing a pleasing and musical voice; Mr. Fred Lincoln amused greatly with his Dame; Miss Zona Joy, as the Dutch servant Gretchen, sang and danced in a manner that earned for that able little artist loud applause; as Silly Muggles, the miller's eldest son, Mr. Augustine Symonds provided a fair share of the fun; Miss Gladys Christoe looked well and acted daintily as the Princess; and other satisfactory parts were Sly Boots (Mr. Hal Bert), Prince Rudolph (Miss Bessie Herbert), Phyllis (Miss Gladys Hicks), and the Fairy (Miss Issa Steel). Among the specialities were the juggling by the waiter Fritz (Zelina), and the march of the silver Amazons, headed by the King's trumpeters (the Three Lorimers). Matinées were announced for Wednesday and Saturday.

STAR THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Harris Fineberg.—Here this week the patrons of the favourite Star have been treated to a capital presentation of The Luck of Roaring Camp, Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr. Mark Blow's company interpreting the story of American camp life in an able manner. Miss Olive Wilton in the name-part acted with a charm that soon gained for her the affections of her audience; as the adventuress Jovita Miss Florence Melrose-Millett played with high histrionic ability; Mr. Robert Purdie gave a fine reading of the part of Will Gordon; Mr. Charles E. Johnson, as the rascally Tom Barnes, lent a deal of strength to the play; and among the efficient cast deserving of mention were Messrs. George Porteous (Gonzales), Hyland O'Shea (a most humorous Paddy McGinty), G. Cuthbertson (Old Pard), and Miss Jenny Clare (Mrs. O'Flynn). The scenic effects were especially good. A matinée was given on Thursday.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Horace Cole.—Neil Kenyon has had a rousing reception here this week, among his songs being "The postman," and "Is that a fact?" La Tortajada, the famous Spanish dancer and vocalist, presented a pleasing operetta in three acts, entitled The début of Dolores, in which she undertook five distinct characters; the Seven Olympians gave an exhibition of ju-jitsu; Jack Smiles kept his audience in capital humour; the Strolling Players had a clever musical pot-pourri; cordial approval was extended to Mabel Mavis for her accomplished work on the piano and other musical instruments; Minnie Paget pleased everyone with her concertina playing; and contributions also came from Nance Elder, comedienne; and Harry Simms, comedian.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred Granville.—For notice of a new drama produced here on Monday last, see another column.

LYRIC.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry C. Arnold. —Pantomime has during the week been in possession of this resort, the work entitled Babes in the Wood being presented by a good all-round combination controlled by Messrs. Cullen and Carthy. The pantomime was brimful of fun, and afforded the utmost satisfaction to packed audiences. It would be difficult to find a more amusing couple of robbers than those impersonated by the able comedians mentioned, who kept the house in roars of laughter. Their efforts were immensely strengthened by their music-hall companion, Little Cluley, who made a lively Bantam, the Baron's secretary. Mr. Tom Drew was a diverting Dame; Mr. Arthur Stratton as the Baron was particularly well-suited; Miss Bessie Cohen proved a winsome Robin Hood; the rôle of Maid Marion was neatly presented by Miss Ruby Royd; Mr. Fred Melville sang tastefully in the character of Hearne, the Hunter; and enjoyable specialities were introduced by Les Belles Americaines, Dolly and Elsie (the babes), the Melbahs, and Cullen and Carthy, and Little Cluley. On Thursday a matinée was given.

ROYAL HIPPODROME. — Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; Manager, Mr. Walter Hassan. —Great success has attended Holland and Wood's pantomime, The Forty Thieves, so much so that it has remained another week. Mr. Bob Selvidge (Ali Baba) proved the mainstay of the work, and his efforts in the direction of creating fun were most ably assisted by Mr. Robb Wilton (the Dame). The latter comedian, who for years was connected with the Theatre Royal, Liverpool, where a stock dramatic company is stationed, has recently taken to the variety stage, and, judging from the tumultuous applause which has greeted his work in this pantomime, the change appears to be a wise step. Mr. Wilton had a quiet style of humour all his own, and his patter and songs were greeted with much enthusiasm. In addition to the pantomime turns were given by the Primrose Quartet, harmonising male vocalists; Webb and Branston, operatic duettists; and the Three Garganis, comic acrobats.

ROYAL PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank O'Toole. —A Heart's Desire was during the week presented by the stock company, included among the cast being Messrs. Sydney Grant (Lord St. Ives), David G. Noble (Eric May), R. Seath Innes (David McCulloch), Tom H. Solly (Coombes), Miss Florence Palmer (Elsie Beresford), and Miss Lilian Radbourne (Oiya). Mr. Anthony Brown's Bioscope showed the latest films.

WESTMINSTER.—Lessee, Mr. Fred E. Weisker; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Montgomery.—In addition to an enjoyable series of animated pictures given here, the following appeared during the week:—King and Stench, American sketch artists; Lily Vane, comedienne; and T. W. Barrett, comedian.

OLYMPIA.—District-Manager, Mr. Albert Bulmer; Acting-Manager, Mr. Ernest Wighton.—Heading the programme here this week we have had Polly Pickles Pets in Petland, a pretty little turn, presented by Joseph Hart, which found general favour; the always welcome John F. Preston gave his stirring racing sketch Rogues of the Turf, which was followed with close interest; Parisian Street Singers was the title of a musical mélange given by the Dumond Trio of accomplished instrumentalists; the Viking Wrestlers had a novel exhibition of Icelandic wrestling; Annie Purcell was granted a most cordial reception for her latest songs; Enzer, the soldier juggler, assisted by Miss Clarice, the lady ju-jitsu expert, went through a smart performance; a novel vocal and dancing act was submitted by the New York Nippers; and also in the list were Les Voces, operatic duettists; and Harry Clifford, comedian.

PAVILION.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Manager, Mr. Henry Hearn.—Deane Tribune and company have pleased immensely with their laughable sketch The Cheerful Idiot; Sidney Dooley's Queen of the Adriatic, comic opera, was particularly enjoyed, among the principal artists being Messrs. Bert Atherton, Bob Barbour, Sidney Dooley, Fred. Danvers, and the Misses Edith Watkins, and Vera Vizard; the Wartana Trio of lady jugglers introduced a smart novel act; Harry Blake had some funny songs; as acrobats the Maxwells and their trained dogs, were pleasing and capable artists; Lew Peterman, Hebrew comedian, was diverting; Captain Roberts and two lady assistants gave a neat exhibition of acrobatic work, &c.; and Jim Cunliffe, comedian, was well received.

GRAND TIVOLI.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Jasper Redfern.—The Bioscope pictures shown here continue to attract. In addition during the week the following artists provided variety turns:—The Northcotes, vocalists; Oliver Conroy, comedian; Alpho, ventriloquist; Garden's Royal Five, international dancers; Czinski, musician; Clare Sisters, duettists; and Sydney and Partner, comedy cyclists, with the sensation, "The Devil's Drum."

PARK PALACE.—Lessee, Mr. Jasper Redfern.—Among the series of cinematograph pictures given

has a nice muff
hands warm.

How, do you think,
she keeps them
WHITE, SOFT,
and
SMOOTH?

Why!
She uses

here during the week was one dealing with the adventures of the mysterious motoring lady. Variety turns also came from the Six Australian Bush Boys, vocalists and dancers; J. P. Carroll, tambourine player; Angus and Arthur, comedians; Ena Compton, chorus comedienne; Boultbee, ventriloquist; and the Deer Family in Indians of the Past.

NEW CENTURY PICTURE HALL.—Proprietors, The New Century Animated Picture Company, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Walter W. Hook.—Business continues good here, the Bioscope pictures shown attracting large audiences. During the week the subjects included Christmas from B.C. to the Twentieth Century; The Road of Life; Nick Carter, Detective; and The Eagles's Nest; besides comical ones, and illustrated songs.

LLANELLY.—ROYALTY THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Z. Andrews; Resident-Manageress, Miss Alice Rocheforte.—Mr. Harry Benet's pantomime company is here this week with Robinson Crusoe. Miss Nellie Dyson gives a dashing representation of the hero; Miss Stella Millar is a most charming Polly, both she and Miss Dyson sing and dance well; Mr. Harry Benet as Billy Crusoe is excruciatingly funny; Mr. Ramsey also adds much to the amusement of the audience by his clever acting; as Friday Mr. Lonzo Brown scores; Mr. Sam Saxo is a good King Kop-em; whilst Miss Bertha Collins does well as the Princess Peerless; as Willie Atkins Mr. J. H. Wakefield is very good. The Verona Troupe of dancers add much to the pleasure of the piece.

LOWESTOFT.—MARINA.—Manager, Mr. E. A. Smith.—Varieties are again in evidence here, Rosie Lloyd heading the bill for the current week in several of her latest successes. Others include Boyd and Gilfani; Reed and Stevens, La Danseuse, Jimson's Pets in The Burglar's Surprise, Vera Barton, and Will E. Stopit.

HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Geo. Gilbert; Manager, Mr. Frank Freeland.—The Biograph projects a wonderful film this week dealing with the recent earthquake at Messina. Lieut. A. Martine, of the U.S. Navy, who was on the scene and secured the pictures, gives some graphic details, appearing on the stage with his arm in a sling. The variety bill includes yet another "singing collier" in Tom Taylor, who gives a fine rendering of "The Toilers"; Ben Abel and E. V. Barr (a local comedian) contribute some humorous numbers; and Martine and son appear in illustrated songs.

MACCLESFIELD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. W. K. Gatley.—Mr. T. Morton Powell's company is here in Greed of Gold and Honour Thy Father. As Tom Welstead in Greed of Gold, given on Monday, Mr. James Jarrett was excellent; Mr. Alf. Stretton played the part of Arthur Erroll with distinction; Harry Hood was faithfully drawn by Mr. Henry Parr; Mr. Arthur Beaufort was most successful as Cully Snug; Mr. C. Eldred Wood was a popular Conn Cremner; and as Mr. Brightstone, K.C., Mr. Vic. C. Rolfe was capable; Dora found an excellent representative in Miss Maud M. Powell; Miss Beatrice M. Hughes displayed ability as Cecil; Miss Jennie Douglas Hicks was appreciated as Mrs. Maxwell; and Miss Florrie Hayes made a satisfactory Patty Mayfield.

MAIDENHEAD.—THE PAVILION.—Proprietor, Mr. George Gude.—The attendance here increases to a gratifying extent. The pictures are well selected and carefully shown. Those finding most favour on the current programme are Behind the Scenes of a Marionette Show, Archie Goes Shopping and Tomato Preserving. Ern Gray sings well, and the patter of J. Hurren (comedian) is particularly entertaining.

TOWN HALL.—Secretary, the Town Clerk.—Mr. George Robertson's company had a good house on Monday, when A Message from Mars was played. As Horace Parker Mr. Gordon Starkey acted intelligently, being equally convincing in the three contrasted episodes in which he appeared; the rôle of a tramp was treated quite artistically by Mr. Percy Tyler; and both in voice and figure Mr. Lionel Yaldwyn was a capital messenger; Miss Nora Kingsley well filled the part of Miss Parker; Minnie Templer was charmingly represented by Miss Edith King; and the rest of the characters were well sustained. Married to the Wrong Man was billed for Thursday.

MANCHESTER.—GAIETY THEATRE.—Proprietors, Miss A. E. F. Horniman; Manager, Mr. B. Iden Payne; Acting-Manager, Mr. Edwin T. Heys.—The matinées of Alice in Wonderland, now drawing to a close, are still remarkably well attended, and might go on successfully much longer if arrangements permitted. The piece is so well done, from every point of view, that not only the multitudes of children who see it are delighted, but it is a fresh and novel pleasure to their elders. Along with The Knight of the Burning Pestle, which is also nearing a close in the evening bill, it is likely to be long and sympathetically remembered by the patrons of this enterprising house.

ROYAL OSBORNE THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Mason.—A return visit of A Girl's Cross Roads, played by Mr. Walter Melville's company, is the attraction here. Miss Hilda Beverley repeats with great skill her realistic delineation of Barbara Wade; Mr. Norman B. Cannon as Jack Livingstone is a powerful contributor; Mr. Edward Valentine plays Dr. Weston in capable style; and an excellent piece of work is the rendering of John Meadows, an old farmer, by Mr. Harry Cane. The villainies of the play are well brought out by Messrs. W. J. Butler and Fred Withers, and among other notable characters, that of Constance Connell is pleasingly filled by Miss Muriel Dean. Mr. Fred Hodson and Miss Jeannie Thomas ably provide the humour as Toby Turvy and Tilly Vane.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Dry.—Joe Peterman's operatic burlesque, The Singing Servants, heads the bill here this week, and is very well received; James and Jenny Lee perform some really clever feats on the tight-wire; Diana Hope's society episode Her Good Name is of an exciting and entertaining character; Mint and Mart are expert paper manipulators; and other good turns are Harry Zetter, comedian and eccentric dancer; Bradley, the cycling Jew; Morrisey, in a novel musical act; the Rose Trio, acrobatic waiters; Edwin Austin, concertinist; Horace Sade, characteristic dancer; and Sydney Brandon, the boy character impersonator.

GRAND JUNCTION THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Hewitt.—Mr. Walter Melville's successful drama The Soldier's Wedding, is staged here this week. It is a fine play and very well acted throughout. Mr. Wingold Laurence as Jack Brown and Miss Dorothy Richardson as Nancy Lee have excellent opportunities in the heroic rôles, while the sinister element is capitally exploited by Mr. Gerald Jordan as Charles Courtney and Miss Marie AcAulay as Julie de Beauvrais. Mr. Beresford Whitcombe plays well as Colonel Graham, and Miss Mabel Lowe has a good part as Peggy Munroe; while acceptable humour is added by Little Albert and Miss Matty Everett.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Hall.—The principal places on the bill here this week are occupied by Fred Lindsay, the Australian stock-whip wonder, who does some remarkable things with the lash; Fred Karno's pantomimists, in a most amusing burlesque, The Casuals; and The Johnstown Flood, a realistic representation in two scenes of the terrible catastrophe of twenty years ago. Excellent turns are added by the Clement Trio, in their comedy flying-trapeze act; Frank Lister and company, in a well-played dramatic sketch, No. 99; Florence and Lillian, refined instrumentalists; Millie Payne, low comedienne; Tony Spring, champion barrel-jumper; and the Sisters Grosvenor, popular vocalists. The pictures are unusually sensational.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Manager, Mr. Nelson Barry.—Horace Goldin, the well-known and wonderfully smart illusionist, is to the front with a bewildering show; La Pia, in a marvellous weird dancing speciality, with pretty and effective lighting effects, meets with a big reception; Saharet, the Australian dancer, is excellent in Spanish and acrobatic dances; and Amelia De L'Endos sings well, her top notes being nothing short of flutelike. Notwithstanding these fine turns, the hit of the programme was undoubtedly made by Cornalla and Radie, burlesque juggling acrobats, whose business was decidedly original, and cause roars of laughter. Other entertaining items are contributed by Fred Elton at the piano; Harry Bedford, comedian; the Smythson Comedy Company, in a neat sketch Cupid's Frolic; Bertha Winder, smart dancer; and Fred Keeton, comedian.

PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Manager, Mr. A. J. Carter.—Clever Max Darewski is starring here this week, and his reception is very flattering; the Smart Set, including Miss Georgie Martin, sing and dance well; Fred Ginnett's latest, The Hunting Morn, is a capital sketch, and is well presented by a capable company; D'Arc's Marionettes are lifelike, and take well; the Sisters Lavender sing and dance nicely; Alf Gibson is quaint, as usual; De Lilo and Metz are neat speciality artists; Jessie Lee is a pleasing dancer; and Diamond and Hart have some smart talk. Pictures complete.

KING'S THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. James R. Trippett.—A capital programme here this week is headed by Sandy McNab and company in that highly-amusing sketch The Egyptian Mummy; and starring also is Maud Courtney, the talkative American, who tells some smart stories. Will Sullivan, comedian, sings three songs with success; Mr. C. sings and talks well; and other enjoyable items are offered by Tom Morris, whistler; Les Zelovas, acrobatic equilibrists; Tod Lowen, comedian; Fame and Fortune, speciality comedians; Braund and Davies, comedians; and Corman's Juveniles, in refined vocal scena, The Waif. The Bioscope shows some amusing pictures.

TIVOLI.—Managing-Director, Mr. Charles A. Wilkes; Manager, Mr. Arthur B. Wilkes.—The well-known Parisian eccentric comedienne, Eugenie Fougere, is here this week, and is more amusing than ever; the Garricks, in a pot-pourri of songs and dances, are very entertaining; May Fairclough is particularly good in selections from Shakespearean and other plays; and Yvonne Lamor, a charming comedienne, is somewhat original, and is well received; Ruth Molloy, mimic of music hall stars, is highly successful; La Cigale, Anglo-French comedienne, has a pleasing style; and others who provide enjoyable items are Mr. and Mrs. Dudley Hayes, in capital comedy duologue, The Other Mrs. Brown; the Seymours, in clever and original equilibristic juggling act; and Mark Cowan, comedian. Ruffell's pictures are also shown.

QUEEN'S PARK HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. W. Meek.—John Tiller's delightful and amusing pantomime Jack and Jill occupies the boards here this week, and is presented in fine style by a very capable company, including Messrs. Harry Cotton, Horace Jones F. and H. Le Cren, Bruce Green, and the Misses Harriet Fawn, Adah le Cren, Jean Gaynor, and Cissy Iris. The dresses and scenery are all that can be desired, and Mr. S. Oscar Karno is to be complimented for his excellent stage-management.

HULME HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. Thomas Baker.—Coram, in his excellent ventriloquial entertainment, is the top star here this week, and is accorded a deserved big reception; the Wakeman Quintette sing in good style; the Sisters Belmont are first-rate dancers; Rosa Loader as the Slavey at the Piano takes well; Alman Correze, assisted by Keith, the droll, is capital in a juggling act; the Rizarellis are clever in a sensational trapeze act; and other good turns are those of Britain's Heroes, an artistic statue show; the Recar Trio, lady acrobats; Farrell and Dunn, in comedy act; Herma, in strength act; and the Bioscope pictures.

MARGATE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. E. Michael; General-Manager, Mr. W. W. Keene.—Miss Emma Hutchison's clever company presented Mrs. Dot here on Monday and the two following nights, and the mirth-provoking qualities of the play were heartily enjoyed and keenly appreciated. Miss Emma Hutchison gave a good depiction of the part of Lady Sellenger, her rendering being all that could be desired of the fashionable mother who is so much concerned in her daughter's matrimonial welfare. As Mrs. Worthley (Mrs. Dot), Miss Nancy Beresford succeeded to the utmost, the vivacious manner in which she undertook the rôle of the scheming and lively little widow being particularly fascinating. James Blenkinsop, the cynic, was a clever character study in the hands of Mr. Frank Lacy, whose easy and natural manner made the rendering of the part most realistic; Miss Ethel Grahame made a delightful Nellie Sellenger; Miss Sybil Brooke as Eliza Macgregor proved a valuable addition to the cast; Mr. Hugh Kennedy stood out prominently in the rôle of Gerald Halstone; Mr. Charles A. Staite was amusing as Frederic Perkins; Mr. William Midgley was a capable Charles; and other parts were successfully undertaken by Mr. H. A. Samson, Mr. K. Brandon, Mr. Frank Leach, and Mr. F. Abbot.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. Fred. Mouillot and Walter De Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. F. Bawtree.—With the exception of Miss Florence Conolly and Tom Lee, vocalists, the programme here this week is made up of animated pictures. These include scenes at Messina after the earthquake; the other films depict various subjects of a humorous, pathetic, or instructive character.

MERTHYR TYDFIL.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessees, The South Wales Entertainments, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Albert Jackson.—Tom Jones, presented by Mr. Robert Courtneidge's company, is here. Mr. Harry Welchman in the title-rôle is praiseworthy; Miss Florence Smithson as the Squire's daughter acts and sings with dainty charm and piquancy; Miss Joan Ritz is delightful as Honour; Miss Alice Oppetz is most effective as the designing Lady Bellaston; Mr. Ambrose Manning is artistic as Squire Western; Mr. John Morley is prominent as Mr. Allworthy; and Mr. George Elton causes hearty laughter by his spontaneous humour as Benjamin Partridge.

TEMPERANCE HALL.—Manager, Mr. Israel Price.—The top turn here this week is provided by La Belle Duchesse, with her cleverly-trained horses, ponies, and dogs; Ruhart, assisted by La Belle Rosalind presents a most enjoyable turn; Maria Racko is a smart acrobat; and other entertaining items are supplied by Beattie Bloom, comedienne; Morimuret, Japanese illusionist; May B. Brilliant, vocalist and dancer; Wisper, comedy juggler; the Johnsons, in a comedy acrobatic dancing act; and animated pictures.

MEXBOROUGH.—PRINCE OF WALES' THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. W. H. Melton.—Mr. James Bell's company is this week presenting The Idol of Paris. Miss Annie Bell plays with rare dramatic power and personal charm as Flare-Flare; a fine character study of Mrs. Sancterre is given by Miss Frances Bruce; Mr. Wilson Howard capably depicts the vacillating, unscrupulous Phillipe D'Esterre; Mr. Sidney Arnold is a dignified Victor Cashelle; Prince Zoresky has an able exponent in Mr. Gordon Robey; as Gustave Langloise Mr. Alfred Grenville is a typical family lawyer; Mr. Frank Dale (Tatave), and Miss Annie Megson (Ann Sancterre) work well; Mr. Chris Roberts, Miss Grace Noble, and others complete a capital cast.

NEW PICTURE HALL.—Proprietor, Mr. Will Hunter; Manager, Mr. E. H. Jones.—A capital programme here this week includes Legend of a Ghost (a beautifully coloured film), Duel with Dynamite, The Little Savoyard, Washing Day, Snatched from a Terrible Death, &c.

MIDDLESBROUGH.—OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Ed. Jowsey; Manager Mr. W. Ker Chatto.—Mr. Herbert Sleath's company is producing for the first time in Middlesbrough The White Man. The principal part is taken by Mr. Frank E. Petley, who makes a brave and impressive Jim Causton; Mr. A. Brandon gives a flawless portrayal of Big Bill; and Mr. Cecil Yapp is excellent as Shorty. The other "boys" Andy and Crouchey, are well impersonated by Mr. Martin Henry and Mr. H. Mayo. Mr. Gerald Earle is a sinister villain, and Mr. Eric Hudson is exceedingly good as the Indian Chief. As Diana Miss Eleanor May is delightful, and Miss Margaret Fairleigh is very pleasing in the rôle of Nat-u-ritch. The play is admirably staged.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Chas. Imeson.—Mr. James Welch's company is here again in When Knights Were Bold. Mr. Henry J. Ford gives an admirable impersonation of Sir Guy; Miss Agnesse de Lisna is responsible for a charming portrayal of the part of the Lady Rowena; and Miss Mabel Young creates a pleasing impression as the Hon. Mrs. Waldegrave. Mr. Cecil Clayton as the Hon. Chas. Widdicombe is very successful; and a word of commendation is due to Mr. Guy Lane as the Rev. Peter Pottleberry. Miss Ethel St. John figures effectively as Sarah Isaacson. Clever ladies are Miss M. O'Hea as Lady Millicent Eggington and Miss Ruth Bower as Lady Marjorie. Mr. Vernon Sansbury as Isaac Isaacson, Mr. H. Agar Lyons as Sir Brian Ballymote, Mr. Talbot Homewood as Whittle, and Mr. Reginald Hunter as Barker also do full justice to their respective rôles. The play is preceded by a comedy entitled The Wrong Side of the Road.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Brill; Manager, Mr. Chas. G. Rembges.—The premier position on the bill here this week is occupied by the Musical Courtiers in a mélange on the opera The Bohemian Girl. They provide a delightful turn. Phil Rees and his "stable lads" in a new production, Not a Crook, are very good, and Harry Reynolds's Minstrels are excellent singers. Herbert and Lindon are clever dancers, and a humorous sketch, Poor Master, is given by Ed. Cranston and company. Cyrus Dare is a pleasing child mimic; Conn and Conrad do well; and Phillips and Merritt, society entertainers, also contribute to the programme.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Signor Rino Pepi; Manager, Mr. C. E. Nichols.—Joseph Hunt's American racing playlet Futurity Winner, which is being presented here this week, is a most exciting and interesting production. The Cumberlands provide some extraordinary tricks on bicycles; and Dare Austin and Robert Harcourt, in a comedy duologue, His Wedding Morn, are very humorous. The Four Jumels are splendid musicians; the Sisters Dixon, vocalists and dancers, are pleasing; and Ruby Bijou, barefoot dancer, and Yetta, wire-walker, also add to the programme.

NEW BRIGHTON.—WINTER GARDENS.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. H. E. Jones and A. Douglas.—Enormous business is being done here, and a fine reception awaited Mr. Laurence Irving and Miss Mabel Hackney and company, who produced their clever and artistic sketch, Peg Woffington. Splendidly staged and delightfully acted, the sketch was followed with breathless interest, and both Mr. Irving and Miss Hackney were called again and again. Another sketch, but of a different nature, has also made a great success. Our Mary Jane, as presented by Miss Florence Smithers and company, is among the funniest productions ever seen here, and thanks to the really good acting of each of the four artists, the one-act comedy went with roars of laughter. The Wedburns are a couple of original comedians, and scored immensely; Miss Nellie Nora gives a very refined and pretty instrumental interlude; Mr. Barry Lindon, bass vocalist, rouses enthusiasm; and Miss Gene Manon sings an original song. The pictures are first rate.

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. Teale Lingham.—Though Aladdin has been running for upwards of four weeks, it seems to increase in popularity. All the artists are most assiduous in their efforts to please. Mr. Malcolm Scott is as amusing as ever in the part of Widow Twankey, and his fund of humour seems unlimited; that versatile comedian Harry Tate, in his screamingly funny sketches, never fails to bring down the house; and Regan and Ryan, Horace Lane, and Harry Claff all add to the gaiety of the show. Amongst the ladies Happy Fanny Fields, Violet Lloyd, Florence Hersee, and Doris Dean still continue to delight the audience; and the Mimosa Troupe of dancers, in gracefulness and ability, prove a charming feature of the pantomime.

TYNE THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessees, Messrs. Howard and Wyndham; Manager, Mr. Fred C. Sutcliffe.—Humpty Dumpty still continues to draw crowded houses. Mr. Arthur Prince as Bric-à-Brac maintains his popularity, his ventriloquial entertainment and other specialities being especially welcome. The singing and dancing of Miss Ida Rene could scarcely be more effective; whilst Miss Lily Iris as Rudolph, Rhoda Gordon, and Evelyn Hope all retain their well-merited popularity. Mr. Shaun Glenville has made quite a success of the part of King Sollumm, and his numerous appearances are greeted with roars of laughter. J. E. Nightingale, the humorous old lady, Carlton as Bison Bob, and Jock Walker all add to the amusement.

PALACE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. T. W. Rowe.—Hardie and Von Leer's company is the attraction here this week, in the successful drama Two Little Vagabonds. The part of George Thornton is in the capable hands of Mr. George Denham, who acts it to perfection; Mr. Norman Yates creates a good impression as Captain Darville; the villainy of Bill Mullins is effectively portrayed by Mr. James Shea, who is well supported by Mr. Leo St. Clair and Mr. Fred Archer as his confederates; Mr. Joseph Brandon makes a capable John Scarth; Miss Leonora Castello wins all hearts with her pleasing study of Marion Thornton; Miss Florence Radcliffe is interesting as Barbara Scarth; and Miss Marie Prichard makes an amusing Biddy Mullins. As the two vagabonds Miss May Hart and Miss Josie Beltram are eminently successful.

GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. F. W. Bolam; Manager, Mr. H. G. Elliott.—All pantomime records at this theatre have been surpassed by Little Red Riding Hood, which is now in its fourth week, and is attracting packed houses nightly. Miss May Merry, Miss Jessie Templeton, Mr. Laurie Barclay, and Mr. W. K. Martinette have all scored big successes.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Resident-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; Manager, Mr. Parham Wells.—Mr. George Leyton, in his military scena, The Last Muster, is the special attraction here this week, and in this production fourteen Newcastle Crimean and Mutiny veterans are paraded on the stage. The scene is proving exceedingly popular, as is always the case with Mr. Leyton's visits to Tyneside. A delightful new and refreshing turn is that contributed by Miss Helen Trix, an irresistible American, with a fund of clever songs and business; capital fun is developed in Casey's Court, in which a number of smart youngsters appear, with Will Murray as Mrs. Casey; Tom Moore proves popular as a character comedian; a sentimental illustrated number is charmingly introduced by the Three Welsh Girls; and other specialities of interest are contributed by McCann's Dogs, a sketch, Slippery Jim, by E. Dagnall and company, Nellie Coleman (comedienne), and Mazie Hibbs, the Bioscope completing.

PAVILION THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Thos. Barrasford; Manager, Mr. Will H. Boardman.—Chief place is this week taken by Harry Roxbury and company, in the Cowboy Millionaire; and other artists on the excellent bill are Leslie Bros., Emerson and Baldwin, Honors and Le Prince, Jack Hayworth, Rappo and Ella, Ada Parker, Three Croisits, and A. E. Clifford.

SKATING RINK, EXHIBITION BUILDINGS.—Manager, Mr. Fred B. Crowe.—The popularity of rinking steadily increases, and at each session the scene is at once bright and alluring as the crowds of enthusiastic skaters gracefully swing round to the strains of the fine military band. Thursday is usually set aside as the theatrical afternoon, and many leading artists may be seen enjoying the pleasures of "rinking."

NEWPORT.—LYCEUM.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Sidney Cooper.—The Flower Girl is a very pretty musical comedy, presented by Mr. Chas. Bestic's company. As Lily, the central figure, Miss Beatrice Nelson is pretty, graceful, and natural; she has a sweet voice and sings with expression. Mr. Jno. T. MacCallum is humorous as Joe Wheeler, and he is ably supported by Mr. Jno. Latham as Johnny Wheeler. Mr. Robt. Cranny makes a good Hon. Billy Greenhill; Mr. Lewis du Cane's Reginald Racket is natural as a dude character; and Mr. Hy. Adnes is exceptionally clever as the Frenchman, Alphonse de Racquette; while Miss Lilian Drake makes a fascinating Lizette de Racquette. Miss Georgie de Lara as Miss Greenhill, a suffragette, is amusing; and other minor parts are well filled.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll.—Olive Armidale, a dainty soubrette, is pleasing; Jimmy Shields is a smart one-legged comedian and dancer; Percy Hanna is a young American tenor with a rich voice; the Three Prestons, in a funny sketch, The Liftman's Rise, show talent of a high order; Henry Grey causes roars of laughter; and Alburtus, the eccentric American, and Jessie Millar, the lady cornetiste, present A Scene at the Fairground, that is entertaining; whilst Gladys Mavius fully deserved the warm applause accorded her. The Yellow Fang, the Story of an Opium Den, is capitally played by Miss Mary Mayfern as Judith Beck and Messrs. Mark Paton, Geo. Pritchett, Francis Annesley, and Cecil Kingsley.

NEWRY.—TOWN HALL.—Proprietors, Newry Urban Council.—Messrs. Lena and Preston's company presented The Queen of the Night to a large and appreciative audience on Monday. The title-rôle, in the capable hands of Miss Lottie Sanders, was exceptionally well played; Mr. Roberio Lena gave an excellent representation of Frank Featherstone, and scored a big success; and Mr. Hugh O'Neil as Philip Stoneleigh (alias Wilton) made a perfect villain; Mr. Alfred Sanders as Old Briskett caused much amusement, as did also Miss Lizzie Sanders as Mrs. Briskett; Miss Laura Marguerite as Mary Pentreath was good, and Miss Marie Corri made a bright and interesting Kitty White; Miss Fannie Harvie as Maud Sylvester was seen to advantage. The cast also included Mr. Percy Speakman, Mr. Percival, Mr. P. Hayes, Mr. Walter, Mr. Wallie Page, Mr. Pentreath (an old miser), and Mr. George Harvie, the last deserving special mention. The drama was well staged.

NORTH SHIELDS.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Acting-Manager, Mr. Horace Lee.—Mr. Frederick Melville's company is appearing here this week with The Ugliest Woman on Earth, which has had a hearty reception. In the title-rôle Miss Beatrice Homer acts with much dramatic force; Miss Violet Macaree is good as Morita; Miss Nellie Jackson makes a smart Aggie Brown; and Miss Gertrude Harrison is much appreciated as Rose Courtenay. As Jack Merryman Mr. Philip Darien presents a masterly performance for which he gains well-merited applause; Mr. Leyton Cancellor is clever as Hubert Gold; Mr. Leonard Thackeray proves a capable Antonio Luchesi; Mr. William De Brigord scores as Tom Redvers; and Mr. Freddie Bentley as Tubby Herrick causes hearty laughter.

CENTRAL PALACE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Wm. Mould.—Munroe's Comedy Team top the bill here, and make a great hit; Cavalli, in his feats of strength is smart; Little Dot Moss, comedienne, has had a hearty reception; Mr. S. H. Carney, the man of many characters, is clever; the Millwards, in their comedy bar act, are loudly applauded; and the Mouldoscope displays some up-to-date pictures.

NORTHWICH.—CENTRAL THEATRE.—Proprietress, Mrs. S. Golden; Secretary, Miss E. Golden.—After a long absence Mr. Harry Starr is paying a return visit to this town with Otto the Outcast and Carl the Clockmaker. In the title-rôle, Otto, Mr. Starr is very clever, and his songs and impersonations are very well received; Miss Katie Norris plays Lara, a flower-girl, in a charming and meritorious manner; and as Corinne Jarbeau Miss Madge Blundell gives an able representation. Mr. Will Hee distinguishes himself as Roderique D'Estalier; while Mr. Alvin Sawyer scores as Daddy Brunead. Mr. Edwin Firth is a dignified Marquis Marcella de Laporte. The remainder of the parts are in excellent hands, while the piece is well staged.

THE PAVILION.—Proprietress, Mrs. Fletcher.—Miss Marguerite Le Dell sings nicely; Miss Annie Lorraine met with a hearty reception for her songs and dances; Miss Lot Lonsdale became so popular last week that she is re-engaged this; Miss Lily Davis has a fine voice, and was vociferously encored; Mr. Neil Neilson is a good Scotch comedian; and the famous Hispanas present a very clever instrumental musical turn.

NORWICH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Manager, Mr. Fred Morgan.—Messrs. Lyn Harding and Sidney Cooper's excellent company is here this week in The Flag Lieutenant, which is very much appreciated. Mr. George Mallett acts well as Vice-Admiral the Right Hon. Sir Berkeley Wynne; Mr. Lionel Atwell is exceedingly good as Lieutenant Richard Lascelles; and Mr. H. Montague is much in favour as Major Thesiger. Mr. Edward S. Pelley as Crutchley, Mr. Edward Wakefield as Hood, Mr. Frederick Leister as Colonel McLeod, and Mr. John Wheatman as the Irish telegraph official, admirably perform their respective parts. Miss Florence Jackson is excellent as Mrs. Cameron; Miss Viva Birkett is a charming Lady Hermione Wynne; and the other characters are ably filled. The dresses and scenery deserve unstinted commendation.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. E. H. Bostock and F. W. Fitt; Manager, Mr. Councillor F. W. Fitt.—Mr. Fred Karno's London Suburbia is one of the chief attractions here this week, and is received with much applause. J. H. McCann displays dexterity on the roller-skates; the Leotard Brothers are clever hand-balancers and hat-throwers; Jennie Alexander gives some pleasing as well as striking impersonations with much success; Tom Lloyd is a favourite vocalist; Parker and Parr are entertaining as Welsh vocalists; and Allsopp and Beckwith and Jolly Jimmy Walker give excellent turns.

NOTTINGHAM.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Howard Finney.—The penultimate week of Cinderella shows no diminution in the crowded houses that have welcomed the production, and all the artists work with unflagging zeal. As the Prince, Miss Cressie Leonard gives of her best, both in singing and dancing, and goes from success to success; in Miss Madge Vincent is seen a charming Cinderella, who looks and acts the part with delightful simplicity; Miss Alice Treymane makes a winsome fairy, and her vocalism is an outstanding feature of the performance; Miss Marie Empress plays with all the necessary freedom and dash in the part of Dandini; and Miss May Lilian Lovey knows exactly how far to go in helping along the fun. Messrs. Alexandre and Hughes have more than fulfilled exceptations in their efforts to amuse, and not the least enjoyable part is the harmony they contribute by concertina and guitar duets, while their patter keeps the house in a high state of hilarity. Mr. Johnnie Schofield never fails to score, and his many eccentric costumes are a great source of laughter; Mr. Harry Brayne seems to have an inexhaustible store of up-to-date gags that add a zest to the constant flow of merriment; and the ballets call for a special mead of praise.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Harry Upton.—Aladdin runs merrily along, and appreciation of its merits is shown in no uncertain way. Miss Mabel Carr enacts Aladdin with a vivacity and grace that earn their own reward, and her songs are well rendered; the daintiness of Miss Molly Wynne is well shown in her rôle of the Princess; and Miss Edie Graham lives up to the part of a chatterbox; Miss Maud Rayne and Miss Gertrude Lytton make a bright and animated pair; and the presence of Mr. Fred Leglare is felt as the Spirit of the Lamp. The comedians show excellent work. Mr. Tom Kelso portrays the Widow to the accompaniment of the heartiest laughter; and mirth runs riot when those amusing policemen Messrs. Burley and Burley are on the stage. Mr. George Fearnley does full justice to his song as the Vizier; and Mr. William Fulbrook is ever alert as the Magician. Praise is also due to the Walmsley Sextette for their sprightly dancing.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. Albert C. Duncan.—Le Roy (conjurer), Talma (queen of coins), and Bosco (funmaker) are an excellent trio, and their mystifying feats are none the less enjoyable by the large element of fun introduced. George Auger, a giant of a man, and his liliputian troupe provide an entertainment in Jack the Giant Killer made all the more unique and amusing by the contrast in size of the artists; Ernest Rommel (Jack) is a clever little actor, and a tremendous reception is given them all. Bert Williams makes a capital ventriloquist; and Baker and Balfe add to the pleasure by xylophone duets. Dancing, as expounded by Lionette Roberty and her assistants, becomes a fine art; and Frank Street creates a sensation in his faithful imitation of R. G. Knowles. Randolph King gains hearty appreciation; and items are given by Cassie Walmer, comedienne, and the Kroney Bros., comedians.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; Resident-Manager, Mr. E. Lockwood; Treasurer, Mr. A. V. Carnell.—Lovers of the sensational are capitally served this week by Archie Goodall, whose marvellous act "Walking the Hoop," is sufficiently clever and exciting to suit the most exacting; Hayman and Franklin have an amusing episode, entitled A Matrimonial Agency, in which Hebrew characteristics play a prominent part; the Alexandra Operatic Trio give an excellent performance from the Prison Scene in Faust, and are vociferously applauded; laughter follows the antics of the Havannas Troupe of comedy acrobats; music from glasses forms a pleasant item by Silvo; while St. Ruth and Conyers prove themselves able vocalists. The juggling of Paul Vandy is smart; and other turns are provided by Milner and Story, Charles Cardow, and the Barrascope.

NUNEATON.—PRINCE OF WALES'S.—Proprietors, Theatre and Entertainments Co.; Managing-Director, Mr. A. F. Cross; Acting-Manager, Mr. Joseph Coyle.—Mr. Alfred Northway and Mr. W. V. Garrod's company is this week presenting A Country Girl in London. Mr. W. V. Garrod gives a forcible representation of Frank Gordon; the rôle of Marjorie Hamilton is capably played by Miss Bertha Kingston; Mr. Leonard Booker sustains the part of Godfrey Clinton with characteristic unscrupulousness, he being ably assisted by Mr. Clifford Marle as Joe Smithers, and Mr. John Belton as Heinrich Oppenheim; Miss Josephine Colona as Gwendoline Gordon is distinctly good; Mr. John S. Sheridan makes a capital Squire Hamilton; and the humorous side of the play is cleverly handled by Mr. Seymour Perry as Wilberforce Puddyphat and Miss Ethel Whitley as his wife Adelaide.

OLDBURY.—PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. Jas. Tyrer.—An excellent bill is provided here this week. Messrs. East and West, comedy duo, a capital turn, give a good show; Tom Cook, comedian, provides merriment with his patter; J. W. Richards, baritone, wins favour; Millicent Margot, contralto, scores with two selected songs; and the pictures shown are much appreciated.

OLDHAM.—NEW GRAND THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. S. Mayall.—This week the successful comedy Lady Frederick is staged here, and Miss Emma and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company give a most clever and entertaining interpretation. Miss Eleanor Delaporte as Lady Frederick is delightful; Mr. Robert Minster as Mr. Paradine Fouldes makes that character highly interesting; Miss Celia Gordon makes a dignified Lady Mereston; and Miss Lynn Fontaine a charming Rose. Mr. A. Barnett Parker acts cleverly as Sir Gerald; Mr. E. F. Meade as Lord Mereston is smart; and Mr. Edward Bonfield is excellent as Captain Montgomery. Captain Gerald Gambier as the choleric Admiral is a capital study; Miss Rita Ward as Angélique and Miss Phyllis Manners as Mme. Claude are equally successful; and Mr. John Orme as Thompson and Mr. Harry Winton as Pierre also do well. The Peacemaker precedes.

COLOSSEUM THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Wm. Eastwood.—Mr. and Mrs. Levy and Mr. J. Cardwell's pantomime Red Riding Hood is on a visit here. Miss Iris Vivienne is a dainty heroine; Miss Fanny Adamson a most vivacious Boy Blue; Miss May Gibson as Miss Muffett sings "The Gainsborough Girl" and "Won't you be my bridegroom?" earning much applause; Miss Helen Dunscombe as Will Scarlet and Miss Daisy Clifford as Marjorie Daw sing and dance cleverly; Mr. V. Wakeman as Dame Trott causes much laughter, and Mr. J. J. Mannix as Baron Hardup does excellent work. Mr. Billy Melia as Sunny Jim is also very good, and Denby and Dent in the characters of Doleful Dan and Whimsical William introduce some smart comedy. Miss Ena Baxter as Silvia sings very well, and Mr. Will Gibson as the Wolf is well suited.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Hulme.—Mother Goose is being played twice nightly here by Harry Roxbury and company. Mr. Roxbury plays the part of Mother Goose in his well-known inimitable style; able assistance is given by George Castrey and last week Ted and May Hopkins and company appeared in the pantomime The Babes in the Wood. Miss May Hopkins as Robin Hood is all that could be desired; Miss Ethel Ruinsforth plays Maid Marion prettily, and is the possessor of a good voice; the Brothers Ted and Dick Hopkins, popular Welsh comedians, keep the house in roars of laughter from start to finish, in the rôles of the Wicked Robbers. Speciality songs, dances, &c., are introduced by Messrs. Grant and Kelly, Miss Enid Lane, and Miss Gastella. On Thursday, Friday, and Saturday of this week the musical comedy Lucky 'Liza is announced to be presented by Mr. Dickie Clare's company.

TEMPERANCE HALL.—Paying their annual visit, Messrs. H. and F. Poole are here for this week with their colossal myriorama and variety entertainment. The turns include Mr. Richard Karsby's giant myriophone, an interesting musical novelty of 2000 revolving strings; Mr. Bert Gates, a capable guide and ventriloquist; Harry Dowsett proves a popular comedian; some clever track-cycling is performed by the Geo. French troupe; Learto entertains well with selections on numerous musical instruments, assisted by his clever dog Babe; the Snow Family present a clever skating act, infusing plenty of fun; Miss Phyllis St. Clare sings well; the animated pictures are up to date; and the dioramic effects excellent.

PENTRE.—TIVOLI PALACE AND HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Poole's, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. C. W. Poole; Resident-Manager, Mr. James Gunn.—Topping the bill we have J. W. Rowley, the clever vocal comedian, whose quaint songs are up to date and appeal to the popular favour; Abel and Welsh, in their droll eccentricities, are cordially received; Harry Coates, the singing navvy, has a rich resonant voice, which he utilises to advantage; the Bros. Ford are graceful artists with their singing and dancing numbers; Reg Bolton is responsible for a pretty vein of humour in his comedy scena The Editor's Imp; Gladys and Alber, in their pot-pourri act, introducing singing, dancing, and comedy tumbling, are deservedly applauded; Henry and Blanche, in their speciality act Continental Experiences, are much appreciated; Tate and Tate continue the mirth in The Barmaid and Eccentric Customer. The Tivoliscope shows a series of new and up-to-date films.

WORKMEN'S HALL.—General-Manager, Mr. Charles Charlton.—The Excelsior animated pictures are being largely patronised, some fine films being exhibited. In a series of illustrated songs Mr. Charlton, the manager, shows that he possesses a voice.

PERTH.—PERTH THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. H. Savile; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Aldridge.—Mr. Savile produces his ninth Perth pantomime, Puss in Boots, at the theatre this week. The pantomime has just finished a most successful run at Paisley, and compares very favourably with its excellent predecessors. The scenery and dresses are gorgeous, and the songs are good and well chosen. Miss Dalsie Morell makes an excellent Colin, and receives repeated encores for her songs; Miss Katie Yates is a charming and unaffected Princess Ivy; Miss Florence Lewis makes an attractive and dashing Prince Rudolph; Miss Moyna Hill as Phyllis is dainty; the Misses Mabel Earle and Jessie Jukes are a clever pair, their dancing being excellent; and Miss Topsy Johnson could not be improved upon as Felina, the Fairy Queen. Mr. Walter Kooney, an old favourite here, as King Grabbus is deservedly popular, his humour being excellent; Mr. Harry Karr, also an old favourite, as Dame Shortly causes endless amusement; Mr. Fred C. Fields as Baron Rumphiz works hard and gives a creditable performance; Mr. J. K. Macfarlane is extra good as Sandy Macmuggles, his humour being very pawky; Mr. Glen Alva is to be commended for his Slyboots, King of Cats; and Mr. Arnold Harley gives every satisfaction as Digestus. Misses Edna Evelyn, Becca Stirling, and Lily Bell La Belle Trio deserve much praise for their clever dancing. The pantomime is to run for two weeks.

PETERBOROUGH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. E. Winter; Manager, Mr. H. Watson.—This week we have Mr. George Bryden-Phillips' company in the pantomime Puss in Boots. The company is a very able one, and the story is told with attractive dash and swing. Kitty Vivian makes a dashing Prince Ferdinand, her singing in particular being the feature of the performance; Mavis Hope is a charming Princess; Tom Ashby is a thoroughly amusing Dame; Jack Grist loses nothing in the able hands of Ethel Dunbar; and much merriment is caused by the business of Bernand and Weston as Bill and Sid. Leslie Digby is well placed as King Koko, and Richard Lomas makes a capital Puss in Boots; George Asto does well as Mephisto, and Jeannie Langlois is a charming Fairy. Specialities are given by the Sisters Milburn and Cane, Eugene and Willie, and Richard Lomas.

NEW HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Fred Karno and A. H. Edwards; Manager, Mr. Frank Gallagher.—A good bill is headed by Howard and St. Clair, in their screamingly-funny comedy sketch Do You Want to Buy Any Coke? the Dainty Annie O'Connor is well received in her latest successes; the Great Northern Troupe of International dancers are great favourites; Frank Elliston and company present a comedy episode, entitled My Lady Betty; Captain Kettle is a mysterious comedy Coin King; Dover and Deane are original dancers and vocalists; and Rex Fox introduces his wonderful ventriloquial and musical act on the wire. The Hippodrome pictures are good.

PLYMOUTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr. J. Langdon Lee.—Cinderella has now entered on its last weeks here. The pantomime has proved so great a draw that the executive have found it necessary to put on an additional matinée, making three for the week. We have already commented on the artists who have made the pantomime a success, and may add that the hope is universally expressed that the various principals will be re-engaged next season.

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. Jack Field.—Happy Tom Parker is particularly well described, his quaint sayings and original witticisms quickly putting the audience on thoroughly good terms with themselves; Machnow, the Russian giant, furnishes a "great" turn in more ways than one, his enormous proportions astounding the onlookers; Marco, a young conjurer, does some very smart tricks; and Charles Collette, a thoroughly popular local favourite, renews old triumphs. Alice Hollander supplies some accomplished vocal contributions, in which material assistance is furnished by Kurkkamp, the singing conductor, and the Palascope concludes an excellent entertainment.

PONTEFRACT.—ALEXANDRA THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—General-Manager, Tom Diacoff.—Bert Wickham, an imposing figure, performs prodigious feats of strength. F. V. St. Clair sings songs of his own composition, and his choruses are taken up with vigour; some of his verses appear to be impromptu. Wilson Blackmore is a clever mimic; Howard and Wallace present a clever sketch, Taming a Wife; Violet Blanch sings daintily; W. R. Vowles and Edith Bryan sing of various topics in an exceedingly pretty garden setting; Matt. Wilkinson's Laughter Makers fully justify their description; and G. de Relwyskow, a lightweight wrestler, throws out challenges. The pictures are again a strong feature.

PORTH.—PALACE.—Proprietors, Poole's Theatres Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. C. W. Poole; Manager, Mr. Walter Bynorth.—Topping the bill here we have Heeley and Meely, eccentric comedians, who evoke roars of laughter; Czar's Royal Troupe of Dancers are exceedingly smart; the Five Musical Tritons give an admirable performance; as a juggler Harry Friskey scores a success; the Four Dorians on trapeze and rings give a pleasing turn; Horace White delights with his excellent ventriloquial entertainment; Harry Wenburn, comedian, makes a hit; and the Palascope concludes.

PORTSMOUTH.—ROYAL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Armstrong Bell. The Girls of Gottenberg is here. Mr. Bertie Wright as Max Moddelkopf is the principal fun-maker, and the centre of many laughable complications; Prince Otto is well played by Mr. Tom Thelford, his song "Jericho" being perhaps most successful. In Miss Simeta Marsden Mitzi has a fascinating representative, and Elsa has a pleasing exponent in Miss Maisie North. Miss May Marshall's work as Clementina was very good, and both the Sergeant and Colonel were capitally impersonated by Messrs. Chas. Berkeley and David Miller.

PRINCE'S.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. E. Agate.—The Girl with the Angel Face is being presented here by Messrs. Dottridge, Longden, and James Willard's company. Mr. Fred G. Evison displayed dramatic power as Jasper Death, Mollie Maitland receiving a sympathetic portrayal from Miss Mildred Carr. Angel Leigh was capably embodied by Miss Florrie Green, the dual character of Sir John and Thomas Wentworth being ably undertaken by Mr. H. Naylor Grimson.

KING'S.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Claude Marner; Director of Entertainments, Mr. Thos. Barrasford.—The McBanns show marvellous adroitness in their manipulation of various clubs; Jack Merlin displays dexterity with cards; the Stowe Brothers are smart equilibrists; a very bright turn is that of the Lumars; music has an exponent in Surrie Lindon's entertainers in Monks at Play; a laughter-provoking comedian is Reginald Beauchamp; George Hall whistles powerfully; and a bright little act, entitled The Experiment, is produced by Mrs. Albert Bradshaw's company.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Capt. E. H. Warren-Wright; Secretary, Mr. W. Pratt.—The Bouncing Dillons invite members of the audience to imitate their feat, the efforts of those essaying convulsing the audience; Henry Coutts, Dot Kemp, and company interest those present in a spectacular production, Outflanked; the entertainment is further supported by Cummin and Seaham, the Toreadors, Jas. Stewart, Russell Brandow, and Willard's Mannikins. Mr. A. W. White, J.P., who has been Chairman of the Directors for many years, passed away on Tuesday.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Harris; Assistant-Manager, Colonel F. W. Roberts.—Sam Mayo's quaint vocalisation fascinates his auditors here; a cleverly enacted sketch, The Usurer, is presented by Mr. Sydney Mason, supported by Mr. H. Russell, Miss Theresa Moore, and others; the Seven Perezoffs do a very showy turn; the Sussex yokel is admirably portrayed by Mr. George Grogie; some high kicking is performed by Mr. James Eadie in his musical comedy with Miss Cissie Ramsden; Miss Zena Pana is humorous and musical; and the Earthquake at Messina is vividly reflected by the Bioscope to appropriate music, selected by Mr. J. Howard Shackleton, the talented conductor.

PRESTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, the Executors of the late W. Johnson; Resident-Manager, Mr. Stephen Pritt.—The new musical play Butterflies, under the direction of Mr. Wilfred Cotton, is drawing large houses here this week, and enthusiastic audiences are extending a hearty welcome. The company is undoubtedly a good one all round, and the play is most exquisitely mounted. Miss Louie Brett is most successful as Salome (a model), and Mr. Arthur Edwards is capital as Paul (an art student). Mr. Allan Mudie is also very good as Peter. Mr. James F. Henry as Gilbert (a poet) is clever; as are also Miss Alice Roche and Miss Gladys Dare as Lalaye and Myria respectively. Mr. Edwin Wynne is delightfully funny as Christopher Podmore (a Colonial broker), and, together with Mr. Johnnie Wilkinson as Yarker, a chauffeur (whose song, "He'd never been upon a farm before," brought down the house), keep the house in a roar with their excellent comedy; Miss Lilian Wesson as Elsie Podmore and Miss Ada Davidson as Nora Podmore are also to be congratulated; Mr. Harrison Brockbank, who enacts the part of Widgery Blake ("Puck"), is good, and, of course, renders the songs allotted to him with his usual good style and effect, which, needless to say, meets with much appreciation; Mr. Cyril Bidduiph is a successful Max Riadore; Miss Annie Hcenan as Rhodante ("the Witch") is very much to the front throughout, and scores heavily, both her singing and acting coming in for a full share of well-merited applause; in Act III. Miss Millie Gordon is loudly encored for her very graceful classical dance (of the "Salome" order), "La Naissance du Papillon." The chorus, which is exceptionally strong, adds much to the success of the performance, which goes with a swing, with never a dull moment from rise to fall of the curtain. The excellent augmented orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Pierre de Reeder, deserves special mention.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Resident-Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank E. Burdett.—A most excellent bill of fare is provided here this week. At the top is Miss Marie Jones, who, in her duologue The Way to Win a Bet, assisted by Mr. Ernest Munro, proves herself to be a most versatile quick-change artist, presenting six distinct characters in a remarkably short space of time; her act meets with much applause. The Godfreys (Didie and Kate) have a capital and original comedy-sketch, The Slavey and the Coon, and prove themselves accomplished performers on several musical instruments; Jim Cheetham is a decidedly clever boy whistler and bird mimic; Carl and Mary Ohm, with their animal circus, are an excellent turn, and the manner in which their ponies, dogs, monkeys, and bears go through their performance reflects much credit on their trainers; Burns and Bentley, American vaudeville artists, are a duo of clever dancers; Ben Harris and his famous Nippers, in their refined comedy boxing speciality A Promising Pupil, provide much amusement, which is considerably enhanced by a competition for local youths, each of whom is placed in a barrel a yard apart, the competitor knocking his opponent over the most times in three rounds being adjudged the winner. This turn creates roars of laughter. Another excellent turn is provided by Leonard Charburn's troupe of "young stars," twelve most accomplished children, some of whom possess really phenomenal voices, and are heard to great advantage in a pretty scena, "A Picnic up the River." Yorkshire Tom gives a clever imitation of various animals in the farmyard and various instruments and machinery; a very clever lightning artist is Valvere, who concludes with a clever marine sketch, entitled "A Naval Bombardment," with some most novel effects. A Mother's Fault, on the bioscope, concludes a programme which should suit the most fastidious.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Sawyer and Woodruff.—Mrs. F. Bateman and George Conquest's company, in the well-known drama The Crimes of Paris, is here this week. Mr. H. J. Walton is good as Pierre Telfort; Mr. Mayor Cooke displays most refined villainy as Viscount de Vismes; and is most ably supported by Mr. G. Conquest, jun., Mr. Geo. Harvey, and Mr. J. E. Abbot, who, as the three thieves, the Dummy, the Dandy, and the Player, are excellent. Mr. Kendrew Milson is most efficient as Jules Martel, and proves himself an actor of no mean order; Miss Vera Clavering Craig as Jacques Martel, his child, is clever; and Miss Enid Edoni as Angela Martel (his wife) meets with much success. Pepin Cardel is portrayed in a most clever manner by Mr. Clavering Craig, who is most versatile in his many rôles; Mr. Roy Hylton displays much humour in his character of the Cockney clerk. Joshua Johnson, and is well supported by Miss Carrie Jones, who, as Charlotte (his wife), is excellent and fully deserves the applause she receives. Miss Flora Hastings as La Belle Helene deserves commendation; as do also Miss Christine Bickerstaffe as Lizette and Miss H. Dudley Davis as the widow Nicole. Mr. Harry Foster as the newspaper seller, Mr. J. J. Sims as De Savigny, and Mr. H. Lyons as Hercule are each most capable. The piece is capitally mounted, and appears much to the taste of the audiences of this theatre.

RADCLIFFE.—GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Geo. T. Santé; Acting-Manager, Mr. Jas. Boothman.—Mr. Harry Foxwell's company is paying a return visit with A Broken Heart. Mrs. Harry Foxwell takes the part of Mary Barnard with much feeling; Miss Emma Rainbow scores as Mrs. Barnard; Miss Nancy Mitchell is an acceptable Sally; Miss Mabel Kelland is quite satisfactory as Miss Grace Fanshawe; Mr. J. Moreton Williams makes a gentlemanly Stephen Raylton; and Mr. Jerrold Kennedy is good as John Barnard. Mr. Edward Rawlinson deserves a word as Gash Gills, and Mr. Vivian Charles is seen to advantage as the Rev. Mr. Staunton. Mr. T. Armitage as Tony Tibbets causes hilarity.

RAMSGATE.—ROYAL PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Lord George Sanger; Lessee, Mr. Ernest Mansell; Business Representative (for Mr. Mansell), Mr. Bert Atkinson.—Alfred West's animated picture entertainment, Life in Our Navy and Army, has attracted large and enthusiastic crowds. Up-to-date programmes have been provided, practically every phase in the life and work of the offensive and defensive services afloat and ashore being depicted. In addition there have been unique views of the great earthquake in Italy, specially photographed for West's production. On Sunday evening last a fine sacred concert was given at the Royal Palace. Selections were rendered by the full string band of the 21st (Empress of India's) Lancers, and there were also series of animated pictures.

RAWTENSTALL.—GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Fred Granville; General-Business-Manager, Mr. A. R. Feather.—A powerful attraction is provided this week in Mr. Douglas Bruce's excellent company in The Girl Who Lost Her Character, which was received here with enthusiastic applause by a good house on Monday. As Molly Vernon Miss Doris Brookes gave a convincing impersonation delightful to witness, whilst Miss Cherry Veheyne was a sweet and dainty Rose Seymour, acting with grace and artistic skill; Miss Lydia Mannington made an excellent Marian Franklyn, and Miss Mamie Thorpe a capital Isabella Jones, her portrayal being full of life and humour; as Jack England Mr. Harold Macartney gave a fine portraiture; Mr. George Mitchell was capitally placed as James Sutton; and as the Rev. Robert Everton Mr. Edward McLean gave a thoroughly sympathetic and clever delineation. Mr. George H. Asquin was most successful as Dick Punch, his rendering arousing continuous laughter; Mr. Richard Ferris was exceedingly good as Captain Geoffrey Caversham, and Mr. Augustus Bowerman was also seen to advantage as Detective Weathersby. The remaining characters were ably sustained, and the staging was elaborate.

READING.—ROYAL COUNTY THEATRE.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Benton.—The Fatal Wedding is being played here this week. Miss Ethel Kay gives an excellent impersonation of the character of the heroine, Mabel Wilson; Mr. Cecil A. Melton takes the part of Howard Wilson in a refined and artistic manner; Miss Elaine Vanbrugh acts very powerfully as the heartless adventuress Cora Williams, and her accomplice Robert Curtis is well represented by Mr. Percy Ballard. Miss Lulu Wohlmann is highly successful in the part of the Little Mother; Mr. Harry M. Vernon as the French Butler and Miss Ethel Serjeant as an Irish cook are both very diverting; Mr. Frank Ashby and Mr. Cyril Melton also give good impersonations. The scene in which a party of children appear is exceedingly well received, and the clever performances of the juvenile artists are much appreciated.

THE PALACE.—Managing Director, Mr. G. Howard Watson; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. E. Draco.—This week Gravetta and Parr introduce a novel turn in the shape of clay-modelling and sand-pictures, which are very artistically produced; Miss Ethel Walker's songs at the piano, à la Margaret Cooper) are well appreciated; the Athlones give a good gymnastic display, their feats of strength being performed with great ease and skill; Fred Herbert is a clever up-to-date vocalist; Max Gruber's elephant, horse, and pony are exceedingly well trained, and go through an effective performance, Herr Gruber being assisted by Miss Adelina; Nina St. Elmo is a pleasing comedienne; the Seven Merry Marvels, vocalists and eccentric instrumentalists, give a good musical turn; George Antill is a weird and eccentric comedian; the Breton Troupe of Pantomimists appear in a sketch entitled The Tramps' Picnic, in which they introduce some amusing knockabout business; and some good pictures are shown on the Bioscope.

ROCHDALE.—PUBLIC HALL.—Proprietor, Mr. T. B. Field.—Mr. Walter Melville's new play, The Soldier's Wedding, was produced here on the 22nd and 23rd by Miss Inez Howard's company, under the direction of Mr. Henry Chattell. The drama was well played throughout, the various artists being especially well up in their respective parts. Mr. Charles A. Baker as Jack Brown, Mr. H. C. Lanceley as Colonel James Graham, Miss May Rosine as Lizzie Walker, are specially worthy of notice. The whole of the company work exceedingly well, consequently the production is a big success.

ROCHDALE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, the Northern Theatres Co., Limited; Managing Director, Mr. W. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Resident-Manager, Mr. S. Burton.—The pantomime Cinderella is the attraction here. It is prettily staged, and some capital singing and dancing are presented. Miss Madge Daly makes a dashing Prince Charming; Miss Jessica Brooke is a winsome Cinderella; the Sisters Florence score with their dancing; Miss Ida Scott makes a capital Fairy Godmother; roars of laughter are created by Mr. Harry C. Momber as Sprightly; Mr. Eric Farr, Mr. Wm. Doust, and Mr. Erne Chester, composing the Tally Ho Trio, contribute some excellent and humorous vocalism; and specialities are introduced by Miss May Maddison, the Rag Time Girl; and the Four Lancashire Roses, lady dancers.

EMPIRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Thomas Hargreaves; General-Manager, Mr. Frank Hargreaves.—Lennie and Hast top the bill here with a vocal scena, The Sea Nymph; Menotti submits a clever performance on a flying wire; the De Breans contribute a capital Japanese entertainment; Dan Feely, comedian; Frank Whiteley, comedian and dancer; Primavesi, juggler; Ellis and Watts, comedians and dancers; and the Empire Bioscope complete the programme. Thora, ventriloquist, was unable through illness to appear.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, the Jackson Family; Business-Manager, Mr. Jno. Jackson; Resident-Manager, Mr. James Jackson, sen.—The Gothams, humorous vocalists; the Kurios, clever pantomimists; Sara Roseburg, heartily appreciated in Eaur Folks Party; Falco and Edie, in a Japanese Ju-Jitsu dancing act; Lester and Moure, eccentric comedy act; the Three Sisters Lee, acrobats, vocalists, and dancers; Irve Hayman and company, in Christmas Eve; Little May Loftus, trick dancer; and the Hippodrome pictures are the attractions here.

ROTHERHAM.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. Holbery Hardy.—Mr. Frederick Melville's company is here, for the first time, with Her Road to Ruin. Mr. Henry Wolston is a manly Frank Temple; Mr. Duncan Jarrow is seen to advantage as Tom Wells; Mr. Alex Bradley gives a clever portrayal of Philip Hardy; and Mr. William Lynton scores as Mr. Derwent. Mr. C. H. Brooke is deserving of mention as Dicky Gerald, and Inspector Homewood is in the capable hands of Mr. William Arnold; Mr. Dane Clarke does well as the Bishop, and Mr. V. R. C. Moore is effective as Charles Cholmondeley. Miss Alice Bowes plays capably as May Willoughby; Miss Marie Wright is smart as Jennie Crackling; Miss Nellie Bonser essays the triple rôles of Mary Dawson, Marie de Vanne, and 'Orrible Mary, in each of which she is highly effective; and Miss Beatrice Edwards is pleasing and sympathetic in the part of Jess Willoughby.

HIPPODROME, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. T. Edgar Fox; Resident-Manager, Mr. Claude Shayler.—Corbin's dogs head the bill, and are quite deserving the pride of place; the Three Calbas give a fine acrobatic turn; the Society Quartette are responsible for a clever song and dance turn; and the Two Kays give a pleasing scena, The Cuckoo. "Estrella" is responsible for some brilliant International and barefoot dances. Maude Ellison and company present an amusing farce, Dobson's Day Out; Miss Becky Elliston is sprightly as Fanny, and Miss Dorothy Elliston is very smart as Rosa. Ara, Zebra, and Voira present an interesting turn, illustrating Indian pastimes; and the Hipposcope is brought into use for the production of some excellent films.

SALFORD.—PRINCE OF WALES'S.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. E. B. Goulden; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harold Goulden.—Love Rules the World, the domestic drama by T. G. Bailey, drew a good house on Monday, when Mr. Sidney Rennef gave an excellent portrayal of Jim Dixey. As the unfortunate mother Maud Carruthers Miss Lillian Herries did excellent work; Harold Kingston was well played by Mr. Richard Vane; Mr. Stephen Langton as Stephen Blight and Miss Grace Jones as Flo Morton, satisfactorily sustained those villainous characters; much fun was contributed, too, by Mr. Fred Elvin as Billy Binks and Miss Kitty Russell as Kitty Snowdrop.

REGENT THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Turner; Manager, Mr. Herbert Raymond; Secretary, Mr. J. C. Patterson.—Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Levy and Mr. J. E. Cardwell presented to a full house their comic pantomime The House that Jack Built. Miss Florrie Taylor is a lively Jack; and a charming representative of Jill is found in Miss Evelyn Major. Old Aunt Purdy is a comical character in the hands of Mr. H. Hillerby; Wee Gladys Wyse is very clever as Wee McGregor; Mr. W. MacNorton as Squire Bounce, Doyle and Gibson as the Broker's Men, Paddy Sloan as Harold, and Stanley Jefferson as Percy, also keep the fun to the fore. Miss H. Jones (Colin), Miss J. Marsden (Gretchen), Miss P. Blanchard (Tommy Tucker), Miss Olive Woodbridge (Dolly Dimple), Miss W. Adamson (Bella Blot), Miss Annie Brumby (Maid Marian), Miss Molly Johnson (Polly Pickle), Miss G. Whalley, Miss E. Whalley, and the other members do well. There are charming dances and pretty costumes. The scenery by Phil V. Davis and F. Le Maistre is very pretty. Specialities by Doyle and Gibson, the "Forget-me-not" Quartette of dancers, Horace Hillerby, Florrie Edwards, and Wee Gladys Wyse were much applauded.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; General-Manager, Mr. H. Winstanley; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. Geo. F. Slatter.—The romantic play Who is She? was presented on Monday to a good house by Mr. E. Hill-Mitchelson's company. As the hero Prince Vladimir Mr. Graham Woods is excellent; the cowardly Prince Bora is boldly presented by Mr. Horace Booth; Miss Violet Carlyle carefully plays the title-rôle with skill; Mr. Alfred Grenville well portrays Sergeant Metroff; much fun is caused by Mr. Edward Swinton as Chang-Tee, Mr. Geo. Scully as Paul, and Miss Mary Collier as Saretta; the little King is charmingly played by Miss Mabel Ronald; Miss Alice Barber gives a good representation of Countess Ladori; good work is done by Miss Marie Robson as Keta; and Mr. Sinclair Holden cleverly portrays Captain Arthur Gower.

OPERA HOUSE AND ASSEMBLY ROOMS, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Turner; General-Manager, Mr. Herbert Raymond; Manager, Mr. E. Shepherd.—Mr. Tom Sherlock again scores with his singing the illustrated song, "I'd sacrifice all for you." This week's films include New Century Thieves, Custom House Officer's Fiancée, Four Sweethearts, A Fright in a Village, Voice from the Dead, A Trip in Rhodesia, An Improvised Consultation, Bad Pinch of Snuff, Unlucky Jim, Love on a Farm, &c.

NEW CENTRAL HALL (Blackfriars-road).—Proprietors, Messrs. Whiteley and Weiker; Manager, Mr. Fred Sharp.—Twice nightly to good houses the following, among other animated pictures, appear to be much appreciated: Rifle Bill, A Champion House Dog, The Aspirator, Back from the Grave, Benvenuto Cellini, &c.

SEAHAM HARBOUR.—NEW ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. A. C. Harrison.—Cinderella is being presented here by Messrs. Pardoe and Miss Lottie Holland's combination. Miss Lottie Holland appears as Prince Charming, a rôle which she fills most effectively. Her singing is a feature of the production. The part of Cinderella is presented by Miss Nellie Rose in charming style; as Princess Rosala Miss Beattie Howard wins praise; and a pleasing Dandini is contributed by Miss Roand Dora. Miss Cissy Loveday as the Fairy acquits herself with credit, and is a vocalist of repute. Comedy is a strong element, foremost in the number being Mr. George Hyam as Scoot, who keeps the house in continual good humour. The sisters, Eva and Maud, find acceptance as played by Messrs. N. and J. Dench; Mr. G. Dorma is a very successful Baron; Blobbs and Blabbs, as embodied by Alf. Grady and Mike Hastings, are a humorous pair and smart dancers; Father Time is played with skill by Mr. Tom Griffitt, a capital vocalist. The marvellous Pardoes submit clever specialities in the form of trapeze and acrobatic display; Miss Holland scored a success with the scena "Ayesha"; the Edingale Trio are popular dancers. The scenery is admirable and the dresses beautiful, whilst the chorus is capable.

SHEFFIELD.—LYCEUM THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. J. E. B. Beaumont.—Mr. Martin Harvey and his company are appearing in a round of romantic dramas this week. There was a crowded house, at raised prices, on Monday, when the favourite actor received an enthusiastic greeting on his first entrance in the picturesque seventeenth-century play The Breed of the Treshams. Mr. Harvey was recalled again and again, and at the finish he was compelled to respond to the continued cries of "Speech." Miss de Silva, Miss Madge Fabian, Mr. Charles Cameron, Mr. A. E. Raynor, Mr. Charles Glenny, Mr. Hewland, Mr. Muir, Mr. Craske, and that trusty and respected veteran Mr. Frederick Wright, all did sound work. The Corsican Brothers, with Mr. Harvey in the dual rôle of Louis and Fabian de Franchi, thrilled a big audience on Wednesday, and the performance of the famous play was as near perfection as possible. For Friday and Saturday The Only Way was billed. Mr. Martin Harvey has again met with a most generous and affectionate reception from the Sheffield public.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager, Mr. J. E. B. Beaumont; Assistant-Manager, Mr. A. Henfrey-Aldred.—The beautiful spectacle Goody-Two-Shoes continues to draw large and delighted audiences, and the lovely ballets and comic business are much applauded.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. William D. Forsdike; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. W. Ramsay.—The brilliantly staged annual Robinson Crusoe is still doing Boxing-night business, though the run here soon comes to an end on account of Messrs. Dottridge and Longden's previously-made arrangements.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE.—The Moss' Empires Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Alan D. Dunbar.—L'Incognita, the masked vocalist, is the star this week, and on Monday she sang three songs, which were received with enthusiastic applause; Hermann Melot is a great favourite, and his smart and amusing conjuring tricks are as popular as on his former visits here. The programme also includes known artists: Mr. W. J. Ashcroft, the original "Muldoon"; the Delevines, burlesque artists and grotesque dancers; Rossi and Lewis, a diverting pair of American entertainers; Mr. Henry Carlton's company in a comic sketch; Miss Nelly Le Breton in illustrated songs and Dutch business; Captain Woodward's well-trained sealions; and the Bioscope, with pictures of Italian cavalry practice.

THE HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; Resident-Manager, Mr. P. D. Elbourne.—A good all-round company is here, the performers being the talented Sandow Girls; Mr. Russell Carr, ventriloquist; Mr. Jose, a clever protean comedian; the Ongars, extraordinary Continental dancers; Mr. Mayme Cannon; the Hersleb Brothers, Wild, Willie, and West, in the screaming pantomimic and knockabout act The Bouncing Nawvies; and the Columbia Trio, in a mélange of songs, concerted pieces, and burlesque business. The Barrascope, with artistic films, concludes.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. A. W. Turpin.—A selection of pictures by the Raymond Bio-Tableaux Co. and illustrated songs are pleasing the patrons of this cosy theatre.

MONTGOMERY HALL.—Manager, Mr. Motters Law.—The Sheffield Photo Co.'s fine animated pictures are still giving delight to large audiences.

CENTRAL THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. Jasper Redfern and Co., Ltd.—Vaudeville and photography continue to share the honours nightly.

PAVILION.—Manager, Mr. Peech.—Sheffield's latest picture theatre continues to do excellent business.

SURREY PALACE.—Manager, Mr. Frank Howson.—The old-time music-hall entertainment given here is very popular.

SHREWSBURY.—THEATRE ROYAL AND HIPPODROME.—Lessee and Director, Mr. W. Yates Gregory; General-Manager, Mr. Thos. Baugh.—Mr. Wentworth Croke's talented company were here the first three nights of this week with Hall Caine's exciting drama The Prodigal Son, splendidly mounted and finely enacted throughout. Mr. Herbert Franklyn performed in an exceedingly capable manner the part of Stephen Magnussun; Miss Ethel Lodge as Anna, his wife, played her part admirably; Mr. George Edwin Clive acted with power and conspicuous success in the rôle of Oscar Stephensson; Mr. T. W. Dunscombe as the taciturn Magnus Stephensson merited high encomiums; Mr. Arthur E. Holland acted in a most creditable fashion the part of Oscar Neilson; Miss Chrissie Dunbar may be deservedly complimented upon her spirited and capable acting as Helga Neilson; Miss Dora Gregory made an attractive and pleasing Elin; Miss Marie Tennant was an accomplished Margaret Neilson; Mr. Geo. Aldwin in the character part of Eric Arnusson was deserving of high praise; and numerous minor characters were excellently depicted.

SMETHWICK.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. C. Barnard; Manager, Mr. E. Hewitson.—Well-filled houses are witnessing the presentation of the Lyceum version of Hall Caine's play The Christian by Mr. Wentworth Croke's company, of which intelligent performances are being given. Miss Daisy Scudamore makes an admirable Glory; a capable representative of John Storm is found in Mr. Roy Redgrave; Mr. Wilfred Voy does good work as Horatio Drake; Lord Robert Ure is in the able hands of Mr. Herbert Hewetson; Father Lamplugh and Archdeacon Wealthy are well represented by Mr. Thomas Barry and Mr. John J. Hooker; Miss Cora Deane ably portrays Polly Love; Miss Molly Marsden gives a meritorious performance as Mrs. Callandor; Miss Muriel Marsden acts capitally as Black Meg; and Miss Kitty Symons makes the most of her small part as Lady Robert Ure.

SOUTHEND-ON-SEA.—EMPIRE THEATRE.—Empire Theatre Co., Ltd.; Managing Directors, Messrs. Geo. Conquest and Richard H. Nerney; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. Lingham Power.—Mr. Edward Graham-Falcon's company is here in Cinderella. Miss Norah Neville plays the title-rôle with both charm and naturalness; Miss Frankie Manners as Prince Elegant also wins popularity; Miss Dot Carey is well suited as Dandini; Mr. Wentworth Fane makes an effective character of Baron Stoney; and the Baron's daughters have droll and capable exponents in Messrs. Albert Evremond and Claude Merton. Mr. George Whillis adds to the good fun as Billy Buttons; Messrs. Ben Walters and Fred Wallace as the Baron's retainers and Mr. Will Telford as the Cat give every satisfaction; and the immortals are well represented by Miss Ethel Tremaine, Miss May Baskerville, and Mr. Fred. Parsons as the Demon. Speciality dances by the Sisters Bentley, Miss Minnie Dorina, and Miss Olivia Rae demand well-earned repetitions.

SOUTHPORT.—OPERA HOUSE WINTER GARDENS.—Proprietors, The Southport Opera House and Winter Gardens Co., Ltd.; Secretary and General-Manager, Mr. R. Singleton.—Mr. Percy Hutchison's company opened here on Monday in Brewster's Millions. The play was exceptionally well staged and enacted, the realistic rolling yacht scene being especially commended. Mr. Percy Hutchison was highly successful in the rôle of Monty Brewster, which he depicted in a natural and convincing manner, that left nothing to be desired; the part of Margaret Grey was charmingly and piquantly portrayed by Miss Cicely Stuckey; Miss Lilias Earle was very attractive and artistic as Mrs. Dan de Mille; Mr. Aubrey Mather enacted the character of the irrascible Scottish servant Joseph McLeod very cleverly; Miss Frances Davie was very amusing and commendable as Janice Armstrong. Other praiseworthy character sketches were supplied by Mr. Cyril Rawdon as Charlie Harrison, Mr. A. Andrews (Col. Drew), Mr. Henry Hampson (Archie Golding), Mr. Douglas Greet, Miss Eva Stuart, and Miss Sybil Walsh.

SOUTH SHIELDS.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. John and Fred Coulson.—The Bondman is being played to good houses by Mr. Wentworth Croke's No. 1 company. Mr. R. Scrope Quentin interprets Jason in manly and breezy style; Michael Sunlocks is feelingly and impressively delineated by Mr. W. Henry Hargreaves; Miss Georgina Wynter displays great emotion and dramatic instinct as Greeba; Miss Madge Lanerton gives a good portrayal of Mrs. Fairbrother; Mr. W. H. Rotherham delights the audience as the Grandfather in the first and second act and as Father Ferrati in the third and fourth act. The scenery crowded houses. Mr. Fred Terriss, Mr. Ernest Wingfield, and Miss Lilian Beaumont ably sustain the leading parts. Payne's Bio-photoscope concludes with up-to-date films.

STOKE-ON-TRENT.—THE HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; General-Manager, Mr. H. F. Miller; Assistant-Manager, Mr. H. Moroney.—The House of Terror, a sketch of the thrilling and dramatic order, is presented by Miss Beaumont Collins and company. All the characters are exceptionally well played. Of quite an opposite order is the laughable skit A Bit Too Clever, submitted by Miss Renée Glendower and company. It is very reminiscent of a well-known statue play, and most amusing situations are depicted in the few minutes it holds sway. Lazern presents some smart sleight-of-hand tricks; the Rangers are clever cyclists; the Paolias appear in a graceful athletic act; and others contributing are Connie Mascot, Albert St. Clair, and Chas. Banks and his dog.

SUNDERLAND.—KING'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. S. F. Davidson; General-Manager, Mr. Alexander Telford; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Sydney Reach.—Sinbad the Sailor has entered upon the last week of its run here, having enjoyed unqualified success. From start to finish the performance goes with a swing, and the principals without exception do their work in a manner that earns almost continuous rounds of applause. As the principal boy, Miss Jessie Wilton adds to her reputation each evening, while the principal girl, Miss Christine Roy, is a great favourite, her charming style and sweet voice gaining admiration. Miss Sissie Brand, the second boy, never fails to please with her dashing manner and cleverly-rendered songs; Miss Madeline Rossiter as Princess Zorilda has retained her popularity all through the run for her vocal abilities, and clever and graceful dancing; Miss Roberta Evensden is a capital Fairy Queen, and is well applauded for her singing. The humorists also continue to hold their own, Mr. Will Johnson contributing in no small measure to the fun as the Dame. Mr. Frank Lynne also helps greatly to keep things alive in the humorous character of Binbad, and Messrs. Walton and Lester create roars of laughter with their absurd illusions in the nursery scene. Mr. Fred Beck is a capable Captain Bowline, and Mr. J. A. Howitt portrays the Old Man of the Sea in capital style. Miss Hope Trevelyan continues to receive unbounded applause for her charming singing, as also does Little Nellie Denver for her speciality singing and dancing.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. R. Thornton; Manager, Mr. Harry Esden; Assistant-Manager, Mr. George Dunn.—The management have this week decided to give their patrons a change from the usual fare to the lighter form of amusement in the pantomime Robinson Crusoe, and, judging from the thronged houses, it is a very acceptable change. The company is Mr. Chas. Elderton's, and the principals all act their parts with great vigour. Miss Rosie Re-vell takes the title-rôle, and by reason of her personal charm and vocal ability makes herself a warm favourite. Polly Perkins, Robinson Crusoe's sweetheart, has a delightful exponent in Miss Gertie Gavagan. The singing of these two ladies is worthy of special note. The bright and vivacious style of Miss Lena Lewis (Captain Kettle) and Miss Bartenelli (Dolly Dimple) is greatly admired. Miss Dolly Cusdin makes a good impression as Fairy Sunbeam, as also does Mr. Elam Poward as King Neptune. Miss Nellie Stuart does well as Princess Popsy Prettything; Mr. James Grant makes an excellent Dame, and Mr. Fred Boulton (Captain Atkins) plays the bold, bad buccaneer very well; Mr. Teddy Worth is a capable juvenile with a laugh entirely his own; Messrs. Will and Fred Elton, a humorous pair, do some clever horizontal bar and statuary work; and Miss Olive Sara is very entertaining in a musical mélange.

EMPIRE THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Harry Esden.—Heading an excellent bill this week is Fred Earle, comedian, whose humorous songs win him great favour; the Gems, under the direction of Mr. Wallace Kennedy, provide an original and lively mélange of singing and dancing; the production of the Ten Zerbinis is musical and spectacular, one of the most popular items being a step-dance on a sheet of polished steel, the performer being shod with ice skates; That Brute Simmons is a good comedietta, presented by Mr. F. W. Purcell's company; Frank Sylvio is an accomplished juggler, who introduces humorous touches; Jeannie Mackay shows much talent as a soprano singer; Dacey and Lewis appear in a capital comedy act; and Odeyne Spark, comedienne and dancer, and Little Vio Lette, juvenile male impersonator, both gave excellent turns.

PALACE THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Henry N. Phillips; Resident-Manager, Mr. Fred J. Reece.—A fine programme of pictures is unfolded before large and appreciative audiences. The Story of Psyche, which heads the bill, is a lavishly-coloured film, and depicts a love-story which is greatly admired. Beauty Spots of Devon and The Land of the Midnight Sun display some beautiful scenery. There were many other capital films.

AVENUE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Richard Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Harry Esden; Assistant-Manager, Mr. R. F. Edwards.—This theatre is being re-opened this week as a picture hall, with a capital collection of films, most noticeable being The Adventures of Monte Cristo and Towards the North Pole. A diversion is created by the chronophonic interpretation of "I Fear no Foe" song. Miss Nellie Ross sings "Down the Vale" in excellent style.

SWANSEA.—THE GRAND.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. E. Oswald Brooks; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Page.—Mr. Arthur Bourchier and company produced here on Monday Samson, by Henry Bernstein. A full report appears on another page.

THE STAR.—Manager, Mr. William Coutts; Assistant-Manager, Mr. S. J. Powell.—Mrs. Sam Duckworth's company is warmly received at the Star, where they are playing The Conscience of a Judge. Mr. Stanley Bedwell as the Judge enacts a difficult rôle cleverly, and Miss Eva Moss as Jessica is excellent throughout. Horation Winters, a really funny character, is finely played by Mr. Frank Eden. Frank Eaglewood is a realistic villain as Sir Edward Merdin.

EMPIRES, LTD.—Manager, Mr. P. C. Rowe; Assistant-Manager, Mr. W. H. Lennon.—Fred Karno's troupe in The G.P.O. head a good bill, and with Fred Kitchen appearing as Perkins the fun is fast and furious. Hebrew comedy is Howell and Scott's forte, and with clever patter and dancing they provide good entertainment. Maude A. Edwards is an accomplished ventriloquist; Eddie Hayes and Mona Wynne are responsible for good singing and really extraordinary dancing; and Barrington does effective trick piano-playing. Takio, a Japanese mimic, is first class, and Harry Lawson's eccentricities are always amusing. The Bioscope pictures are excellent.

THE PALACE.—Manager, Mr. William Coutts; Assistant-Manager, Mr. S. J. Powell. Among an excellent series of pictures this week the chief is A Cowboy's Baby. Miss Nora Nail and Mr. Tom Thomas, both of whom are in excellent voice, provided the vocal items.

SWINDON.—EMPIRE THEATRE.—Proprietors, The Wiltshire Entertainments Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Alfred Manners.—Mr. J. W. Broughton's Cinderella is proving a great attraction here this week. Miss Maude Mortimer makes a capital principal boy, and her songs are loudly applauded. Cinderella could not be in better hands than those of Miss Connie Leon, whose daintiness and charm pleases all. Baron Harduppe is successfully portrayed by Mr. Stanley Vandyke, and Mr. W. T. Thompson causes no end of fun as Buttons; Miss Edith Barwell as Ripples and Miss Annie Cohen as Dimples, the ugly sisters, are irresistible; Dandini is smartly taken by Miss Minnie Miriam, whilst Mlle. de Velin makes an imposing Fairy Progress; Father Time is ably handled by Mr. George Belrose, who possesses a fine voice; Messrs. Victor and Lewis as the Broker's Men and the Sisters Edwards as Colin and Rose, together with the many smaller characters, all add to the completeness of the performance. The chorus and dancers are particularly good, and the staging and dresses deserve mention.

MECHANICS' INSTITUTION.—Secretary, Mr. H. J. Southwell.—The pantomime Sinbad the Sailor is being presented at the above this week by Mr. John A. Thomson's company.

CORN EXCHANGE.—Secretary, Mr. W. H. Shepherd.—Mr. Ernest Bodkin's company, in The Thief, is billed here for Tuesday and Wednesday.

TORQUAY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Managing-Director, Mr. W. H. Mortimer; Secretary, Mr. Arthur Pearse.—Mr. Wentworth Croke's company is playing The Prodigal Son here this week. Mr. Hugh Montgomery as Magnus Stephenson gives a powerful delineation; an equally successful impersonation of Oscar is given by Mr. Gordon Macintosh; Miss Valerie Cresspin makes a pathetic Thora; Miss Mildred Cottell is a fascinating Helga; Mr. Charles A. Maynard also does well as Neils Filsen. In the rôles of Stephen Magnusun and Anna his wife respectively Mr. Bellenden Clarke and Miss Barbara Gott are both seen to advantage; and Mr. Philip Renouf is a typical Oscar Neilson. Mr. Geo. W. Hewetson is very good as the Pastor.

TUNBRIDGE WELLS.—OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee, Mr. Welton Dale; Manager, Mr. C. Hoskins.—Mr. Mouillot's pantomime Robinson Crusoe is having a successful week's season here. Miss Mina Green, who is the possessor of an excellent voice, scores a great success in the title-rôle, as does Miss Daisy May as Polly; Mr. Oliver Round is most amusing as the Dame; and Mr. Chas. Resti as Friday; while some capital comedy is forthcoming from Mr. Walter Rousby as Billy Crusoe; Mr. Ernest Sefton as Bill Atkins, Mr. F. Bowes as Bumper, and Mr. Macliver as the Cannibal King. Miss Mary Hope as the Princess Moonshine, Miss Elsie Victor as Picalilli, and Miss Nellie Rousby as Jenny all deserve special mention; while the specialities include the Feodora Quartette of dancers and Viviania and company in The Toy-shop; while Mr. Chas. Resti furnishes some comical conjuring.

TYLDESLEY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. W. Brierley.—Mr. T. Edward Ward's company is being well received here in Second to None. Mr. Leonard Williams gives a manly and interesting impersonation of Harry Wilding; the unprincipled Captain Philip Mannering has an able exponent in Mr. Frederick F. Lloyd; Mr. Charles Halling makes a courageous and upright Frank Wilding; and Mr. C. W. Spencer appears to advantage as Sir Reginald Greystone. Sergeant Jack Horseman is cleverly portrayed by Mr. J. G. Maine; Mr. F. R. Gwyn-Richardson plays Archie Ballater well; Nell Greystone receives a sweet and sympathetic rendering at the hands of Miss Ward; Miss Grace Harlington is a commendable Mary Greystone. The comedy of the piece is well sustained by Mr. Geo. Davies (Joe Raggles), Mr. H. Macauley (Private Flutter), and Miss Carrie Yandell (Norah).

WAKEFIELD.—OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Sherwood and Co.—Messrs. Alfred Paumier and Walter Howard's company is making a first appearance here in The Prince and the Beggar Maid. The piece is admirably staged, and is played by a strong and highly efficient company. The parts of the three princes, Hildred, Michael, and Olaf, are ably filled by Mr. Alfred Brandon, Mr. Melville Bickford, and Mr. Ernest Cox, their fine efforts winning much praise. Mr. H. Burton is excellent as the dumb man Nathan; Mr. Kenneth Black does full justice as the Bishop of Illyria; Mr. Robert Noble is seen to advantage as Captain Hector; and Mr. J. H. Vyvyan is successful as Lieut. Karl Stromberg. Miss Ethel Bracewell acts charmingly as the Princess of Illyria; Miss Jessica Black is winsome and vivacious as Viola; and Miss Gertrude Branscombe displays great charm and wins sympathy in her clever delineation as Camiola.

HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. Sydney Tolfree.—Mr. Harry Tate's No. 1 company in the amusing sketch Fishing is the principal attraction, and this alone means hearty merriment; the Itrams are clever in a pot-pourri act; Alfred Kroston, conjurer, provides a smart turn; Miss May Summer, comedienne, does well; Renson and Waite, comedy couple, prove popular; Palette, and his dog, acheive a success in his sketch A Busy Time in the Studio; and Miss Edie Coolville, vocalist, delights.

WALSALL.—GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietors, The Walsall Theatres Co., Ltd.; General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. W. H. Westwood.—Mr. Arthur Carlton's pantomime company, in Aladdin, commenced here on Monday. Mr. Fred Cary as Abanazar adds greatly to the success of the pantomime; as Aladdin Miss Lallah Davis proves very successful; Miss Hedda Harlemann as Badroulbadour is charming and clever; the Bros. Harrison as Sloppa and Koppa create much amusement; the Sisters Hampell as Pekoe and Nicee are attractive; Mr. Tony Freedman as Washee is well suited to the part.

HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—At this hall Miss Alexandra Dagmar tops the bill, and, putting it modestly, she deserves her position. She is best described as "a real artist," and very versatile. The Brothers Ashley, in a boxing sketch, go very well; and the Sisters Urma are good gymnasts. Tom Collins, as a light comedian, does well; and Beattie Kent is a smart dancer. At the bottom of the bill are the Selbinis, in a clever cycle and pot-pourri act. The Three Gartes and the American Bioscope are also included in an excellent programme.

WARRINGTON.—ROYAL COURT.—Proprietor, Mr. J. Beecham; General-Manager, Mr. A. M. Loader; Assistant-Manager, Mr. S. Smiley.—Messrs. Hardie and Von Leer's company is here this week in the successful drama Two Lancashire Lasses in London. Mr. Harold Cotter as John Edmunds, the inventor, acts well and makes a manly hero; in the popular part of Sam Hablett Mr. Chris. Mason is well placed, and he is certainly a humorist possessed of rare versatile powers; Mr. J. Edward Fletcher is a typical cleric; and Mr. Arthur Elwyn makes the most of Jonas Deane; Mr. Hubert Sidney scores as Edward Langley; and as the two crackemen, Jim Price and Grabbit, Messrs. Jack Miller and W. Walmsley submit smart character sketches; Miss Rosslyn Vayne as Constance displays histrionic abilities of a high order, and much pathos is introduced into the character of Nellie by Miss Alice Defoe; Miss Stanley Burt is a graceful Bessie Edmunds; and Miss Evelyn Shaw as Jane Adelaide Bloomfield scores well as the good-hearted restaurant-keeper; a clever juvenile is Miss Marie Corri, who faithfully enacts the part of Lucy. The staging is good.

PALACE AND HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. H. C. Hardcastle.—Madge Grey is paying a welcome return visit here this week, and her delightful impersonation of juveniles has established her a bigger favourite than ever; H. C. Lovell and company are a big success in the musical sketch Mam'selle Pom-Pom. The Leslie Comedy Cadets are good vocalists, and their military scena Lights Out is much enjoyed; Archie Pitt is a quaint comedian; Jamie Pipin is a clever instrumentalist; Paul Powell's electrical marionettes supply an elaborate turn; and Coggin and Davis are seen to advantage in an acrobatic turn. The pictures are good, and a similar remark applies to the selections played by the orchestra under Mr. Widdop's direction.

ROYAL THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, The Franco-British Animated Picture Co.; Managing-Director, Mr. W. Turner; Manager, Mr. Jack Waters.—Charlie Ulrick supplies a really clever turn with a series of barrels; Andrew Atkinson's illustrated songs are again a source of pleasure; the Two Countees are delightful vocalists; and Ivy Aberdare is a chic comedienne. The pictures are good.

WEST BROMWICH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. R. Nightingale.—Pantomime reigns at this place of amusement again, and large audiences have welcomed Messrs. E. C. Jazon and R. Nightingale's company, which is appearing in a very smartly-written pantomime by E. C. Jazon round the ever-delightful story of "Aladdin." Miss Edna Latonne is very charming as Aladdin; Miss Luna Lisle as Princess Badroulbadour is also good, and the Sisters Benton are clever as Pekoe and Caramel; Mr. Walter Bishop creates roars of laughter as Abanazar; Mr. Clifton Hall is good as the Emperor of China; Mr. Percy Curry as Widow Twankey is smart, while Mr. Frank Vant as Gin Sling has some good songs, which he sings admirably. The pantomime is well staged, and is altogether a first-class production.

NEW HIPPODROME.—The stage at this place of amusement is this week occupied by the members of the West Bromwich Amateur Operatic Society, who are giving a very creditable performance of The Gondoliers.

WEST HARTLEPOOL.—GRAND.—Lessee, Mr. Fred Granville; Manager, Mr. Herbert E. Feather.—Mr. Wentworth Croke this week presents the new version of The Christian. Mr. Henry Renoult is the Hon. John Storm, and his acting is excellent; Miss Doris Gilham is responsible for the rôle of Glory Quayle, and her portrayal of the part is full of subtle touches; Mr. Oswald Marshall does well as Horatio Drake; Mr. Geo. R. Montford is effective as Lord Robert Ure; Mr. Edward Ling makes a dignified Father Lamplugh; Mr. C. T. Turpin is satisfactory as Archdeacon Wealthy; and Miss Sinna St. Clair as Mrs. Callender and Miss Margaret Brodie as Polly Love add much to the interest of the play.

PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. A. E. Dobney.—Undoubtedly the most attractive turn on this week's excellent programme is that provided by Mr. and Mrs. George Leonard, in Coming Home, which causes roars of laughter; Sergt. Brennan's manipulation of Diabolo is nothing short of marvellous; the Yokohama Troupe of Japanese balancers and jugglers never fail to please; bright and sparkling is petite Rosie Reval; the Donatos, one-legged clowns, are old favourites; the Three Temples, including Louie Gilbert, are excellent operatic vocalists; the Babuso Bros. do some clever head-to-head balancing; and J. H. Greener, the singing pit lad, and some pictures shown by Raymond's Bioscope are other attractions.

WEST STANLEY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, The Stanley Theatre Co., Ltd.; Managing Director, Mr. Mark H. Lindon; Assistant-Manager, Mr. W. Kelly.—Mr. Louis Calvert presents Miss Janet Lind and talented company in the successful play Sunday. Colonel Brinckthorpe is excellently portrayed by Mr. William Gifford, and the part of Arthur Brinckthorpe is in the hands of Mr. Boyce Williams; Mr. Richard Symons, Mr. Richard Trieve, Mr. Cotton Holmes, Mr. James Hussey are responsible for the "Boys"; Miss Janet Lind as Sunday is very good.

VICTORIA THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. T. C. Rawes; Assistant-Manager, Mr. George W. Montrose.—Majilton's company of comedians heads a fine bill here with Round the Clock, which causes endless amusement; Richardson Taylor is a smart ventriloquist; Will Beanland, comedian, is capital; Arthur Bright, vocalist and dancer, and the Vicoscope concludes a fine programme.

WHITBY.—THE SPA THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Payne Seddon.—Mr. Herbert Ralland's company appeared on the 21st inst. in the successful comedy, His House in Order, before a fairly large and appreciative audience. Mr. J. Herbert Beaumont made a distinct success in the rôle of Hilary Jesson, his efforts being rewarded by frequent applause; as Filmer Jesson, M.P., Mr. J. Patrick Robertson proved clever; and Mr. Langford Brown provided a fine portrayal of Sir Daniel Ridgeley; Mr. Dudley Stuart as Pryce Ridgeley, and Mr. Randolph Reade as Major Manrewarde were excellent; Miss Elsie Roberts enacted the rôle of Nina in a highly successful manner; and Miss Avis Grahame as Lady Ridgeley successfully sustained the part; Miss Victoria Wray as Geraldine Ridgeway, Miss Katie Neville as Mlle. Thorne, and Miss Peggy Rae as Derek Jesson acted with distinction.

WIGAN.—ROYAL COURT THEATRE.—Proprietors, The Wigan Entertainments Company.—Miss May Austin and Mr. E. Vivian Edmonds's company in Woman and Wine is here this week. The character of Marcel Ragadout is in the capable hands of Miss C. St. Elmo; Miss Violet Sims is a captivating Mary Andrews; Miss Ethel Vinroy is a vivacious Janet Marlow; while Miss Octavia de Noel is an eminent success as La Colombe. Mr. E. Vivian Edmonds is intensely dramatic in the part of Dick Seymour; and Mr. R. Foulis as Hugh Seymour is also deserving of much merit.

THE HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, The Wigan Entertainments Company.—Messrs. Jazon and Nightingale's company are responsible for the pleasing production of Cinderella here. Miss Molly Doon is a captivating exponent of the title-rôle; and Miss Vera Mayne as Prince Brilliant and Miss Beattie Foster as Dandini are also exceptionally good. Mr. Leo Fields is the life of the piece as Buttons; while Messrs. Wallace Whitney and Harry Plowden are deserving of special mention as the Ugly Sisters. The Carpos Bros. also contribute a neat acrobatic turn which proves highly diverting.

THE EMPIRE.—Lessees, The New Bioscope Trading Company; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. C. Woon.—Foremost among this week's interesting films are The Tale the Autumn Leaves Told, Retribution, The Text-Book of a Perfect Gentleman, The Boxing Mania, Onions, and The Great Bargain Sale. A very hearty reception is given to Ri. Hyde, who causes quite an ovation as a character comedian.

WORCESTER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur Carlton; Assistant-Manager, Mr. F. Le Wards.—Liberal patronage has been bestowed this week on Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company in the delightful play Peter's Mother. Miss Violet Ley as Lady Mary Crewys gains the sympathy of her audience by her delightful conception of the part; Mr. Vivian Gilbert makes a strong impression of her somewhat priggish son, Peter; and Mr. Townsend Whitling is responsible for an extremely clever study of the part of Sir Timothy. As the Baronet's austere sisters Miss Mary Griffiths and Miss Josephine Rae provide a good deal of humour, and Mr. Walter Russell as Canon Birch contributed in the same direction; Mr. Drew Mackintosh is well suited as John Crewys, and Miss Hilda Sims as Sarah, Mr. Edward Jephson as Dr. Blundell, Miss Annie Stalman, Mr. P. Wright, and Mr. S. Smith are effective exponents of small parts. A curtain-raiser, The Turtledoves, is excellently presented.

WOLVERHAMPTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Charles Barnard; Resident-Manager, Mr. Gerald Spencer.—The attraction here this week is Mr. Walter Melville's company in The Girl Who Wrecked His Home. Mr. Fred. W. Goddard as Jack Marshall is particularly good; Mr. Walner Gregory as Leonard Kenyon is a polished villain, and he is ably seconded by Miss Winifred Whyte as Val Raymond; Mr. Alfred Richards gives a capital reading of William Stevenson; Mr. George P. Lester is well placed as Joss Crockett; and Mr. Edwin Charles makes a smart Detective. Miss Louise Hampton, in the title-part, is all that can be desired, and Miss Lulu Bowes makes a bright and capable Winifred Marshall. Much amusement is caused by Mr. Francis Hope as Tommy Biffin, and Miss Nellie Burdette as Lottie Primrose.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Managing Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Frank Weston.—Mr. F. C. Bostock's chimpanzee Consul is creating a big sensation here. On Sunday quite a crowd assembled to witness his arrival, and on Monday he held a reception in the foyer of the hall, which was attended by several members of the medical profession. His performance, whether it is due to the animal's extraordinary intelligence, or those responsible for his training, is really wonderful. Grahame's Juveniles, who have well-trained voices, present a charming little vocal scena in A Concert on the Lawn; Oliver Martyn, comedian, sandwiches his songs with some smart patter; little Jack Marks is one of the smartest youngsters seen here for some time; the Gilberts present a very interesting wire act; Bains and Reed cause plenty of laughter with their eccentric tumbling act; and Irene Melden, comedienne and dancer, completes a thoroughly good all-round bill.

WORKINGTON.—OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Acting-Manager, Mr. Falconer Jackes.—This week Mr. Chalmers Mackey's Rollicking Rory company fills the bill, and delighted audiences have had an opportunity of seeing some really good fun and hearing some of the old Irish melodies rendered in a fine old style by such an artist as Miss Constance Bellamy, who filled the rôle of Peggy O'More. Mr. C. Mackey himself fills the title-rôle, and he is ably supported all through by a really strong cast, incuding Edward Warden as Stephen D'Arcy, Richard Hutton as Captain Ashleigh, Mr. St. John Stuart as Shaun Brady, Henry Sainsbury as Sergeant Callagan, Laurence Sullivan as Drummer Dobbs, and Joseph Healy as Larry Riley. The part of Rosie Callagan was entrusted to Miss Nana Flensburg, who responded every time to the humour of her husband and brought roars of laughter from the audience by her naive and charming poses. Miss Adele Liddon made up a splendid widow, while Mrs. C. Mackey played excellently as the Captain's wife.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. McKenzie Morgan.—The pictures were of a very high class, educational, instructive, and amusing as ever. The old favourites, James and Alexander, paid a welcome return visit, and again convulsed the houses. A very fine set also appeared called the Cameron Quartette Party, with voices rich and rare, and a quaint rendering of such old songs as "Rocked in the cradle of the deep," which delighted all hearers.

YORK.—ROYAL.—Lessees, Messrs. Waddington; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. J. Dacre.—A return visit is being paid by Mr. Leonard Boyne's company in Raffles, with Mr. Eille Norwood in the title-rôle. Mr. Norwood's rendering gives evidence of careful study, and a complete success must be recorded. Miss May Brooke gives a polished performance as Mrs. Vidal; and Miss Dorothy Gordon could hardly be surpassed as Marie, a part exactly suited to her charming style. As Curtis Bedford Mr. E. W. Thomas gives a racy and convincing rendition of a popular rôle; and Mr. Arthur Willoughby's Lord Amerstoth is a clever character sketch. The piece is effectively mounted. A Lesson in Shakespeare is the curtain-raiser.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr. Sidney Brooke.—Siends is a wonderful card and coin manipulator; the Vasilescu company are clever on the bars; Miss Lillie Langtry eclipses her former successes; T. C. Edwards is a melodious baritone; Friend and Downing introduce amusing patter; Shrillo is an expert whistler; and the Rowland Bros. are smart equilibrists. Edwin Rutland and the Bioscope complete the list.

THE DRAMA AND THE FOLK-SPIRIT.

What followed in the dramatic history of England does not afford any comfort to the student who is anxious to find in the zeitgeist some indication that the people were dramatically represented. But the stage play had become an object of vertu —appealing solely to a playgoing set. Anyone who doubts this has only to gorge himself on a book like Dr. Doran's Annals, or any other reputable work that purports to give an account of eighteenth and nineteenth century acting. To the outsider, it is a tiresome repetition of the performances of this or that star mime, in Bowdlerised Shakespeare, high falutin' heroics, or incipient farce. The fact is that the drama of that period was such an artificial product that only the brilliant acting of the players made it bearable. The writing of Hazlitt and Leigh Hunt bear testimony to this.

The drama was bound in chains. To the Press was forbidden the discussion of political affairs—to the drama was applied the strictures of that most notoriously arrogant of all Dogberries, the Censor. Free development of social or national psychology was impossible under such conditions. The great licensed houses, too, were jealous of their prerogatives. Without encouragement from the State the drama of any country must naturally become a hole-and-corner business.

How far removed these plays were from real life, and for that matter, the plays of early Victorian days, can be realised if you insist upon a modern playgoer undergoing a performance of, say, Lytton's Lady of Lyons. The art of the early Victorian era was reflected in the stodginess of the early Victorian mind—one has only to read again the sentimental tea-cup and saucer comedy and compare it with the maudlin sentimentality of the novel of that period.

Tested by the fundamental criterion of utility as a social factor for race-elevation, the eighteenth and nineteenth century drama fails to justify its existence. Not even upon the count that a play by arousing the altruistic feelings enables us to cultivate racial sympathy can a word be said in its favour. The only feeling it aroused was the sympathy of the snob for his small-souled brethren.

Thus dismissing two centuries of plays, what can be said on behalf of modern drama? Anything that can be urged will necessarily be born of an optimistic mood, and that is why, when we have overlooked the blighting effect of the Censor's strictures upon the free discussion of the serious problems of life, the signs are not entirely hopeless.

No attempt will be made to discuss musical comedy—that is a hybrid commodity, purely the product of the craze for light pleasure and after dinner, or before supper, exercitation. The law that specialisation is a preparation for destruction finds an easy application in this case, and proof is not wanting that the musical comedy will soon change into another form.

But how explain the existence of melodrama? The same law of specialisation applies to that. It exists with the people as a lower method of indulging the æsthetic feelings. It is a cruder form, because the constant desire to satisfy physical needs, the demand for food and clothes, is too much present, and not until the urgency of these physical wants is removed can we expect an inclination for a higher mode of dramatic representation dealing with the real problems of life. The position of the melodrama-monger is that of the primitive man who is entirely conservative. You may recollect Livingstone's story of the native's use of the spoon—he took the food out of the pot with it, and then with his fingers carefully selected the morsels out of the spoon, and so transferred them to his mouth. So with the primitive playgoer. He does not possess the faculty for digesting new ideas. He must be taught the use of the spoon! Just as psychologically progress is made from less intelligent to more intelligent by increasing ability in the selection of food, so the dramatic auditor will proceed from the less-intellectual play to the more intellectual. The primitive playgoer does not possess the thought required by the advanced drama. The zealous fanatics who abuse the primitive playgoer for not liking their advanced drama are really taking the wrong way with the poor man. All his trouble is, want of training in continued thought. The law of progress is from the less intelligent to the more intelligent. The primitive playgoer must be taught Isben's dictum, that the purpose of advanced drama is to depict human beings, human emotions, and human destinies upon a ground-work of certain of the social conditions and principles of the present day.

The fact is that dramatic art has been so far alienated from its purpose as a reflection of the folk-spirit that one does not regard it seriously. Yet here it is, a potential art-form ready to be moulded in the alembic of men's minds. In all recent discussions of the psychology of the crowd it has been maintained that the faculty of intellectual attention is low in the mob—that you can only appeal to its primary instincts and passions —that its intellectuality is diminished and its emotionality increased. To that, the only answer can be, train your crowd! Those playwrights who believed the intellectuality of the crowd was too low for the success of their play have gone so far as to choose their own crowd.

It is a very futile argument that the Puritan provides when he says that the ratio of performances of absolutely innocuous plays is as five to ninety-five. Why does he not do his best to make up the other ninety per cent. by coming out and patronising the five per cent.? I am afraid that when he does patronise a play, his religious tyranny leaves him a prey to his emotions rather than to his sense of reasonable morality.

One remedy backed up by the pedagogues is the founding of a National Theatre. On that suggestion one looks askance. What does it really mean? If precedent be any guide, it is not a satisfactory one.

Amongst the instances which have been evoked is that of ancient Greece. But the conditions are in no wise similar. The Greek theatre became a civic one, not because the people desired to preserve any standard of drama, but because the very root principle of their drama commenced in the celebration of a public ceremonial, the Bacchic rites. In this direction, one is reminded of the Spencerian dictum, that the feeling that we must do something is the origin of much mischief, both individual and social. Even this paper has limitations, and there is no space to prove that whenever any art has come under the domination of the State the result has been fatal. The Comédie Française is a case in point. Beyond the fact that it stands for the preservation of the classics in French—a doubtful virtue—its office is entirely pedagogic, and when the public are told they really must like a given piece of drama, in the language of the schoolboy, "it won't do so." The fact remains that municipal and corporate bodies are thoroughly incompetent to judge. The French Academy condemned the "Cid" of Corneille, one of the glories of French literature: they also excluded romantic drama, calling Shakespeare an intoxicated barbarian. Even in our own case of public authorities dealing with pictorial art, the contretemps at the National Gallery is too recent to assure us of perfect judgment, and red-tapeism is entirely fatal to the subtler arts. There is, too, the question of the acting genius which refuses to be held down to specified terms and plays. If you had a well-balanced social self-consciousness—a quite ideal state—it might then be possible to promulgate the idea of a National Theatre, because then perhaps you would have your audience of philosophers capable of appreciating the classics. The functions of any governing committee, even elected by the people for the conduct of a National Theatre, would be entirely academic. A psychological examination of the audience at a play entirely discredits the testimony of National Theatre enthusiasts. For your ordinary theatrical audience does not present a segregation of units with separate minds—it really forms the mob-mind, an entirely separate entity, in which intellectuality is nil and emotionality all, and emotion takes no account of morality. It exists for the satisfaction of its own prejudices. As an advocate of advanced drama, I have no illusions beyond the fact that I believe drama can be used as a concrete art-form to place before the people many of the problems of life—problems which, in other elusive shapes, might not come within their limited purview. The scholastic profession might do much by adding to their curriculum a course of study in modern plays instead of Elizabethan drama. It might even be worked into the University Extension scheme of lectures.

There are advocates of the theatre who have turned round upon the Puritan and blamed him for the present low state of drama. I hold no brief for the Puritan, but let us not forget that in its initial shape Puritanism was the first political system which guaranteed the liberty of the people, and on that account it has a superabundant claim to merit, apart from its entire excesses of zeal. An example of the latter occurs in a penny tract issued some years ago by the R.T.S., in which the writer objected to the presentation of the marriage service on the stage at Drury Lane. Such a matter must be left to the clergy themselves to settle. There seems to be sufficient divergence of opinion. In one folk-drama, or pageant, recently seen by me, the local clergy assisted at a public performance of the re-enactment of certain sacred historical functions.

To attempt to abuse any art which has a root principle in human nature is a very old-fashioned method, but it is not very convincing. It seems a pity that the Puritans do not attempt to formulate their own drama. That is rather too much to expect of a race whose chief attention is devoted to destructive criticism. If theologians find solace in whatever shows human imperfection, then logically they ought to rejoice in the existence of plays which exhibit these qualities in action. There are two ways by which public acts can be judged—the test of supposed divine approbation and the test of conduciveness to human happiness. The fatal thing in a religious body attempting to judge drama is this same theological bias. In France the basis of a play is built upon entirely scientific facts of life. In England it pre-supposes the religious conception. Until this bias has been removed and the clergy learn to look upon the subject-matter as a simple presentation of scientific facts it will be little use their discussing the question.

Meantime, one can suggest things, and the outstanding fact is that the only real remedy for the preservation and renaissance of British drama is to cultivate in the people the proper taste. That method seems to have the additional virtue of safeguarding the morals of the people, and an impartial observer might justly ask why the Puritans should not undertake the task. Failing them, we must fall back on the dramatic author, and to encourage him let a National Eistedfodd be instituted, when various dramas might be exhibited before a vast audience, the people having previously elected a Select Committee to adjudicate the dramas which should be presented. The idea is a Grecian one, and dramatists might be restricted for subject-matter to events in modern life—not necessarily problem plays, but plays in which some phase of life was presented. Throughout the country, in little hole-and-corner places, drama of this kind is being presented to sparse audiences. The thousands of people who do not go do not deliberately abstain from attending, but simply because they do not know of the existence of such plays. It may well be argued that the class of play enacted by such sectional members of the playgoing public as the Stage Society and the Irish Literary Society would never pay. There is an intellectual public who deliberately stay away from the theatre because they say there is nothing worth seeing. It is the old case of giving a dog a bad name. Such individuals have not attempted to find out the drama they want. There is a class of drama being enacted which would meet their views, not a large class certainly, but still large enough to prove that it does exist. Should any doubt be maintained the Vedrenne-Barker seasons are outstanding proofs of the truth of my contention.

To those who will say that for a writer to open up a paper by stating that he proposes to ask himself whether the drama meets a real psychological need in the lives of the English people and end by begging the question as regards latter-day drama is to lack in conclusiveness, I answer if I appear to have done so it is because I still have faith in drama taking up its old place in the lives of the people. The recent growth of pageantry seems to point out that the people are beginning to find that after all drama can be made an educational force. And if one were anxious to go on proving things, he might say that the same quality of feeling and patience as we experience in waiting upon the consummation of some theatrical situation helps to improve our own faculty of acting correctly in difficult situations, and increases our ability to adapt ourselves to new circumstances.

There are some who regard the theatre as a spiritual necessity. The assumption is based on the fact that there is a life of the soul which is the counterpart of real life, and that the conflict of these two should form the subject of drama. That claim is a high one—to some it would seem an ideal one. For my part I trust I have at least made it clear the drama is a mental necessity in the life of a progressive people.

AT the Alexandra Theatre, Widnes, this week, Mr. Fred Granville's capital company hold the boards with The Better Land. Mr. Leonard Aardale is a manly hero; Mr. Stanley Radcliffe plays the heavy part of Hubert Radcliffe very ably; Mr. Leonard Marshall paints a good portrait of George Grant; Mr. Herbert Fuller is a funny Tom Tadpole; Mr. Robert Archer plays with ability as William White; Mr. J. F. Hughes is good as Bill Bones; Master Harold Collinson plays very intelligently as Harry Radcliffe; Miss Agnes Collier plays very forcibly as Mercedes; Miss Bella Moody is very much at home in the part of Polly Perkins; Miss Violet Nevian creates much amusement as A

THE DRAMA IN PARIS.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

PARIS, THURSDAY, Jan. 28.—We have had a record week in the way of novelties. Our theatrical managers apparently wanted to see how many premières and revivals they could conveniently cram into seven nights; and they ought to be satisfied with the result, inasmuch as they have attained the maximum. La Dette, at Antoine's, met with a good reception; but the plot makes us think of the troubles of Hamlet. Dr. Barthe, a medical celebrity, is married to the beautiful Dolorès, a perverse, heartless woman, whose husband committed suicide under circumstances that were never fully explained; and the mystery hovering about this death weighs on the mind of Daniel, Dolorès' son, who has taken an instinctive dislike to his stepfather. Daniel has lost his heart to Edith Forster, a charming young Irish widow, one of Dr. Barthe's patients. He proposes to her, and is rejected. With his father's suicide constantly before his mind, in the belief that there is madness in his family, he confides his trouble to an old friend who knew him from a boy, and learns from him that his father never was insane, but had put an end to his life in a fit of despair. What has occurred? Daniel feels certain that Dr. Barthe has played the villain's part in that dark affair; and a few words he has overheard of a conversation between the doctor and Edith having confirmed his suspicions, he rushes at his stepfather revolver in hand, but is promptly disarmed. The veil that enshrouds the family drama is slowly lifting. The doctor informs his wife that Daniel knows something of the reasons that led to his father's death; and the woman silently obeys him when he orders her to leave the house. The doctor finally unbosoms himself to Edith, who, guessing that he, too, wants to quit this life, tells him her own little secret—that she loves him. At last we hear the truth. The doctor relates to Edith how, when he stayed at the house of Philippe, Dolorès' first husband, she one night suddenly rushed at him, and, having kissed him on the lips suddenly ran away. Philippe, however, had witnessed the scene, and in reply to his question the doctor swore that no relation existed, or had existed, between him and Dolorès. An hour later the doctor left the house, and the next day he heard of Philippe's suicide. Nobody ever knew what had occurred between husband and wife, but Dr. Barthe was weak enough to marry the widow. He cruelly expiated his folly. As matters stand now he does not want poor Daniel to suffer; and he implores Edith to make the boy happy by marrying him. It is his only chance of paying his debt to his stepson. The work was splendidly acted.

M. TRISTAN BERNARD'S amusing comedy Les Jumeaux de Brighton, founded on Plautus, was also produced; but a description of the work has appeared already in these columns when it was given at the Théâtre Fémina.

"UNE GRESSE AFFAIRE,"

Farce, in Three Acts, by MM. Maurice Hennequin and Pierre Véber, produced at the Nouveautés on Jan. 21.

Mme. Leroy ..... MME. MAUREL
Mme. La Chambotte ..... MME. CAUMONT
Mme. Macette ..... MME. PATRY
Suzanne ..... MLLE. SANDRY
Etienette ..... MLLE. CLAIRVILLE
Leroy ..... M. GERMAIN
Simon Chabory ..... H. LEVESQUE
Gaston ..... M. MARCEL SIMON
La Chambotte ..... M. BARON FILS
Le Camut ..... M. HARDOUX

MM. Hennequin and Pierre Véber's new farce belongs to the "rough-and-tumble" order that always appeals to an easily-amused audience. It is a queer, complicated, highly-spiced story, difficult to tell. Leroy, a police magistrate, has married his daughter to Simon Chabory. Mme. Leroy is delighted with the match, because her son-in-law, as she thinks, is so pure that he is as much entitled to a wreath of orange blossom as his charming bride. And the sentimental old lady, therefore, insists on the young couple spending their wedding night in the same hotel where she and M. Leroy celebrated the first day of their union. In truth Simon is anything but "pure." He has had a liaison with Mme. La Chambotte, a Corsican lady with a fiery temperament. He, of course, has broken off that liaison, but Mme. La Chambotte still clings to him, and even follows him to the hotel in Saint-Germain. Mme. Leroy, having accidentally heard that her son-in-law is not a pattern of virtue, also goes to Saint-Germain to box the young scoundrel's ears. La Chambotte, the Corsican lady's husband, suspecting his wife, follows in the wake; so that in the second act we find all the personages assembled in the hotel kept by the eccentric Mme. Macette. When they reach the place they find it in a state of confusion. The King of Carinthia, come to Paris to contract a loan and to amuse himself, is expected there every moment, and in order to ensure that monarch's safety all the waiters have been replaced by detectives, who show their zeal by pummelling the visitors, whom they suspect of evil designs on the king's life. The king does not put in an appearance, but Leroy is mistaken for him, and the old magistrate has a rollicking time with the ladies from the Opéra corps de ballet, specially retained for his Majesty's entertainment. After a series of extraordinary scenes things are more or less put right. Simon, the young bridegroom, is thrown over by his wife, who swears she will at once start divorce proceedings. Mme. La Chambotte's matrimonial career will likewise end in the divorce court. But Mme. Leroy forgives her husband's escapade. He has been mistaken for a king; and this, she reckons, is a great honour. The Nouveautés company did full justice to the farce.

"HERNANI,"

Opera, in Five Acts, by M. Gustave Rivet, music by M. Henri Hirchmann, produced at the Gaité on Jan. 25.

Dona Sol ..... MLLE. YVONNE DUBEL
Yago ..... MLLE. COELHO
Josefa ..... MLLE. BERAT
Don Carlos ..... M. AFFRE
Hernani ..... M. BOULOGNE
Don Ruy Gomez ..... M. PATY
Don Garcia ..... M. REVALDI
Don Mathias ..... M. CHACON

The Théâtre de la Gaité, subsidised by the Paris Municipality, is an admirably-managed establishment, which confers a great boon on Parisians and strangers by giving them opportunities of hearing first-class music at popular prices. As a rule, only works of the Opéra and Opéra-Comique répertoire are produced there. This time, however, they launched a novelty—Hernani, libretto by M. Rivet, music by M. Hirchmann. Everybody is familiar with Verdi's Ernani; and it is a matter of surprise that the talented composer should have selected the same theme and have thrust upon his collaborator the unenviable task of taking liberties with Victor Hugo's immortal poem. The melancholy story of the luckless Dona Sol and of her lover Hernani is known to most readers. It is an absurd plot; but Victor Hugo's verse is so sublime that the work will always rank among the great French master's best productions. As regards the music M. Hirchmann has dealt with the score in a classical vein. His aim apparently was to remain in keeping with the romantic spirit that pervades Victor Hugo's drama. He therefore sacrificed whatever modern ideas he possessed, which, in a measure, handicapped him, preventing him from giving free scope to his imagination. Despite these drawbacks, it is a meritorious work, skilfully orchestrated, and in parts vivid in colouring. The overture is characteristic, because M. Hirchmann has taken, so to say, snapshots of the principal personages, and has introduced them in the form of short themes—a new departure, open to question. The numbers that appealed most to the public were the love passages between Dona Sol and Hernani, and the impressive scene in the fourth act in Charlemagne's sepulchre at Aix-de-la-Chapelle. The final tableau, too, illustrating the deaths of Dona Sol and Hernani, is very telling. The interpretation was praiseworthy; and the Comédie-Française very courteously had placed their scenery of Hernani at the disposal of the Gaité management, which added special interest to the performance.

"LES GRANDS,"

Comedy, in Four Acts, by MM. Pierre Véber and Serge Basset, produced at the Odéon on Jan. 26.

Pierre Navaille ..... MLLE. LUTZIR
Hélène Lorimer ..... MLLE. JEANNE LION
Mme. Brassier ..... MLLE. GRUMBACH
Mélie ..... MLLE. BARSANGE
M. Lormier ..... M. DESJARDINS
Chamboulin ..... M. DESFONTAINES
Jean Brassier ..... M. MAUPRE
Brassier père ..... M. CHAMBREUIL
Surot ..... M. RENIOR
Bron ..... M. FABRE

The action of MM. Pierre Véber and Serge Basset's four-act play takes place at the Chambrun College, and "Les Grands" is the name given in French schools to boys in the higher classes. M. Lormier, the principal of the college, is an upright man, deeply interested in the welfare of his young charges. Jean Brassier, a youth of about eighteen, is the best pupil, and a special favourite with Hélène, the principal's wife. In the course of years a friendly intimacy has sprung up between Hélène and Jean; but Jean, having so far forgotten himself as to declare his love to that lady, she resolves to stay with her married sister until Jean will have finished his studies. Unfortunately, Surot, a spiteful boy, jealous of Jean, has overheard the latter's conversation with Hélène, and he waits for an opportunity to injure his enemy. This opportunity soon presents itself. The principal, compelled to leave hurriedly for Paris, gives Jean 500 francs in banknotes—a donation for a statue in the college—with the request to lock up that sum in the drawer of his (the principal's) desk. That same night Jean happens to meet Hélène in her husband's study, and, whilst bidding her good-bye, renews his protestations of love. Suddenly they hear a noise, and promptly turn out the lights. But in the faint glimmer they see Surot steal into the room, force the lock of the drawer, take out the banknotes, and leave Jean's pocket-knife on the desk. Hélène and Jean dare not call out to stop the thief; and Hélène decides to leave the next morning early and borrow the money from her sister, in the hope of reaching the college before her husband's return. She, however, arrives too late. The principal has left Paris earlier than he expected. The theft has been discovered, and suspicion at once falls upon Jean. To save Hélène's reputation Jean admits having committed the robbery, informing Hélène that he will kill himself if she gives the true version of the affair. Jean is to be expelled; but the conscience-stricken Surot proclaims Jean's innocence. The little love intrigue is never discovered, and everything else ends happily. The play, needlessly spun out into four acts, met with a first-class interpretation.

"LA FILLE DES RABENSTEIN."

Play, in Four Acts and Five Tableaux, by E. de Wildenbruch, translated by M. Rémon and Mme. Valentin; produced at the Sarah-Bernhardt on Jan. 26.

Bersabe ..... MLLE. VENTURA
Ursule Melber ..... MLLE. DESROCHES
Dame Welser ..... MME. ZORELLI
Welser Père ..... M. CHAMEROY
Le Seigneur de Rabenstein ..... M. DECOEUR
Barthélemy Welser fils ..... M. JEAN WORMS
Antony Welser ..... M. DUARD
Le faiseur de nonnes ..... M. SIDNEY
Georges de Freyberg ..... M. LAURENT

Ernst von Wildenbruch died a couple of weeks ago; and for this reason I am heartily sorry not to be able to chronicle a success for his play, La Fille des Rabenstein, brought out at Sarah-Bernhardt's. The cause of this failure is not far to seek. The work is essentially German, very sentimental, swarming with patriotic allusions to the Emperor and to the rôle Germany is to play in the affairs of the world. All this may be very gratifying to the good people in the Fatherland and to their Emperor; but we fail to interest ourselves in Rabenstein, the robber-knight, killed in an encounter with the merchant princes, the Welsers. When Barthélemy Welser, the eldest son, wounded in the affray, is carried to the old brigand chief's castle and is nursed there by Bersabe, the brigand's daughter, we know that these two will fall in love with one another and marry in the end, which they do. These patriotic effusions, to which a strong dose of sentimentalism is added, do not prove to our taste. Mlle. Ventura's graceful acting imparted a little light to the sombre story. The charming actress was very much applauded, but the other rôles were only indifferently rendered.

THE Chatelet has given us Les Aventures de Gavroche, a spectacular play in four acts and twenty-two tableaux, by MM. Victor Darlay and Gaston Marot. It is the story of a young girl in search of her father, supposed to have been shipwrecked; and she starts on a tour round the world to hunt him up. Her servant, the faithful and smart little Gavroche, helps her in her task; but she has two enemies—Davis, her cousin, who wants to rob her of her fortune, and Captain Burke, her rejected lover. Geneviève's adventures, of course, are thrilling. Icebergs, Red Indians, wild beasts, &c., conspire against her. She blows up the ship of the wicked Captain Burke, and escapes in an aeroplane. Lost in a fog at sea, she is saved by a huge vessel, the Amazone. But little Gavroche is always there to help her out of the difficulty. Fairly well staged, the work met with a good reception.

MME. ZULMA BOUFFAR has just died in the actors' home at Pont-aux-Dames. Many years ago she was one of our best operette singers. Despite her numerous successes, luck always seemed to desert her. Some fifteen years ago she took over the Ambigu, but she lost her money over the venture. Only two people attended the funeral of the actress who at one time had all Paris at her feet.

MESSRS. LUSH AND COOK received the following amusing message from Mr. Wentworth Croke, Shakespeare, Liverpool:—"I want you to kindly have Dirty Lizzie and Breezy Bill cleaned and returned here by Wednesday night." The reply from the firm at 29, Charing Cross-road, read:—"Dirty Lizzie and Breezy Bill shall be transformed by our chemical cleaning process into Clean Lizzie and Smiling Bill." The "spotless pair" arrived in Liverpool on the morning of the 27th inst.

PLAYERS OF THE PERIOD.

MISS BESSIE BUTT.

Born in London within sound of Bow Bells, Miss Bessie Butt commenced her stage career at a very early age by playing the child part in My Sweetheart. While still in her early teens she toured through many European countries in company with her brothers—the Reed Family—and made quite a big reputation as a transformation dancer, being billed as "Baby Butt." An unfortunate illness kept her from the stage for a long period, and her next appearance was under the management of Mr. John Tiller, who looked upon her as one of the most promising of his young recruits.

Having ambitions, Miss Butt decided on doing a single turn on the halls, and at once sprang into popularity wherever she appeared. The late Walter Summers saw her, and recommended her so highly to Mr. Robert Arthur that she was engaged by him as second girl for the Kennington Theatre pantomime of Red Riding Hood, and there she made her first great success in "Ma blushing Rosie." The late Clement Scott was so taken with this number that he went several times to hear it. Miss Butt's next appearance was under the management of Mr. George Edwardes as Susan in The Toreador, and this was followed by Sophie in A Country Girl and Thisbe in The Orchid. After this she was for twelve months at the London Coliseum, where she created several parts, notably the Black Pearl in Mr. Leslie Stuart's song specially written for Mr. Eugene Stratton, and produced at the Coliseum in 1905. She also appeared as a wonderfully life-like doll in Mr. Will Bishop's My Gollywog. This was in 1906.

A pantomime engagement as Cinderella at Cheltenham was followed by a return to the halls under the managements of Mr. Oswald Stoll, the late Mr. G. A. Payne, and others; and then Miss Butt was seen and secured by Mr. Lester Collingwood to play the title-rôle in his pantomime of CindereNa at the Alexandra, Birmingham, in 1907. The success was phenomenal, as the run of the pantomime was a record for the country. On that occasion also Miss Butt won the "Owl" cake and a diamond ring in a local beauty competition. This year Miss Butt has discarded skirts and gone in for principal boy, and as Dandini at the Royal County Theatre, Kingston, she is undoubtedly the hit of a most successful pantomime. During her short career she has introduced many popular songs, of which probably the most successful have been "Scarecrow," "Amelia Snow," "Cherries are blooming," "Peggy, the pride of the mill," and "Sunshine Soo," her latest effusion, which is likely to eclipse in popularity all the others.

AMUSEMENTS IN SOUTH AFRICA.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

DURBAN, DEC. 28.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. Ferguson Brown.—The only pantomime in Natal, viz., Robinson Crusoe, was produced on Boxing night. The scenery was painted by Mr. Chris Hall at the Durban Scenic Studio, and was of a lavish character, his transformation scene being a handsome piece of work. In the title-rôle Miss Lily Bateman showed herself to be a graceful and handsome artist and the possessor of a pretty voice. As the Widow Mr. Teddy Andrews caused hearty and continuous laughter. Another highly amusing impersonation was the Dinny Norloo of Mr. Chas. Gordon. Mr. George Burt, an old and well known pantomime artist, added largely to the success as Friday; a clever animal impersonation was the Cat of Mr. Will Lessing. Miss Daisy Tucker is a delightful exponent of the terpsichorean art; and a bewitching Polly was found in Miss Phyllis Wynne. Mr. Jack Harper as the Demon was at his best, using his fine voice effectively. The production is obtaining every encouragement.

THE Treni Opera Company is at the Opera House, Pretoria, in a repértoire of Gilbert and Sullivan operas.

JOHANNESBURG.—STANDARD THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Leonard Rayne; Manager, Mr. Grant Fallowes. —Old Heidelburg was this week staged at the above house. As Katie, the innkeeper's daughter, Miss Freda Godfrey was charming both in the serious and the lighter phases of the rôle. As Karl Henreich Mr. Chas. Howitt gained yet another success; Mr. Carter as Doctor Juttner submitted a fine study. The company acquitted itself in a manner that can always be expected from those under the banner of Mr. Leonard Rayne.

HIS MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Lessees, B. and F. Wheeler, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. W. F. Woodman.—The Girl Behind the Counter holds the boards here, and is meeting with satisfactory houses. The New Aladdin is billed for next week.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Empire Theatres, Ltd., South Africa; Manager, Mr. Syd Hyman.—Artists still here are Mlle. Amylla (classical dancer), Blake and Granby, Miss Arnoldi, Ruby Norton, and Syd Sylvester.

WHEELER'S.—New Juvenile Opera and Musical Comedy Company opened at the Opera House, Capetown, on Boxing night in Bluebell in Fairyland, and gained an instantaneous success. The production was under the direction of Mr. Frank Wheeler, assisted by Mr. W. Clarke. The costumes were by Clarkson, and the scenery specially painted by Mr. Howard Glover.

"THE GUTTA-PERCHA GIRL," a musical farcical comedy, is the attraction at the Tivoli, Capetown.

ROYAL OPERA, COVENT GARDEN.

Madame Butterfly was performed at Covent Garden on Thursday evening, Jan. 21. Although this was the first time Madame Butterfly has been performed in English at Covent Garden, the Moody-Manners Opera Company have given excellent representations of Puccini's opera in English with gain rather than loss to the general effect. On Thursday two new singers, Miss Florence Easton and Mr. F. Maclennan, appeared in the parts of Cio-Cio San (Madame Butterfly) and F. B. Pinkerton. Miss Easton has a pure soprano voice of good compass and considerable power; a slight tendency to hardness in the quality of tone may be put down to nervousness caused by a first appearance. In the delineation of the unhappy Japanese girl, so cruelly deceived, Miss Easton proved herself an accomplished actress, particularly in the tragic death scene, while her singing in the fine duet in the first act was excellent. Mr. Maclennan, who plays the American lieutenant, who loves wisely and not too well, has a fine robust tenor voice which he uses artistically, and his acting is manly and refined. Something of the Italian warmth of expression to which we are accustomed in this opera is lacking in the two new vocalists, but all the same they are welcome additions to the list of English artists at Covent Garden. Miss Edith Clegg as Suzuki, the faithful attendant on the heroine, admirably acted and sang; and Mr. Frederic Austin appeared with considerable success in the part of Sharpless, the kind-hearted Ambassador. The marriage broker Goro was cleverly played by Mr. Byndon-Ayres, and Mr. Albert Garcia did all that was possible in the little part of Prince Yamadori. Other parts were successfully undertaken by Messrs. Charles Knowles and Charles Harford, Miss Vito and Miss G. Trevitt. The chorus sang with great animation.

On Friday, Jan. 22, Gotterdammerung; or, The Twilight of the Gods, in the English version, was given at Covent Garden, and proved a worthy performance of the final section of the Ring.

In the performance of The Meistersingers on Monday evening at Covent Garden there were many excellent features, though the expectations of many who thought by the opera being given in English they could closely follow the story received some disappointment. Many of our artists are excellent as vocalists, but sadly deficient in the matter of clear enunciation, and at times it is really difficult to tell in what language the opera is sung. Mr. Walter Hyde sang the music of Walther von Stolzing ably, being particularly successful in the prize song; but the Hans Sachs of Mr. Nessen was not entirely satisfactory, compared with the fine artists we have heard in this part. Mrs. Frease-Green, who appeared for the first time as Eva, sang sympathetically, but her voice is somewhat small for so large a stage as Covent Garden. Her interpretation of the part, however, had much charm, while her acting was graceful and refined. Cleverly acted and sung also was Mme. Edna Thornton's Magdalene; and Mr. Robert Radford used his fine voice with excellent effect in the music of Veit Pogner. The character of David was most ably undertaken by Mr. Maurice D'Oisly; while Mr. Thomas Meux deserved praise for his performance of Sextus Beckmesser. The parts of Kunz Vogelgesang, Fritz Kothnes, Konrad Nachtigall, Balthasar Zorn, Ulrich Eisslinger, Agustus Moser, Hermann Ortet, and Hans Schwarz were well filled by Messrs. W. Maxwell, C. Knowles, C. Flemming, A. Royd, J. Roberts, Byndon-Ayres, A. Garcia, and P. Dawson, while Mr. Francis Harford successfully doubled the parts of Hans Foltz and Ein Nachtwächter. The apprentices were acted in a lively and effective manner, and the street scene given with great spirit. At the commencement of the third act Dr. Richter had a most enthusiastic reception from the audience.

Dr. E. W. Naylor's new opera entitled The Angelus, in a prologue and four acts, which won Messrs. Ricordi's prize of £500, was produced for the first time at Covent Garden on Wednesday evening before a very large audience. The libretto, for which Mr. Wilfrid Thornely is responsible, is constructed on broad and effective lines, and relates in the prologue of the opera how the Abbot Tunstall discovered the herb of the elixir of life, only to be found in the sacred grove of the Temple of the Fates. A vision of departed spirits, however, appear to the Abbot, and invite him to join them; he refuses, when the Angel of Death comes to warn him of the folly of interfering with the course of Nature. Tunstall, who regards the vision as a sign of death and is anxious his life labour should not be lost, entrusts Francis, a novice, with the task of seeking the herb, and gives him the parchment which contains instructions for making the elixir. Francis leaves, and as the Abbot turns to join the monks he is intercepted by Death. Act. I. shows a village green, on which a country dance is proceeding. Beatrice is queen of the revels. Being asked to name her consort, she chooses Francis, who is passing on his journey. In Act II., Francis, who has fallen in love with Beatrice, comes to bid her farewell, as he has to fulfil his promise to the Abbot; he tells Beatrice he will return with the elixir of life. The third act takes place in the Sacred Grove of the Temple of the Fates, where Francis comes to obtain the herb necessary for the elixir. He is met by the Queen of the Wood-nymphs. Regarding Francis as a divine being, she shows him the sacred herb. When he plucks it she discovers her mistake and curses him. In the last act Beatrice is weary of waiting, and ill and unhappy at Francis's absence, when he suddenly enters with the herb and promises immortality to them both. While he is making the potion the Angel of Death comes and claims Beatrice; Francis turns with the elixir, but too late to save her. Drawing his dagger, he attempts to kill himself, but this Death forbids, and for punishment compels him to drink the elixir of life.

Dr. Naylor's Angelus, although melodious and graceful in style, cannot be termed grand opera, nor is the stern moral underlying the work—that we must not tamper with Fate—carried out in dramatic music; while many of the situations that ought to be strong are entirely unconvincing. The strange incident, also, that Death should make the hero drink to his own immortality does not make an effective conclusion to The Angelus. Dr. Naylor's talents are evidently more adapted to light opera. In the second act there is a charming duet for the lovers; there is some bright, lively music in the village revels of the first act, and there are also some clever passages for the Angel of Death. As Francis Mr. Maclennan sang and acted with distinction, and the fine voice of Mr. Robert Radford was heard to advantage in the part of the Abbot Tunstall. Mme. Edna Thornton sang the music of Death admirably; and Miss Edith Clegg did all that was possible in the little part of Catherine, while the character of the heroine, Beatrice, was cleverly undertaken by Miss Florence Easton. The not very effective music of Sylvia was, however, cleverly sung by Mme. Gleeson-White; and the parts of Lutteral, a Nymph, 1st and 2nd Monks, and 1st Villager were ably filled by Mr. Claude Flemming, Miss Alice Prowse, Mr. Charles Knowles, Mr. Albert Garcia, and Mr. Campbell-Carr. The chorus was excellent, and Mr. Percy Pitt conducted with great spirit. The new opera was handsomely mounted, and delightful scenes were given of the Village Green and of the Sacred Grove of the Temple of the Fates in the third act. Much enthusiasm was shown by the audience, and the calls were frequent during the evening.

"RED RIDING HOOD" AT BIRMINGHAM.

(SECOND NOTICE.)

The second impression of Little Red Riding Hood is really better than was the first. For the constituents of this, Mr. Lester Collingwood's sixth annual Birmingham pantomime, are such as stand the test of, and improve upon, acquaintance. Everything marks an advance on previous Alexandra successes, dresses, scenery, chorus, comedians and fair comediennes, all testify to the truth of this. Perhaps the two best scenes are the first and the last, The Village of Sweedledale and The Great Reception Hall; the first a beautiful rural painting warm with the glow of summer, and the second a palatial edifice fit for Royalty itself. But all are excellent, and keep the audience delighted. The dresses have certainly never been equalled here, and it will be but meet and right for Mr. Collingwood to reap the benefit of such enterprise, which it seems he is most certain to do, judging by the crowded state of the house every day. The artists are all making fine reputations for themselves, and some potential stars may be discerned among them. The heroine, around whose fortunes the story is faithfully woven, is a tender little maid of eleven summers, named Maudie Olmar, whose wonderfully clever rendering of her part and the accompanying songs, "Captain Baby Bunting" and "Good-bye, Mr. Teddy Bear," point to a very successful career. And she is already an accomplished little dancer. The hero, Colin, is interpreted in a refreshingly bright and dashing manner by Miss Ellaline Thorne, whose amiability and expressive good looks form a handsome complement to her sweet fresh voice. Naturally, with all these attractions she has become a great favourite. Her most popular songs are "Have you got another girl at home like Mary?" "A tiny seed of love," "Don't put your umbrella up till it rains," and, in conjunction with Miss Dolly Denton, "The Merry Widow Waltz." Miss Denton is the principal girl, Miss Muffit, and she is dainty and winsome, and piquant withal, displaying every charm and much singing and dancing ability, especially in "Waiting" and "The lovelight." Miss Ivey Roze is the second boy, and her vivacious way and handsome presence make an ideal Prince Roseleaf, for such is the part, while her singing and dancing is most prized here. Her songs, "Every fellow's in love with a girl," "I was lonely," and, with Miss Joyce Stevens, "If your hair was not so curly," go with a fine swing. Miss Stevens's rôle is Margery Daw, which she enacts with a charm that takes everybody's attention, while in her singing and dancing she shows the most finished style. Miss Winifred Norman as the now indispensable Dutch maid, known here as Greeba, keeps the audience "on the go" with her amusing and irrepressible idiosyncrasies. Her popular number is "Mr. Schmidt." Miss Daisy Clements as the Fairy Brightstar sings "Master Cupid" very nicely, and the Three Tivoli Girls give an additional charm to the various groupings with their exceptionally graceful and certainly unique dances. The bad, bold, and spurious Baron, who in the story it appears "came in with the real Baron's pass-out check," is impersonated by Mr. Frank Blythe on very light and also popular lines. He sings "The Old French Bonnet," which he has given quite a vogue here, "Put me on an island where there are no girls," and also in several duets. Messrs. Stephens and Rennior as the "bad boys" of the piece, Jimmy Green and Peter Piper, appear in splendid contrast to each other. The one lean and cunning, who has won the sobriquet of "Sacco," inspires mirth with his mere presence, and when he opens his mouth to speak the house roars. The other is more rotund and husky, with a very quick and sharp wit which never fails to score. They have several duets, their big success being "He said, 'All right; I'll do it.'" Mr. George Penn as their comical ally, Simple Simon, is another proved comedian, who brings his clever musical imitations to add still further to his success. Mr. Albert Schafer's Dame Durden is full of comicality and life to the end, when, in the Reception scene, he enters with all the dignity of a dowager duchess. His "Sequah" burlesque is very funny, and he is also successful as a vocal comedian. Mr. Frank Bolger as Lupas the Wher-Wolf shows good acting qualities, whilst his vocalisation is of great merit and avails much. The Musical Schafers are down for their clever speciality, and the Molasso Troupe bring down thunders of applause with their famous and terrific gyrations. The book is by Mr. Frank Ayrton, and tells the story succinctly; Mr. Edward Hall's scenery is commended above; and the music, by Mr. Edward Barnes, is highly creditable. The principals are continually introducing new songs and business.

AMUSEMENTS IN AUSTRALIA.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

SYDNEY, DEC. 22.—Miss Margaret Anglin concluded her season here on the 18th, and an enormous house cheered the great actress until she made a sweet and neat speech of thanks and farewell. Next day Miss Anglin and her sister, Miss Eileen Anglin, left by the Mongolier on holiday-making bound in Egypt. On the 19th Mr. J. C. Williamson's dramatic company returned to the Theatre Royal and revived The Sign of the Cross. The chief feature was the appearance of Miss Beatrice Day for the first time as Mercia. Hers was a more human reading of the part than we have ever had, tending to show that a Christian is not of necessity an icicle. Mr. Julius Knight gave a sound rendering of Marcus Superbus. Mr. Eardley Turner, fresh back from England, gave us an unctuous Glabrio; Mr. Harry Plimmer's Tigellinus lacked nothing; Mr. Herbert Leigh was a somewhat younger Nero than usual, and his performance was distinctly good; and Mr. George Chalmers had the rôle of Favius, and he made him dignified.

MISS MAGGIE MOORE has drawn crowded houses with her old Dutch idyll, Struck Oil, at the Palace, and is as light-hearted and is singing as well as ever. The perennial favourite touches all hearts, and her husband, Mr. H. R. Roberts, is a capital John Stopel, although the careless old Dutchman is far away from his metier. The old-time Deacon Skinner (Mr. J. P. West) stands well in the picture, and all the rest of Mr. Allan Hamilton's company are loyal supporters of the stars, who finish on Christmas Eve.

"THE MERRY WIDOW," with enormous booking, will run at the Palace until New Year's Day, and next night Mr. Williamson will stage The Duchess of Dantzic with much splendour.

THE Criterion will be occupied by Mr. William Anderson and his company, headed by Miss Eugénie Duggan, in The Gayest of the Gay.

THE Tivoli has Frank and Jen Latona, J. W. Rickaby, Guest and Newlyn, the Sisters Beno, Goodfellow and Gregson, and the Marconis as the chief attractions in Mr. Harry Rickards's bill.

ON the retirement of Miss Margaret Anglin from the Williamson company, Miss Ola Humphrey was engaged, and with Messrs. Titheradge and Kolker and the rest left for New Zealand on the 19th.

THE SHAKESPEARE.

On Monday, Jan. 25, the Musical Play entitled "THE MERRY WIDOW."

In returning to the regular routine after four weeks of pantomime Mr. H. G. Dudley Bennett has made an excellent start this week with Mr. George Edwardes's No. 1 Company in the musical play The Merry Widow. With such an attraction it was not surprising to find the seating capacity of the Shakespeare taxed to its utmost. From the very start of the play success was assured, and the beautiful music and witty dialogue kept the audience in a state of delight and enthusiasm. The company, without exception, were untiring in their efforts to amuse, and fully merited the applause which was liberally accorded. Upon Miss Nora Barry, as Sonia, devolved the responsibility of playing the leading part, and the whole-hearted manner in which she enacted the rôle of the fascinating and coquettish widow had a material effect on the success of the play. Miss Barry is also the possessor of a sweet voice, and her songs were rendered with arch expression and point. Mr. Leonard Mackay, who has a fine presence, was conspicuously successful in the part of Prince Danilo. He acted throughout with delightful naturalness, and his half-hearted and futile efforts to withstand the subtle and fascinating influence of his former fiancée were in the best light comedy style. Miss Octavia Barry was an attractive Natalie, and sang the music allotted to her in a manner which stamped her a vocalist of considerable ability. Her duets with Mr. Haigh Jackson, who contributed a polished impersonation of her lover, Vicomte de Jolidon, were among the features of the play, and received hearty acknowledgment. Miss Beryl Vaudrey was amusing as Olga Novikovitch and Miss Kathleen Courtney as Sylvanie, and Miss Pollie Edwards as Prascovia were satisfactory in their respective parts. A dainty Frou-Frou is found in Miss Dora Langham, who scored a hit with a new dance, which was chiefly remarkable for its daring evolutions. She was ably assisted by Mr. Alfred H. Majilton as Franz Fall, himself a dancer of no mean ability. The Maxim Girls were pleasingly played by the Misses Elsie Spencer, D. Pennington, Olive Sherry, Phyllis Allen, and Heather Featherstone. Mr. Lionel Victor gave a quaintly comical portrayal of Baron Popoff, whose diplomatic exertions in match making lead to so much hilarity. His droll appearance and witty lines kept the audience in a state of uproarious laughter. Mr. Tom Redmond as Niech is amusing throughout, and makes the most of his many opportunities. Mr. Grafton Williams did well as General Novikovitch, and valuable assistance was rendered by Mr. Somers Bellamy as Marquis de Cascady, Mr. Norman Greene as M. de St. Brioche, Mr. J. S. Durant as M. Khadja, and Mr. Ernest Spalding as a waiter. The piece was staged with Mr. George Edwardes's usual care, and the dresses were superb.

"ALADDIN" AT STRATFORD.

(SECOND NOTICE.)

The continued success of Mr. Fred Fredericks's latest Christmas production is well merited, for it has settled into a bright and merry entertainment, is embellished with much beautiful and artistic scenery, and is treated in the way of dresses with that wealth of colour and picturesqueness to which an Oriental subject like Aladdin so readily lends itself. The dresses could not be seen to better advantage than as displayed by the numberless comely and shapely ladies who shine vocally in such beautiful examples of stage illustration as the "Gold and Silver Mines in the Mountains of the Sun" and "Aladdin's Ivory Palace." Apart from its spectacular effects Aladdin will be long remembered for its mirth-provoking propensities, the well-balanced company working together to this end with the happiest results. Mr. Ernie Mayne's performance as Washee Washee is nothing if not original, and is in high favour. His portly figure in frequently changed nondescript garb in the rôle of an English nobleman travelling in China is so excessively absurd as to at once compel laughter, and his parody songs go wonderfully well, while, though his appearance as Cupid undoubtedly upsets all preconceived juvenile ideas of "The Winged Messenger of Love," it is so ludicrously funny that it is generally voted to be one of the tit-bits of the pantomime. Mr. Arthur Stigant as the Widow Twankey is exceedingly well suited, and simply revels in the part, his unctuous style and ready resource making him an ideal Dame. His "Merry Widow" song, in which some clever business is introduced, is in capital comedy vein, and "A to Z" is another number which makes a decided hit. Mr. Hal Forde as Abanazar, the villain of the piece, who looms so largely in the story, is responsible for a capital performance, having a thorough grasp of the exigencies of the part, and being heard to great advantage in his songs, of which, perhaps, "That's the girl, girl, girlie for you" is in most favour. Miss Ethel Ward, in the title-rôle, is a spirited, refined and handsome Aladdin, whose adventurous career is of entrancing interest to the younger members of the audience, and she wins plenty of applause for her songs, "Hallo, little boy, hallo!" and "Have you got another girl at home like Mary?" Miss Lena Verdi makes a captivating and sparkling Princess Badroulbadour, and if her song "I want to be amongst the boys" is rather rompish for a Princess, it yet is most cordially received; while her flirtation song, "Wouldn't you like to be the bridegroom," and her speciality number introducing impressions of popular vaudeville artists, evoke the warmest approval. Miss Florence Dudley's appropriate acting and distinct delivery are of incalculable value as Pekoe, who is portrayed with a dashing air and genial swagger, while vocally she scores heavily. The Brothers Redmond as the free-and-easy, ubiquitous policemen Bobee and Copee are prime favourites with their knockabout business and merry quips and gags, and their clever speciality act has become quite a prominent feature. Miss Ethel Ashton plays very appropriately as Sau See, and her solo dances are characterised by grace and ease. Mr. Frank Couch portrays the Grand Vizier with a keen sense of humour. Mr. C. Ballard Brown invests the Emperor with the necessary dignity, and is capital in the part; and Mr. J. M. Jones is highly praiseworthy in the pantomimic rôle of the Slave of the Lamp. Of the concerted numbers, special mention must be made of the topical duet, "Ice cream! Baked chestnuts!" which easily finds favour; Aladdin and the Princess's pretty duet, "A tiny seed of love"; and the discourse on "Fishing," between Widow Twankey and Washee, which is uproariously funny.

Mr. Ben Barrow, the chef d'orchestre, does excellently in this important phase of musical exertion, and Mr. A. L. Pitman must be complimented upon his stage-management of what is justly entitled to rank as one of the most successful pantomimes produced at Stratford, and adds another leaf to the laurels of the producer, Mr. Fred Fredericks.

"HER FATAL MARRIAGE."

Drama, in Four Acts, by Clarence Burnette and A. Hinton, produced, for the first time in London, at the Theatre Royal, Woolwich, on Monday, Jan. 25.

Zaco Maletto	MR. ARTHUR HINTON
Wilfred Grey	MR. HARRY TRACEY
Colonel Crichton	MR. GEORGE CHILDS
Jim Rogers	MR. FRED HEWITSON
Paul	MR. GERALD BYRNE
Detective Smart	MR. PERCY MORTON WRIGHT
Peter Pimple	MR. FRANK BRUNNELL
Sergeant Wiggins	MR. LAURENCE GROVE
P.C. Jenkins	MR. WILLIAM BAILEY
Lily	MISS LYDIA AUDREY
Dolly Dimple	MISS LAURA WRIGHT
Myra Maletto	MISS RUTH ZILLWOOD

Introduced before a fairly large gathering on Monday last, the new drama entitled Her Fatal Marriage met with a hearty welcome. The authors, Messrs. Clarence Burnette and Arthur Hinton, have evidently a keen perception of the popular taste in this class of play, and have spared no pains in endeavouring to meet the demands made upon them. They have succeeded in producing a thrilling drama filled to the brim with weird scenes, soul-stirring episodes, and interesting situations, interspersed with refreshing interludes of a mirth-provoking and diverting quality. The audience took every opportunity of showing their appreciation of any virtuous act and their unqualified disapproval of every piece of stage villainy. The mounting of the play is all that can be desired, several of the scenes being very effective.

At the opening of the first act we find Captain Vigo, who afterwards changes his name to Zaco Maletto, examining the jewels the result of the previous night's robbery and the murder of the watchman. He is shortly joined by his confederate, who demands an equal share of the plunder. During the squabble which ensues we are made aware of the past life of Captain Vigo. Ten years ago he had allured from school a girl of tender years, by name Myra, and married her for the sake of her fortune. Having obtained his desire, he brutally ill-treats his wife, and eventually deserts her. Captain Vigo, desiring the whole of the proceeds of the robbery for himself, and considering that his confederate, Jim Rogers, knows too much for his own personal safety, shoots him and makes good his escape. Detective Smart then makes a forcible entry, and finds the dying Jim Rogers, from whom he obtains a statement of the Captain's guilt. In the second act we find Myra Maletto, who believes her husband to be dead, the proprietress of the Crichton Hotel, having been assisted by a lady friend. We then discover that Lily, known as the "white angel," who is a protégée of Myra, is to be married that day to the newly-appointed curate of the parish, who, although unknown to himself, is none other than the son of Myra and Zaco Maletto. Colonel Crichton, who is to be best man at the wedding, offers his heart and hand to Myra, who, believing Zaco Maletto to be dead, accepts him. Zaco here makes his appearance, and, finding how things stand, shoots the Colonel and fastens the blame on the curate, who is arrested for the murder. Zaco Maletto also endeavours to wreak vengeance on Lily by inveigling her to the haunted Blue Room in the Crichton Hotel, but is saved by the strong, though half-witted Paul. A pathetic scene is enacted in the corridor of Truro Jail, when Wilfred Grey is made aware by Myra that he is her son. In the last act the numerous villainies of Zaco Maletto are exposed by documentary evidence, and he is eventually strangled by the half-witted Paul.

Mr. Arthur Hinton essays the rôle of the murderous scoundrel Zaco Maletto, alias Captain Vigo, in a dramatic and effective manner, and sustains the unsympathetic character with much power; Myra Maletto is very ably undertaken by Miss Ruth Zillwood, who gives a painstaking and clever impersonation of the much ill-used wife; Mr. Harry Tracey offers a quiet rendering of the part of Wilfred Grey, and makes a favourable impression; Mr. George Childs is suitably placed as Colonel Crichton, and makes the most of his opportunities; and the same may be said for Mr. Fred Hewitson as Jim Rogers. Mr. Gerald Byrne as the half-witted Paul submits a good delineation, and becomes very popular; Mr. Percy Morton Wright makes a capable Detective Smart; Peter Pimple is amusingly portrayed by Mr. Frank Brunnell, who provides a large amount of comedy business and is well received; Mr. Laurence Grove scores well as Sergeant Wiggins; Mr. William Bailey makes a suitable Jenkins; Miss Laura Wright is extremely diverting as Dolly Dimple; and Miss Lydia Audrey makes her mark and looks charming as Lily, the white angel.

DALSTON THEATRE.

On Monday, Jan. 25, the pantomime entitled "BLUEBEARD."

Pantomime is ruling supreme at the Dalston Theatre this week, the entertainment being provided by Mr. C. St. John Denton and Mr. Peter Davey's company. The libretto is founded on the well-known story of Bluebeard, and is supplied by Mr. Hugh Mytton, who is also responsible for the lyrics. The entire production has been devised and arranged by Mr. Peter Davey, and produced by Mr. H. Buckstone Clair. Certain scenes, for which Mr. Julian Hicks is responsible, are worthy of special mention, notably the Summer Palace of Bazouka, View from the Look-out Tower on the Ramparts, and the Fête of the Roses. The performance is an extremely amusing one; in fact, the audience is kept in an almost continuous roar of laughter. Mr. Ben Albert is a centre of attraction as Bluebeard, Bashaw of Bazouka, and his songs, "Why" and "They'll play for hours," go remarkably well. A mock love scene between him and Sister Ann (Mr. Ernest Rees) is a good specimen of broad comedy. Mr. Rees is decidedly funny all through the pantomime, and his cool, undisturbed manner adds considerably to the mirth. His description of a tramcar ride starts people rolling about in their seats. Another side-splitting turn is when he appears as a prima donna and Mr. Ben Albert assumes the rôle of musical director. Mr. Ben Albert, at another stage of the performance, appears as a bookmaker on a racecourse, and together with Messrs. Ferguson and Mack (two disappointed gamblers) helps to produce many aching sides. Ferguson and Mack are the boatswain and mate of the P. and O. steamer Merrie England, and their various adventures throughout the performance add to the general hilarity. Mr. Harold Carson is quaint as Mustapha, a manufacturer of spurious whisky. Much praise is due to Miss Addie Lennard for the decidedly vivacious way in which she impersonates the character of Selim. Her singing is pleasing, and her dancing neat, although sprightly. Miss Violet Vaughan looks smart in uniform as Lieut. Persey Pryde, of the Merrie England, and the rendering of the song "A White Man" is much applauded. Miss Ellen Cunningham is also a success as Shacabac; and Miss Lydia Flopp is evidently a favourite as Fatima, playing the part with considerable grace. Miss Lottie Sargent as Wilhelmina from Zuyder Zee renders the popular ditty "I couldn't come home in the dark." Mr. Harold Clemence impersonates Esau, a tame baboon, and contributes a fair share to the general hilarity of the evening.

"FROM SHOP GIRL TO DUCHESS."

Drama, in Four Acts, by Charles Darrell, originally produced on Monday, Nov. 25, 1907, at the Theatre Royal, Bilston. First London production on Monday, Jan. 25, at the Lyric, Hammersmith.

Duke of St. Baynum	MR. DOUGLAS CECIL
Lord St. Orbotrude	MR. DOUGLAS TREMAYNE
Sir Morris Maitland	MR. T. LIONEL ELLIS
Gilbert Spate	MR. FRANK S. STRICKLAND
Tommy Tinkler	MR. HENRY GERALD
M. Scalameux	MR. F. HENLEY
Corbet	MR. ROY WHARTON
Mason	MR. E. S. NUTTALL
Isabel, Dowager Duchess of St. Baynum	MISS AMY B. ELLIS
Lady Cinderella Portcullis	MISS FLORRIE GROVES
Lady Celeste Delamere	MISS BEATRICE HUDSON
Tilly Dobson	MISS GEORGIE HAWKINS
Gertrude Haynes	MISS QUEENIE LAMONT
Fifine	MISS DORA WOODBERRY
Sylvia Grey, the Shop Girl	MISS MARY NEIL

Miss Mary Neil and Mr. George Kirk's company in this drama is proving a particularly strong attraction at Bilston this week, and the reason is apparent: a well-written play, appealing strongly to the sympathy of the audience, cleverly acted all round.

Gilbert Spate, the draper, an unprincipled blackguard, having betrayed and got tired of one assistant, Gertrude Haynes, seeks to encompass the downfall of Sylvia Grey, who, however, scorns his overtures. Gertrude tells her life's story to Sylvia, and hands her a document proving that her father was a peer, when Spate interrupts, and, sending Gertrude on an errand, charges Sylvia with theft. Spate's scheme to ruin Sylvia is rendered abortive by the arrival of the Duke and Dowager Duchess seeking for their lost relative, Gertrude, who has just been killed in a street accident. Sylvia at once claims to be the lost relation, and proves her claim by the aforementioned document.

In the second act we find Sylvia living with the Dowager Duchess in her town house, loved by and in love with the young Duke, and hated by Lady Celeste, who hoped, until her arrival, to become the Duchess. The doctor, Sir Morris Maitland, suspects that Sylvia is not the lost relative, and, taxing her with her fraud, confirms his suspicions. Finding, however, that she is no ordinary impostor, he counsels her to go on as she is. The Duke declares his love, and when Sylvia says that first of all she has a confession to make, he refuses to listen, demanding only her love, which she gives him. A visit she receives from two of her old shop friends proves an awful shock to her high-bred friends, who object to meeting such people. Sylvia and the Duke are married, and whilst the ceremony is being performed Spate meets Lady Celeste, who is longing for revenge. He has discovered other papers in Gertrude Haynes's box proving Sylvia's deception, and so together they go to Charing Cross Station, and, meeting the bride and bridegroom in a reserved waiting-room, denounce Sylvia's fraud, with the result that the Duke casts her off, and goes on alone. The train meets with an accident, and the shock therefrom causes him to go blind.

Sylvia gets an engagement as flower-stall attendant at the hotel in Marienbad, which her husband and his family afterwards visit. The doctor operates on his eyes and bandages them, saying that with no excitement and if the bandages are left on for some time he will be all right again. Lady Celeste gets Spate (in disguise) the post of attendant to the Duke, who has again declined her love, and although he contemplates getting his marriage annulled, says he will never re-marry. In order to be revenged Lady Celeste, who has recognised the flower-seller, arranges with Spate to take off the bandage when Sylvia is selling her husband a buttonhole, with the result that the excitement of seeing her, whom he still loves, makes him dangerously ill again. Tommy Tinkler and Tilly Dobson, two of Spate's old assistants, have married meantime, and with the money given them by Sylvia on her wedding eve purchased Spate's old premises on his bankruptcy, and to them Sylvia returns, awaiting her husband's recovery, when she looks forward to him reclaiming her. He comes to the shop as soon as he is well, but Spate also turns up, this time to denounce Sylvia as his former mistress. But his triumph is short-lived, as Tilly proves this impossible. Spate is handed over to the police, but Sylvia spurns the Duke's love as worthless, as it does not contain any trust. She is quickly brought back again to his side, however, by his pretence of going blind again, and so a happy ending is secured.

As Sylvia Miss Mary Neil excels herself. Remembering her fine work in Her Luck in London, one expected a good performance, and good it is throughout. Miss Neil's pathetic performance causes more tears to be shed by the audience than we have seen for many a day. She held the house enthralled right through the play, receiving several individual curtains at the end of every act. It is difficult to recall a more perfect performance in melodrama. As Arnold, Duke of St. Baynum, Mr. Douglas Cecil gives an excellent study, and meets with much approval. Mr. T. Lionel Ellis is distinctly good as Sir Morris Maitland. Mr. Frank S. Strickland makes Gilbert Spate a most detestable person. That clever and lively little lady, Miss Florrie Groves, is well suited as Lady Cinderella, to whom Lord St. Orbotrude is an excellent foil for her sharp remarks, the latter character being capitally played by Mr. Douglas Tremayne. Miss Beatrice Hudson does well as the scheming Lady Celeste Delamere; Miss Amy B. Ellis is a satisfactory Dowager Duchess of St. Baynum; Miss Queenie Lamont is good as Gertrude Haynes; Mr. Henry Gerald as Tommy Tinkler and Miss Georgie Hawkins as Tilly Dobson cause plenty of amusement in their respective parts. The play is well staged, and the whole production reflects great credit upon Miss Mary Neil and Mr. George Kirk. Mr. Douglas Tremayne also acts as their general-manager. Mr. Wentworth Croke is making some further alterations to his already particularly cosy house, which will add still further to the comfort of his dress-circle patrons.

THEATRE ROYAL, STRATFORD.

On Monday, Jan. 25, the Drama, in Four Acts, by Hubert Scardon, entitled "SEND HIM VICTORIOUS."

For his second week at the Stratford Theatre Royal Mr. Montague Beaudyn is presenting Send Him Victorious, with a different company to that which was here last week, and on the opening night the piece (which had its initial London performance here in May last) had a very cordial reception from a packed house. The piece is exceedingly well mounted, and the handsome uniforms and dresses elicit much admiration. Mr. Oliver Birrell as the gallant Captain Frank Allison plays with buoyancy and fluency, and Mr. G. M. Montanini as the scheming Colonel Kaufmann acts with much power and discretion. Mr. Frank Holyoake portrays the King of Ravonia very appropriately; Mr. James Archer does well as the Prison Governor; Mr. John Baxter makes an admirable Major Carl Strauss; Sergeant Max is portrayed on sound lines by Mr. Edward Lowrie; and Mr. Bert Woodin is an active and amusing Johnnie Walker. Miss Katherine Herbert portrays the Countess Kara von Mechlinberg with much expression and latent strength; Miss Isabelle Hunt is a graceful and sympathetic Ethel Harding; and Miss Madge Palmer is a bright and entertaining Gretchen Holtz. Minor parts are in quite capable hands.

ACTORS' ASSOCIATION.

Minutes of the Council meeting held at 353, Strand, on Tuesday, Jan. 26. Present: Mr. Robson Paige (in the chair), Messrs. C. Walker, Richard Green, C. Derwent, F. J. Arlton, C. F. Collings, Cecil Raleigh, F. Morland, J. Poole Kirkwood, Miss Rose Mathews, Miss Marion Lind, and Mr. Herbert Blount, secretary. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. A letter was read from Messrs. Boots, Ltd., regretting their inability to exempt members of the A.A. from the extra fee of travelling exchange. A letter was also read from Dr. Allan Bennett thanking the Council for appointing him hon. medical officer at Torquay.

Letters were read from Miss Lena Ashwell, Mr. Fred Terry, and Mr. Martin Harvey enclosing their membership tickets, as the writers did not consider themselves members owing to the decision arrived at with regard to managers belonging to the A.A. The secretary received instructions to return the subscriptions paid through the bank, at the same time expressing regret at losing them as members, and pointing out that they were still eligible.

The hon. solicitor's report enclosed an account of charges for the year ending Dec. 31 last amounting to £7. This included hearing fee and issuing fee in an action, and the stamp on tenancy agreement, together amounting to £2. The £5, the usual fee charged for cabs, 'buses, telegrams, stamps, &c., during the past six months, they proposed to remit. The report added that advice had been given and letters written on behalf of members.

The Finance Committee's report was read by Mr. Arlton, and adopted. The secretary received instructions to write to a member informing him that several complaints had been made with regard to his conduct, and that any repetition of these complaints would be met by the enforcement of Clause 6 of the Articles of Association.

A vote of condolence with Mrs. Hamilton Bell (Miss Georgina Hamilton) on the death of her son was unanimously passed.

A vote of thanks was passed to Mr. Morland for his speech at the meeting on the 17th inst.

ACTORS' UNION.

At the usual committee meeting of the Actors' Union, held on the 22nd inst., at 49, Bedford-street, Strand, the following members were present:—Messrs. F. Rawson Buckley (chairman), Walter L Rignold, W. H. Bulbeck, Robert M. Taylor, Langford Reed, Henry Bedford, Cecil G. Calvert, Leslie Arthur, James English, E. Howard Templeton, Frank Gerald, Clifford Rean, Paul Lovett, and Kenneth Blackmore (secretary). Communications were received from the following members of the committee:—Messrs. Bruce Lindley, J. Hastings Batson, Jerrold Heather, Arthur Bawtree, Geo P. Lester, D. Lewin-Mannering, and Edward Chester. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed.

The time for the payment of the annual subscription in advance was extended to Feb. 1, to meet the convenience of members.

A proposal that the interim report from the Club Board be accepted by the committee was carried.

The secretary was instructed to inform a member that no reply had yet been received from a manager who owed her two weeks' salary. He was also directed to request the hon. solicitor to write the manager again upon the subject. The secretary was also instructed to inform another member that on the advice of the solicitor her case could not be taken up, and to point out to her Rule 29, Clause D. Another member was informed that as he himself had given a fortnight's notice, he could not claim the railway fare back to London.

ACTORS' INSURANCE.

The following letter has been addressed by Mr. Charles H. E. Brookfield to the principal West End actors and managers:—"Dear Sir,—Some time ago I devised a system of life assurance to suit the peculiar requirements of actors and others whose income is so variable and intermittent that it is difficult or impossible to continue the payment of fixed premiums at regular intervals. My idea is that premiums, small or large, shall be paid at any times and intervals convenient to the policyholder (e.g., in the case of an actor during the time he is in engagement), and that every such payment shall secure to him a certain definite amount of assurance, no part of which is lost if further premiums are not paid regularly, or even if no further premiums at all are paid. Thus, if an actor in receipt of £5 a week during an engagement of twenty weeks chooses to invest £1 per fortnight in life assurance he has at the end of his twenty weeks insured himself by the payment of premiums amounting to £10 for a certain sum at death, even though he should never pay another shilling.

"This scheme of mine has now been put into practicable form by a first-class office—the Commercial Union Assurance Co., Ltd., 24, 25, and 26, Cornhill, E.C., who will issue these life assurance policies by optional premiums. They offer a further convenience, viz., should anyone desiring to take out a policy be disinclined to undergo a medical examination, such examination will be waived subject to the condition that the assurance secured by any premium shall not vest until three years from the date of the payment of the premium; the premium, with compound interest, being paid to those legally entitled to it, however, in the event of death during those three years. The system is applicable not only to whole-life policies, but also to endowment assurance maturing at a certain age.

"Should you be favourably impressed with this scheme and desire to avail yourself of its advantages, or, in any case, to have further particulars of it, I shall be glad if you will communicate with me at the Rectory House, 3, Devonshire-square, Bishopsgate-street, E.C."

THE works of Clark and Co., dyers and cleaners, Retford, are fitted with the latest machinery and appliances for cleaning, dyeing, and finishing every kind of article of professional wear. They are lighted by electricity generated by their own plant, and many of the machines are electrically driven. Newly built and situated in the country, every attention has been paid to sanitation, and all the work is carried out in well-ventilated and lighted buildings under the most comfortable conditions for the workers. Clark and Co. are specialists in dry-cleaning, and have brought the process nearly to perfection. No unpicking whatever is now required, and articles cleaned by them have no disagreeable odour, nor is there any risk of alteration in shape or colour or of shrinkage. The dyeing department, which is in touch with the best English and Continental practice, has all the latest colours, and long experience and perfect equipment in this branch enable this firm to obtain the best results possible.

PRODUCTION OF "PIPPA PASSES."

The English Drama Society, which has been responsible for so many interesting productions, has found quarters at the Fortune Playhouse, a bijou hall in Brewer-street, off Regent-street, which is reputed to be the oldest concert-room in the metropolis. It was built, with the house adjoining, in 1737 for Mr. John Hickford, a famous dancing master of that period, and the first concert took place in it a year later. From that date till about 1770 it was one of London's fashionable resorts, but during the last hundred years it has been overlooked as a place of public entertainment. On Monday afternoon last the Fortune was the scene of the presentation of Pippa Passes, Browning's dramatic poem, which has formerly been represented chiefly by excerpts at recitals, and has not been given in its entirety for many years. The piece, which was given without entr'actes, is actually a series of dramatic duologues, with a sort of chorus as a connecting link. Browning's glowing verse is usually sufficient of itself to stimulate the imagination of the reader, and when the difficulties of his lines and the indistinctness which often accompanies their delivery are taken into account, it would seem that little is gained by its transference to the footlights.

"Pippa Passes" was first published by Browning in 1841. The idea came to him while walking in a wood near Dulwich, and it was written more to please the poet himself than from any other motive. Students of Browning will remember that the story deals with the Sicilian silk-worker Pippa, who is about to enjoy her one holiday out of the whole year, and in an ecstacy of delight at the prospect soliloquises as to how she will dispose of her day. First she will be in imagination the young and wealthy Ottima, then the renowned sculptor Jules, then the gallant Luigi; and, lastly, the pious Monsignor. After all comes the thought that each is equal in the sight of God, and she goes on her way rejoicing. Her song reaches the ears in turn of the individuals named, and exercises an immediate influence. A lover who has murdered his guilty partner's husband is moved to remorse, to hatred of his mistress, and to the poison cup; a sculptor who determines upon the death of a group of students in order to revenge a practical joke is turned from his purpose; a revolutionary meditating the assassination of a tyrant is strengthened in his resolve to sacrifice himself for his country; and a monsignor, deep in a mercenary compact with an unscrupulous scoundrel, is induced to render swift justice. Browning's antagonism to the Church of Rome, which is repeatedly displayed in his works, finds expression in the last-named character, and to parade before the public such a misrepresentation of a dignitary of the Church at a time when a nation is recovering from a terrible calamity seems at the least unkind.

The limitations of room were evident on Monday afternoon, Pippa's passage being made by way of the narrow space which separated the audience from the platform, while the students hatched their grim plot in the same restricted area. The performance, nevertheless, aroused keen interest and no little enthusiasm in an audience naturally small. The title-rôle was rendered with painstaking care by Miss Isabel Roland, who moved through her part with agreeable buoyancy. She spoke the long soliloquy of the opening with well-judged emphasis, though her lines were not always distinctly uttered. Miss Lucy Wilson was the Ottima, and gave an artistically coloured performance, sounding the depths of emotion in the tragic episode with her lover Sebald. For that character the services of Mr. Gordon Bailey, who is appearing as Macbeth at a neighbouring theatre, were secured, and the part had a rendition of great dramatic excellence, admirably varied in treatment and elocutionally effective. The presentation of the scene between the guilty pair, indeed, came as near to the electrifying acting of the native performers who astonished London theatregoers a couple of years ago as anything we have witnessed, and the clever couple were recalled a number of times. Mr. Gordon Bailey acquitted himself with equal credit in the rôle of the befooled sculptor, and the mock bride Phene, who has learnt to love the man she has conspired against, was prettily played by Miss Muriel Carmel. Earnestness and care marked the portrayal of Luigi by Mr. Guy Fletcher; and the mother, though a little too youthful in appearance, was impressively acted by Miss Lola Duncan. A skilful embodiment, which erred, however, on the side of extravagance, was submitted by Mr. Max Montesole as the Archbishop, whose cunning was made a little too sharp and his senility too pronounced. Mr. Cecil A. Collins added to the engrossing effect of the scene by his finished study of the intendant. Mr. Roderick Macleod supplied a neat sketch of a young Englishman, and the subordinate parts were fairly well played, though distinctness of enunciation was not always the first consideration. The performance was under the direction of Mr. Nugent Monck, and was repeated on three subsequent afternoons.

GUILDHALL SCHOOL OF MUSIC.

The first concert of the present term, given on Wednesday evening, commenced with a well-played solo, Bach's Fugue in B minor, by Mr. Kenneth A. Brown. Miss Daisy Scott, who sang the "Slave Song" (Riego), should avoid forcing her voice, as she has ample power, and otherwise gave a pleasing rendering of the air. Miss Constance Wrigley also deserved praise for her carefully-executed violin solo, "Romance," from Second Concerto, Wieniawski. In the song of Nevin's, "The Rosary," Miss Mary Newbery received hearty applause; and Mr. Arthur O. Duley gave an excellent account of Schumann's pianoforte solo, "Romance," Nos. 1 and 2, Op. 28. Mr. William Doe, who has a fine voice, gave a remarkably good interpretation of Gounod's famous aria "Lend me your aid" (Irene), and his clear enunciation was very commendable. A violin solo, Vieuxtemps' charming Aria and Gavotte, from Suite in D, was admirably played by Miss Kitty Loveland; and Miss Dorothy Killik had a most hearty recall after her singing of "Mountain Lovers." The dense fog on Wednesday night no doubt accounted for the absence in the programme of two clever students, Miss Hicks, pianist, and Miss Gipsy Turner, pupil of Madame H. Armstrong, who was set down for Clarke's song "Heart's Delight." Mr. Stanley F. Hosier's organ solo, Fantasia in C minor (Hesse), was well received by the audience; and Mr. A. N. Allnutt displayed intelligence in Purcell's song "Arise, ye subterranean winds." The concert concluded with a recitation, "At the Opera" (Owen Meredith), charmingly given by Miss Peri Pawson, a clever pupil of Miss Kate Rorke. Miss Jenny Hyman was the accompanist.

"WHAT LOVE CAN DO."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—The humour of your correspondent's, Mr. Basil Young, remark respecting his exclusion from birthday honours is too recondite for my penetration; he has my assurance, however, that so far as I am concerned, he remains in undisputed possession of the title.

I should be thankful if you would allow me to add that my play—a melodrama—was written for, and accepted by, Mr. Fred J. Little, who announced it for early production in his advertisements in your columns during June and July, 1907; hence, to say the least of it, Mr. Young's protest is somewhat belated.—Faithfully yours,

RICHARD A. GREENE.

ACTORS' BENEVOLENT FUND.

Mr. George Alexander (in the absence of Sir Charles Wyndham, on the Continent) presided at the annual general meeting of the Actors' Benevolent Fund, held on the stage of the Criterion Theatre on Thursday afternoon. He was supported by Sir Squire Bancroft, Mr. Edward Terry, Mr. Cyril Maude, Mr. R. Morand, Mr. Harry Nicholls, Mr. Charles Cruickshanks, and amongst others present were the Rev. Arthur Brinckman, Mr. Henry Evill, Miss Mary Moore, Miss Lilian Braithwaite, Miss Clara Jecks, Miss Edith Blande, Mr. P. de Pinto, Mr. P. Blunt, Mr. Algernon Syms, Mr. Frank Weathersby, Mrs. Charles Gay, Mr. E. Clarke, and Mr. C. I. Coltson (secretary).

The CHAIRMAN, in opening the proceedings, said: Before beginning the work of the day I think we actors and actresses would feel glad to express some tribute to the memory of the great actor who has just passed away—M. Coquelin. In the absence of your president, I should like to tell you that it was his happiness and his good fortune, if I may say so, to be with M. Coquelin during the later stages of his illness. Only a few days ago I received a letter from Sir Charles Wyndham, in which he prophesied that the end would not be very far off, and he told me that he had been in constant attendance upon Coquelin, and that upon one particular night he stayed with him for many hours. On that occasion Sir Charles had been able, as he thought, by utilising his knowledge as a doctor, to save the great comedian some pain by administering massage to his poor fading body. I think it is a very wonderful thing that the two greatest actors of our time, and perhaps of any time, should have had the privilege of dying in so romantic and touching an atmosphere. Our great past president, Sir Henry Irving, could not have wished a nobler death than to have spoken the great words of Tennyson just before the fatal hour, and I am sure we who take an interest in, and have sympathy for, the Actors' Benevolent Fund, could wish for ourselves no sweeter parting than that which has fallen to the lot of Coquelin, because not long before his end he expressed a wish to go to the Actors' Rest, a place which he himself had built, and I cannot but think that he was perfectly conscious the end was very near, and that he felt the most fitting place in which to pass his last hours would be amongst those of his own profession who had not had the fortune he himself had in it. I do not know whether his great friend, Sir Squire Bancroft, would wish to add a word to this tribute, but if so, we should be very glad to hear him.

Sir SQUIRE BANCROFT associated himself with the Chairman's expression of regret at the death of M. Coquelin, saying: Everything that can be said as to the great lass which has just happened to our calling has been said so eloquently and touchingly by Mr. George Alexander that I would only add a very small postscript. I have known Coquelin for very many years, and had the privilege some years ago of seeing a great deal of him in his own simple, joyous domestic life in his beloved Paris, and that which touched me so much was the beautiful illustration in himself of that feeling which seems enshrined as it were in the hearts of all good Frenchmen—the sweetest, most beautiful, and most tender love for his old mother. It left a great impression upon my mind, and I cordially endorse all that Mr. Alexander has said. We have all lost not only a great artist, but a very fine fellow. Sir Squire concluded by proposing a vote of condolence with the family of M. Coquelin.

Mr. EDWARD TERRY seconded, and the motion was carried sub silentio.

The SECRETARY then read the report and balance-sheet, which were as follow:—

In submitting to the members the accounts for the past year, the committee regret to have to report a considerable reduction in the number of subscribers and in the amount of their subscriptions, the total sum subscribed being but £745 16s., and the number of subscribers being only 579. Notwithstanding this falling-off the committee have assisted 1,985 cases and voted in relief the sum of £4,067 9s. 7d.

An analysis of the work of the Fund for the past six years will be found in the abstract of report and statement of accounts.

The committee's cordial and grateful thanks are tendered to Mr. Cyril Maude for presiding at the Fund's Annual Dinner on Sunday, the 13th of last December, when through his eloquent appeal a sum of over £1,100 was given and promised in support of the Fund.

Many of our leading actors and actresses have devoted to the Fund the money they have obtained in exchange for their autographs, and the committee have gratefully to report that the sum from this source benefited the Fund to the extent of £71 15s. 3d.

The committee gratefully acknowledge the receipt of £21 from Mr. Aubrey Smith on account of the cricket matches organised for the benefit of theatrical charities, and most cordially thank the organisers of the matches, and also the players, who so readily gave their services in the cause of the Fund. It is to be regretted that the weather was somewhat unfavourable.

The committee earnestly hope that those who are kindly collecting at the theatres for the Fund will use their best endeavours to make the Actors' Saturday Collection for 1909 a record sum.

The committee appeal to every actor and actress to contribute to the collection which is now being made throughout the United Kingdom for the benefit of those in the dramatic profession who have "fallen by the way" and are in need of assistance. The sum of £4,057 9s. 7d. has been granted in relief during the past year. A subscription of ten shillings carries with it not only a first claim upon the Fund for pecuniary help, but it also gives the power to recommend deserving applicants.

It is requested that contributions be handed to the gentlemen who are kindly collecting at the theatres. By order,

C. I. COLTSON, Secretary.

London, Jan. 15, 1909.

The CHAIRMAN, in proposing the adoption of the balance-sheet, said that the most satisfactory phase of the report was that they had been able to give more than £6,000 to distressed actors and actresses. The members of the theatrical profession were said to number between 6,000 and 7,000, and in view of this it was rather surprising that they did not get a larger number of small subscriptions. Their income during the past year from subscriptions was a little over £700, and the greater part of that sum had been subscribed by the men and women in the profession who had been for many years the mainstay of the Fund. He thought it was a pity that a greater number of actors and actresses denied themselves the pleasure of sending trifling sums to the Actors' Benevolent Fund. If only all of the six or seven thousand in the profession would make up their minds to send a shilling each, the receipts would be more than doubled. They had been very much indebted to Mr. Cyril Maude for his work at the annual dinner. He (the chairman) thought that it was a very good idea to hold the dinner on a Sunday evening, and he was sure that it was the opinion of everyone present that the dinner was a very great success financially and that the dignity of the profession had been worthily upheld by Mr. Cyril Maude, who delivered a most eloquent and beautiful speech. He now proposed that the balance-sheet be accepted.

Mr. CYRIL MAUDE seconded, and the resolution was carried unanimously.

The Rev. ARTHUR BRINCKMAN, in proposing a vote of thanks to the committee, stated that those gentlemen worked on the excellent principle of keeping themselves in touch with all matters connected with the fund. No fewer than two thousand actors and actresses had been assisted, and that involved a vast amount of work.

Mr. SPENCER TREVOR seconded, and the vote was carried.

Mr. EDWARD TERRY, replying on behalf of the committee, said that all they did was a labour of love. They had always found it a most painful thing to have to say "No" to an applicant. They tried to deal out their charity in the kindest possible way, and sometimes they were not always open-eyed to the failings of their brother actors. Over £4,000 had been given away in the course of the past year. But that was not all. They assisted in other ways by sending poor actors to convalescent homes, and by providing surgical aid. He agreed with the chairman that there should be a larger number of small subscriptions.

Mr. M. R. MORAND proposed, and Mr. SYDNEY PAXTON seconded, a vote of thanks to, and the re-election of the hon. standing counsel, Mr. J. Safford; the hon. solicitors, Messrs. J. Mote and Son; the hon. auditors, Messrs. W. Westcott, Maskall, and Co.; and the hon. physicians and dentists, Drs. G. Stoker, F. Horton Villanueva, C. Atkin Swan, R. P. Middlemist, Mr. Hubert J. Wooldridge, and Mr. P. de Pinto. These votes were carried.

At this stage three scrutineers were appointed, the gentlemen selected being Mr. Aubrey Smith, Mr. Henry Evill, and Mr. P. de Pinto.

Sir SQUIRE BANCROFT proposed the re-election of Sir Charles Wyndham as President of the Fund. He (Sir Squire) felt that he could say no more than that there was no one in the profession who had not only opened his heart to the Fund, but as liberally and as largely opened his purse.

Mr. HARRY NICHOLLS seconded, and the proposal was carried with acclamation.

Mr. CYRIL MAUDE asked to allowed to make a suggestion. He stated that he could not help thinking, after some conversation he had had lately with people who were interested in Actors' Day, that it would be an excellent thing for the Actors' Benevolent Fund if, week after week, some publicity were given—not by any mention of the names of the recipients of the charity—to the circumstances of the actual cases cared for by the Fund through the medium of the two theatrical organs. He had found that Mr. Edward Terry held the same opinion. He stated that on behalf of the Actors' Orphanage penny collections were being made in every theatre in the United Kingdom. Could they not organise a subscription throughout the country of at least a shilling a year from actors and actresses on behalf of the Actors' Benevolent Fund?

Mr. TERRY thought that the idea enunciated by Mr. Maude was an admirable one, and the committee would take into consideration the question of a shilling subscription. He concluded by proposing a vote of thanks to Mr. George Alexander for taking the chair on that occasion. This was duly seconded and carried.

The CHAIRMAN, in acknowledging the vote of thanks, assured his hearers that some of the suggestions that had been made would receive favourable consideration at the hands of the committee. He thought that the dignity of their profession was preserved by their not having benefits for the Actors' Benevolent Fund, and he was also of the opinion that the profession did a great deal more than its share for the outside charities of London. During the last twelve months no less than £12,000 had been obtained in this way from thirteen of the London theatres. There had arisen in charitable works in London, especially in regard to performances at theatres, a certain kind of entrepreneur who was, perhaps, more liberal to himself than to the object for which the entertainment was being given. In his (Mr. Alexander's) own theatre he had lately been very careful—so had Mr. Cyril Maude, Mr. Beerbohm Tree, and others—to see that the expenses of these performances were kept within their proper limits. He knew of one performance that was given at the St. James's Theatre, where the receipts were considerably over £400, and where the charity only received a little over £90, the gentleman who managed the performance receiving about £50. These were matters that should be looked into by managers who lent their theatres for such purposes.

A vote of thanks to Miss Mary Moore and Sir Charles Wyndham for the use of the Criterion Theatre—Miss MOORE replying in a few well-chosen words—brought the the meeting to a close.

MR. ALEXANDER AND MERCY.

Mr. and Mrs. George Alexander were "at home" on Thursday afternoon at the St. James's Theatre to the members of the newly-established South St. Pancras District of the League of Mercy. It had been hoped that Princess Christian of Schleswig-Holstein would be present, but her Royal Highness was unable to leave Windsor owing to the fog, which, of course, affected the attendance.

Mr. GEORGE ALEXANDER, who presided at the meeting, expressed regret that up to the present little had been done in South St. Pancras for the League of Mercy, though the district had helped many of its own charities. The League had done marvellous work, thanks to personal service, and it was with a view to adding to that service that he made an appeal. The League and, he hoped, that branch would soon prove themselves able to assist in a work which his Majesty and the Royal Family had so much at heart. He hoped that South St. Pancras would put its shoulder to the wheel, and create a district for the League of Mercy, as the other divisions of the borough had done. The free and other hospitals owed much to the energy of the Lord Mayor and other Mayors. Over £116,000 had been collected by the League since its incorporation by Royal charter ten years ago, for the London hospitals, and over £3,496 for hospitals outside the radius. It had all been done by personal service, and many of the poor were eager to add their mites. He hoped that the South St. Pancras Branch would prove of real value to the League.

Sir W. J. COLLINS, M.P., said Mr. Alexander had won the affections of the playgoing public, then the suffrages of the South St. Pancras voters, and now, like his famous predecessor, sighed for new worlds to conquer. The speaker paid eloquent tribute to the way in which the drama, of which Mr. Alexander was so honoured a representative, had often co-operated in the great work of charity.

Mrs. RODWELL, a lady Vice-President of the Fulham district, then addressed the meeting, and Mr. Alexander announced that Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Irving had accepted the positions of Vice-Presidents.

Mr. H. B. IRVING said he had learnt for the first time that he lived in South St. Pancras, though he had paid rates and taxes there for some years. He accepted the responsibility of obtaining £1 from wealthy subscribers, with the wholesome feeling at the back that if he did not get it from them he would have to make up the amount himself. He noted that the South St. Pancras branch of the League would, as they said at Oxford, get a first class, or, at any rate, something more than a pass degree.

Councillor EDWARD T. HERON, J.P. and Mayor of St. Pancras, having supported a vote of thanks to the speakers, which had been moved by the Rev. E. L. METCALFE, Vicar of St. Pancras, it was carried.

Captain H. M. JESSEL moved and Alderman DONALD MCGREGOR seconded a vote of thanks to Mr. and Mrs. George Alexander, the latter alluding to that lady's activity in the borough. Addressing Mr. Alexander, Mr. McGregor said: "We know what your work has been, and wish you further fields of usefulness, honour, and credit."

The vote was carried unanimously.

Mr. ALEXANDER, in reply, explained to the meeting the method of appointing Vice-Presidents, and hoped he would have sufficient volunteers to make up the thirty which were required. He and Mrs. Alexander were glad to feel that they had made some friends in South St. Pancras. He hoped next year to thank them all for much good service.

After the meeting, Mrs. Alexander entertained those on the stage to tea, amongst them being the Countess of Kinnoul, Miss Bateman, and Miss Lilian Braithwaite.

Although this work follows familiar lines, its appealing powers to all who favour strong melodrama are particularly great, and the enthusiasm of those who witnessed it on Monday night would indicate that its acceptance, wherever presented, is assured. Mr. Morton Powell, husband of the authoress, has gathered about him an able company, who interpret the play very effectively, while the scenery and dresses are most appropriate. Comedy of a very diverting type is in plentiful supply, and this was richly enjoyed—in fact, on Monday evening the audience at times laughed as heartily as if they were being treated to a pantomime. The more serious parts of the play are "gripping," and the adventures of the persecuted girl who forms the central figure in the story hold the attention to the end.

The narrative sets forth that Jessie Burton, a laundry girl, is in love with Harry Hailing, a naval seaman away on foreign service. Her beauty attracts Philip Edge, otherwise Dare, a barrister aspiring to a judgeship, whose moral character is not of the best. He endeavours to entice the girl away from home by means of a bribe to her stepmother, Mrs. Burton, and on Jessie resisting both, she is turned out of the house. Dare's assistant, Solomon Sleep, takes compassion on the girl wandering about the streets, and offers her shelter for the night at "the bower of bliss"—a house kept by Edge. The sailor, Hailing, discovers the whereabouts of his sweetheart, and arrives to rescue her, but is badly assaulted, the girl being taken away to another resort. Twelve months afterwards Edge, having by promises induced Jessie to live with him, tires of her; but his former mistress, Winnie Waters, befriends the girl, and knowing that Edge is Dare, whose appointment to a judgship is at this time announced, threatens to expose him unless he does the right thing by Jessie. The villain engages Sleep to get rid of the child, and turns the girl away. She endeavours to obtain work, and wanders back to her old home; but here the presence of her child and the story of how she left with a strange man tell against her, and all her associates cast her off. Meanwhile, Edge has offered a large sum of money for the removal of the child, whereupon the stepmother finds out the lodgings of the girl and strangles it, Jessie being arrested for the crime. When being sentenced to death she recognises the judge as Edge, who had been her ruin, and denounces him in Court. Subsequently Sleep, who had witnessed the murder, fixes the crime on the right shoulders, and Jessie is released. Edge, after expressing sorrow for his misdeeds, poisons himself, and the sailor and the girl are united.

Miss Rona Merrick acted the part of Jessie with a pathetic sweetness that found the utmost favour, and frequently the audience watched her with breathless interest. Mrs. Morton Powell as the repentent Winnie Waters lent admirable support; Mr. Walter Steele made a robust and convincing sailor lover; as Edge, Mr. Wallace Clark showed much dramatic strength, his delivery being particularly good; Mr. Alric Burton handled the part of Solomon Sleep in a most satisfactory fashion, his hypocritical manners being capitally expressed; endless laughter followed the work of Mr. Sidney Bryant, the coster, and Miss Jeannie Risley, a humorous workgirl; particularly fine was the character sketch of the vulgar lodging-house keeper Mrs. Slutt, given by Miss Addie Adair; and Miss Constance Medwyn made the most of the stepmother, Mrs. Burton. All the minor parts were in good hands.

STAGE-MANAGER OR STAGE-HAND?

In the Court of Appeal on Monday, before the Master of the Rolls, the President of the Probate, Divorce, and Admiralty Division, and Mr. Justice Buckley, the Grimsby Palace Theatre and Buffet, Ltd., appealed from a judgment of the Divisional Court reversing a judgment in their favour delivered in the County Court in an action for damages brought by the mother of Frank Rushbrook, under the Employers' Liability Act, 1880.

The deceased man was employed by the apellants under an agreement which described him as "stage-manager"; but it was stated in evidence that he did a certain amount of manual labour, including the moving of scenery, as well as having control of the electric lighting and attending to the "billing."

The accident which resulted in his death was occasioned by the falling upon his head of the weights on a heavy drop curtain. The County Court jury found in favour of the plaintiff, and awarded £150 damages, but the County Court Judge held that there was no liability, and entered judgment for the defendants.

This was appealed against in the Divisional Court, and, holding that the deceased man was a workman, although described as stage-manager, that tribunal reversed the decision, and gave judgment for the plaintiff. From that decision the defendants now appealed, on the ground that there was no proved defect in the curtain apparatus, and that the deceased man was not a workman within the meaning of the Act.

The appeal was dismissed.

"WHEN His Majesty's Theatre was being built," says the Sporting Times, "Sir Squire Bancroft came along and met Mr. Tree near the site. 'Not making as much headway as you thought, eh?' suggested Sir Squire, joining in the survey with his rimmed eyeglass. 'They're not—no, they're not,' acquiesced Mr. Tree, the great truth seeming suddenly to dawn upon him. 'And—and I don't know why, either. Let us step across the road and see.' He led the way to the vestibule and addressed himself to the boss of the box-sheet plan. 'No masons are working to-day, Mr. Turner; pray, why is that?' 'Because they went on strike last Monday, Mr. Tree; they demanded another halfpenny.' 'Dear! dear! dear! Oh, why didn't you give it to them, Mr. Turner? But let us do so now. Bancroft, have you got a halfpenny about you—I gave my last coppers to a crossing-sweeper?' Sir Squire had nothing less than a penny, which he placed on the box-office ledge. 'There, there!' said Mr. Tree, pushing the coin forward, 'give them this, please—double what they asked—and tell them to resume at once!'"

"THE BARBER OF NEW ORLEANS."

Drama, in Four Acts, by Edward Childs Carpenter.
(FROM OUR NEW YORK CORRESPONDENT.)

Mr. William Faversham produced this romantic play at Daly's Theatre on the 15th inst., and made a decided success in the title-rôle. When he undertook the management of Daly's, Mr. Faversham promised to build up a répertoire for his new company, and in pursuance of this intention he withdrew The World and His Wife long before its drawing powers had been exhausted, in order to test and try the play under notice. The new piece is full of romance, and while there is no tragedy, there is plenty of sword-play, so the action frequently becomes exciting. The full strength of the excellent company which Mr. Faversham has engaged for his season at Daly's is required for the new production, about twenty characters being represented, and the company is chiefly composed of English artists. Under the title of The Order of the Rose, the play was selected as the prize-winner in a newspaper contest that took place over a year ago, the author being the financial editor of the Philadelphia Inquirer.

The scenes of the play are laid in New Orleans, "the little Paris in the Wilderness," in 1804, a period of political disturbance, Louisiana having been recently purchased by the United States, when adventurous soldiers of fortune, French and Spanish, inspired by contempt for the Yankees, were constantly plotting against those whom they regarded as barbarians and interlopers. The central character is one Victor Jallot, a French refugee who was brought to America in his infancy. He was apprenticed to a barber, and on the death of his master he inherited the business. He is now revealed in the heyday of his popularity as a sort of Figaro, combining the tonsorial art with the agreeable qualities of a vivacious retailer of gossip. Jallot gives lessons in dancing and fencing, and to his popular establishment come the young blades and belles to learn the latest step, to hear the newest story, and to train the wrist for the deft parry. Jallot's companion on the voyage from France was a child named Antoinette, whose fortunes in the New World were worse than his own, for she was stolen by a Spanish miscreant and placed on his plantation as a slave. She was subsequently rescued from this condition, however, by the overseer of the plantation, a German, who adopted the beautiful child and brought her up as his own. Antoinette and Jallot meet and fall in love with each other, only to be estranged by a scurrilous newspaper story. But the author of the libel presently finds himself in the barber's chair with a razor at his throat, and Antoinette, hidden behind a screen, hears the confession that the barber extorts from him. This is the best scene in the play. In the meantime, Luiz Delicado, the Spanish adventurer who owns the plantation, has returned to New Orleans and demanded an account of the German overseer, Ludwig Froebel. Casting his eyes on Antoinette, Delicado forces Froebel to admit that she is one of the slave girls left in his charge, and claims her as his property. He offers her for sale to the highest bidder among his friends, and the gallants of the town strive for possession of her; but Jallot, staking his all on a bid, is the successful buyer. Not until Jallot becomes involved in a quarrel with the conspirators who are seeking to free Louisiana from American rule does Antoinette discover that her condition is that of a slave, and that Jallot has purchased her. The barber's assistant displays an American flag on July 4, and Jallot is accused of being a traitor to the cause to which he is supposed to be friendly. But the barber addresses the mob that bursts into his shop, and holds them spellbound whilst he tells them what a fine thing it is to belong to the United States. His counsel prevails, and the man who confessed to the slanderous story and incited the mob in order to further his own ends is foiled again. Antoinette is enraged when she learns that Jallot has bought her as a slave, misunderstanding his motives, and believing that he has desired to humiliate her because she has rejected his love. But Jallot restores her freedom, and declares himself not her master, but her humble wooer. Then the barber, prompted by vague recollections of his childhood, sets his wits to work, and discovers that Antoinette is of pure white ancestry, and of noble birth as well. These facts being established, Jallot confesses that he, too, was a French aristocrat, and he not only wins Antoinette's forgiveness, but her hand in marriage.

The play is handsomely staged and splendidly acted, not only by Mr. Faversham as Jallot and Miss Julie Opp as Antoinette, but by Mr. Charles Harbury as Froebel, Mr. H. Cooper Cliffe as Delicado, Miss Olive Oliver as Ottilie Trudeau, Mr. Lionel Belmore as Gazonac, Mr. Morton Selten as Allard, Mr. France Bendtsen as Poupet, Mr. Percy C Waram as Lemaitre, Mr. Harry Redding as Villebois, Mr. Berton Churchill as Osbourne, Miss Alice Belmore as Caresse, and Miss Gertrude Augarde as Tonton.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—A Liverpool notice of my friend Mr. Morton Powell's new and successful production makes it evident that two authors have both struck the same root-idea in one of the important acts of each of their plays.

As my drama The Mother of His Child, although completed and copyrighted, is not likely to be toured for some months, I should like to take the earliest opportunity of stating that it is dated 1908, and in doing this I desire neither to assert nor even remotely insinuate any charge of plagiarism, but merely to record the fact as it stands.—Yours faithfully,

ARTHUR SHIRLEY,

Green Room Club, W.C., Jan. 28.

A RETURN visit to the Exchange Hall, Wellingborough, has been made this week by Mr. and Mrs. J. Walters' company, with The Babes in the Wood. Chief honours are carried off by Ally M. Benson with a diverting version of Dame Flossie; another excellent contribution is the Tommy of Mr. Tom Hulme; Fairy Goodheart has a particularly pleasing exponent in Miss Kitty Rafferty; and Maid Marian is in the safe hands of Miss Lillie Miller. The two Babes—Miss Kitty Chester and Miss Florrie Parkinson—are distinctly good; Mr. Tom Lewis figures as the Baron; and the two ruffians are Mr. Martin Haly and Mr. Dan Rayner.

THE boards of the Gaiety, Worksop, were occupied last week-end by The Woman That Pays, one of Mr. Frank M. Thorne's many successful plays. The scenery was picturesque, and the interesting story was interpreted by a clever company. Sid Armstrong, a young fisherman of manly bearing, was capitally portrayed by Mr. Phil Harper, and Mr. John Davidson as the rascally Steward furnished a clever piece of acting; Miss Katie Blair as Nell Moreland gave a convincing interpretation of the character; Miss Maud Russell was sympathetic as Madge; and Mr. Frank M. Thorne, Miss A. Walton, and Miss Florence Thorne were responsible for a great deal of the comedy, and thoroughly amused the audience with their drolleries.

THE beautiful Jewel scene in Mr. J. F. Elliston's successful pantomime Aladdin, now running at the Theatre Royal, Nottingham, was mounted and arranged by Mme. Alice Phasey, formerly ballet mistress to the Royal Italian Opera under the direction of the late Sir Augustus Harris.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP.

SIR CHARLES WYNDHAM touched an eloquent note of pathos at the Actors' Benevolent Fund meeting on Thursday, when he referred to the way in which he had lightened the pain of Coquelin's last hours by massaging the poor, shrunken frame of the great French actor. It may be recalled that Sir Charles was a medical student at King's College, and his experiences as a surgeon were gained during the Civil War in America. He went to New York in 1862, where he obtained an appointment as army medical officer with the Federal forces, and went through many stirring scenes in the campaign.

THE most recent funeral held at Pont-aux-Dames, where Coquelin will be buried to-day, took place only a few days ago—that of Mme. Zuima Bouffar, a once-famous burlesque actress and singer, who had been for some years an inmate of Coquelin's home. Coquelin will be buried by her side. He left instructions that no flowers or wreaths should be sent, and that his funeral should be as simple as possible. In accordance with his wish, no photographs have been allowed to be taken of him on his death-bed.

THE mourners to-day will certainly be counted by thousands. The President of the Republic and the Prime Minister have sent special messages of condolence, and among the many speeches will be one by the Minister of Public Instruction or his representative. The entire company of the Comédie Française will go to the funeral, and it was proposed to close the theatre to-day, but that was found to be impossible, as, by the rules of the house of Molière, the latter can shut its doors as a sign of mourning only in the case of the death of a member of the company. At the Théâtre Français and at the "Second Théâtre Français," where M. Antoine was a great friend of Coquelin, and on every Parisian stage, on Wednesday evening the rôle was one of mourning. Actors, critics, and audience all felt the loss of the great actor.

MR. BEERBOHM TREE, who may be expected back immediately from Egypt, will revive The Dancing Girl at His Majesty's after the run of Pinkie and the Fairies, which ends on Saturday, Feb. 13, to reappear again next Christmas. Mr. H. A. Jones's play, with a revised third act, will be staged on Tuesday, Feb. 16. Originally produced during Mr. Tree's tenancy of the Haymarket, on Jan. 15, 1891, it ran for nearly a year, and obtained for Mr. Tree, in the character of the spendthrift Duke of Guisebury, one of the most decided triumphs of his career. For the rôle of Drusilla Ives, originally played by Miss Julia Neilson, Miss Alice Crawford will return to His Majesty's; Miss Marie Lohr will have the part of the little cripple girl Sybil Crake, formerly played by Miss Rose Norreys; and Mr. Fred Kerr, Mr. Louis Calvert, Mr. Vane Tempest, and Miss Rosina Filippi will be among the principals.

MR. GEORGE ALEXANDER has decided upon Thursday, Feb. 18, as the date of his revival of The Prisoner of Zenda, the career of The Builder of Bridges coming to a close at the St. James's on the Friday evening previous. Mr. Alexander will again figure in the field of romantic character as Rudolf Rassendyll, and Miss Stella Patrick Campbell will play the Princess Flavia, created by Miss Evelyn Millard. Two distinguished members of the original cast have unhappily passed away, and the late Miss Lily Hanbury will be followed in the rôle of Antoinette by Miss Frances Dillon; Mr. Alfred Brydone taking up the part of Colonel Sapt formerly sustained by the late Mr. W. H. Vernon. Mr. Frank Cooper will succeed Mr. Herbert Waring as Duke Michael; Mr. Ben Webster will be the new Fritz von Tarlenheim; and Mr. Vernon Steel and Mr. Reginald Owen will also be included in the cast.

MR. H. B. IRVING has made an alteration in his plans for his present season at the Shaftesbury. As Mr. Robert Courtneidge has a prior claim upon the theatre, Mr. Irving's London season must terminate at the end of February. As the time at his disposal is thus so short, Mr. Irving has decided, in justice to the author, to postpone the production of Mr. Justin Huntly M'Carthy's Cæsar Borgia until the autumn, and will accordingly devote the last three weeks of his season, beginning on Monday, Feb. 8, to Hamlet, Charles I., and Louis XI., each play being acted in that order for five nights and at the Wednesday and Saturday matinées. The run of The Lyons Mail will terminate with the 125th consecutive performance next Saturday, but this popular play will be given on each Saturday evening until Feb. 27, the last night of the season.

MR. LIONEL BROUGH denies the published reports of his serious illness with reassuring certainty. The popular actor certainly has been suffering from a somewhat protracted indisposition, but is now all right and out and about as usual.

MRS. D'OYLY CARTE will close her répertoire season at the Savoy Theatre on Saturday, Feb. 27. Owing, however, to many requests for a revival of The Yeomen of the Guard, she has arranged, before finally dispersing her present company, to give from March 1 twenty-four evening and four morning performances of that tuneful opera.

MR. ARTHUR BOURCHIER will introduce to London on Wednesday M. Henry Bernstein's powerful play Samson, the successful production of which at Swansea on Monday is recorded in another column. Mr. Bourchier, for whom a hearty welcome is assured on his return to the Garrick, has a plentiful supply of interesting productions and revivals in store for a future date. Mr. Alfred Sutro, for example, has in hand a new play which he is writing specially for Mr. Bourchier; and The Outsider, by Leslie Lindsay and Captain Robert Marshall, which was tried recently in the provinces, will be seen in due course. A comedy adapted by Mrs. de la Pasture from her novel "Deborah of Tod's," and revivals of Macbeth, The Arm of the Law, and The Bishop's Move may also be looked for.

"THE TRUANTS," the new play by Wilfred T. Coleby, which Miss Lena Ashwell has selected to follow Diana of Dobson's at the Kingsway, is chiefly concerned with the rash adventures of two young persons of opposite sex, who defy the conventions. They are, however, happily brought to a sense of their folly in the nick of time by the intervention of a distinguished authoress and lady traveller, a rôle Miss Ashwell will herself create. As the girl truant Miss Athene Seyler, a graduate of the School of Dramatic Art, will be a new recruit to the Kingsway company; while as her male partner in truancy Mr. Dennis Eadie will have a part well worthy of his brilliant powers. Mr. C. M. Hallard, Miss Frances Ivor, Miss Gertrude Scott, and Mr. Norman McKinnel will also have places in the cast.

MISS EVELYN MILLARD will on Monday transfer The Adventure of Lady Ursula from the Garrick Theatre to the Criterion, of which she has secured a tenancy till the end of July. Miss Millard hopes to produce Mr. Robert Hichen's new play, The Real Woman, on Tuesday, Feb. 23. The chief character is that of a young society lady, who, as the result of a visit to the East-end and a sight of its poverty and distress, is converted from a "fashionable butterfly" into a "real woman." Mr. Hichen, it may be added, has been commissioned by Miss Millard to dramatise for her his novel, "The Garden of Allah."

"LADY FREDERICK'S" reception so far this spring has been eminently flattering to its promoters. Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison's No. 1 London Company, including Miss Eleanor Delaporte and Mr. Robert Minster, commenced the fourth week of the tour at the New Grand Theatre, Oldham, on Monday last, Mr. Somerset Maugham's great play receiving an appreciative welcome at the hands of big audiences throughout the week. The Hutchison management are also doing enormous business with Brewster's Millions, Mr. Percy Hutchison continuing to score all along the line as Monty Brewster.

THE thirty-ninth play presented by the Hutchison management was produced on Monday at Cheltenham, when Idols entered on its provincial career. The production was a success in every way, and the fact that the advance booking on Tuesday was trebled speaks for itself. Next week the company visits Bournemouth, where it will be followed by Mr. Hutchison and company in Brewster's Millions paying a return visit. Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison have now arranged with Miss Evelyn Millard and Mr. Tom B. Davis for the entire provincial rights of Idols, and many of the large cities are to be visited this spring.

COLONEL MAPLESON, V.D., has just been gazetted to the colonelcy of the 1st North Midland Brigade Royal Field Artillery. The celebrated impresario, who has been the recipient of numerous medals, orders, and decorations, was recently created Chevalier of the Legion of Honour by the French Government.

MR. MARTIN HARVEY to-night at the Sheffield Lyceum concludes the first week of his tour in the Northern counties. Some time has elapsed since the popular actor and his company were last in the cutlery capital, and the general desire to see the favourite plays in the répertoire has resulted in packed houses.

MR. HARVEY, Miss de Silva, and the company opent at the Hull Grand on Monday with The Last Heir, which will then be given for the first time during the present tour. The Breed of the Treshams will be played once, The Corsican Brothers and The Conspiracy once, and The Only Way twice during the Hull fixture. On Monday week the company are due at the Leicester Opera House.

CONSIDERABLE interest has arisen consequent upon the announcement that Mr. Martin Harvey has secured the English rights of Le Bon Roi Dagobert, by M. André Rivoire, who is better known as a writer of charming verse than as a playwright both in his native land and on this side of the Channel. M. Rivoire is a romancist of high qualification, and his work is characterised by fine feeling and nobility of sentiment. In introducing an author so highly equipped as is M. Rivoire to the English theatrical public Mr. Harvey will give further proof of his desire for the exaltation of the Drama.

THE Moody-Manners Opera Company finished a highly successful month at the Theatre Royal, Dublin, on Saturday. On the last night, in response to repeated calls for a speech, Mr. Charles Manners came before the curtain, and said he thought they would all admit that the company had given better performances this year than they did last At any rate, the gross receipts had been ever so much more, and with the kind help and patronage of their friends they hoped to do even better in every respect next year. Referring to the concert on the previous day in aid of the disaster at Messina, he stated that a cheque for £349 had been forwarded to the Italian Ambassador in the name of the Dublin people.

MR. MANNERS added that there was one matter that he had to complain about. During their visit almost every night £5 or £6 had been lost by the action of persons engaging seats by telephone and then failing to turn up at the theatre. These seats, having been booked, were kept for them, and, in the meantime, money was refused at the door on the ground that there was no room within the theatre. This sort of thing only happened to him for three or four weeks in the year, but it happened to that theatre all the year round, and he trusted that in future those who booked seats by telephone would remember the point.

THE support they had extended to him, Mr. Manners went on to say, deserved and received his utmost gratitude. If they could always obtain the receipts that they got in Dublin, Edinburgh, and Glasgow they could very soon establish a thing he longed for, and that was a National Opera, which would benefit the provinces as well as London. He looked upon London as a huge place for advertising purposes. Many people came there at a loss for the advertisement, and then went to the provinces to make their money. They could make more in five months in a place like Dublin than they could in a whole year in London. Therefore, in trying to establish a National Opera he had the provinces in his mind.

MRS. CLEMENT SCOTT, though she offered through The Era some three weeks ago a sum of £100 for a powerful, sensational, and sympathetic little drama, to play fifteen minutes, suitable for the music halls, and has found a large number of would-be dramatists ready to respond to her appeal, finds that not one of the plays that have been sent to her are at all suitable.

"BABES IN THE WOOD," at the Shakespeare, Clapham Junction, was witnessed with delight on Saturday afternoon by some 600 boys and girls who formed the second contingent of poor children living in the Borough of Wandsworth invited by the mayor (Councillor Archibald Dawney) to see the pantomime. The stalls and balcony and the dress circle were invaded by the youngsters, who showed their appreciation by vociferous applause.

"HAJJI BABA; OR, THE STAR OF THE EAST," a Persian musical play, written by George Gamble, and composed by William Robins, was played at the St. James's Theatre for copyright purposes on the 22nd inst.

THE legality of theatre queues is shortly to be tested in Manchester. In that city on the 22nd inst. representatives of the newly-formed Theatre Reform League were granted summonses against Mr. John Hart, lessee of the Prince's Theatre, Manchester, charging him with obstructing the public footway and with permitting or causing a public nuisance. It was stated that the crowd was lined up under the manager's direction or with the aid of his servants, not merely outside his premises, but along the footway in front of other premises. Keeping the crowd there until such time as he chose to open the door was, it was submitted, causing an obstruction.

THE English and American rights of L'Oiseau Blessé, by Alfred Capus, which is now running at the Renaissance with M. Guitry in the leading rôle, have been purchased by Mr. Clement Hobson.

MR. WILFRED E. PAYNE and his wife, Miss Marie Housley, have been engaged by Mr. Maurice Bandmann to play lead in India. They went overland last Thursday week to join the P. and O. s.s. Egypt at Marseilles. Only a few days for hurried packing were allowed, as cabled instructions were immediate.

THE special matinée of Dorothy given at the Waldorf on Tuesday should substantially increase the Mansion House Fund in aid of the sufferers by the recent earthquake in Italy. The Lord and Lady Mayoress attended in State, and among those present were the Russian Ambassador (Count Benckendorff), the Countess of Ravensworth, the Countess of Craven, the Countess of Crawford, Victoria Lady Milbanke, Lady Paget Cooke, and the Hon. Hubert Beaumont, M.P. Mr. C. Hayden Coffin and Mr. Arthur Williams, in their original parts, Miss Constance Drever as Dorothy, Miss Coralie Blythe, Miss Louie Pounds, Miss Emily Spiller, Miss Betty Hardress, and Messrs. H. Strathmore, F. J. Vigay, J. Bardsley, and L. Pringle all gave their services, as did also the members of the chorus.

AFTER Dorothy, business with which remains pleasantly firm, Messrs. Maundy-Gregory are contemplating a revival of La Cigale, and after that two comedy operas of equal popularity. Several interesting engagements for the principal parts are pending. La Cigale was produced at the Lyric in the autumn of 1890, when the cast included Miss Geraldine Ulmar as Marton, Miss Effie Clements as Charlotte, Mr. Lionel Brough as Vanderkoopen, and the Chevalier Scovel as the hero. Miss Ellis Jeffreys also played a small part, and Miss Mabel Love was one of the dancers.

AMONG the numerous dresses which delight the eye in Our Miss Gibbs at the Gaiety, one of the most remarkable is that worn by a mannequin. It is in Directoire style, and is of vieux rose satin meteor. The bodice part in front is slightly folded, and is richly embroidered with a rose design, with Chinese blue roses. Down one side is a border of embroidery and lacings across of silk. The train begins in Empire style high up at the back, and is elaborately and deeply embroidered round the hem, a narrower embroidery running down one side and across the flat pleat of the shoulders. This is arranged as a tunic, falling irregularly over an underskirt of gold beads, with designs of roses in blue beads.

MISS GERTIE MILLAR makes her first appearance in a simple grey frock, the high waist fastened by a soft sash loosely tied at one side. The second act finds Miss Millar in a dress of soft white satin, embroidered on the skirt with a design of roses bordered by the Greek key pattern, and with a wreath of pink roses worked in relief. Over this is worn a tunic reaching to the knees in front, but rather longer behind, and carried out in pale blue tulle edged with embroidery, worked in silver bugles and repeating the key design.

MISS JEAN AYLWIN as Mme. Jeanne wears a striking costume of a new satin crêpe. The gown, which falls in long, graceful lines, is all black, with touches of gold. There is a bolero effect of beaten gold embroidery round the bodice like a deep berthe. From it is slung a porte-monnaie of gold cloth embroidered with black, cleverly arranged to draw the skirt into an artistic drapery at one side. A very large black hat is trimmed with remarkably fine black ospreys, and one big rosette of gold adorns the front.

A DRESS of sulphur hue worn by Miss Maisie Gay is veiled partially with a classical tunic of ninon of the same shade. It is deeply bordered with satin charmeuse, and the magnificent embroidery on bodice and skirt is in a design of peacocks' feathers in natural colours. There are long sleeves and a yoke and high neckband of similar material to the deep hem of the gown, and embroidered to correspond. A sunshade is carried with a high Directoire crook handle. Another dress worn by Miss Gay is of solid gold tissue, veiled with silver net, inserted with graceful lines of platinum and écru embroidery, touched here and there to accentuate them with black velvet. A feature of the dress is a cameo catching the bodice drapery. It is embossed on trimming in colour-harmony with the dress.

MISS GLADYS HOMFREY attires the Duchess of Minster in a flame-coloured dress in Greek style. It is veiled with a long tunic of chestnut-brown net, which is embroidered in dead gold, with touches of Oriental colours. A second dress of Miss Homfrey's is of slate-blue satin charmeuse arranged in panels, alternating with panels of net, both embroidered with silver platinum and black.

THE pale blue cloth coat and skirt worn by Miss Denise Orme is very striking. The coat is very long, and in front it is strapped across a quaint white lingerie frill. The neck is finished by a turned-down collar, and the sleeves with turned-back cuffs of linen to match the frill. The strappings are carried out in blue ribbon velvet, and they are repeated at the back of the coat, arranged in horizontal lines on each side of the skirt. Miss Orme's dress in the second act is of rich white satin, beautifully embroidered.

A COMPLIMENTARY supper will be given by the staff of the Elephant and Castle Theatre to Messrs. Chas., Dan, and Sydney Barnard on Tuesday, in the theatre. The chair will be taken at 12 midnight by Mr. Jack de Frece.

THE Theatre Royal, Belfast, will close to-night (Saturday) for one week to allow of several alterations, including new pit seats, &c., and will reopen on Feb. 8 as a melodramatic theatre at popular prices.

THE annual general meeting of the Theatrical Managers' Association will be held on Tuesday at 3.30 at the Tavistock Hotel, Covent Garden.

THE last night of Jack and Jill at the Palace Theatre, Belfast, and of its career under that name was reached on Saturday. Benefits were the rule during the last week, but Saturday night ought to be described as "Jim's benefit"—the name affectionately given to Dorothy Ward, the pretty little five-year-old girl who has helped to popularise Mr. George Lashwood's song "She's my best girl." The dainty little dot was the delighted recipient of several toys and dolls, while boxes of chocolates were literally showered upon her from stalls and circle until the stage was quite covered with them.

IN response to repeated calls, Mr. F. W. Warden came forward and thanked the public for their very kind and liberal support. He wished also to thank all in connection with the theatre who had assisted in the success of the pantomime. He had been asked to perform a very pleasing task that night, and on behalf of some of the gentlemen in front who had subscribed most liberally, he had now great pleasure in presenting to the little mite commonly known amongst the members of the company by the pet name of "Jim" a beautiful bracelet. The little lady received the present with great glee, and kissed her hand to the audience. Mr. Warden, in conclusion, announced, amid more applause, that next year's pantomime would be Aladdin. The principals, in accordance with custom, briefly expressed their thanks for the reception accorded them, and the proceedings concluded with the singing of "Auld lang syne." The theatre has been closed during the week for renovations, and will reopen on Monday under its old name of the Grand Opera House with Butterflies.

MR. PHILIP LESLIE, who has recently been scoring heavily as Freddie Perkins in Mrs. Dot to the delightful Mrs. Dot of Miss Decima Moore, has been engaged to play Captain Lovell in Mrs. B. M. Croker's forthcoming production of her play Terence.

THE F. R. Benson (North) company had the distinction of breaking all previous business records for Shakespeare's plays at Barrow-in-Furness. This gratifying result was obtained at His Majesty's Theatre, which is under the control of Mr. Calvert Routledge. For this visit special trains were run from Ulverston, Millom, and other places, and the country people flocked in to see the performances. The special matinée of Henry the Fifth on Saturday drew a packed house, and the great enthusiasm which it aroused speaks well for the growing popularity of Shakespeare and for the sterling abilities of the company which has done so much to promote interest in his works.

MR. TEMPLAR POWELL, who finished on Jan. 15 as Mr. Frank Thornton's leading juvenile, has achieved such success in Australia that he has been retained by Mr. Geo. Musgrove to support Miss Nellie Stewart in Sweet Kitty Bellairs and Sweet Nell of Old Drury.

THE death has occurred in Vienna of Professor Robert Hausmann, the famous violoncellist, who had paid many visits to England, and was shortly to have fulfilled engagements in London. Born on Aug. 13, 1852, at Rottleberode, in the Harz, he commenced the study of the 'cello when only eight years of age under the tuition of Theodor Müller. In 1869 Hausmann became a pupil of the Berlin Hochschule, his studies being under the superintendence of Dr. Joachim. When entering upon his professional career, Hausmann obtained the post of 'cellist in the quartette of Graf Hochberg, which he held for four years, at the end of which period he was appointed second professor of the violoncello at the Hochschule. Upon the retirement of Müller, he succeeded to the post of principal teacher. In 1879 Hausmann joined the famous organisation known as the Joachim Quartette, which had been founded in Berlin ten years earlier.

MR. JAMES M. MCCANN has been appointed acting-manager of the Grand Opera House, Belfast. For some years Mr. McCann has held a similar position at Belfast Theatre Royal, and his courtesy has always gained him the esteem of local playgoers.

MISS LILIAN MASON has been engaged by Mr. Tom Watts for the part of Cornelia in the spring tour of East Lynne.

A BARCELONA correspondent writes: "Els Hipocrites is still playing to crowded houses at the Teatro Principal, Barcelona. The translation of this comedy-drama is very good indeed, and of the same high character as the original work. English plays are appealing more and more to the Spanish taste, and I have seen expressed the opinion that if the average quality of plays is of the same standard as Els Hipocrites, then more English productions could be produced here with advantage."

MR. E. W. SILVERTHORNE, manager for Miss Emma and Mr. Percy Hutchison's Lady Frederick company last autumn, is looking after this management's interests in the same capacity during the spring tour of the play, which has commenced with such conspicuous success.

MISS LOUISA PEACH has been engaged by Mr. Ernest E. Norris to appear with him in The Education of Elizabeth on the West Pier, Brighton, next week.

FOR the dramatic reading of King Lear, to be given by the British Empire Shakespeare Society on Tuesday afternoon at the Bijou Theatre, Archer-street, the cast has now been completed. It will include Messrs. Lyn Harding, Bassett Roe, Acton Bond, Fewlass Llewellyn, Shakespeare Stewart, Arthur Burne, A. Harding Steerman, J. Henry Twyford, Howard Rose, Lane Crauford, and Cecil du Gue; and Misses Adeline Bourne, Evelyn Weeden, Violet Hunter, and Dorothy Thomas.

"DOLLY REFORMING HERSELF" reaches its 100th performance at the Haymarket this evening, when a souvenir of the play, which is being prepared by Mr. Harrison and Mr. Henry Arthur Jones, will be presented to each member of the audience. Miss Ethel Irving, who has been absent from the cast for the past few days from indisposition, will to-night make her reappearance.

MR. ARTHUR LAW RAYNOR, who is on tour as business manager for Mr. J. A. Campbell's The Little Breadwinner company, has been compelled, owing to previous engagements, to refuse a tempting offer from his old manager, Mr. Bert Coote, to direct his music hall specialities during his absence in America.

MR. J. H. OAKDEN, resident-manager for Mr. Rich Waldon at the Lyceum, Govan, organised a special benefit matinée there on Thursday in aid of the Govan Distress Fund. There are many claims on the sympathies of the profession at this season, but the scarcity of work in the shipbuilding burgh on the Clyde has made the distress very acute there, and Mr. Oakden's appeal met with a ready response from all the best known performers in theatres and variety halls in and around Glasgow.

MR. AMBROSE GAUNTLETT, now studying his 'cello under Chevalier De Munck at the Guildhall School of Music, has been presented by the Goldsmiths Company with a scholarship. Mr. Gauntlett is a younger brother of Basil Gauntlett, the English pianist who lately won the silver medal at the Paris Conservatoire.

MISS GERALDINE SOMERSET finished her most successful speciality dance at the Camden Theatre on Saturday. On Monday she joins The Cingalee company, having been specially engaged by Mr. Haldane Crichton.

MR. CLIVE CURRIE will revive The Octoroon on Monday at the West London Theatre, with himself as Salem Scudder. The cast will further comprise Messrs. Cecil A. Collins, Gerald Mirrielees, Douglas Phillips, William Barber, Charles King, Charles Wemyss, Archibald McLean, and Gordon Phillott, and Misses Maud Kirwan, Adah Barton, Gertrude De Burgh, Iné Cameron, Sybil Ruskin, May Saker, and Muriel Dale.

NEGOTIATIONS are nearly completed for the transfer of the Theatre Royal, Limerick, to a company, and the erection of a new structure. The prospectus will be issued in a few weeks, and it is expected that building operations will be started in March. Mr. George V. Fogerty, the enterprising proprietor of the Royal, will continue the management of the new theatre.

"THE SUPPLANTER," a play in three acts, by Lucy Dale and Arthur Holmes-Gore, was produced for copyright purposes at the Playhouse on Tuesday.

THE dramatic season at the Crystal Palace Theatre will begin on Monday with Sergeant Brue, the musical comedy which has enjoyed such extended success. Mr. Harry Benet's company is a very capable one, and has visited every large theatre in the United Kingdom. It includes Miss Ray Anderson, who has appeared with success in Mr. Geo. Edwardes's productions at the Gaiety and Daly's Theatres. The title-rôle will be sustained by Mr. Denis Lyndon, and Mr. Harry Quinningborough will play the droll Crookie Scrubbs. The company also includes Mr. Lester Morrah and Mr. T. G. Warren.

MR. LIONEL RIGNOLD starts his first tour of The Early Worm at the Opera House, Torquay, on Monday, and already the booking at the box-office has proved that our country cousins are anxious to see Mr. Rignold in a new character. The piece will be mounted in a first-class manner, and among other effects will be included the original ship scene. In addition to The Early Worm Mr. Rignold will produce a one-act play entitled The Wedding Morn, by Mr. E. Vivian Edmonds, of which report speaks most highly. The principal part is an excellent one, containing pathos and comedy, and was originally written for Mr. Rignold. After being a few weeks in the provinces, the company will visit the London suburbs.

A LEASE of the Palace Theatre, Brighton, has been secured by Messrs. Jay and Mann from Lady Day next. The house has been redecorated and recarpeted, and a very handsome wind and rain shelter has recently been completed down the entire length of the pier at a cost of several thousand pounds. The playgoing public are to be admitted to the pier free of the 2d. toll they have hitherto paid.

MESSRS. JAY AND MANN will personally manage, and will introduce an entirely new policy, with the intention of making the Palace Theatre the most popular house of entertainment in Brighton. The theatre holds 1,500 people, and over £100 in money at ordinary prices. Every seat in the house commands a perfect view of the stage.

"TODDLES" continues its wonderfully successful tour, and at the Devonshire Park Theatre, Eastbourne, is doing enormous business. Mr. Murray King met with an extraordinary reception on his appearance before a crowded house on Monday night, and on his final appearance was presented with a comic laurel wreath from a member of an audience that had been laughing immoderately the whole evening.

MISS MAUDE MAY MURRAY, who has been appearing with success in the Bolton pantomime, made her first appearance at the Opera House, Burnley, on Monday last, when her beautiful electrical aerial dances created quite a sensation.

MR. DORE DAVIDSON has purchased from Mr. John Cort his English rights in The Man on the Box, and he will tour it through the English provinces. He sails for London for this purpose at the close of his engagement under Messrs. Wagenhall and Kemper.

MR. ST. JOHN DENTON'S Sinbad, which is voted the best pantomime seen in Sunderland for some years, attracted a full house on Thursday to the Rev. E. J. Leake's benefit matinée in aid of the poor children of St. John's Parish, the Sinbad principals giving their services. The three great successes were the songs and dances of Misses Rossiter and Denver, and the stirring new song "His care for the little ones," which, faultlessly rendered by Miss Hope Trevelyan, evoked a storm of applause.

MR. GEO. H. HEILBUTH, C.C., has been elected chairman of the Music Committee of the Corporation of London, which controls the Guildhall School of Music. Mr. Heilbuth was chairman of the committee in 1904, and at the end of his year of office he was presented with a life-size portrait in oils, which was exhibited in the Royal Academy.

MR. ALLAN WILKIE will shortly add to his already fine scenic production of The Merchant of Venice an elaborately-constructed set representing a street in Venice complete in every detail. Mr. Wilkie is now on the eve of producing a new version of The Corsican Brothers, which will see the light in a few weeks' time.

MR. WALTER BEAUMONT, now recovered from his severe operation of six months ago, is convalescing at his country residence, West Byfleet; and is hard at work in collaboration with Mr. Claude Askew (the well-known novelist and author of The Schulamite) on an original three-act play for a West End proprietor.

MR. FRANK ROTHSAY, who has been acting-manager of the Stratford Borough Theatre since its opening in 1896, is to be accorded a complimentary benefit at a special matinée on Thursday. In addition to the pantomime Aladdin, the popular beneficiaire will have the assistance of many professional friends now in London.

"THE BELLE OF BRITTANY" will celebrate its hundredth performance at the Queen's Theatre, Shaftesbury-avenue, on Tuesday evening next.

MR. TOM B. DAVIS has secured a remarkable array of talent for the Duchess of Rutland's matinée in aid of the Royal Ear Hospital, which is to take place at the Queen's Theatre on Feb. 18 The theatrical profession will be represented by Miss Evelyn Millard, Miss Mary Moore, Miss Winifred Emery, Miss Ruth Vincent, Miss Maudi Darrell, Miss Evelyn D'Alroy, Miss Margaret Cooper, Miss Vivien Tallcur, Miss Marie Tempest, Mr. Lewis Waller, Mr. Walter Passmore, Mr. Dawson Milward, Mr. Henry Ainley, Mr. A. E. Matthews, Mr. Graham Browne, Mr. Cyril Clensy, and Mr. George Graves. The concert platform supplies Miss Margel Gluck (violinist), Mr. Vernon Warner (pianist); while some talented amateurs will include Lady Alington, the Hon. Mrs. Edward Stoner, and the Earl of Shaftesbury.

THE noble Earl has a beautiful tenor voice, and is credited with having received an offer of a thousand pounds per week for an extended concert tour through the United States. Great progress has been made with the sale of seats, at doubled prices, and on the strength of the assured success of the occasion, the beds at the hospital, which were closed for some months, have been reopened.

MISS GRACE CHALMERS (Mrs. Wentworth Croke), while on a visit to Edinburgh six weeks ago, was taken very ill with a severe attack of bronchitis. We are glad to hear that her medical adviser now pronounces her convalescent.

MR. E. W. MAULE COLE has begun the new year well, and evidently believes in versatility and hard work. By next Monday night he will have played six parts since the 11th inst., namely: the Dean in Dandy Dick and Sir George Sylvester in The Adventure of Lady Ursula at Tenby, and Dr. Candy in The New Boy, Lord Jura and Ivan Khorvitch in Moths, and Gruff Tackleton in The Cricket on the Hearth at Hastings.

MISS MARIE DRESSLER commences her season at the Marie Dressler Aldwych Theatre on Saturday evening, Feb. 27. The famous American comedienne's first essay will be a musical piece called Little Mena. She has secured the services of a Parisian opera singer named Mlle. Morichini, who has achieved an enviable reputation in New York, and will be heard here as a young French girl who speaks in broken English. The company will otherwise be made up chiefly of English artists, and will include Mr. Sydney Barraclough and Mr. Stanley Cooke.

IN the settlement of the action for libel brought by Mr. George Gray against the V.A.F., it was agreed to pay that gentleman £100 as damages, to be handed over to some professional charity. The V.A.F. have sent a cheque for the amount to Mr. Gray, who has handed it over to the Actors' Orphanage Fund.

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

The Influence of the Drama.

IN our recent article on the above subject we asked any of our readers who had met with instances to write to us. A correspondent says accordingly:—"I recall a striking illustration of the influence of the drama. The incident occurred to a City friend of mine, who was a wholesale draper. One night he saw The Ticket-of-Leave Man at the Olympic. The "Who knows, lads, pr'aps he's repented" of Hawkshaw, as Ginger in the Bridgwater Arms scene, in the fourth act, so affected him that when, a few days later, a man who had been convicted of theft applied to him for a job, he at once engaged him. The influence of the drama was obvious.

"I REGRET to have to add that the ought-to-have-been-reformed criminal robbed my friend of twenty pounds' worth of goods in the second week of his engagement."

Clarkson and Coquelin.

"ONE of the last English visitors to Coquelin," says the Daily Chronicle, "was Mr. W. Clarkson, who was in Paris last week arranging for the costumes and head-dresses for M. Rostand's Chanticleer, in which the deceased actor was to have sustained the title-rôle. 'Coquelin had been most enthusiastic about the part for several years past,' says Mr. Clarkson, 'and he was delighted with the fantastic attire which I had made for him. On his head was the head of a cock with brilliant plumage, and his dress consisted of thousands of bright feathers, carefully sewn together, so as to look realistic. Indeed, this dress took two years to make, and I had four assistants working on it all that time. So I may safely say it was the most expensive costume ever made for an actor.

"'I CAN recall his visit to Wardour-street, when Sarah Bernhardt laid the foundation-stone of the premises I now occupy. The tent under which we were all standing was crowded, and the door-keepers failed to recognise the distinguished visitor. Taking a back seat, M. Coquelin quietly worked his way round to the refreshment saloon, and proceeded to make a good meal while the ceremony was in progress. Later I found him, and expressed my regret that he was not in the front row of seats. "My dear Clarkson," he said, 'I have done better than anyone here. I saw the foundation-stone being laid while I was eating a sandwich, and I drank to your success while someone was making a speech. A few seconds later the crowd came in, but happily I had enjoyed your hospitality in a quiet and sensible manner."

Coquelin and Cabs.

SIR SQUIRE BANCROFT possesses a letter from Coquelin eulogising him after he had witnessed a performance of School at the Haymarket. Coquelin paid a tribute of respect to the cabmen in the following humorous note. "Why is it they drive one so fast? At first I could not understand, but eventually I discovered the reason—the drivers are sitting behind, and consequently can push the cab!"

Expensive Opera.

MR. OSCAR HAMMERSTEIN declares that grand opera to-day means that the producer must be prepared to meet losses. "Profits," he says, "are out of the question. Opera-goers are paying the same price to-day as they paid when artists were receiving one-quarter the salaries that are now paid to them. With the increase in salaries the cost of production has kept pace. You can readily see how tremendous this is if you consider the amount of scenery now used, the modern mechanical devices, the electrical effects, and the additional force of expert men employed in their handling, also the greatly enlarged chorus and orchestra, and man other details that have been added since the time referred to. The only solution I can see for the difficulty is to increase the price of seats.

"WE cannot build bigger houses and seat more people for the reason that the human voice cannot carry more than 150ft. without losing its quality. This is well demonstrated in my new opera house in Philadelphia, where I can build only one balcony, though there is room for two more, and this would mean an additional 1,000 seating capacity. An idea of the tremendous expense we are under can be formed when I tell you that one item in the singers' contracts—transportation to and from America—means $25,000 a season. Couple with this the fact that more than $150,000 must be given to the singers as advance money before they set foot on the stage, and you have but scratched the surface. Then, too, there are the heavy royalties, running from $250 to $1,000 a performance, the latter being the price for some of the new works."

Frohman and His Friends.

MR. CHARLES FROHMAN recently explained to an interviewer in New York how he had managed to establish a sympathetic understanding with so many authors of different nationalities, all holding differing views of life, and endowed with differing senses of humour. It is not a difficult problem, according to Mr. Frohman. He said:—"You have close to you, we will say, twenty intimate friends, each differing from the other in nationality, social standing, and disposition. How do you keep them bound to you? Simple enough. By finding out, maintaining, and enlarging that little strip of common ground upon which you found yourselves cast, when first you met, by fate or circumstances. The bond between myself and Bernstein, Barrie, Maugham, Caillavet, De Flers, Marshall, Ade, Gavault, Thomas, Fitch, Morton, and all the rest, is not made of paper, but of something stronger, perhaps because seemingly intangible—personal sympathy, understanding, and deep regard."

A Champion Critic.

"THE boxers in Mr. Bernard Shaw's prize-fighting play The Admirable Bashville," says the Daily Mirror, "are too 'mild' to suit Mr. Bob Fitzsimmons, the famous champion of the ring. 'They ought to slam each other a bit more,' he says. 'They would bring the house down if they did.' Of Mr. Ben Webster and Mr. Sass as the pugilists, the champion says: 'Their performance is nothing but the purest burlesque, and it is remarkably well acted. I think, however, they could improve upon it if they pretended to give each other a few hard smacks with the open hand. There would be a resounding noise through the theatre, and everybody would say, "My! He got one in then!" People would laugh twice as much and the actors would not be a bit the worse. It's so easy to make a harmless smack with the flat of the hand sound like a fearful blow.

The Cut Incorrect.

"'ONE thing amused me very much. Mr. Webster, I think it is, says: "Now then, I will give you the upper cut." Forthwith he swings his right hand across and gives—well, a very different thing from the upper cut. That did make me laugh. But I thoroughly enjoyed the whole performance because, mind you, although it is burlesque, I can thoroughly appreciate the beauty and seriousness of some of the lines Mr. Shaw gives his characters. The invective against modern civilisation and the Zulu king's denunciation of English methods, so far as prize-fighting is concerned, ring true—and that's where "the rub comes in."'"

An altogether enjoyable and extremely amusing piece is The Admirable Bashville, which was produced, with little renown, at the Imperial Theatre on June 8, 1903. The impression produced by its revival at the Afternoon Theatre on Tuesday was warmly favourable. Bursts of laughter again and again interrupted the performance; and so hilarious did the house become that it received some very strong and serious attacks on Civilisation with smiles of tolerant indifference. The idea of taking a modern plot, telling it in blank verse, and mounting it in the primitive style attributed to Shakespearean times, gave opportunity for some funny business, such as that of a supposed corpse scuttling away, showing its feet under a screen formed by two beefeaters holding up an immense Union Jack. The burlesque blank verse was so good that much of it was taken quite seriously; and Mr. Shaw's serio-comic sketch went in first-rate style from beginning to end, and was an obvious success.

The scene is laid in a park in Wiltshire, the owner of which, a Miss Lydia, is soliloquising about trees and birds before a couple of tapestry curtains which are supposed to represent the entrance to her castle. To her enters Cashel Byron, a refined and intellectual prize-fighter, who takes her for a country lass, and opens an acquaintance which promises well. When he discovers her rank, he withdraws, is soon found by his trainer Mellish, a fat and repulsive person who reproaches him with neglecting his duty to his backers, and with philandering with a woman. Byron bitterly abuses Mellish; and when the trainer proposes to accompany him that evening in his stroll beneath Lydia's window, Cashel kills him with a single blow on the "bread basket." The curtains then separate, and disclose an aristocratic apartment in London, with Lydia seated in conversation with her cousin Lucian, a private secretary, to whom she is betrothed. Her footman, Bashville, at her request, reads aloud an account of a recent prize-fight in which Byron was the victor; and he, irreproachably attired, knocks at the outer door, and endeavours to gain admittance to see Lydia. Bashville, who is a fine wrestler, trips him up, and goes to tell his mistress, who in the end sends Lucian away, and tells Bashville to show Byron in. He proposes to her, and she implores him to give up his profession and become a gentleman. He scorns both the class and the notion, and goes off to take part in a glove-fight before Cetewayo and his suite at the Agricultural Hall—the date of the play is 1882. Bashville, who, it now appears, loves Lydia, relieves his feelings in a mock heroic soliloquy. The whole of the stage is now supposed to represent the Agricultural Hall with the Zulu monarch in a chair of state. He draws a contemptuous comparison between his muscular and healthy Zulus and the "anæmic" Londoners, asserts that the invention of modern weapons of war was the result of cowardice, and delivers a scathing attack on English greed and degeneration. Paradise, a vulgar prize-fighter, is easily vanquished by Byron, when a warlike frenzy takes possession of Cetewayo, and he leads his suite into a combat with the Londoners. Byron rushes to the rescue, and is beheld by Lydia knocking over the Zulus like nine-pins. When he has completed his triumph, she rushes to him and throws her arms round his neck, while he tenderly declares that all he has done has been "for her."

The piece had the advantage of excellent acting, though no better than the strong, telling blank-verse, the cleverly-turned sentences and the apt phrases deserved. Mr. Ben Webster did exactly what was required with the rôle of Cashel, looking the character capitally, and delivering his lines with the complete seriousness and elaborate earnestness required. It was a fine bit of elocution, and showed the value of Mr. Webster's long and sound training. Mr. Lennox Pawle's appearance as the vulgar, bloated, and subservient trainer, Mellish, was irresistibly droll, and he acted with a solemn self-importance that made every line tell, and caused the murder of Mellish to be universally regretted. Mr. Charles Quartermaine gave a firm and polished performance as Lucian, every detail being carefully attended to; and Mr. Henry Ainley, in the rather excrescent rôle of Bashville, made all possible use of his few opportunities. A realistic representation of Cetewayo was supplied by Mr. James Hearn, whose treatment of the dusky monarch's denunciation of Progress was very forcible and intense; and Mr. Edward Sass hit off neatly the brusque vanity of Paradise. Miss Marie Löhr made the prettiest and most feminine of Lydias, and did not spoil the effect of her speeches by self-consciousness or by over-emphasing points. The remaining rôles had excellent exponents. The Admirable Bashville delighted the audience at the Afternoon Theatre immensely, and is one of the drollest things that Mr. Shaw has done. It was followed by the play, in one act, by George Paston, which was produced at the Court Theatre by the Play-actors last November, entitled

"'TILDA'S NEW HAT."

Mrs. Fishwick ..... MISS AGNES THOMAS
'Tilda (her daughter) .... MISS FLORENCE LLOYD
Daisy Meadows ..... MISS SYDNEY FAIRBROTHER

George Paston's piece is a bit of low life, amusing and slightly pathetic. As our readers may remember, Tilda Fishwick, a factory girl, has made for herself a bright blue blouse and a new hat with superb black ostrich feathers; and so attractive is she with these decorations that a little clerk named Walter Emerson, an apostle of popular culture, has deserted his sweetheart, Daisy Meadows, and has turned his attention to 'Tilda. Daisy comes to 'Tilda to complain; and the good-natured girl gives her the cherished hat, lends her the blue blouse to use as a pattern, and thus leads Emerson to return to his allegiance. He goes out with Daisy, and 'Tilda cannot restrain her tears as from her window she watches them walk away. Miss Agnes Thomas was exquisitely natural and original as 'Tilda's mother, a querulous and quarrelsome old woman. Miss Florence Lloyd was so handsome and dashing a 'Tilda that Emerson's volte-face seemed hardly accounted for, even by the transference of the finery. She acted with boldness, freedom, and much quiet appreciation Mr. Norman Page presented a clever and convincing character-sketch of a quaint, conceited little prig; and Miss Sydney Fairbrother gave a simple and natural exposition of the rôle of Daisy Meadows, singing a sentimental ditty with delicate observance of mispronunciation. Both plays were mounted and dressed irreproachably; and Mr. Adolf Schmid, who conducted the orchestra, had arranged the incidental music with skill and humour. The stage-management of Mr. Cecil King and Mr. Stanley Bell had a great deal to do with the success of the matinée.

DEATH OF M. COQUELIN.

The death of M. Coquelin aîné at Paris on Wednesday, at the Convalescent Home for actors which he had helped to found, was unexpected. He was rehearsing his part in Chantecler in his study at Pont-aux-Dames before breakfast, when he suddenly collapsed. Death was caused by an embolism. France has lost a great artist.

Coquelin played a game of billiards with his old manservant, Gillet, before going to bed on Tuesday evening. About two in the morning he felt ill, and summoned Gillet, who painted Coquelin's chest with iodine. "I'm all right now," he said, "you can go to bed." At five o'clock Gillet heard him coughing, and went into his room. "Old chap, I shall never play Chantecler," said Coquelin. The valet left the room and did not return till seven, when he helped his master to dress. He went out again a little after eight to fetch a doctor, heard a noise, hurried back, and found Coquelin lying dead on the floor.

Benoit Constant Coquelin, who was born at Boulogne-sur-Mer on Jan. 23, 1841, was the son of a baker. Showing special aptitude for the stage he proceeded to Paris, where in May, 1859, he was admitted to the Conservatoire, becoming a member of M. Régnier's class. He obtained the second prize for comedy, and made his début at the Théâtre Français on Dec. 7, 1860, in the character of Gros-René in The Dépit Amoureux. He subsequently played with success in Les Fourberies de Scapin, Le Mariage de Figaro, Don Juan, and other classical pieces; Lupin in La Mère Confidente, the Marquis in Le Joueur, and Annabal in L'Aventurière. He created the rôles of Anatole in Une Loge d'Opéra, John in Trop Curieux, Gagneux in Jean Baudry, Vincent in L'Œillet Blanc, Aristide in Le Lion Amoureux, Gringoire in the play of that name, Beaubourg in Paul Forestier, and Eucrate in Le Coq de Mycille. At the Comédie-Française Coquelin was a Sociétaire from 1864 to 1886, and in that time created more than forty parts. After travelling in America and elsewhere with a dramatic company of his own formation he re-entered the Comédie-Française in December, 1889, and played Mascarille, Diafoirus, and Argente. In January, 1891, he created the part of Labussière in Thermidor, which after three representations was interdicted by the French Government. In the following year he left the Comédie-Française and toured in Europe and America, appearing in Thermidor and La Mégère Apprivoisée (The Taming of the Shrew) in London in the summer of 1892. His next appearance in Paris was in 1895 at the Théâtre Porte St. Martin, where in 1897 he enacted the hero in Edmond Rostand's Cyrano de Bergerac, and in July of the same year he was seen in the play at the Lyceum Theatre, London. His first visit to this country was in 1878, and his last in the summer of 1908, when he had a three weeks' season at His Majesty's, appearing in Sardou's historical play L'Affaire des Poisons. He made a grand tour of America with Mme. Bernhardt in 1900, and reappeared with her in L'Aiglon at the Théâtre Sarah Bernhardt in 1901.

Coquelin was eighteen years old when he won a prize at the Conservatoire. When he presented himself Mlle. Augustine Brohan, who was on the board of examiners, remarked: "Oh, no! That boy is too ugly to succeed. Why, his nose is like a trumpet." "True," replied Aube, "but he knows how to use it as though it were a real trumpet." And Régnier observed, "He is not so ugly. He has the turned-up nose, the well-slit mouth, and the quick eye of the valet. Leave him to me. I will take him into my class, and I will make something of him."

In an interview in M.A.P., Coquelin said:—"I determined that my body was an instrument I should be master of, that body and mind should always stand calmly ready to do the thing required. I achieved this end, and ever since that time I have been able to read criticism with impunity, to give an invariably even performance of any of my rôles, no matter what the circumstances, and to go through any first night without a tremor. The late Dumas fils on a first night was always trembling and ashy pale. 'My dear Coquelin,' he once said to me, 'how can you manage so to conceal your feelings? It is so terrible, this suspense. And to-night, you know, everything depends on you.' 'But I have no feelings,' I answered. 'You dissemble them, you mean,' was his reply. 'Feel my pulse,' said I. He put his cold, damp fingers on my warm wrist, and stood amazed to find my pulse as strong and as steady as possible."

Coquelin, speaking of the actor's art, said: "Poets use words; sculptors, marble or bronze; musicians, sounds; the actor uses—himself. In order to illustrate a thought, an image, a portrait—he works on himself. He is his own keyboard, he plays on his own strings, he moulds himself as the potter the clay, he sculptures and paints himself."

"An actor," he would say, "must be capable of expressing sentiments which he does not feel—which he will never feel, perhaps! His nerves are strings with which he plays, which he pulls at will. An actor needs no more to be moved than a pianist needs to be in despair to play Chopin's or Beethoven's Funeral March."

When Coquelin was connected with the Théâtre Français, M. Perrin, the administrateur, having heard that, without his permission, the actor had arranged to appear on the following Sunday at Havre, decided that the Précieuses Ridicules should be given on that day, at the end of the matinée performance. Coquelin rushed on the stage, hurried the dialogue and his comrades, jumped down the staircase four steps at a time, sprang into a carriage, caught a train, changed his clothes in the carriage, and reached Havre in time to "act as he had never acted before."

In a conversation reported in the Express in 1906 he said:—

"Every visit that I make confirms my liking for England and my intense appreciation of the great and intelligent love that the English people have for the theatre.

"In my opinion, there is an infinitely greater love of drama in London than there is in Paris; the audience follows the play with eager interest and appreciates every point, and even the actor who is playing in a foreign language, which some of his hearers may have difficulty in following, feels the sympathy that binds the player and the audience together, and which is of itself an inspiration and an encouragement."

The story of the relations between Henry Irving and Coquelin is thus told by Mr. Bram Stoker in his "Personal Reminiscences of Henry Irving": "Previous to this meeting there had been a certain amount of friction between the two men. Coquelin had written an article in Harper's Magazine for May, 1887, on 'Acting and Actors.' In this article he made certain comments on Irving which were not impertinent, but were most decidedly wanting in delicacy of feeling towards a fellow artist. Irving replied to the article in an 'Actor's Note' in the Nineteenth Century for June of the same year. When some two years later Coquelin republished his article he left out entirely the part relating to Irving. When the two men met at Mayer's they at once became friends. The very fact of having crossed swords brought to each a measure of respect for the other. In the course of years Irving and Coquelin met often, and the oftener they met the more their friendship ripened. For a good many years Irving took quite an affectionate interest in him and his affairs; after he had made his enormous success in Paris with Cyrano, and was anxious to produce it in London, Irving made arrangements for playing himself for some weeks in the suburbs, so that he might give up the Lyceum to his friend.

"Irving had purchased the English rights of the play, intending to play Cyrano himself, but on going carefully into it he came to the conclusion that the part was one hardly suitable for him. It was after their last meeting that Coquelin sent Irving his picture in character as Cyrano."

Eloquent tributes to the eminent actor's memory were made by several speakers at the meeting of the Actors' Benevolent Fund on Thursday, a report of which appears elsewhere.

The funeral of Coquelin will take place to-day at Pont-aux-Dames, and the body will be laid in the vault of the "Home of Comedians." The President of the French Republic and the Prime Minister have sent special messages of condolence, and among the many speeches delivered at the grave will be one by the Minister of Public Instruction or his representatives. The entire company of the Comédie-Française will attend the funeral.

Our Paris correspondent sends us the following appreciation of the great French actor:—

Régnier has often referred to his first interview with Coquelin. "I want to make a name for myself," said the boy in a proud tone, "and if you do not think I can become a great actor I will return to Boulogne and bake bread."

When admitted to M. Régnier's class at the Conservatoire, Coquelin had many difficulties to overcome. He spoke through his nose, and the timbre of his voice was that of a tin rattle. He worked night and day, and cured these defects.

In 1895 Coquelin joined Sarah Bernhardt in the management of the Renaissance—a queer partnership! Sarah is very dictatorial. So was our friend Coquelin. Sarah wanted everything her own way. So did Coquelin. These two independent spirits could admire each other, but were never intended to be harnessed together. They separated, heaved a sigh of relief, and remained staunch friends.

In 1896 Coquelin took over the management of the Théâtre de la Porte-Saint-Martin—the crowning point of his career. It was there he brought out Cyrano. It was a memorable night, for in the course of my career I have never seen a Paris audience grow so enthusiastic. The people were mad with excitement, and after the performance Coquelin hugged all those who came to congratulate him on his success. He gave four hundred performances of the work in Paris, and afterwards appeared in that rôle in nearly every big city throughout the universe.

Always restless, he returned to his friend Sarah, and with her created L'Aiglon, which took on better in America than in Paris. Lastly, he went back to the Porte-Saint-Martin, and entered into partnership with M. Hertz and his son Jean Coquelin, to bring out Chantecler. Chantecler! He dreamt of the work, and never grew tired of speaking about it to his friends. It became his hobby, and M. Rostand's illness was a big blow to him. A few weeks ago M. Rostand was sufficiently restored to health to superintend the rehearsals of his new play. Coquelin was beaming with joy, and, as I stated before, he was studying his rôle when death knocked at his door.

Coquelin was far from perfect. He had many weaknesses, and within the last years his relations with many of his brother actors were rather strained; but he had a big heart, as those can testify who in the dark hours of trouble applied to him for assistance. There is one in England who, I know, will mourn him. A few years ago I accidentally heard that a young English actress was dying from want in Paris. I called on the lady. It was a distressing case. Betrayed and forsaken, she had come here friendless and penniless, and at first was unwilling to give me her real name, which, for obvious reasons, I must not disclose. Having rendered her whatever assistance I could I called on Coquelin, and begged him to come to the rescue. He behaved splendidly. He took the affair in hand, and, thanks to his powerful influence, the girl's troubles soon came to an end. I could mention many similar acts of kindness on his part.

Coquelin's ambition off the stage was to look dignified. He never succeeded. With his funny nose, laughing eyes, penetrating voice, he looked more like a schoolboy than a great actor. On the stage, however, he became transformed, and his ungainess melted into a charm that held his audience spellbound.

Coquelin's name will go down to posterity.

Do We Want "Deadheads"?

MR. BRAM STOKER, in his lecture on "Deadheads" to the members of the Playgoers' Club at the Hotel Cecil on Sunday, said that they were a little ignorant or a little doubtful as to the real meaning of the word "deadhead." He took it from one of the dictionaries that the word meant "a person who did not pay." That was the truth, but not all the truth. Mr. Stoker dealt with the classification of persons who did not pay and yet could not be considered "deadheads." There were persons who were presumably paid to be present, and who were thought to be useful for the management. The "clapper" might be useful or he might be harmful. Of course these "clappers" could possibly take a private tip to hiss somebody else. So the game went merrily on. The real "deadhead" was a mean person, who wanted to get everything without paying for it. The only point the theatre manager had to consider was whether he wanted "deadheads" in his theatre or not. Mr. H. B. Irving, who presided, said he had read that the definition of a "deadhead" was "a person who was born into the world a 'deadheader,' and with his hands in his pockets had stared at the show ever since."

MR. WILFORD BAILEY has been re-engaged by Messrs. Garside and Knowles for his original part of Eben Chubb in Her Marriage Vow.

One of the boldest satires on the British public that has ever been put on the stage was presented on Wednesday when An Englishman's Home, announced as being written by "A Patriot," was presented by Mr. Frank Curzon to his patrons at Wyndham's Theatre. It is a complete resumé of all the criticisms on our Army organisation that have been spoken and written in the last ten years; and, of course, the author's attacks are all the more drastic for being presented in the shape of an "object lesson." The scene is the small house in Essex of a certain Mr. Brown, a bumptious Briton with a craze for diabolo. His young friend, Geoffrey Smith, is a typical, self-indulgent, slangy, "cheeky" young clerk, an enthusiastic spectator of football matches. Geoffrey's taste is shared by his sisters, Maggie and Amy; and Paul Robinson, a volunteer who is in love with the former, is in a minority of one in the little circle, being laughed at both by the lads and the lassess. A thick fog and a strike have cut off all communications, and Myrtle Villa is practically isolated. The first intimation of the landing of the troops of the "Empress of the North," who have landed on the Eastern Coast is the entry of Prince Yoland and his lieutenant, Rian Hobart, who put Mr. Brown and Reggie under arrest, and billet themselves on the premises. Then we are shown on the stage what would be the result of a raid in our bemuddled and unprepared state. Robinson dashes down to Brentwood on his bicycle, but finds the population in the greatest confusion, singing patriotic songs in the streets. He returns, utterly exhausted, to take part in the defence of the villa, which is organised by a company of the 6th Volunteer Battalion Blinkshire Regiment, commanded by Captain Finch, a fussy and overbearing officer, very irritable and ignorant of the art of war. The only member of the company who appears to know what to do is the colour-sergeant, and under his direction the place is put into a condition of defence. It is shelled by the enemy from a distance, a bit of shrapnel striking the blatant Reggie as he stands on a table. He falls dead at the end of the second act. In the third the tragic side of war is strongly shown. Some of the volunteers are seriously wounded, and as there are no medical appliances in connection with the corps, the doctor who arrives can do little. The shelling of the villa continues, holes being blown in the walls and roof. The obstinate conceit of Mr. Brown and his silly son cannot, however, be quelled. The former abuses everybody, and the latter finds fault with the regulars, who are now beginning to get into touch with the enemy. The villa becoming untenable, the volunteers are ordered to retire; but Mr. Brown refuses to leave, and after some blundering attempts manages to load a rifle and kill a couple of the enemy's infantry, which is advancing to occupy the position. Prince Yoland, on arriving, treats Mr. Brown as a franc-tireur and sends him out to be shot; and the old fellow goes to his death stubbornly, his daughter rushing in and shrieking with horror at her father's fate. The arrival of the English regulars, who have been hurried up from London on motor 'buses, saves the situation, and on this comforting conclusion the curtain falls.

The piece was well acted, and was mounted with admirable attention to detail. Mr. Lawrence Grossmith as Geoffrey Smith gave a finely realistic portrait of an impudent, narrow-minded, selfish cad, and delivered his droll rejoinders with the greatest possible effect. Nothing could have been better than the loud impertinence and irrepressible self-satisfaction of Geoffrey as depicted by Mr. Grossmith, who died with praiseworthy reality. Mr. Edmund Maurice was very happily cast as Prince Yoland, being able to endow the personage with all the necessary military bluntness and good-tempered self-control, besides an appropriate hint of regal dignity. Mr. George Bealby gave a capital comedy sketch as the ridiculous Reggie Brown, wrapt in the concoction of Limerick lines, his make-up and general demeanour being admirable. Mr. Charles Rock hit off exactly the pig-headed pluck and blind, stupid energy of Mr. Brown; and Mr. Arthur Wontner played Paul Robinson, a rather critical character, with a praiseworthy mixture of discretion and impassioned activity. Mr. Rudge Harding's quiet, cheerful, and business-like Adjutant was a neat and smart performance, very natural and effective; and Mr. Max Leeds was quite realistic as a rather silly, but fairly courageous Volunteer Lieutenant. Mr. H. Stephenson did useful and careful work as Lieut. Rian Hobart; and Mr. Philip Knox and Mr. Forbes Dawson were good as the two sergeants, Thol and Garth. That excellent actor Mr. Charles Allan had little to do as the Doctor, but did it unimpeachably; and the foolish Brown girls were amusingly embodied by Miss Elaine Inescort and Miss Mona Harrison, the former taking full advantage of her brief opportunities for tragedy. Miss Christine Silver was commendable as an inane young girl who was always boasting of her brother's achievements; and Mr. E. W. Garden gave a quaint and droll rendering of the rôle of Captain Finch, Mr. Charles Weir being sufficiently stiff and stern as the Colour-sergeant, and Mr. Howard Sturge and Mr. B. Egerton being quite competent as an Officer and an Orderly. Special praise is deserved by the wonderful way in which Mr. Bruce Smith, the scenic artist, and Mr. Gerald du Maurier, who produced the play for Mr. Curzon, co-operated in the scenic effects. The realistic way in which the ceiling and the walls were damaged by the supposed shell-fire carried conviction, and did striking credit to these two gentlemen, to whom the author is much indebted for details which had a great deal to do with the success of the play, which was never in doubt. The applause after each act and at the conclusion was long and loud, the audience waiting in hopes of seeing the author, who, however, did not appear.

PRESENTATION.—On Saturday afternoon the genial manager of the Prince's, Portsmouth, Mr. J. E. Agate, was the recipient of a handsome dressing bag from Mr. Ernest Greene on behalf of the staff.

THE seventh annual pantomime supper of the King's Theatre, Hammersmith, W., will be discussed on Monday by the Babes in the Wood company in conjunction with the permanent resident staff.

THE L.C.C. AND AMUSEMENTS.

The London County Council resumed its weekly meetings after the Christmas recess on Tuesday afternoon, Mr. R. A. Robinson (chairman) presiding.

THE LORD CHAMBERLAIN'S LICENCE.

The Theatres and Music Halls Committee reported that the Camden Theatre and the Palace, Islington, were opened on Dec. 26 last for the performance of stage plays under licences granted by the Lord Chamberlain.

EXPLOSIVES.

The Committee reported that during the quarter ended Dec. 31, 1908, explosives and dangerous substances were found to be in use in licensed premises on seventy-nine occasions. The arrangements were not, in any case, found to be unsatisfactory.

INSPECTION.

The expenditure incurred during the quarter ended Dec. 31, 1908, in connection with visits to unlicensed premises to ascertain whether public music or dancing was given thereat, and in connection with reports upon the character of the performances at licensed premises, amounted to £11 3s. 9d.

SHAFTESBURY THEATRE.

The Committee reported that they had considered drawings, submitted by Mr. F. A. Tugwell, showing proposals to execute certain alterations at the Shaftesbury Theatre, Shaftesbury-avenue. The alterations include the substitution of steel columns for the cast iron columns to each tier, the provision of new fibrous fronts to the boxes, an improvement of the approach to the dress circle from the main entrance, alterations to the refreshment bars in the stalls and upper circle, and the installation of a hot-water system and a new system of electric lighting.

The Committee recommended that no objection be taken to the proposed alterations, provided that certain specified requirements be carried out.

Agreed to.

DANCING IN A LION'S DEN.

The Committee reported that during the recess attention having been drawn to statements in the Press respecting an exhibition of dancing in a lion's den at the Fun City at the London Exhibitions, Earl's Court, the licensee was communicated with, and as a result he gave instructions for the performance to be immediately discontinued.

THE FASTENED DOOR.

The Committee reported that in consequence of one of the exit doors at the Pavilion Theatre, Whitechapel, having been found to be fastened during a performance on Dec. 26, 1908, by a piece of board being nailed across the leaves, instructions were given for a sealed notice, under Section 45 of the Metropolitan Board of Works (Various Powers) Act, 1882, to be served on the person responsible for keeping the premises open to the public.

MISCELLANEOUS.

The following proposals were on the recommendation of the Theatres Committee agreed to:—A proposal to rearrange the seating in the stalls, and to form a new exit therefrom, at the New Grand Theatre of Varieties, St. John's-hill, Clapham Junction; a proposal to enlarge the heating chamber at the New Theatre, St. Martin's-lane; and a proposal to alter the stage-door at the Savoy Theatre.

CINEMATOGRAPH FIRES.

Mr. Walter Reynolds called the attention of the Chairman of the Theatres Committee to the fact that two cinematograph fires had occurred during the past month, at both of which a considerable number of persons were seriously injured. He asked whether the Committee would consider as to recommending the Council to send another deputation to the Home Secretary to point out again to him the responsibility resting on his department of allowing the existing state of things to continue, and to urge the necessity for introducing without any further delay legislation empowering local authorities to exercise proper control over all premises in which cinematograph exhibitions were given.

Mr. H. J. Greenwood (Chairman of the Committee), in reply, said that the Theatres Committee would have before them on Feb. 3 a letter from the Middlesex County Council stating that they understood that the Council was about to send a deputation to the Home Secretary on the subject of cinematograph entertainments, and they would be glad for members to attend with the deputation and support the representations proposed to be made with a view to the controlling of cinematograph and similar exhibitions. As the Council were aware, a deputation, consisting of members of the Theatres and Music Halls Committee, attended on the Home Secretary on Feb. 28, 1908, and was informed by Mr. Gladstone that he was well aware of the matter, and would consider whether it could be possibly dealt with in the then current session of Parliament. The Committee had not considered as to sending another deputation to the Home Secretary; but in view of the terms of the letter from the Middlesex County Council he could assure Mr. Reynolds that the matter would now receive the attention of the Committee.

The Buildings Sub-committee of the Education Committee, in view of the danger attending cinematograph displays, have come to the conclusion that a clause should be inserted in the regulations for the letting of schools to the effect that the schools of the Council are not available for such entertainments, and they intend to recommend the Council accordingly.

ALFRED WILLIAM MAY was charged before Mr. Curtis Bennett at Bow-street Police Court on Saturday with theft. On Friday afternoon John Higson, an assistant stage carpenter at the Coliseum, saw May in the green room. He came to the conclusion that he was one of the artists, and took particular notice of him as he was breaking the rules by smoking a cigar. Shortly afterwards Higson missed his overcoat from the carpenters' room, and as he detected the smell of cigar smoke there he associated May with his loss. He spoke to Mr. Crocker, the stage manager, and went with him to the green room, where they found May. He was questioned as to what he was doing there and was found to be wearing two overcoats—one belonging to Higson and another owned by Ernest Gibbons, one of the electricians employed at the Coliseum.

On finding that he was detected, May took from the pockets of one of the overcoats a pair of boots belonging to Higson. When he was searched by Detective-Sergeant Davis he was found to be in possession of £1 2s. in money, some cheap jewellery, and pawntickets relating to a coat and jewellery. Mr. R. M. Dix, who prosecuted, said the defendant had no connection with the Coliseum. The defendant was remanded for inquiries.

At the Cirque d'Hiver, a popular show-place in Paris, the musicians had been given notice to quit in a body, because they belonged to a syndicate, and were replaced by others. They decided on aggressive action, and went in a body to the hall with stale eggs and inkbottles. When the house was in darkness for a cinematograph scene, they threw their inkbottles and eggs at the screen. But their shots, falling short, struck the musicians who had replaced them. The pianist got a bottle full of ink in the neck, and Mme. Lise Maprel, a singer, had her corsage badly stained with ink. The police eventually landed fourteen of the aggressors at the nearest police-station.

THE LATE MR. JOHN SMITH.

On Thursday afternoon, at Willesden New Cemetery, the funeral took place of the late John Smith, for upwards of twenty-eight years in the service of Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter, and for quite a number of years manager of the celebrated firm, a position which he held to the end. During the whole of the above long period he enjoyed the unbounded confidence of his principals, and was a leading spirit in fostering the growth of cheap music, in which he evinced the keenest interest, and, indeed, thereby earned for himself the sobriquet of "Sixpenny Pops Smith."

The deceased had been ailing for some time, but pluckily kept to his post till a fortnight before the end, which came on the 22nd inst., the cause of death being long-standing internal disease. He was in his forty-third year, and leaves a widow and two daughters.

Despite the dense fog, quite a large number of people assembled at the cemetery, and had the weather been more propitious a much larger number would have gathered to pay the last tribute of respect to one who was deservedly and universally liked. Among the mourners who followed the deceased from the residence in Riffell-road, Willesden, besides the relatives, were Messrs.

THE LATE MR. JOHN SMITH.

David Day, Lester Barrett, Charles Wilmott, and William Eyke. Illness prevented Mr. Warwick Williams's attendance.

At the graveside, among very many others, were Messrs. Felix McGlennon, B. J. Draghi, L. Fraser, John Wood, J. Sherlock, Fred Holland and Albert Trott (the well-known cricketers), Radford (F. Gant and Co., printers), E. Frewin, L. Zink, Sherlock, Parsons (Strong and Hanbury), J. H. Bird. L. Fraser, C. R. Conway, Geo. Scott (representing Mr. Philip J. Rutland), and Baxter.

Other members of the staff present included Henry E. Pether, Hermann E. Darewski, Leonard Bellamy, Charles Rooker, John Abbott, H. Harris, G. Morley, Frank Abbott, R. Berridge, jun., B. Lucas, C. Griffiths, J. Bewell, W. Ward, Dan Alger, T. Templar, W. Lewis, E. Bateman, Mrs. R. Berridge, Mrs. Gordon, and others. Bronchitis and the impenetrable fog alone kept that sturdy veteran, R. Berridge, sen., from attending.

A large number of beautiful floral designs were sent, comprising, among others, an anchor, from Mr. and Mrs. David Day and family; a cushion, from the staff; a harp with a broken string, from Lester Barrett, C. Wilmott, and H. E. Darewski; laurel wreath, from Charles Day; wreath from Mrs. W. Francis and family (from Hastings); cross, from J. H. Bird; wreath, from Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Conway, wreath from the Master Warden and brethren of the Era Masonic Lodge, wreath from B. J. Draghi, harp from Warwick Williams, wreath from Mr. and Mrs. L. Bellamy, wreath from G. Udloff, wreath from Lauriston Fraser, wreath from W. Allen and Mrs. Moncrieff (of the "Royal George," Charing Cross-road), and many others. The funeral arrangements were efficiently carried out by Messrs. Crookes and Co., of Kilburn.

TRAGIC DEATH OF GEORGE SCOTT.

At the moment of going to press we are shocked to hear of the tragic death of Mr. George Scott, who shot himself in bed at the Tavistock Hotel at 10 o'clock on Friday morning with a double-barrelled sporting gun. Death was practically instantaneous.

Mr. George Scott was born at Plymouth in the fifties, and, as was the fashion in those days, satiated his ambition to become an actor by joining the stock company at the Theatre Royal, Plymouth, under the management of Mr. J. R. Newcombe. He afterwards pursued his career at Bristol and Exeter, where he acquired much useful experience prior to his advent in London. Later he found a position in front of the house at the Court with the late Mr. John Clayton, and afterwards filled a managerial position at the Comedy, Manchester. He became the first manager of the Palace, Manchester, and was associated in the struggle of that hall for a licence, which was granted on March 24, 1891. He was associated with Barnum and Bailey's Circus, and made a gallant effort to place the Kursaal, Southend on a paying basis. He was appointed manager of the Alhambra, Leicester-square, at the death of Mr. Douglas Cox early in 1894, and left that position in the autumn of 1908. The deceased gentleman was the father of Mr. Harry Scott, actor, who made his first appearance as a child at the Theatre Royal, Exeter, in the company of which his parent was a prominent member. The deceased gentleman was at the Alhambra on Thursday afternoon watching the wrestling competitions, and spoke to several friends.

THE LATE MR. GEORGE SCOTT.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—I was greatly surprised to read in your "Variety Gossip" last week the statement that the song "Afraid to come home in the dark," which is making such a hit in pantomimes this year, was sung for the first time in England by Miss Maidie Scott at the Argyle, Birkenhead, on March 2, 1908; also that Miss Scott was asked by the publishers in America to sing it in England.

I shall be pleased if you will allow me space in The Era to give more explicit details, which will show conclusively that the lady who has made the song in England and who has the sole written rights for singing the number is Miss Hetty King.

Miss King has explained to Miss Scott that the song has been assigned solely to her (Miss King), and has respectfully requested her to withdraw it from her répertoire. Miss Scott has declined, so I must make the true facts of the matter known, and members of the profession and the public will see who is in the right and who is in the wrong. The argument is not a legal one, but purely a matter of professional etiquette.

Messrs. Jerome, Remick, and Co., of New York, approached Miss King while she was in America, and asked her to sing several of their songs, including "Afraid to go home in the dark," which she did, and as compensation the New York publishers agreed to give Miss King the sole singing rights for England. This they did in writing, and at the same time informed Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter to this effect, asking them to give Miss King the English assignment. On Miss King's arrival here Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter handed her the said assignment, which gave her the sole singing rights. Thousands of copies of the song have been printed bearing Miss King's name and photograph on the frontispiece.

In your paragraph of last week you say that Miss Scott first sang the number at the Argyle, Birkenhead, on March 2, 1908. By a singular coincidence, Miss King recommenced her English engagements on the same date at the Ardwick Empire, Manchester, and there introduced "Afraid to go home in the dark," the song she has since popularised all over the country. A short time elapsed before Miss King heard that Miss Scott was singing the same song, and on her behalf I wrote giving Miss Scott a full explanation, and respectfully requesting her to withdraw it, as she was encroaching on Miss King's rights, but Miss Scott continued to sing "Afraid to go home in the dark." Further comment is needless. Honour to whom honour is due. Thanking you in anticipation for the publication of this letter,—Yours faithfully,

ERNEST LUCK.

Prince of Wales' Theatre, Birmingham, Jan. 27.

MISS VIOLET CHARLESWORTH, the lady of the alleged cliff mystery, has accepted an engagement to appear at the Canterbury on Monday at a large salary. She will present a drawing-room entertainment, in which she will sing at the piano several songs which she has written and composed herself.

DEATH OF JOE LAWRENCE.

Widespread regret will be felt among the older members of the profession at the news of the death of Mr. Joe Lawrence, who passed away on Sunday at the age of sixty. The present generation of music-hall frequenters knew but little of the performer, who, in the seventies and eighties earned celebrity with a very remarkable performance. In an inverted position the deceased comedian used to act as a boxer. In the clogs he was one of the experts of his day, and when his gifted daughter Miss Vesta Victoria made her first appearance as a tiny child on the stage at Collins's on an anniversary night in 1884, her dancing showed that she had been admirably trained. Mr. Lawrence Barclay, his son, also derived considerable benefit from his father's tuition. The deceased comedian was an enthusiastic advocate for combination among the profession, and held the card No. 1 of the Terriers, a professional association that his enthusiasm did much to establish. It was based on the principles of charity and mutual help, and as a friendly society and as a coterie for fostering the spirit of amity, it has done excellent work.

A personal friend of the deceased gentleman sends us the following particulars of his career:—

Mr. Lawrence—or "Joe," which he very much preferred—was a native of Leeds, and was apprenticed as a boy to a large engineering firm, where, according to his own words, the late Colonel North was foreman. Like many others, Joe went to music halls, and also learnt step-dancing, and after his appearance at a benefit at the Princess's, Leeds, in the late Joseph Hobson's time, when Jim Ellis was manager, he was given a date. He likewise appeared at Mrs. Bink's, in Briggate, Leeds, and at other small halls in Yorkshire. It was the late Ambrose Maynard who booked him his first town engagement, at the South London Palace, with the late John J. Poole, who announced him as the "double-headed nondescript," which title Joe retained, as he was presumably the first to do this business, which consisted of standing on his head on a pedestal or table, and boxing with his feet. Nearly thirty years ago he took a circus at Gloucester, and ran a variety show, but variety business was not quite so popular at that time, and Gloucester being a cathedral city did not lend itself altogether to that class of entertainment.

THE LATE JOE LAWRENCE.

Later he took the old Mechanics' Hall (afterwards the Empire), Leeds, in conjunction with Chas. Morritt. There they handicapped themselves with large salaries and one house a night. The place could not possibly hold the money. They engaged such artists as the late Jenny Hill, and others of that order. Joe then became manager of the Alhambra, Hull, under Mr. Sam Barnard, and afterwards took the Pavilion (now the Empire), Cardiff, opening on one Easter Monday, but the venture was unsuccessful.

In his earlier years Joe was a black circus clown, and once fulfilled, during this period, an engagement at Yarmouth. He had to appear on horseback, and his mount, an old trick steed, made a bolt for the sea, and Joe ended his first and last experience as a circus rider by slipping off behind and going home.

Some twenty-five years ago he was a prominent member of the Country Agents' Society, which afterwards became the Music Hall Protection Association. This Mr. Lawrence really founded. He was a member of the late Music Hall Benevolent Fund Committee, and one of the founders of the Terriers' Association.

THE FUNERAL.

The funeral took place on Thursday. The cortège left Park Lodge, Stockwell Park-road, at 2.15, for the cemetery at Tooting. The principal mourners were three sons of the deceased—George, Ernest, and Archie—and these were supported by a large contingent of the members of the Terriers' Association. Mr. Sidney Lawrence was unable to attend the funeral owing to illness. The following members of the Association acted as pall bearers: Mr. Jesse Sparrow, Mr. G. P. R. Burgess, Mr. Leon Bassett, Mr. H. Cory Woodrow, Mr. S. N. Salter, Mr. W. H. Atlas, Mr. J. E. Dunedin, Mr. E. D'Almaine, Mr. George Cooper (of the Three Coopers), and Mr. Arthur Were, secretary.

Other Terriers present were Messrs. Douglas White, J. Alexander, T. C. Callaghan, Horace Wheatley, Harry Gage, M. H. McDowall, F. W. Millis, P. Madden, Ben Woodger, B. Almon, and the deceased's late manager, Vin. Monkley. Mr. Pat Carey joined the procession at the cemetery. Mr. Douglas Stuart was also in attendance as the representative of the M.H.A.R.A., and Messrs. C. Jerome and J. Gilmore represented the V.A.F.

Some beautiful wreaths and floral tributes were received from Mrs. Lawrence, Vesta Victoria, George and Ada Lawrence, Sidney Lawrence, Ernest Lawrence, W. H. Atlas and Vulcana, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Elvin, Mr. and Mrs. Lowrey, the staff of the Gem Palace, Yarmouth, Red Riding Hood company, Grand Theatre, Byker, Mr. Jesse Sparrow, the M.H.A.R.A., and the Terriers' Association.

MISS CONSTANCE HYEM, the Dick Whittington of the Coronet Theatre, claims the family name of Whittington. In this connection she wears in the final scene of the pantomime a valuable family heirloom (if such an expression can be used in regard to an old English non-titled family) in the shape of a diamond garter, presented to her great grandfather, one of the City Fathers of his day, who it is supposed was a descendant of the ancient Whittington family. A little book by Miss Constance Hyem will shortly be published, entitled "Ten Years on the Stage," in which she will principally deal with her interesting two years' experience under Miss Ellaline Terriss and Mr. Seymour Hicks at the Vaudeville Theatre.

"THE ERA" can be obtained at the principal bookstalls throughout the provinces.

"Alas!

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

[We cannot undertake to answer the inquiries of correspondents by post. In all letters names and addresses must be given as a guarantee of good faith. Initials only or pseudonyms will be used in the replies if so desired.]

A. H. KING.—The Dollar Princess was produced on Dec. 24, 1908, at the Prince's, Manchester; but we have no mention of it in our "On the Road" column. You might learn more about the piece by writing to Mr. J. E. Malone, Daly's Theatre.

RHONA (Edinburgh).—Write to French's, Southampton-street, Strand. They publish works of the kind, and should be able to advise you.

H. BARRON (Ealing).—The Dancing Girl was produced at the Haymarket, and ran from Jan. 13, 1891, to Jan. 15, 1892, with a short break in the summer. It was one of Mr. H. A. Jones's most conspicuous successes. It is understood that the author has rewritten the play, which will be produced in February at His Majesty's by Mr. Tree, who will play his original part. Miss Alice Crawford, who was the Charmian in Mr. Tree's revival of Antony and Cleopatra, will appear in the part originally played by Miss Julia Neilson.

SKIBOO.—Your request involves too much search and too much questioning. As it is a personal matter, why not write direct to the manager and organiser of the company you mention. We cannot waste our time on such trivialities as the discovery as to whether an actor belongs to the same place as yourself.

PLAYGOER.—There is no copyright in an incident, but there is in dialogue, and you might be sued for infringement if you copy the latter. If you let us know the name of the play, and where produced, we may be able to tell you the whereabouts of the author.

W. HALL.—The People's Music Hall, Manchester, in 1874, was known under that name, the proprietor being Mr. T. B. Burton, and that name was still associated with it in 1896. A Manchester paper might give you further information.

DRAMATIC AND MUSICAL LAW.

BY A. A. STRONG, LL.B. (LOND.), SOLICITOR.

Your book will, I am sure, be a valuable aid to all managers and actors.—SIR HENRY IRVING.

Mr. Strong states the whole case very clearly.—Illustrated London News.

Should be found very useful.—Pelican.

Should prove perfectly invaluable.—Weekly Sun.

The work succeeds in making plain the thorny legal path that every manager and artist must tread, and by a timely consultation of its pages they may avoid much misapprehension and trouble.—Star.

AT the meeting of the Hammersmith Borough Council on Wednesday evening the Law and Parliamentary Committee reported that they had considered the question as to whether the premises in which cinematograph and similar entertainments are held should be licensed, and were of opinion that in order to secure the safety of the public it was most important that no premises should be allowed to be used for such purposes unless they were licensed under the same conditions as premises used for performance of stage plays and for music and dancing.

IT was recommended: (a) That representations to this effect be made to the Secretary of State for the Home Department, with a request that he would promote the necessary legislation to require the licensing of all premises and places used for cinematograph shows and other like forms of public entertainment; and (b) that the London County Council and the Metropolitan City and Borough Councils be requested to communicate with the Secretary of State in support of the proposal.

THE Stepney Borough Council on Wednesday passed a resolution asking the London County Council to give the question of cinematograph entertainments their careful consideration with a view to obtaining statutory powers of control. The Works Committee reported that many shops which could not be said to be adapted for the purpose were used for these entertainments. It had been represented to them that the narrow passage through which the public attending such places had to pass would constitute a very serious danger in case of fire, especially seeing that a large number of children attended them.

THE London and Provincial Ornithological Society's Jubilee Show of British and foreign birds will be held at the Crystal Palace from Feb. 5 to 9. Extra classes and extra prize-money have been provided on this occasion, and every effort is being made to make the show one of the most successful ever held. There are 146 classes—Norwich 8, Crest 7, Yorks 12, Greens 8, Cinnamon 4, Lancs 4, Lizards 4, Borders 8, Scotch 4, Belgraves 4, Frills 1, London Fancy 1, A.O.V. Canary 1, classes for novices 18, price-limit classes 7, Roller canaries 3, hybrids 11, British birds 25, foreign 11, stock Class 1 (cages 3).

OLD Usher, one of the veterans of the Haymarket Theatre, praising very much a loin of veal that was on Foote's table, asked him who was his butcher. "I think his name's Addison," said Foote. "Addison!" cried Usher; "I wonder, is he any relation to the great Addison?" "Why, that I don't exactly know; and yet I think he must, as he is seldom without his steel (Steele) by his side."

MR. FRED SOLO concluded his pantomime engagement last Saturday at the Grand Theatre, Croydon, where he played Captain Taffrail in Dick Whittington, and made a hit in his burlesque pirate scena and eccentric dancing.

MISS MAUD ESMOND is proving a sensational success at the Brixton Theatre, where she is playing Dick Whittington. Her refined and dashing manner, coupled with a sweet and powerful voice, has brought her many tempting offers for next Christmas.

IN the April of 1772 between the play and the farce at Drury Lane Theatre, a disturbance arose which continued for a full hour. Mr. Weston, it appeared, was in debt to the managers, on which account they had impounded all the cash received on his benefit night; this, the comedian did not like, and therefore sent word yesterday that he could not play, as he was arrested, and detained in a sponging-house, but desired that no apology should be made of his being suddenly taken ill (the usual stage plea), as it would be an egregious falsehood. After the play, Mr. Vernon came forward, and announced that Mr. Weston was "suddenly taken ill," and could not perform. Weston immediately started up in front of the gallery, and informed the house that he was not ill, but in the custody of an officer, and if the audience would have patience, he would acquaint them with the whole affair. A long altercation ensued; the managers sent on Mr. Vernon repeatedly, and after much pro and con matter, Weston went down, and played his part of Jerry Sneak. The managers promised the town a publication of the whole affair.

THE LAW OF COPYRIGHT FOR
ACTOR AND COMPOSER,
By ALBERT A. STRONG, LL.B. (Lond.).
Copyright confusion is like the poor, always with us, and as it seems likely to remain so until at least the crack of doom, it were well for all concerned, or likely to be concerned, to take immediate steps to secure a copy of Mr. Albert A. Strong's new work, entitled "The Law of Copyright." Mr. Strong is already favourably known to the profession for his textbook on "Dramatic and Musical Law," which, like his latest production, is published at "The Era" office. "The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer" essays to make clear to the non-legal mind what is—or, in some cases what probably is—the law as to musical and dramatic copyright. The chapters on the Berne Convention and on the Chase Act, passed by the United States Congress last March, are full of interest.—Referee.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1909.
AN ENTERTAINING DRAMATIC AND MUSICAL ANNUAL.
"The Era" Dramatic and Musical Annual for 1909 is an invaluable book to all those interested in matters theatrical and operatic. Professionals and those whose lot it is to write of dramatic matters will be specially concerned with such desirable information as that contained in the lists of (1) new plays and important revivals produced at the London and suburban theatres, (2) new plays and important revivals produced in the provinces, (3) casts of new plays and important revivals (a new feature, we think), (4) plays produced in New York, (5) new pieces produced at the principal Paris theatres, and (6) new plays and important revivals presented at the principal Berlin theatres. These lists, and also alphabetical lists of (a) plays produced in London and the provinces and (b) the principal sketches produced at London and provincial variety houses, cover the period from Dec. 1, 1907, to Nov. 30, 1908. The casts of new sketches, a theatrical, musical, and equestrian obituary, and lists of theatres and music-halls in the United Kingdom are also given. To the general reader the most attractive feature will be, however, a series of stories told by well-known people, each story being illustrated by the photograph and autograph of the author. The annual is both useful and entertaining, and has enhanced its already high reputation. (London: 5, Tavistock-street, Strand.)—Dundee Courier, Jan. 27, 1909.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1909.
"The Era" Dramatic and Musical Annual for 1909 is attractive, and, in some respects, unique. It is, of course, primarily a souvenir of interest to members of the kindred professions, but it has features that commend it to the host of playgoers—notably the contributions by leading actors and actresses and music-hall stars. Those professional reminiscences are models of magazine compression—pithy, piquant, and diversified. Other features of interest and value include the records of British and foreign productions during the past year. The tributes to the memory of popular favourites who passed away last year will be sympathetically noted.—Financier (Daily), Jan. 16, 1909.

THE ERA

SATURDAY, JANUARY 30, 1909.

THE QUESTION OF THE QUEUE.

The theatrical manager's lot is decidedly not always a "happy one," and yet how happy he might be if people would only let him alone! His marvellous versatility in itself makes for enjoyment; and we believe, if outsiders were only aware of the extraordinary amount of work and worry which an actor-manager—and most of our London entrepreneurs are actor-managers—has to endure, they would refrain, from very pity, from further persecution. The actor-manager is the be-all and end-all of a theatre. Upon him depends its failure or its success. However he may assist himself with secretaries and solicitors, the motive power—the "fundamental brainwork"—must come from himself. In the old days it was considered enough for a leading actor to conceive characters and represent them on the stage by the light of genius; and what was the consequence? The overflowing energy of the artistic temperament was always getting actors and managers into trouble. SHERIDAN tried to overcome it by adding political oratory to his responsibilities; but he, according to his contemporaries, drank too much and died young. EDMUND KEAN got into trouble with a married lady in the City, and thereby destroyed his popularity; and he, too, looked on the wine when it was red. The modern actor-manager never rests. When he is not actually acting or rehearsing, he is getting ready the production of a new play, engaging artists, giving out commissions for designs of dresses and scenery, reading plays or causing them to be read, engaging artists, and ordering incidental music. But there are yet other demands made upon his time and strength. Socially he is much sought after; and he has both to give and accept hospitality. Frequently he takes part in civic government; usually he is interested in philanthropy; and occasionally he takes up some trifling side-scheme, such as the establishment of a National Theatre. His only rest is obtained in the train in which he goes over to Paris to see the latest novelties with a view to purchasing the English rights.

The exuberant activity of the actor-manager and his passionate affection for work are ingredients of happiness; and he would be happy were it not for the constant irritating interferences with him while he is carrying on his business. He has long been an object of offence to the "superior" critics, who have denied to him even the right of existence. "Exterminate the actor-manager" was for a long time the war-cry of a certain section of theatrical essayists. Like the Hebrew scapegoat, he bore the blame of all the shortcomings of the English drama. He was the "enemy," the origin of all evil. He was always, and is always, being told what he ought to do in order to make his fortune and preserve his popularity. When an actor-manager produced IBSEN in the evenings the public stayed away, and the "superior" critics put it down to the actor-manager's imperfect performance of the principal part.

The latest thorn in the managers' side is a threatened interference with his right to form queues. When the crowd used to gather around the doors of our theatres unmarshalled, preparing for the terrific struggle which followed the opening of the doors, objection was made to the disorder. When the late Mr. D'OYLY CARTE introduced the queue system at the Savoy everyone admired the improvement; and soon other managers followed his example, the result being a most orderly and excellent arrangement, testifying to the good sense of the British public and the tact of the police. The latest annoyance comes from Manchester, where, as the result of the formation of a local "Theatre Reform League" with the object of the abolition of queues, an application has been made before the City Stipendiary to grant a summons against Mr. JOHN HART, the well-known and popular manager of the Prince's Theatre, Manchester, for creating an "obstruction" by causing a crowd to assemble outside his theatre.

This application is an instance of the trouble that may be caused by the busybodies who are always wanting to reform the theatre. We could understand one of the tradesmen before whose premises the queue is formed complaining that the access of customers to his shop was obstructed; but strange to say, though the queue system has been in use for years in London, there has been no objection made to it either by tenants or owners of property. The action of the "Theatre Reform League" appears to be prompted by the love of meddling with other people's affairs which is so strong in this age of plentiful self-advertisement and little common-sense. Not long ago there was a movement in favour of booking all the seats at theatres. That has fallen to the ground, though Mr. CYRIL MAUDE has given the idea excellent advertisement and a fine chance at his beautiful Playhouse on the Embankment. If the summons of the Manchester "Theatre Reform League" results in Mr. HART being forbidden to continue his queues, it will put him to the heavy expense of arranging a troublesome and utterly unnecessary system of booking seats for the pit and gallery; a system which the manager does not want and the public do not want—which, indeed, nobody wants except the Manchester "Theatre Reform League." We trust that Mr. HART will resist this ridiculous interference with all the resources of cash and counsel; and that no London "League" will be foolishly formed to apply for similar summonses against our London managers. If they do, we may rely on our magistrates, with their sturdy wisdom, to nip the absurd "movement" in the bud by refusing to grant any such summons.

MR. BARRINGTON AND ENCORES.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—Will you of your courtesy allow me to reply to an article in your issue of Jan. 23 headed "An Attack on the Orchestra," containing comments on my lecture to the O.P. Club and an interview with Mr. Cellier, of the Savoy.

In the first place the "heading" of your column accuses me of an offence which I have never committed, my grievance being against musical directors, and not the hard-working and amiable members of the different orchestras who have so ably seconded (?) my vocal efforts.

Individual members of many orchestras have told me that owing to the proximity of other instrumentalists it is an impossibility for any musician to judge exactly the force of the tone he is producing, and that the necessity for raising or subduing the same can only be conveyed to him by a signal from the musical director.

This statement, which has every appearance of being the truth, fixes the responsibility where I endeavoured, or at least intended, to place it, namely, on the conductor.

I was careful not to particularise in my remarks, and feel some curiosity to know the motive which prompted the Westminster Gazette to immediately interview my old friend François Cellier, who, it grieves me to find, was not astute enough to lay claim to being the "notable exception" to whom I referred in my lecture, instead of remarking that whoever I was aiming at, it was certainly not himself, as "Sir Arthur Sullivan was a perfect master of the situation"—a fact equally as patent as the fact that Sir Arthur does not conduct the Savoy orchestra.

I perfectly well remember the phrase from Patience to which Mr. Cellier alludes in his interview, and which I honestly believe I never once sang in tune; but I might remind him that although Sir Arthur "put in a strenuous note for the sole purpose of saving me from falling overboard" during this trying chromatic passage, Sir Arthur confessed that the passage was purposely introduced as a practical joke on me.

Since Mr. Cellier has in a way taken up the bâton in defence of my so-called "attack" (and no one knows better that himself what an "attack" should be), I would refer him, in all courtesy and good feeling, to one of the critiques of the latest revival of Iolanthe, where it was stated that "what with the brass on the stage and the brass in the orchestra it was impossible to hear a word that was sung, and the noise was deafening"; though this may possibly be taken by him as additional proof of his argument that "Sir Arthur was master of the situation."

I cannot help feeling that should you see fit to open your columns to a public discussion on the matter we should find many people who have the courage of their opinions supporting my argument, which is that, as a rule, the orchestral accompaniments in most theatres might, with advantage to artist and public, be somewhat modified in power.

It is a great personal satisfaction to me to know that Mr. Cellier, who, by the way, "personally conducted" me in Pinafore on my birthdays in January, 1879, and 1909, feels no sort of animosity to me for my "attack," and still remains my "lifebuoy of support" in Savoy opera.—Yours faithfully, RUTLAND BARRINGTON.

The reception of Our Miss Gibbs at the Gaiety left no room for any doubt of the success of the piece, and a long run for it is absolutely assured. The result has been secured by Mr. George Edwardes's genius for the production of musical plays. How he has managed, for these many years past, to keep the lamp of entertainment burning at the Gaiety is astonishing; but the fact remains, and another leaf was added to the laurels of the great Provider last Saturday. Whoever "Cryptos" may be, he is certainly inventive. The plot of Our Miss Gibbs is not only amusing; it is never entirely abandoned. When Mr. Edwardes has a weak scenario he knows—none better than he—how to bolster it up with accessories and embellishments; but he is wise enough to let a good story alone. The fun of the libretto of Our Miss Gibbs is obtained from the adventures of a countryman in London. Timothy Gibbs, a Yorkshire rustic, comes up to town to play in the brass band contest with a local band at the Crystal Palace. He is the cousin of Mary Gibbs, a very pretty and popular young lady, who presides over the flower department at "Garrod's" Stores. At this colossal establishment he meets with the Hon. Hughie Pierrepoint, an "amateur criminal," who is instructed by a professional "crook" called Slithers, a smart and plausible person of good appearance and address. Pierrepoint has stolen the Ascot Gold Cup, which has been won by the Earl of St. Ives, and is carrying the trophy about with him in an ordinary leather bag. This happens to be of the same size and pattern as Timothy's, and the bags are accidentally exchanged. When Timothy opens Pierrepoint's bag and finds the cup, the "crook" takes it away from him, and places it in the safe deposit of the establishment. Mary is not without her anxieties. She has been courted by and has fallen in love with a young man who has represented himself to be a bank clerk, but is really the Earl of St. Ives's son, Lord Eynsford. The Duchess of Minster wants to marry him to her daughter Lady Elizabeth Thanet, and comes to "Garrod's" with the Earl's solicitor, Mr. Beavis, to try and buy Mary off. As she thinks she knows nothing of Lord Eynsford Miss Gibbs is highly indignant, and the first act ends with her discovery of her lover's identity, her rejection of his pleadings and excuses, and her departure, with the rest of the leading characters, for the White City, under the wing of an impecunious lady of fashion whom she has helped to obtain some new frocks.

In the second act, at the White City, Timothy's troubles increase. He is implicated in the theft of the cup, and trembles when he reads in the papers that the thief is in London "disguised as a countryman," and that the Earl's bloodhounds have been sent to assist the police. So he dresses as a competitor for the Marathon race, and rushes wildly from the pursuit of imaginary dogs. In the end the Earl gets back his cup, and is so charmed with Miss Gibbs that he consents to the marriage; and Timothy, after so many troubles, returns to Yorkshire and peace.

A very important share in the success of last Saturday was taken by Miss Gertie Millar, who played Mary Gibbs with a gaiety and brightness that were delightful, and danced, sang, and acted with an animation and activity which kept things going when she was on the stage. The part is a pleasant one, and Miss Millar played it in just the right style, the clearness and distinctness of her delivery, and the artistic finish with which she made every point deserving very warm praise. She extracted every ounce of meaning out of the words of her songs, and her business with Mr. Payne, some of which in clumsy hands might easily have been made ugly or vulgar, was always pretty and feminine. She has seldom been seen to more advantage, and her success as Mary Gibbs certainly had a great deal to do with that of the play. Mr. Edmund Payne took full advantage of one of the funniest parts he has ever had written for him to be funnier than ever. The rôle of Timothy Gibbs fitted him like a glove; and we need say no more to infer that he was excruciatingly amusing. Mr. George Grossmith, always unimpeachable, reliable, and popular, again scored highly as the ridiculous "amateur criminal"; and Mr. Robert Hale gave a really polished light comedy sketch as the professional "crook." The engagement of Mr. O. B. Clarence, who excels in the embodiment of elderly aristocrats, gave plausibility to the part of the Earl of St. Ives, and a certain reality to the dénouement; and the rôle of the Stores manager was quietly but cleverly played by Mr. Arthur Hatherton. Mr. J. Edward Fraser as the serious and sentimental Lord Eynsford acted with earnestness and sang most expressively; and Mr. J. A. Evelyn gave a sound and careful performance as the family solicitor; Mr. H. B. Burcher doing good work as Mr. Amalfy and Mr. F. Payne being efficient as the taxi cabby. Miss Denise Orme was sweet, simple, and quaint as Lady Elizabeth Thanet, and sang and danced prettily; and Miss Jean Alwyn as the Scotch-French modiste, Mme. Jeanne, gave a piquant and artistic rendering of a well-conceived little character. Miss Gladys Homfrey as the Duchess of Minster was appropriately spacious, severe, and commanding; and Miss Maisie Gay contributed an agreeable impersonation of an impecunious "society lady."

The mounting was not only sumptuous, but extremely artistic. The Directoire dress and big hat crazes have been used as motifs upon which Signor Comelli, the designer of the costumes, has contrived a number of variations, all in exquisite taste, the colour-harmonies being full of skill and charm. Mr. Joseph Harker has been most successful with the Garrod's Stores interior of the first act, a marvellous piece of building up and stage realism. Mr. Ivan Caryll and Mr. Lionel Monckton have supplied a score full of gaiety, animation, and merry music; and Mr. James Tanner's work in constructing the play must not be overlooked. The lyrics by Messrs. Adrian Ross and Percy Greenbank are especially effective—neat, crisp, and pleasantly pointed. Miss Millar's Yorkshire song, for instance, is capital, and her duet, with business, with Mr. Payne is equally good. Miss Alwyn's "Hats" ditty is smart; and the sextette, "Don't forget you are a gentleman," is decidedly humorous. One of the most "haunting" melodies in the score is that sung by a chorus of ladies and gentlemen, who wheel each other about in the invalid chairs so familiar to frequenters of the White City; and Miss Denise Orme has a pretty song, "Arms and the Man," in which she is assisted by the chorus. The entertainment teems with telling "musical numbers"; and one of the brightest is a trio sung by Miss Olive May, Miss Rosie Begarnie, and Miss Adeline Balfe, who are full of vivacity and archness as three Irish colleens. The enthusiasm at the close of the performance was great; and vociferous calls testified to the triumph of the new musical play, which was unanimous and undeniable.

That Samson will take London by storm, as it did Paris and New York, is the unanimous opinion of Swansea people after seeing Mr. Arthur Bourchier's production at the Grand Theatre, Swansea, this week. For Mr. Bourchier has given us a play which must be classed among the greatest of modern dramas. The story is this. Jacques Brachard, once a dockman, now a millionaire, eager to get into that inner circle of society where even his money cannot place him, marries Anne-Marie, a daughter of the Marquis and Marquise d'Andeline, one of the oldest of French families. Notwithstanding his wealth and regard for his wife, he cannot gain her affection. Discovering the identity of her lover, he determines to kill him—not mortally, but financially. This he does, but in so doing not only ruins his enemy, but is himself involved in the catastrophe. Hence the title Samson, which recalls the blind rage of the Biblical hero who pulled down the temple upon himself and his enemies, but with this difference, that Brachard, though a ruined man, gains the love which he had done so much to obtain, and which more than solaces him for his shattered fortune. The first act introduces the Marquis d'Andeline and his wife, who sold their daughter to Jacques Brachard; and Jerome Le Govain, the man who, having enriched himself through the hero, tries to steal his wife. Govain tempts Mme. Brachard to spend the night with him. Brachard is advised not to go to London, but to stay and keep watch on his wife. In the next act Brachard discovers his wife's duplicity. Finding that subterfuge is useless, and disgusted with the behaviour of Govain, who shows himself a libertine of the lowest class, she tells her husband the truth, that she had been sold to him, and that she did not, and could not, love him. Act III. is remarkable for the brutal frankness with which Elise Vernette tells Brachard of the vile orgy to which Govain had taken his wife (and from which she escaped). It is here that Brachard makes his grim resolve to ruin Govain. The latter, who is conscious of his ruin, and Brachard, gloating upon his revenge, abuse each other. Govain's cries of "Dockman," "Cur," drowned by the triumphant tones of Brachard's "You are a pauper," end a great act, at the close of which tumultuous applause was showered on the artists. The final act shows Brachard ruined, but secure now of his wife's love, "Samson" being more than satisfied with his fearful revenge.

Mr. Bourchier realised absolutely the Jacques Brachard that M. Bernstein conceived, and with the art that conceals art gave a wonderfully lifelike impersonation of the self-made millionaire, rising to wonderful heights of dramatic effect in the third act. Miss Violet Vanbrugh had not many opportunities as Anne-Marie Brachard, but in her love scene with Govain, in the first act, and again with her husband in the second, she achieved a triumph that must enhance her high reputation. Another outstanding character was that of Jerome Le Govain, which was played by Mr. Charles Bryant, who realised to the utmost the author's conception. Miss Edyth Latimer had no easy task in portraying the part of Elise Vernette; but she played with telling effect, and her reading of the rôle was always excellent. What comedy there was was supplied by Mr. Kenneth Douglas as Maximilien d'Andeline in excellent style. As the Marquis and Marquise d'Andeline Mr. Arthur Whitby and Miss Mary Weigall played together finely, the latter part being especially good. All the minor characters were in excellent hands, and the staging, dressing, &c., were up to the standard of the acting, and a performance finished in every detail was given. M. Bernstein is to be congratulated on his work, as is also Mr. Bourchier upon its production.

A VERY successful performance of the evergreen Doctor Bill was given at King's Hall, Covent Garden, on Saturday evening by Mrs. Edward Sondheim and friends in aid of the Mansion House Messina Earthquake Fund. An excellent concert preceded the performance, to which several well-known artists kindly contributed. A special feature of the programme was the artistic rendering of the "Melodie Caprice" by the celebrated composer Signor Tito Mattei, which elicited vociferous applause from the large audience.

IN the farce which followed some very commendable performances were given, Mrs. Sondheim acting capably as the irrepressible Mrs. Horton, the charming costumes and gowns worn by this lady arousing great admiration. Miss Vera Bull as Jennie Firman played with a simple girlish grace and naïveté which won all hearts; and Miss Ida Sondheim as Louisa Brown won great praise in a difficult rôle. Miss Essie Hucks is to be congratulated on her clever rendering of Ellen, the servant, and Miss Dollie Linde as Miss Fauntleroy, the actress, was capital. Apparently the youngest of the sketch, Miss Linde was perfectly self-possessed, and the natural way in which she played her part made one regret that she had not more to do. General excellence was displayed by the gentlemen taking part in the piece, which was capably produced and stage-managed under the direction of Mr. G. W. Hodgson, assisted by Mr. W. H. Page. During the evening selections were played by the Blue Hungarian Band, and each of the lady artists was presented by Mr. Sondheim with a magnificent bouquet. As a result of the concert the Mansion House Fund will benefit to the extent of over £200, a result upon which Mr. and Mrs. Sondheim are to be heartily congratulated.

"THE FLAG LIEUTENANT" reaches its 250th performance at the Playhouse on Tuesday.

"REVOLUTIONS-HOCHZEIT,"

Play, in Three Acts, by Sophus Michaelis, produced at the Hebbel Theatre, Jan. 21.

Alaine ..... FRAULEIN ROLAND
Ernest ..... HERR OTTO
Di Bartas ..... HERR LUTTJOHANN
Abbé Copin ..... HERR KARSTEN
Léontine ..... FRAULEIN BERGER
Jérome ..... HERR VON WOLZOGEN
Prosper ..... HERR WLACH
Montapoup ..... HERR NISSEN
Davout ..... HERR PRAGER
Marc-Arron ..... HERR KAYSSLER
Lasque ..... HERR HERZFELD

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

BERLIN, THURSDAY, Jan. 28.—The action of this tragic play, which is translated from the Danish, passes in France at the time of the Revolution. The young châtelaine of Trionville Castle, near Condé, the beautiful Alaine, has just been married to Ernest, her betrothed since their childhood days. Suddenly the castle is surrounded by Jacobins, and Ernest is condemned to execution within a few minutes. The Commander, Marc-Arron, however, consents to let him pass the wedding night with his bride, deferring the execution till the morrow. The unhappy man passes the hours in lamentations, and Alaine's feelings are wrought upon to such an extent that she implores Marc-Arron to let him escape. The Commander is at first inexorable, but finally falls a victim to Alaine's beauty, and agrees to her proposal to allow him to take the bridegroom's place. The cowardly Ernest gets away, and now the unexpected happens: Alaine falls as passionately in love with the Jacobin captain as he with her, and although both know that the hours of the latter are numbered, they are happy in the short time left them. Next morning Marc-Arron takes time by the forelock, and gives his soldiers orders to fire upon him for having allowed the Royalist to escape, and upon her lover's dead body Alaine falls in a faint that we may conclude will prove fatal. The piece, despite its numerous faults, has some effective scenes, and was very cordially received. Acting and mounting were excellent.

SIGNORA DUSE commenced a short season last week at the Chamber Playhouse of the Deutsches, appearing as Ella in Ibsen's John Gabriel Borkman. It is a matter of regret to all German admirers of the famous actress that she insists on playing Ibsen so often, the Northern characters—according to the opinion of the Press and public—being entirely unsuited to her marked Southern individuality. The opening night was not a success from any point of view. The house, small though it is, was nothing like full, and the star herself was most inadequately supported. In Die Frau vom Meere on Saturday night Mme. Duse was more successful, and there was a far better audience, as also in Gioconda.

"DIE FREMDE FRAU" (la femme X——), Alexandre Bisson's dramatic play, was received with unbounded enthusiasm at the Neues on Friday last. The author, who had come from Paris for the occasion, was called more times than I can remember before the curtain and applauded to the echo. The piece no doubt being known to your readers, a detailed account will be superfluous. It was magnificently acted in the title-rôle by Frau Rosa Bertens, and that eminent artist was satisfactorily supported all round.

AT the Schiller Theatre, Charlottenburg, Charley's Tante is being given three nights a week to crowded houses. It is admirably acted, and the immortal comedy delights the audience as much as it did in the first days of its production at the Thalia.

THE production of Elektra at the Royal Opera, Dresden, was, as was only to be expected, a great and well-deserved triumph for the composer, who was called times innumerable, and enthusiastically cheered. The music is reported overpowering in parts, bizarre to grotesqueness, but most fascinating and imposing—in a word, a genuine Strauss. In a few days we shall be able to judge for ourselves, the Berlin performance being fixed for Feb. 8. The Dresden house was crowded to the ceiling, a most distinguished and representative audience being present, with musical critics from all parts of the world. Dr. Strauss did not conduct, but the Royal Opera Kapellmeister Schuch was a splendid substitute, and fully deserved the ovation that fell to his lot. The composer embraced him on the stage in sight of the audience, who cheered themselves hoarse. As to the vocal and orchestral interpretation, both appear to have been above all praise. Frau Krull in the name-part, Frau Schumann-Heinck in the rôle of Klytemnestra, and Herr Perron were called almost as many times as the composer.

"THE DRAMATIST AT HOME."

Comedy, in One Act, by Keble Howard, produced at the Vaudeville Theatre on Saturday afternoon, Jan. 23.

Ralph ..... MR. LESLIE FABER
Margery ..... MRS. LESLIE FABER

Hitherto, like Mr. A. W. Pinero and Mr. Henry Arthur Jones in their early years as dramatists, Mr. Keble Howard has been content to give us one-act pieces; and we have been invariably interested by his modest work for the stage—so interested, indeed, that when he decides to "spread" himself, as it were, we think the author of "The Smiths of Surbiton" should be able to write an excellent three-act comedy. Our opinion is prompted by the enjoyment we derived from the neat dialogue and refined and delicate humour of The Dramatist at Home, which was produced at the Vaudeville Theatre on the afternoon of Saturday last in front of Rudolf Besier's powerful piece, Olive Latimer's Husband. Ralph, who has been responsible for successful plays, has reached a thorny situation in the piece that he is writing. A husband tells his wife that their marriage is a mistake: that they are not a bit suited to each other. How should the wife treat this declaration? He is resolved to try the situation on Margery, who comes to his study. When he blurts out the unwelcome confession of the imaginary husband of the play, Margery neither treats him to a burst of indignation nor a flood of tears. She is cool, level-headed, even bantering. It is Ralph that shows temper and want of dignity. Bouncing out of the room for the purpose of looking at the bedroom fire, he gives Margery the opportunity for reading his manuscript. She soon finds a solution to the situation in the play which she thinks will add to its humour, and writing it down hurriedly, pins the sheet of copy to the lamp-shade. Switching off the lights, she reclines on the sofa, hides her face behind a cushion, and pretends to sleep. Ralph returns and reads the additions to his MS. He then understands what a real help to him is Margery, who immediately takes him in her arms when he asks for forgiveness for his stupidity. Possibly Margery will in future collaborate with him.

The petite comedy was beautifully played. The young wife had a gracious and pretty representative in Mrs. Leslie Faber, whom we hope to see more often on the London stage. She is endowed with a charming voice, and the playfulness of her rendering was delightful. Mr. Leslie Faber played, too, with all the necessary irritability, and the piece was very heartily received by a good house. The Dramatist at Home is a decided acquisition to the limited number of amusing curtain-raisers.

"THE ERA" can be obtained at the principal bookstalls throughout the provinces.

VARIETY GOSSIP.

MR. FRANK ALLEN, the popular assisting-director and chief of the staff of the Moss, Stoll, Thornton, and Allen Theatres Amalgamated, was the recipient of letters of congratulation from his hosts of friends and members of his staff on the occasion of his birthday on Thursday.

IN the settlement of the action for libel brought by Mr. George Gray against the V.A.F., it was agreed to pay that gentleman £100 as damages, to be handed over to some professional charity. The V.A.F. have sent a cheque for the amount to Mr. Gray, who has handed it over to the Actors' Orphanage Fund.

MISS DECIMA MOORE, who recently made her début on the variety stage at the Tivoli, Manchester, was re-engaged there after the second night, and was booked also for Glasgow and Belfast. We have had distinguished Savoyards on the variety stage in Messrs. Rutland Barrington, George Grossmith, and Henry Lytton, but Miss Moore is the first lady of that succession of brilliant artists, and also the first member of a distinguished family, to try vaudeville. Her sisters include Misses Eva, Jessie, and Mme. Bertha Moore. When are we to see "Miss Decima" at the West End halls?

MISS MAUD ALLAN has now sufficiently recovered from the result of the recent serious accident to her ankle to enable her to make her reappearance at the Palace Theatre. Mr. Alfred Butt has arranged for her reappearance at a special matinée on Friday next. On Monday, Feb. 8, she commences a short engagement of four weeks, during which she may present some new dances.

MR. AND MRS. JOHN E. NASH (Lil Hawthorne) sailed for America on the s.s. Majestic, White Star Line, from Southampton on Wednesday. Miss Hawthorne received many wires and some beautiful flowers from her friends, including Mrs. Eugene Stratton, Mrs. Fred Ginnett, Miss Belle Elmore, and Miss Melinda May, who was there to see her off and wish her bon voyage.

MR. GEORGE ROBEY organised a grand charity football match on Monday at Ibrox Park, ground of the Rangers F.C. The competing teams were Manchester United and a selected eleven of Glasgow footballers from the Rangers, Celtic, Clyde, &c. The proceedings commenced with a "Marathon" race from the Theatre Royal to the football field, about forty competitors taking part. The match ended in a draw, no goals each, Mr. Robey putting in some good work for Manchester United.

THE attendance was good, about 12,000 spectators being present, and a sum of £330 will be available for charity, 10 per cent. of which, by request of Mr. Robey, is allotted to the Salvation Army, as the organisation most likely to reach those on the lowest stratum of distress. In the evening the prizes were presented on the stage at the Royal, amid great enthusiasm, all the best players, English and Scotch, being heartily applauded. Mrs. George Robey (Miss Ethel Haydon) was an interested spectator of the proceedings.

"THE QUEEN OF THE FAIRIES" is the name of the sketch in which Miss Elise Craven, the wonderful child dancer in Pinkie and the Fairies at His Majesty's, will make her début at the Coliseum. The piece is by Mr. Sidney Blow.

AFTER providing for debenture interest, directors' fees, and commission, the Alhambra directorate state that the net profit for the year 1908 amounts to £7,531 16s. 11d., and with £6,213 2s. 4d., the amount brought forward, the net balance to the credit of revenue is £13,744 19s. 3d. The directors of the Alhambra Theatre recommend that an amount of £3,000 be appropriated to the Alterations, Additions, and Improvements Account, that a dividend of 10 per cent. (free of Income Tax) for the year ending Dec. 31, 1908, being £6,000, be now paid, and that the balance, £4,744 19s. 3d., be carried forward to the next account. The director retiring by rotation is Mr. R. S. Bathe, who, being eligible, offers himself for re-election.

AT the Alhambra Theatre on Monday Schichtl's Wonderful Marionettes, a veritable mannikin theatre, one of the most successful shows in Paris and Berlin, will be seen for the first time in England; and Frank Lawton, the eccentric whistler and bone soloist, will also make his first appearance at the house on the same evening, which will be identified with the return of L'Incognita, the popular vocalist, with an entirely fresh répertoire.

IT behoves artists who have to leave their houses unprotected to entrust their valuables to a burglar-proof safe, or, better still, to the custody of their bankers. Miss Muir and Mr. Bartlett have realised the wisdom of this course a little late in the day. On Friday evening last (Mr. Bartlett being in the provinces), Miss Muir having left for business at the Palace, Walthamstow, their house in Ham Park-road, West Ham, was raided by burglars, who ransacked the place from roof to cellar, and got away with a goodly sum in cash and a number of valuables.

AT a recent meeting of the Finsbury Borough Council Mr. Bassett explained that the inscription had become illegible on the tombstone of Joseph Grimaldi, the celebrated clown, whose grave is situated in the recreation ground adjoining the church of St. James, Pentonville-hill, and he asked whether the renovation of the same could be paid for out of the borough funds. Mr. G. W. Preston, the Town Clerk, said that the question should receive his attention. The recreation ground, which now includes Grimaldi's grave, was originally a portion of the actual churchyard of St. James.

A NOVEL roller skating performance, secured by the directors of the Empire Theatre, is to be carried out on an unusually large scale. The scene is to be in Holland in the winter, and the Dutch men and girls skating in national costume should give a picturesque and charming effect. Amongst those appearing in the performance is the world-renowned champion skater Video. This gentleman created the greatest interest when practising the other day at one of the biggest London rinks.

MR. ALFRED MOUL, the managing-director of the Alhambra, is the author of La Petite Bohemienne, in which La Belle Leonora is scoring so unmistakably at that house. In his time Mr. Moul has filled the position of musical critic, and years ago won fame as a composer. Several of his works have achieved considerable popularity, but La Petite Bohemienne is his first attempt at inventing the scenario of a "pantomime."

A MAMMOTH benefit is being organised by the directors of the Empress Roller Skating Rink, Earl's Court, for the benefit of the widow of Police-constable Tyler, who lost his life in the Tottenham shooting affray last Saturday. The function, in which the entire police force of the metropolis is taking the keenest interest, is fixed for Friday evening next, Feb. 5, at 7 o'clock. Admission will be as on ordinary nights, but it is hoped that the number of skaters who will flock to Earl's Court for this deserving object will be of such magnitude that a substantial sum will be handed over to Sir Edward Henry, under whose patronage and approval it will be held.

THE Pavilion on Clacton Pier has been leased for the ensuing summer season by the well-known entertainment syndicate of which Mr. Paul Mill is a director.

THE directors of the Harrogate Grand Opera House Company, at the company's annual meeting last week, presented a gratifying state of affairs, and recommended a dividend of 7½ per cent. and a 2½ per cent. bonus. The recommendation was unanimously adopted.

THE Corporation of Southend invite offers for entertainments in the East Parade Bandstand, on the sea front, for one or three years from Easter Saturday, April 10 to Oct. 2 (Sundays excluded). Full particulars of nature of entertainment must be given, and sealed offers, endorsed "East Parade Bandstand," must be sent to Mr. H. J. Worwood (Town Clerk pro tem.), Southend-on-Sea, not later than Wednesday, Feb. 10.

THE Urban District Council of Llandudno invite tenders for a three years' lease of the ground used for minstrel performances, adjoining the Happy Valley, Llandudno, commencing Easter, 1910. Printed particulars may be obtained from Mr. A. Conolly, Clerk to the Council, Town Hall, Llandudno. Tenders, endorsed "Happy Valley," must be sent not later than Wednesday, Feb. 24.

MESSRS. MILTON BODE AND EDWARD COMPTON, proprietors of the Royalty Theatre, Chester, have this week purchased a large site situated in City-road, Chester, on which they are going to build a Hippodrome to hold 3,000, to be run on first-class variety lines on the twice-nightly system. Plans are being prepared by Mr. William Lockwood, architect, Chester, and as soon as they are passed building operations will commence.

MR. J. H. WHITTAKER, musical conductor at the Grand Theatre, Birmingham, celebrated his birthday last Wednesday by giving a supper to the members of his orchestra. The function took place after the second show at the Market Hotel, a well-known professional staying place, where the host, Mr. James Rowlands, pleased everybody with his fine catering.

AFTER supper the chairman, Mr. Edward Foster, resident-manager of the Grand, "spoke a line," and the utmost harmony marked the proceedings. Mr. Harry Lucas (Grand), Mr. A. W. Matcham (Empire), and a few more intimate friends were present, each testifying to the esteem in which Mr. Whittaker is held, and the members of the orchestra added their tribute. Mr. Whittaker has now been in Birmingham nearly eleven years, during which he has developed into one of its leading musicians and citizens.

THE proprietors of the People's Palace, Bristol, are always ready to lend that hall for charity, and it was packed on Wednesday afternoon, when a special matinée was given on behalf of the sufferers by the earthquake in Southern Italy. Practically every seat was occupied, and amongst those present were the Lord Mayor and Lady Mayoress of Bristol, the Sheriff and Mrs. Stanley Badock, and Sir George and Lady White. The Lady Mayoress was presented by Mrs. Horace Livermore with a bouquet of choice flowers, whilst bouquets were also presented to Mrs. Stanley Badock and Lady White.

THE programme was, as usual, supported by leading artists in the two pantomimes, Miss Ouida MacDermott and Mr. Bransby Williams, from the Prince's, and Miss Ethel Hall (principal boy), Miss Marie Free (principal girl), Mr. Frank Hemming, and Mr. Frank Victor, from the Theatre Royal, being all greeted with loud applause, the three ladies receiving bouquets.

CHARCOT was specially engaged at Brighton last week by Mr. Barrasford, and topped the bill. His success was so great that Mr. Barrasford immediately offered him all his halls at a great increase in salary, and also engaged him to star this week at the Hippodrome, Leeds, where he is again meeting with triumphant success.

MR. REG. WISHART has again taken the lease of the Ryde Pier Pavilion, and made arrangements with the company to admit patrons to the Pavilion not only toll free, but also to convey them to and from the Pavilion on the electric cars free of charge.

MR. S. GARRATT terminates to-day a five years' lease of the Pavilion, Ilkley. During the last three years the Pavilion has been open continuously, and has been a popular attraction for residents and visitors alike. The Royal Magnets conclude a thirteen weeks' engagement to-night, and have been very successful with their up-to-date performances. Mr. Garratt to-night has a grand farewell night. The new lessee (Mr. Frank Barrow) takes possession on Monday next.

ALTERATIONS and improvements on a lavish scale are contemplated at the Tynemouth Palace, which will be transformed into a fine theatre and concert hall, capable of seating 2,000, with standing room for another 1,000 persons. To the present flat concert hall floor will be given a "rake" to enable all to see the stage, and the orchestra and pit stalls will be handsome velvet tip-up chairs. The old side galleries will be cleared out, and a new curved gallery erected, on steel cantilevers, capable of seating 800.

THE charity matinée at the Glasgow Pavilion on Friday, the 22nd inst., in aid of the Italian Disaster Fund, proved a great success, and over £150 was realised. Under the able direction of ex-Bailie Connell and Mr. Samuel Lloyd, general-manager of the Pavilion, a magnificent programme of over thirty turns was arranged, and a bumper house included the Lord Provost of Glasgow and his lady, supported by many members of the Town Council.

THE artists who gave their services, in addition to the entire company on this week's bill, included George Robey, Harry Dent, Violet Lorraine, Iris Hoey, Meg Hamylton, and Willie Garvie from the Theatre Royal; Whit Cunliffe, George French, and Barry Lupino from the Grand; Ella Retford, Flo Cromer, Fraser and Haley, Walker and Lake, and Peter Bermingham, from the Princess's; Gertrude Lester, Ethel Wilson, W. H. Rawlins, and George Gregory from Havana at the King's; Maie Ash, Marie Selma, Stanley Brett, and G. Dewey Gibson from the Gay Gordons, at the Royalty; and the cream of the talent from the variety theatres.

A SPECIAL matinée was given at the Victoria Hall, York, on Wednesday, in aid of the Lord Mayor's Distress Fund. The Lord Mayor and Lady Mayoress (Alderman and Mrs. Birch) arrived at the hall just before the commencement of the entertainment, and on being received by Councillor Sidney Bacon, director of the Hall, and Mr. Bert Rutter, the manager, took their seats along with Councillor Lambert amidst loud applause from the audience. First-class animated pictures were shown, and many local artists contributed to the programme. During the afternoon Councillor Lambert, on behalf of Mr. Bacon, handed to the Lord Mayor the proceeds of the afternoon's performance, and the Lord Mayor thanked Mr. Bacon and Mr. Rutter for their kindness, and assured them that both the Lady Mayoress and himself had thoroughly enjoyed the performance.

MR. HARRY DACRE has forwarded a cheque for £2 for the Primrose Fund.

ARRANGEMENTS have now been completed for the tenth grand Bohemian smoking concert at the Vaudeville Club to-morrow (Sunday), at 9.30 p.m. King Rat Fred Ginnett will preside.

MR. VICTOR WOMACK, the brother of Mr. George Womack, stage manager of the Oxford, passed away on Wednesday at the age of twenty, from consumption. The funeral takes place on Monday from 29, Ballater-road, Acre-lane, Brixton.

MR. MOWBRAY ROBINSON, professionally known as Charles Mowbray, the husband of Maude Vena, has just passed away after a painful illness of seven years. Miss Vena desires to thank her friends for the numerous messages of condolence that she has received.

MISS KITTER RAYBURN has been so successful as the principal boy in Mr. Brydon Phillips's production of Red Riding Hood at the Lyric Theatre, Hammersmith, that she has been re-engaged to play a similar part next Christmas.

THE Tivoli team have been deposed from their pride of place in the Music Hall and Theatrical Football League competition, the first position being now filled by Holborn Empire, who have played ten matches, Stoke Newington being, for the present, the runners-up.

MISS MADGE MARTIN, who is responsible for the successful ballets at the Coronet and Kennington Theatres, and also for those at the Court, Liverpool, the Theatre Royal, Newcastle-on-Tyne, and the Theatre Royal, Glasgow, is exploiting a number of dancing troupes, whose work is noted for grace, aplomb, and versatility.

VASCO, the mad musician, who returned from America last week, has filled in all his open time with Mr. Thomas Barrasford. He will start at Nottingham on Monday, and returns to the Empire, where he scored such a pronounced success last year, in May.

WILLIAM LE BRUN, of Drury Lane fame, having dissolved partnership with George Queen, is busy preparing his new act, in conjunction with Miss Mabelle Morgan, of J. C. Williamson's comic opera and pantomime companies. The act is written by Bert Gilbert and composed by George Hall, and is considered one of the most novel and original ever produced in a variety theatre.

MISS MEG HAMILTON and Mr. Jack Cromo were happily married at Glasgow on Monday. The bride is at present giving a charming impersonation of Dandini at the Theatre Royal, Glasgow, while the bridegroom is playing Dame in Mr. John Hart's pantomime at the Theatre Royal, Bradford. Thus on the stage their identities are reversed, the girl being the "boy" and the boy the "girl." Hearty congratulations!

THE song "Under my big umbrella," which has become so popular, and sung by Miss Ray Maskell, was written by that well-known comedian Ted E. Box and Phil Mervyn. The big firm, Francis, Day, and Hunter, secured it at once for publishing. Miss Ray Maskell is well booked up, and is rapidly negotiating for 1910-11.

MR. EDWARD COMPTON paid a visit to Northampton three weeks ago, with the result that it is announced that Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton will build a music hall in Northampton as soon as a suitable and central freehold site can be obtained.

MR. SAM POLUSKI, of the Poluski Brothers, who are the leading comedians in the Kennington pantomime of Red Riding Hood, still retains possession of the little girl who was left in the care of an attendant at the theatre by a young woman a fortnight since. Mr. Poluski has received several offers to adopt the child from people of considerable means whose sympathies have been aroused by the story, but he has no intention of parting with the foundling except to the mother. Unless the latter proves her claim Mr. Poluski intends bringing the baby up with his own children, with whom she has already made herself quite at home.

MISS BERTHA STUART, the favourite character vocalist, who is paying her fifth visit to Glasgow within two years, is again meeting with wonderful success. Besides working the Coliseum she is deputising nightly at the Empire for the top of the bill, and is recalled again and again.

SOME of the incidents in connection with Miss Violet Charlesworth's adventures should be capable of a humorous interpretation, and we may expect a smart little burlesque from the pen of the versatile author Mr. Cayley Calvert which will make its appeal to a West End variety audience on Monday week.

THE case of Miss Flora Lington is a very sad one. The poor sufferer is in consumption, her husband is blind, having suffered from that terrible affliction for the past five years, and there are two children to keep. By the goodness of the Music Hall Ladies' Guild, Miss Lington is at the National Sanatorium, Bournemouth. It is necessary to keep her there a month longer, and the cost is £5. If any member of the profession who knew Miss Lington as a performer would like to contribute this sum it will be gladly received and acknowledged by Mr. F. H. Pedgrift at The Era office.

THE Six Albyns, in their comedy singing act, The Squire's Hunting Party, which is magnificently staged, make up a combination of first-class vocalists and comedians. They have been making a success on the road, and next week appear at the Empire, Wolverhampton. They return to London on March 1 for the Gibbons halls.

LA MILO returns to the Hackney Empire next week in an entirely new répertoire, including some of the most renowned subjects from the famous Continental galleries. La Milo has won the approval of over sixty "Watch Committees," in many instances being cheered and commended by the magistrates, who came as critics but departed as converts; and she has strengthened her position by a continuous record of houses packed to the doors.

THE greatest difficulty of an aspirant to the vaudeville stage is to get a fair start. Therefore it was not surprising to find that something like 160 entries were received for the Music Hall Aspirants' Competition, which was held at Fun City on Friday evening last week. A large percentage of those who had entered duly turned up to give their turn, and the competition was carried on in the keenest manner for over two hours, the judging being in the hands of well-known London agents.

MANY of the competitors suffered from stage-fright, and owing to nervousness could not do themselves justice, but many excellent turns were seen, and it was only after some deliberation that Mr. Jack de Frece and his fellow judges awarded the first prize to George Shirley, a comedian of the old school, and the second prize to Bert Edwards, an uncommonly clever whistler. George Shirley consequently secured an engagement on the De Frece tour, and Edwards is this week contributing to the variety entertainment at Fun City.

THE sympathies of our readers will go out to Mr. Pony Moore, the veteran minstrel, who to-day deplores the loss of his beloved wife, helpmeet, and companion of many years. Mrs. Moore passed away on Tuesday at Camberwell House, where she had been a patient for some six weeks. Deceased was removed to Moore House, Finchley-road, on Wednesday.

THE funeral took place yesterday at Brompton, the cortege leaving Moore House, Finchley, at noon, and arriving at the cemetery about a quarter to one o'clock, where the service at the graveside was conducted by the Rev. G. W. Mackie. The principal maurners were Mr. G. W. (Pony) Moore, Mr. and Miss Newman, Mrs. C. Mitchell (all of whom occupied the first carriage); Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Stratton and Mr. and Mrs. Joe Elvin in the second carriage; the Misses D. and E. Mitchell, Mr. C. Mitchell, and Mrs. Newman, third carriage; Mr. and Mrs. Paul Martinetti and Mr. and Mrs. Boyer, fourth carriage; Miss D. Freear, Mr. and Mrs. Baker and Lizzie, a maid, in the fifth carriage. In addition to these, Mr. Alfred Martinetti was also at the graveside.

THE husband's floral tribute consisted of a square block of white flowers, across which the words "At Rest" were pricked in violets. A card attached bore the message, "From dear old Poppa to his loving Loo." Other wreaths came from Mr. and Mrs. Joe Elvin, Mr. and Mrs. Newman, Miss L. Newman, "Vic, Elsie, and Doris," Mr. and Mrs. Beyer, Dr. and Mrs. Cripper, Dr. McEvoy, Mr. and Mrs. Martinetti, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Ginnett, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Stratton, Mr. and Mrs. Mote, and Mr. Geo. Fuller. The funeral arrangements were carried out by Messrs. E. B. Ashton & Co., of 235, Fulham-road.

MR. HENRY HERNE and Miss Ida Millais are meeting with much success on tour with their water-sensation episode Blackmail, and reopen in London after a lengthy absence on March 8.

MILITARY pictures on the bioscope always create interest with the British public, and those nightly to be seen at the Empire Theatre, showing the review at Aldershot, with the English troops marching to the air of "The Grenadier Guard," the Welsh to "The Men of Harlech," and the Scotchmen to "The Cock of the North" are arousing great enthusiasm.

THE Palace Theatre, Belfast, which has been run for some time as a variety theatre, will reopen on Monday as a first-class theatre under its original title, the Grand Opera House. Miss Ada Reeve's company in Butterflies will be the opening attraction.

THE first meeting of the shareholders in the Coliseum Syndicate, Ltd., will be held on Wednesday next, when the report for 1908 will be presented. This shows that the profit from the theatre is £26,644, to which has to be added the interest on deposits and investments, transfer fees and rents, amounting to £937.

THE Brighton Casino and Marine Palace Bill passed the Examiner for Standing Order Proofs at the House of Commons on Wednesday, and will be heard in the usual way when the House meets. There are fifty-eight clauses in the Bill. The preamble states that the making and maintaining of the pier and approach pier, with a marine palace, pavilion, casino, or winter gardens thereon, would be of benefit to the inhabitants of Brighton, and the general public visiting the town and neighbourhood.

IT is proposed to construct a pier or approach commencing nearly opposite West-street, and extending southwards for a distance of about eight chains, and from the end of that a pier or staging extending about eight chains seawards in a southerly direction. At the end will be a platform on which it is proposed to erect a marine palace, pavilion, casino, and winter garden, with assembly, concert, refreshment, bath, and other rooms. The capital of the company is put at £250,000 in £1 shares, and the borrowing powers of the company on mortgage are limited to £62,000.

THE Brighton Town Council has already instructed its Parliamentary agents to enter an opposition, and the committee of townsmen acting under Lord Rendel and Sir Henry Kimber is preparing to organise a vigorous defence of public rights in the foreshore and an uninterrupted view of the sea. Further opposition is threatened by the boating interests, and it is certain the West Pier Company will at once take steps to contest the Bill.

THE 593rd meeting of the Music Hall Artists' Railway Association was held on Wednesday, with Mr. George B. Sinclair in the chair. Others in attendance were W. H. Atlas, H. Cee Mee, Bernard Stavordale, T. C. Callaghan, John Alexander, Chas. Preston, and C. Douglas Stuart (secretary). The Secretary was instructed to express the condolence of the committee to the relatives of the late Joe Lawrence, and to send a wreath on behalf of the M.H.A.R.A. The weekly statement showed an increase of 40 new members, and receipts of £59 16s. 6d.

THE directors of the Canterbury and Paragon Music Halls on Tuesday informed Mrs. Carrie Nation through her agent that they could not permit her to appear at their theatres, as serious disturbances were feared. Information had been received that some roughs might even have resorted to bottle throwing. Mrs. Nation said she understood the directors' position, but would stand firm for her cause.

PERCY HONRI'S forthcoming production of Concordia at the Oxford on Feb. 15 promises to create a record as the best-dressed production ever set before a music hall audience. Over 600 dresses are carried. Mr. W. T. Hemsley has painted a novel setting for Mr. Honri's "Moon Song," in which will be introduced an extraordinary moon dance by six ladies wearing scintillating costumes and "chuff-chuff" bonnets. Each dress is composed of over 30,000 sequins and a wonderful arrangement of electric lighting.

LAST Saturday afternoon, during the performance of Dick Whittington at the Coronet Theatre, a pretty little incident occurred. Miss Constance Hyem, as Dick, had just reached the part where the hero finds himself alone, friendless and homeless. Miss Hyem had just exclaimed, "Even my pussy has deserted me," when a bright little boy jumped up, and holding up a Teddy bear he had been nursing, shouted out at the top of his voice, "Never mind your pussy—have my bear." Miss Hyem rose to the occasion, and accepted the gift, "gagging" to the finish with it. After the performance she returned the bear to the little fellow with her best thanks and a keepsake.

MISS MAY AUDREY, who came to the variety stage from musical comedy, passed away on Tuesday morning, to the deep regret of a large circle of friends. She was only twenty-eight. She was appearing at the Theatre Royal, Oldham, where she contracted a chill, but in spite of this she insisted on making the journey to Birkenhead, where she was taken seriously ill on her arrival. She succumbed to double pneumonia. About eighteen months since she made her first appearance before a music hall audience with Harry Lauder in "Ma Scotch Bluebell," and had fulfilled a most successful engagement in South Africa with the Hyman management. She was due to open at the Oxford next month.

MISS CECILIA LOFTUS, having recovered from a severe attack of bronchitis, has left for the Riviera under medical advice to recuperate.

THE first annual general meeting of the Variety Artists' Benevolent Fund will be held next Wednesday at 1 o'clock, at the Bedford Head, Maiden-lane, with Joe Elvin in the chair. The meeting will consider the committee's report for the past year and the balance-sheet, proceeding to the election of officers for the ensuing year. All members of the profession are cordially invited. Mr. G. H. Chirgwin has accepted the position of honorary President for the coming year. The popular White-eyed Kaffir has collected the sum of £4 15s. 6d. for the Fund.

ON behalf of the committee of the Music Hall Ladies' Guild, 61, New Oxford-street, W.C., Miss Melinda May (secretary) wishes to gratefully thank the following:—Mme. Haydee, collecting 5s.; Mrs. Vernon Cowper, collecting 2s. 6d.; Mrs. Alfred Terris, collecting 2s. 6d.; Miss Irene Rose, 4s 6d. for sale of bonnet made by Mrs. Herbert Shelley; Miss George Smythson, parcel of clothing; Miss Lottie Albert, gift of a dozen collars.

MISS MAY wishes especially to thank all the following who have contributed towards Miss Flora Lington's Fund, and they will be pleased to know that she is now at the Royal National Sanatorium, Bournemouth, and will be grateful for books or papers posted direct. Her thanks are due to:—Rev. Arthur Brinckman, Mrs. H. Maud Gamble, Miss Millie Payne, Mrs. James Horne, Mrs. Bradgate, Miss Vane Oulton, Miss Lil Hawthorne, Miss Maud Dunedin, Miss Nellie Wallace, Miss Louie Davis, Mrs. Henry Muff, Misses McNeill, Miss Maggie Bowman, the V.A.B.F., Rev. Donaldson Leicester, Mr. Henry George Hibbert, and Mr. Edward Luke for another 1s. 6d.

WILL all members please communicate with Miss May, and send an address that will find them for the next two weeks. All friends of the charity are heartily welcome to tea and receptions held every Wednesday from four to five o'clock.

CONTRARY to an impression that seems to prevail, the next production at the Alhambra will be the very reverse of classical. A merry divertisement, with its locale in Herald-square, New York, is in active preparation. The music is being culled from the most exhilarating of well-known American compositions, and is now in the deft hands of Mr. G. W. Byng, the musical director of the house. Mlle. Britta, Miss Elise Clerc, Miss Julia Seale, Signor Rosi, and Mr. Frank Lawton (who for years has been whistling as Blinky Bill in the candy store scene in The Belle of New York) will all have rôles allotted to them.

THE will has been proved of Mrs. Geraldini, better known as Mme. Katti Lanner, who was from 1875 to 1877 directress of the ballet and première danseuse at Drury Lane, and who afterwards devoted herself to the training of pupils and the arrangement of the ballets at the Empire.

THE value of the estate is returned for probate at £6,227. The testatrix left numerous bequests to relatives, and her residence at Clapham Common and residuary estate upon trust to Cora de Mere for life on condition that she takes the name of Lanner and takes care of the testatrix's pets and the graves of her late husband, her parents, and herself. Mme. Lanner bequeathed £25 to her coachman and the ultimate residue of her estate to her daughters, her grandson, and grand-daughter.

AS a sequel to the conditions of the will the following formal advertisement in Wednesday's Times is interesting: "Change of Name.—I, the undersigned, Cora Lanner (formerly called Cora de Mere) of 40, North-side, Clapham Common, in the County of London, hereby give notice to all whom it may concern, that I have assumed, and intend henceforth to sign and use, the surname of 'Lanner' only, in accordance with the terms of a Deed Poll this day executed by me, and enrolled in the Central Office of the Supreme Court of Judicature. Dated this 26th day of January, 1909. Cora Lanner. Witness, Jocelyn Brandon, 5, Suffolk-place, Pall-mall, S.W., Solicitor."

MLLE. CORA LANNER appeared as a child dancer on the stage at Drury Lane pantomime with Mme. Lanner's troupe, and lately she has won some distinction as an actress in tragic parts.

BARCELONA has been called the "City of Terror," but happily a great improvement has taken place of recent months, and this beautiful city shows promise of being one of the most orderly and industrious on the Continent. But the public still have a lurking fear of "bombs" (a fear, by the way, that is a cause of great inconvenience to foreigners taking up a permanent residence), and an artist appearing at the Palacio de Ilusion had an experience the other day which, though he can now look back upon it with amusement, nevertheless was far from being pleasant at the time.

SOME few weeks ago Rapoli, the cannon-ball juggler, played a month with great success at the Soriano, and the artist to whom we refer, fired with enthusiasm at the applause meted out to Rapoli, determined to also juggle with a cannon-ball. He accordingly borrowed one, and was walking up the Rambla, which is the main street, with the formidable shot under his arm, when he noticed that he was surrounded by policemen. He was immediately seized and tied up with the long chain handcuffs used here, and conducted to the police-station surrounded by an enormous crowd, whilst the bomb (?) was taken in fear and trembling to be examined by an expert.

IT was only after an exhaustive explanation had been given by the manager of the Palacio de Ilusion that the artist was set at liberty, and for some few days afterwards it was dangerous to mention the word "bomb" in his hearing.

GLOUCESTER is the latest town to fall in with the fashionable craze of roller skating. Mr. C. W. Poole, managing-director of Poole's Theatres, Ltd., has decided to utilise the King's Hall as a skating-rink, where at present the animated picture show is so successful. In this history repeats itself, for the King's Hall, formerly known as the Albert Hall, was a successful skating-rink over thirty years ago, under the management of Mr. Maslin.

THE floor is still in excellent condition, and with the present stage and proscenium removed there will be a rink of 100ft. by 50ft. Very little preparation is necessary except the removal of the upper floor and stage. Mr. Poole has no intention of dropping the animated picture show, which has been so successful, and has already arranged another building for it.

MISS MARY MAYREN and company will appear at the Hackney Empire in the dramatic sketch The Yellow Fang, an episode of an opium den in China Town, San Francisco. It is founded on an actual crime committed in the Chinese quarter of San Francisco in the summer of 1902. The Chief Superintendent of Police, Mr. John H. Corbin, in giving evidence, made use of the following words: "This terrible drug (opium) is a 'yellow fang' fastening upon the throats of the inhabitants of this great city, and through its agency and under its influence crimes are committed here that could not be possible in any other city in the civilised world."

SONGS, WRITERS, AND SINGERS.

MESSRS. WITMARK'S song, "Everybody knows it's there," has been going strong in the hands of that experienced artist, Mr. Harry Freeman, who has just added to the number the following strong verse:—

Brave Tommy Atkins' pluck we cheer,
And everybody knows it's there;
With gun and blade, when danger's near,
Everybody knows he's there;
And what about our gallant police, who have no gun or blade,
Yet face the deadly bullets of the Anarchist brigade?

CHORUS.

I ask of you: How long this alien crew
Shall make a target of our police and shoot at children too?
A law should clear them right away, and if you ask me, where?
Well, throw such rubbish in the sea, then everybody knows it's there!

MISS VESTA TILLEY on Monday evening sang at the Palace Theatre no fewer than three songs new to London, and scored triumphantly in each. They were: "That's the time a fellow wants his ma," by Edgar Bateman and Archie Mills, music by Maurice Scott; "The tube attendant," a clever number, said to be by Eustace Baynes and Kenneth Lyle; and "Sidney's holidays are in September," by F. Murray, C. Hilbury, and K. Lyle. The popular artist was not allowed to retire till she had given her striking song, "Jolly good luck to the girl who loves a soldier." The first, third, and fourth are published by Messrs. Francis and Day.

THAT delightful cantatrice, Miss Ada Colley, has been charming North London audiences throughout the week with Messrs. Francis and Day's exquisite song, "Some day when dreams come true," written and composed by Phil Staats.

A CONNOISSEUR of dance music, lately writing in terms of praise anent Messrs. Francis and Day's waltz "Cecilia," by H. E. Pether, which is enjoying a great vogue, concluded by playfully saying: "France is only the journey of a Day, but one might Hunt a whole week on the Continent and not find so pretty a waltz!"

MR. J. ELMER SPYGLASS, who lately created so favourable an impression at the Alhambra, opens on Monday at the Palace, Cork, where he will sing, among other songs, Messrs. Francis and Day's "When the berry's on the holly," written and composed by J. F. Lambe. Mr. Spyglass has in study a comedy number entitled "What a change!" written specially for him by H. F. Greenfield.

F. V. ST. CLAIR has just fitted Freddie French with a new Dame song and Jack Lorrimer with a new song scena. He also has commissions in hand from Louis Bradfield, Geo. Leyton, and others. Mr. J. W. Rickaby has scored "Down under" with a funny railway song by the same author-composer.

MR. GORDON STRETTON, the new coon singer, is making a hit this week at the Sadler's Wells. His songs are "Somebody's sweetheart" and "My Indiana Queen." Mr. Stretton's songs are from the pens of Mellor, Lawrance, and Gifford.

MESSRS. B. FELDMAN AND CO. have been fortunate in securing Miss Fanny Field's latest success, entitled "Send me a picture post card." The melody of this song is likely to be heard about the streets in a short space of time.

EVERY day further applications for singing rights reach Messrs. B. Feldman and Co. for their Irish song entitled "Connemara." This song is from the skilled pens of Mellor, Lawrance, and Gifford.

A SONG gaining rapidly in popularity, published by B. Feldman and Co., is "Good-bye, Mr. Teddy Bear," a light comedy number with a haunting refrain. It is written by Gifford and Terry, and would add to any singer's popularity.

MISS GLADYS HOOLEY
AT SWANSEA AND NEWPORT.

In the midst of an especially interesting programme at the Empire, Newport, this week (which includes Mr. Hubert Carter as David Garrick, the wonderful Japanese family, the Lukushimas; and that handsome and clever comedienne Alexandra Dagmar) there is one item which had to many of the audience a touch of real romance. It was the scena Fiddle and I, in which Miss Gladys Hooley played with such perfection of taste and beauty of tone. The whole scena was an artistic harmony—the pictured heath, the gipsy caravan, the rising moon, the camp fire, and the sweet little figure, making the violin speak the language of the soul:

Playing all my heart remembers—
Old, old songs from far away
Golden Junes and bleak Decembers
Rise around me as I play.

Miss Gladys Hooley is a player of real capacity, with a gift of genuine sentiment, and such performances as hers, while they appeal to the audience, help to raise the standard of music-hall entertainment since they appeal to the best in human nature.—South Wales Argus, Jan. 22, 1909.

Gladys Hooley, a violin soloist, in Fiddle and I, pleased the audience greatly with two well-played solos, and, as a finale, gave a sweet rendering of "Home, sweet home."—Monmouthshire Evening Post, Jan. 19, 1909.

Miss Gladys Hooley in a most attractive scena, Fiddle and I, displays much skill on the violin, and is an instance of the progressive refinement of the halls.—South Wales Daily Post, Jan. 19, 1909.

Gladys Hooley in an original scena, Fiddle and I, quite captivated the audience.—South Wales Argus, Jan. 22, 1909.

STRANGE TURNS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—It really seems to be high time that the police or the V.A.F. stepped in and stopped some of the extraordinary "talent" (?) which is being exploited on the music hall stage at present. They are billed as music hall turns, and, I presume, will call themselves music hall artists. I refer to the Mrs. Carrie Nation and Violet Charlesworth craze, &c. The former, presumably emboldened by her Monday night's success (?) at the Canterbury, is, according to the Express, going to appear in a sketch in which she illustrates more saloon smashing. The latter will illustrate, for the modest salary of £300 weekly, how foolish the public are to pay for admission at the halls where she is working, and how clever she is to obtain such an easy living as a music hall artist (?) without any previous experience.

Surely these two clever music hall performers (?) will teach the profession, proprietors, and public a never-to-be-forgotten lesson, namely, that experience and talent are no longer necessary to become a music hall "star." All you require is to be a notoriety of some kind or a crank—and you will then achieve that success which is often denied to hard-working pros.—Yours faithfully,

F. WARDEN REED (Reed and Stevens).

THE PALACE.

The vogue for one-act plays seems to be regarded as a new thing by some of the dailies; but the fashion for such productions existed more than a quarter of a century since when Joe Elvin and his father, Joe Keegan, used to present a version of Poole's famous farce The Steeplechase. It is true the entourage of the one-act piece was at that time very humble; but then it had no fostering influence to raise its dignity. The ancient statute—called by the late John Hollingshead the Moll Flanders act—was against it; and therefore its fortunes were of a haphazard kind. Mr. Graydon, a present director of the Palace Theatre, has probably produced more one-act plays during the last thirty years at the Middlesex than any theatre manager in London or provinces in the same period, and may therefore be said to be entirely in sympathy with Mr. Alfred Butt, the popular young manager-director of the Palace, whose production of absolutely original sketches at that house has resulted in the advent to its stage of many distinguished theatre people. Miss Ellis Jeffreys is the latest to shed the lustre of the best traditions of English comedy on the variety boards, and her many triumphs in the legitimate houses made her welcome at the Palace on Monday a very hearty one. She was supported by her husband, Mr. Herbert Sleath, in a sketch presented for the first time, entitled

"No. TWO."

It .....MISS ENID SASS

"Number one" has joined the majority, and his widow in very becoming weeds takes refuge from a storm of rain in a Bond-street tea-shop. She has been preceded there by a widower and the two quite naturally get into conversation. Both are the victims of extraordinary wills, which severely restrict the pleasures of each, and impose an unusually long period of mourning. Both confess to a "rotten" time with "number one"; and some excitement is caused when "she" hears that her husband is after all alive; but 'phoning to her solicitors she learns that it is a gentleman of the same name as the deceased husband, but slightly different initials. When the storm subsides, the two depart, after having arranged to have tea together at her flat. This is but a bare outline of the trifling plot of Messrs. Sidney Blow and George Bellamy's play. It is in the dialogue and the delightful acting that its chief strength lies. Of course, Miss Jeffreys is absolutely irresistible as the widow, and Mr. Herbert Sleath's mercurial style is just the very thing for the part of the widower. Miss Enid Sass plays the waitress cleverly. The house was quite enthusiastic in their welcome of the latest variety turn.

Miss Vesta Tilley, who has completely recovered from her illness, made her reappearance on Monday at the Palace. The hoisting of her number was the signal for a demonstration on the part of the large audience that must have been immensely gratifying to this incomparable artist. She looked the trimmest and neatest of "boys" when she came on the stage to sing one of her latest successes, "That's when a fellow wants his ma," a song that leaves much room for extensive additions. "Naughty boy" is, however, the song in which Miss Tilley has an opportunity for her best work. It is a scathing satire on the clerk who on a small salary poses as one of the "gilded youth." Though the subject is not new, Miss Tilley lifts it into the regions of pure art by her admirable treatment of it. She is decidedly humorous, and so pleased were the audience on Monday that they insisted on an encore, and Miss Tilley, who was endowed with two magnificent baskets of flowers, gave them "Here's jolly good luck to the girl who loves a soldier." Miss Florrie Cecil and Miss Lillian Hoerlein, an American singer with nothing markedly distinctive in her style, and McMahon and Chappelle, in their American success, Why Hubby Missed the Train, are other newcomers in Mr. Alfred Butt's programme. During the evening some remarkable Urbanora pictures of the calamity at Messina are shown.

THE HIPPODROME.

That enchanting spectacle To-morrow, produced by Mr. Bolossy Kiralfy at the Hippodrome, has been considerably improved in its story, and some agreeable comedy relief has been introduced. Willie, who peeps into Toyland in his dreams, learns a lesson of unselfishness from the spirit of goodwill—Santa Claus, and is ready to do without his presents for the sake of the poorer kiddies. He is accompanied in his travels by a white poodle, named Fido, and meets a wonderful toy soldier in the person of Mr. Fred Walton, who makes the boys roar with laughter by his comic business in the snow scene. There are a wonderfully comic donkey and a philosophic bear, in addition to Willie's canine companion, and here we must praise the excellent work of the Fratellinis, excellent pantomimists and clowns all of them, who raise many a laugh. Miss Fatmah Diard as the fairy Happy Ever After, and also as Britannia, makes an impressive figure and sings well. The magnificent final tableau, with its allegorical figures, its crowds of tastefully-dressed dancers, and its myriads of electric lights, is the most remarkable spectacle that we have ever seen in an arena, and adds lustre to the traditions of a house that has created a record by its productions.

The latest sensation for the grown-ups at the Hippodrome is the so-called spiritualistic séance of Mr. and Mrs. Tomson, who, as the result of divided opinion as to the genuineness of the mystery expressed at a test performance arranged by Sir William Crookes, in the presence of Lady Warbeck, Sir Alfred Taylor, Dr. Wallace, Mr. W. T. Stead, and General Sir Alfred Turner, were secured by Mr. Trussell to give demonstrations on the stage. A cabinet composed of thin panels is built up on the stage by the employées of the house, and Mrs. Tomson retires to disrobe, with a committee of ladies in attendance. Presently Mrs. Tomson emerges from her apartment dressed in black gauze, and enters the cabinet. She immediately produces a dove, and is found to be robed in white. Later some real flowers are discovered on a chair, and these are distributed among the audience by a little girl dressed in white. Towards the end of the séance the mystery deepens by the appearance of a shadowy form draped in heliotrope with waving arms. Several members of the Press on Monday examined the stage and the cabinet, and the ladies attending Mrs. Tomson declared that she had nothing whatever concealed about her person. The mystery is certainly a baffling one, even to the initiated, and when experts disagree we should be sorry to attempt an explanation.

The Dunedin Troupe of cyclists are still pursuing their triumphant career at the Hippodrome, their versatile act giving unqualified delight at every performance. The Corradinis, with two zebras, an elephant, a horse, two large boarhounds, and a diminutive terrier, are responsible for a most interesting show. The great pachyderm is an amiable creature, who grasps with his trunk the rein of one of the zebras, and leads him out of the ring; and the youngsters are delighted when the terrier perches himself on the elephant's head. El Tampico Trio play guitars and mandolines, and one of them gives Chopin's famous Nocturne, which has been arranged for the violin, both by Wilhelmj and Sarasate. The tone is good, and the technique excellent. "Funiculi, Funicula" is another favoured selection. Cruikshank, "the fool of the family," revels in parodies and patter, and sustains the best traditions of the ring jester. The Lukushimas present an attractive balancing, risley, and pedal performance; the Raindears continue a popular engagement; Maude Rochez's monkeys, in their music hall scene, show remarkable intelligence; and the Anartos and Fratellinis add to the fun of the programme by clever and diverting entertainments.

THE SURREY.

The stars were eclipsed by the fog on Wednesday evening, and at the first house at the Surrey the manager had to come forward to explain that Mr. Harry Ford, who is topping this week's bill, had wired to say that he was unable to reach the theatre on account of a mishap to his motor-car, and Mr. George Newburn, the mimic, had also failed to put in an appearance from causes with which the weather had no doubt something to do. The speaker added that he made the announcement in order that the audience might not look at the bills outside and come to the conclusion that they had been got in under false pretences. An extra picture would be given, and if the artists alluded to had not by then arrived, the performance would be concluded. The artists did not put in an appearance by the time named, and the audience filed out cheerfully enough, evidently well satisfied with the entertainment that had been presented.

The current bill is varied and interesting, and smartly worked. Two sketches are included in the scheme, the first being The Kidnapped King, in which the intrepid Sexton Blake figures as the restorer of the fortunes of a threatened dynasty. Mr. C. Douglas Carlile acquits himself admirably in the part of the renowned Blake, his appearances at the psychological moment always securing an outburst of cheers. Miss Carlotta de Yonson, who runs the company, gives a strongly emotional rendition of a princess; and for the title-rôle a youthful actor has been secured in Master Geoffrey Lewes. Mr. Lee Gilbert is comically effective in the rôle of Tinker, and as a hunchback Mr. Chas. A. Carlile supplies a sound and skilful study. Mr. James Duncan and Mr. J. Langford also take their parts creditably. The piece is elaborately mounted, the military costumes being very picturesque. The second sketch is the drama in miniature entitled The Hour of Peril, which we noticed on its production at another of the Macnaghten halls a week or two ago. Mr. Frank Robson retains the part of the gallant young naval officer, but the rôle of the Russian spy is now taken by Mr. J. A. Bentham, who revels in its rascality. Miss Violet Campbell as La Sylphe submits an embodiment of much dramatic worth; and Miss L. Stone enacts the lieutenant's sweetheart with gentleness and grace.

An exhilarating performance is given by the Union Jack Boys, who in chorus and song strive to justify the claim to the description of "nautical nightingales." There are some sweet voices among the company of juvenile bluejackets, who number about a dozen, but they are occasionally overpowered, especially when they harmonise in "Excelsior." Hornpipes and clog dances figure in their performance, which is loudly applauded. Miss Maud Vera is a dainty comedienne, who makes a truly swaggering "Major," and the dance which she adds to her quaint song of a coon is of excellent quality. Echoes of The Bloomsbury Burglars are furnished by the Ralston Boys, who impersonate a couple of window-cleaners, the burden of whose chorus is "There they go again" in allusion to the cry "Stick it, Jerry!" with which they are constantly greeted. The connection is maintained in their following effusion, in which the pair are found in gaol "doing time" for Jerry and his devoted "pal." The songs have a decided quaintness, and are rendered with amusing effect. A Brewery on the Bioscope reveals the inner mysteries of the beer industry; and later Raymond's Bio-Tableaux gives a particularly interesting picture of Baby's Chum, of which the extraordinary sagacity of a bulldog is the chief feature. Dewar and Dunville are aptly referred to as "dandy dancing distillers"; and in the programme are also to be found Miss Victoria Glenn in the scena My Friend the Doll; and Miss Marguerite Radcliffe in illustrated song.

GRAND, CLAPHAM.

All forms of variety are contained in the current bill at the Grand, which is making satisfactory progress under the go-ahead Gibbons régime. The familiar entertainment of G. H. Chirgwin figures as the chief feature of the bill, and his merry jests are taken in exactly the right spirit by the audience, "The Dictionary Up to Date" dealing with topics of the moment in his usual happy way. "The Blind Boy" runs "My Fiddle is My Sweetheart" very closely in popular favour, and on the evening of our visit the latter won by a neck. Mr. Chirgwin has added a grotesque instrument to his collection in the shape of a fiddle built up with a bladder, strings, and cymbals, which he utilises with mirthful effect in combination with the orchestra. A marvellous performance is offered by Colonel Gaston Bordeverry, who claims to be the "world's greatest rifle and pistol shot." The gallant Colonel has an elaborate fit-up, and his latest novelty is that of playing operatic selections with his repeating rifle on a couple of dozen musical chimes with resonators. Colonel Bordeverry contends that everything in his act is genuine, and offers to forfeit his salary to a charitable institution if the contrary can be proved. His show is very popular at Clapham.

The fashions of the face are exploited in a remarkable way by Mr. Ed. E. Ford, who presents the Australian "sundowner" in his habit as he lives. Mr. Ford has a marvellous facility for contorting his countenance, and is able to laugh and cry at one and the same time. Striking "features," if one may say so, of his performance are the sketches of a man in the agonies of toothache, the drawing operation, and the expression of the face after the offending molar has been removed. Mr. Ford makes a genuine hit, and his performance is so unique that his rendering of "Harrigan," well sung as it is, seems rather to discount the effect of his former act. The Royal Tokio Troupe do wonders in balancing, top-spinning, and ladder work. One smart youth climbs to the top of three ladders, arranged in zigzag fashion, and resting on the soles of another performer. At this precarious height the lad goes through some graceful performances, which are, however, excelled when he ascends a slanting rope reaching to the gallery, and slides backward to the stage, the more timid among the audience being reassured by the sight of a hoop which encircles both the artist and the rope, and thus ensures his safety and theirs.

Favourites of long standing are seen in the Leonards, who reproduce their policeman duet with much acceptance. Mr. Leonard is the cause of continuous mirth as the "Bobby," who sings "Keep your eye on the force," and Mrs. Leonard as a "church worker," a French belle, and a nursemaid gives effective aid. The dancing of the clever couple is as finished in style as ever, and is awarded a hearty recall. Miss Jessie Ward is a soprano hardly yet in her teens, and her rendering of "The song that reached my heart" gains loud cheers. Lowenwirth and Cohan are listed as "murderers of the King's English," and their grim duties are carried out effectively in some capital sidewalk talk as a couple of Hebrew tailors. The Imperial Bioscope is on view with new subjects; Miss Lulu Evans sings the praises of the "Boys" blithely; and the well-arranged programme also includes the Three Laurels, in their intrepid acrobatic act; Adey Spencer, comedienne; and Kisbey, the call-boy. Mr. Harry N. Wentworth ably fulfils the duties of manager.

AT the invitation of the Hippodrome management on Wednesday, Lord Charles Conyngham and Mr. John Sweeney, the well-known ex-chief of Scotland Yard, attended the evening performance and witnessed the mystery "turn" provided by Mr. and Mrs. Tomson. In her little cabinet Mrs. Tomson produced, apparently from empty air, live birds, flowers, and lastly a very eerie ghost. A gentleman in the audience offered to give £5 to the unemployed if the performance was repeated in the arena, and this was done.

THE entertainers in the variety show this week in the Concert Room of the Crystal Palace are Miss Dora Clare, descriptive vocalist; Clown Garford and his trained dogs; Li Chang Hi, the Chinese magician, assisted by Miss Tai Mao; the Lizotto Trio, lady acrobats; and Molly Augarde, vocalist. Next week the "turns" include Ronnie and Roy Boavis, magicians; Sam Voss, street quack doctor and juggler; and Harry Garsdale, whose imitations of the various animals are extremely clever.

DR. BODIE AS AN AUTHOR.

Dr. Walford Bodie, in his introduction to his story "Harley the Hypnotist," in the Novel Magazine, of which we give some particulars below, writes:—"The editor kindly allows me to write a few words in introduction of this series of stories. I wish to do so because I am aware that a large section of the public knows very little about hypnotism and the wonderful effects that can be produced by its means.

"Hypnotism has been defined as a condition in which the mind of one individual—the hypnotist—exercises control over the mind of another individual—the subject. It is that; but it is much more than that. As I said in a book on the science which I published some years ago, hypnotism is a term which embraces a number of processes under one head just as the word soul is used to convey broadly everything in the human being above and beyond the body and the everyday mental functions. It is a science which is a matter of well-established grades of consciousness which begin in simple sleep and end in the as yet undiscovered realms of thought and vision.

"The hypnotic power is not the rare thing many people imagine. Instances of it are to be seen every day.

"We all number among our friends and acquaintances some who exercise a marked influence over us, whether for good or for bad. To the extent of that influence—to the extent that their minds control and direct ours—they hypnotise us. And so with a great orator and his audience. How does he manage to sway their minds this way and that? How does he secure his final triumph when his will and beliefs become theirs? Partly by his words; but partly by the strong persuasion of his personality. And that persuasion—his personal magnetism—is an instance of hypnotism.

"In this series of stories I assume as my central character a man who has this personal magnetism in a phenomenal degree, and who has made a profound study of hypnotism. Who can say what is or what is not possible to such a man in real life? I, for one, cannot. If he is a good man, he may work for the progress and welfare of the human race in a hundred different ways. If he is a bad man, he may become the greatest of criminals.

"There are various manifestations of the hypnotic power, as, for instance, mental suggestion, hypnotic telepathy, and clairvoyance. It is not possible for me to give an explanation of them all in this brief introduction. Indeed, some of them are almost unexplainable. They occur, and we marvel at, but cannot account for, them.

"The story in this series which will appear in next month's issue is based on such a manifestation—clairvoyance. This is the mysterious gift which is perhaps more commonly known as second sight. That there is such a thing is indisputable. The seers of old possessed it; dreams that come true are its results. In the clairvoyant state the mind acts independently of the body. Time and space are no longer obstacles—there seems to be a 'third eye' which has universal vision.

"I have thought it well to say this much as to the scientific side of this 'Harley the Hypnotist' series. As to the other side—the story one—I would simply add that my aim throughout has been to be original and interesting. The editor is good enough to tell me that in his opinion I have succeeded. I am hoping that this will also be the opinion of the hundreds of thousands who read the Novel Magazine."

The new tale, which is appearing in the February issue of the Novel Magazine, is indeed a thrilling one. Harley, the author tells us, was a distant kinsman of the Duke of Wessex. The Duke had succeeded to the title in early life, and had felt the need of somebody who could fittingly combine the offices of mentor and friend. He found this in Harley, who, although in actual age only half-a-dozen years older than himself, seemed centuries older in that knowledge of the world which includes knowledge of men and women. The Duke had escaped most of the pitfalls which await the youth born to rank and fortune. And he owed this to the wisdom of Harley, and was always ready to acknowledge the fact and to express his gratitude.

A strange-looking man, Harley. The English blood of his father and the Spanish blood of his mother were both evident in him. His tall, lithe, aristocratic figure was in strict accordance with the Harley traditions. So were the bold, handsome features. But the long, jet-black hair, and the eyes—the deep, dark, challenging eyes—were those of Seville. And his dress—that, too, was never quite English. In it there was always colour—ornament—individuality. So much so that it is on record that a certain crusty old peer once observed of him:—"That man's a gentleman, but he has the infernally bad taste to pose as a fiddler."

But it was no pose—it was the natural man. He could no more help the velvet jacket, the diamond-mounted cane, and the heavy gold bangle than he could help his delicately-shaped hands and his rich, musical voice. They were all parts of the whole.

Nobody knew quite what to expect from him. At an age when most men of his class were still at school or college he published a volume of poems. They met with immediate success. "The voice of true passion," one prominent reviewer declared. "Words that plead for a musical setting," said another. In reply to the latter criticism, Harley stated that they already had that setting—that the poems were, in fact, but word pictures of certain musical compositions of his. Soon these compositions were presented to the world by José's orchestra. They proved to be, like the poems, passionate—wild—even eerie. To this day they are sometimes played by José's and other famous orchestras.

Next the spiritualists claimed him. For a while he was the protagonist of the "Borderland" people. His lectures and his essays converted many to a belief in a world that touches our world at every point, and yet is not of it. Then suddenly he gave this up. "Spiritualism," he stated, in a farewell address, "is an unknown quantity which purports to explain other unknown quantities. That way madness lies. Let us not run after angels lest we overtake devils."

But nowadays Harley was not spoken of as Harley the Poet, or Harley the Musician, or Harley the Spiritualist. To those who knew him, or even knew of him, he was Harley the Hypnotist. He had turned from the unknown to the known quantity. Of all the votaries of the science of hypnotism he was the most devout.

"There are only two forces," he would sometimes say, "one's own mind—and the mind of the other man. They meet in hypnotic battle. To which the victory? That is the whole question."

Such being the character of Harley, the possibilities of its use in fiction are obvious. For Dr. Bodie's narrative we must refer our readers to the magazine.

A LABOURER employed on the new variety theatre at Kilburn fell from the scaffolding to the ground on Monday. His life is despaired of.

IT is reported in Northampton that a syndicate is being formed to start a roller-skating rink on the newest principles. The newly-formed Northampton Roller-skating Club had a trial practice on Monday in the Jubilee Hall, Franklin's Gardens. More than thirty years since a roller-skating rink was started in Bridge-street; it was afterwards converted into a music hall, but the site is now occupied by Messrs. Mulliner and Co.'s motor-carriage works.

"THE LAST HALT."

Episode, by W. H. Benson, produced at the Pow Palace on Monday, Jan. 25.

Prince Paul Lerkoff ..MR. WILFRED H. BENSON
Captain Marakoff .....MR. HARRY GILBEY
Lieut. Kosky .....MR. M. MADDONI
Sergeant Ivanoff .....MR. DAN C. WILLIAMS
Captain Savosky .....MR. L. LEVENSTEIN
Rebecca Marstein .....MISS MABEL WYNN

The Last Halt, played by Mr. Wilfred H. Benson's company, is a worthy top-liner on the bill this week. The piece possesses a plot whose originality enlists the keenest attention. There is a succession of pathetic incidents wherein an exiled Jewish woman juggles with the seductive luxury of the Captain of her escort and the supposed sacrifice of her honour. The Jewess woman is not young, and has no personal charms, and his fellow-officers taunt the young Captain and bid him cast his eyes towards one of the other and more attractive young maidens in the Siberian pilgrimage. But the Captain is somewhat magnetised by the queenly dignity of the woman of his choice—there is a sort of underlying consciousness that she has come into his life before. During the conflict that ensues the inscription on the young Captain's sword, which she has succeeded in possessing herself of, reveals the link—the Captain is the woman's son, lost sight of for many years. Reconciliation at this point is hardly congenial to the proud young Captain, the feared gibes of his fellow-officers at the degradation wound his spirit, and he seeks delivery at the sword point, only to be won back by the motherly entreaty, and afterwards the yielding up of her earthly sufferings. The effect of such a production upon the sentiments of an audience with a strong partiality to sensationalism blended with the deeply pathetic can be well imagined, and throughout its entire course not a sound could be heard. The acting was of a finished character, and one of the most powerful dramatic sketches on the halls at the present time finished its course amidst great applause.

Diabolo-spinning still occupies a place in popularity, as Master Day's fine exhibition with the cone and its reception by the audience denoted. Madge Beresford scored greatly with a couple of songs, specially delighting the audience; Lorne and Vallance were entertaining; Hanvarr and Lee (the Golfer and the Maid) won well merited applause, their turn being both original and smart; Percival was entertaining at the piano; and Mamie Morris scored with a particularly catchy number. J. C. Manley and Marie Nestle, and Frank Jester also figured on the programme, which was further strengthened by a couple of capital cinematograph films.

MISS GLADYS HOOLEY is making a gratifying success in the provinces with her new scena Fiddle and I, which will shortly be seen at the principal London halls.

"TWO IN A FLAT."

A Comedy Sketch, produced for the first time in London at Sadler's Wells, on Monday, Jan. 25.

Jack Hoo .....MR. FRED MONCKTON
Minnie Vinolia .....MISS LILLIE MONCKTON

The Moncktons—a couple of artists who are appreciated in whatever they appear—have an exceedingly entertaining trifle in their latest sketch, entitled Two in a Flat, produced in the provinces some weeks ago and in London at Sadler's Wells on Monday evening. The story may be briefly dealt with again. Jack Hoo has just taken a flat which has been empty for some time, and as he enters it for the first time as a tenant he orders tea and muffins to be sent to him. During his temporary absence from the sitting-room—he goes to the bedroom to have a change and a wash up—a lady enters the flat. She notices a portmanteau and concludes that it must belong to the late tenant, for it appears that she, too, had arranged to rent this self-same flat. She helps herself to the tea and muffins which have been left for Jack Hoo, and she naturally expresses her opinion as to the thoughtfulness of the servants in thus providing for the "inner woman." While she is so agreeably partaking of the joys prepared for others, Mr. Hoo returns to the room, attired in a sheet—he having undressed for a bath—and he demands to know on what grounds he is honoured by a visit from the lady. She tells him that the flat is hers, and refuses to go at his bidding, and many amusing scenes occur until they both learn that each has paid a month's rent in advance for the same flat. They also find that they have really become attached to each other during the dispute, and the conclusion will be obvious. Mr. Fred Monckton as the Man and Miss Lillie Monckton as the woman contrive to be exceedingly amusing, and the piece has been well received.

MISS KITTEE RAYBURN.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—The announcement which appeared in last week's issue of The Era to the effect that Mr. Wentworth Croke had arranged with Miss Kittee Rayburn for next Christmas pantomime at the Lyric Opera House, Hammersmith, is somewhat premature, as I hold an option on this lady's services, and up to the time of writing nothing has been settled.—Yours faithfully,

G. BRYDON-PHILLIPS.

CHARITY AT HOLLOWAY EMPIRE.

A concert in aid of the Mayor of Islington's Fund for the Wives and Children of the Unemployed was given at the Holloway Empire on Sunday evening. Messrs. Chas. Beresford and Bertie Ralland were the hon. managers. Amongst the lady vocalists who gave their services was Miss Bertha Bird, the Australian soprano, who sang Bishop's "I hear the gentle lark," with flute obbligato by Mr. E. J. Spink. Mr. Robert Anthony gave an admirable rendering of "My old shako"; Mr. Leo Dryden recited in telling style the poem "Unemployed—and Why?"; and Mr. Chas. Gellett scored with Will Carleton's "First Settler's Story." Little Miss Frances Feldman delighted the audience by the clever way in which she gave the Quarrel scene from The School for Scandal. Other contributors to the long and varied programme were the Misses Maggie Snow, Dorothy Higbed, Violet Essex, Edith Eatherley, Ethel Elmes, Hessie Reeve (a sister of Ada Reeve), and Messrs. Max Kahn (violinist), W. Kingsley, Bennett Griffin, F. E. Pepper, A. Fowler, and F. Goodwins in Dickens sketches. The Empire orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Fred Camp, performed the following selections in excellent style:—Tannhäuser March, overture Bohemian Girl, and a selection from Faust. Before the last item on the programme, the American Bioscope pictures, was reached, Councillor John Essex came forward to say a few words of appreciation of the organisers of the concert. Mr. Bertie Ralland, the genial manager of the theatre, applied to Messrs. Moss and Stoll—the Empire builders, he thought he might say—for permission to give a concert on behalf of the unemployed. Consent was at once given, and there the responsibility of Messrs. Moss and Stoll ended, and Mr. Ralland and Mr. Charles Beresford, his able coadjutor and assistant-manager, found their responsibilities commence. They worked hard, and the result had been shown that night in the splendid concert which had been given. These two gentlemen had given up their own day of rest for this entertainment. Special mention must also be made of the staff and Mr. Fred Camp and his splendid orchestra, who all gave their services gratuitously, also the regular staff of the theatre, who had rallied round their popular managers for a good cause, and the honorary programme sellers. The money raised by this effort would all be spent in relieving the destitute unemployed, who unfortunately were many.

Mr. Ralland returned thanks for himself and Mr. Beresford. He took the opportunity of thanking the concert committee for their work, especially Mr. James Budden, the hon. secretary.

Councillor Essex said that mention ought also to be made of Mr. Max Kahn, who had stage-managed the performance, assisted by Messrs. F. Wilson and F. Bourne.

MASKELYNE AND DEVANT'S.

Wonders never cease at the emporium of mystery now established at St. George's Hall, and ere one novelty has lost its freshness another is brought to the front. The latest is a further example of Mr. David Devant's ingenuity, and is called Beau Brocade. A young lady attired in the picturesque costume of the bold highwayman, having been mesmerised by Mr. Devant, is rolled up in a silken carpet. A wooden chest is then built up on a table, lined with plate glass, and secured with locks and bolts. Mr. Devant shakes the carpet in which the highwayman is snugly packed, which falls empty at his feet, and the box being opened, forth comes the smiling Brocade. The illusion is performed close to the footlights under the strongest light, and seems to be more baffling than any of its predecessors. The clever comedian-conjurer has many other new tricks all most delightfully mystifying. His Educated Goldfish, who produce from the bottom of their aquarium the proper letters to spell a word which four of the audience have conspired to furnish, is much marvelled at; and the collapsible beer, in which glasses of stout held by an attendant are made gradually to diminish to nothing, to spring up simultaneously on a tray held some distance away, provides further food—or should we say drink?—for enjoyment. For one of Mr. Devant's most diverting feats the services of the smallest boy and the youngest girl in the audience are requisitioned, the former having to pile up in his arms a quantity of eggs handed to him by the little girl after being produced from the conjurer's hat. Mr. Devant accompanies his tricks with his customary cheery humour, keeping his hearers in the happiest mood.

A new importation in the programme is that of Mr. Ernest Hastings, the well-known entertainer, who has a neat musical sketch designed for the purposes of laughter. His imitation of a child's first lesson on the pianoforte is particularly diverting, and musicianly skill marks his burlesque improvisation of the old air "The Vicar of Bray" in the styles of Bach, Handel, Mendelssohn, and Sousa. Mr. Hastings was heartily recalled, and again amused his hearers with a sketch at the piano drolly descriptive of the making of musical comedy in which the piano is of invaluable use. New also to the bill is the celestial conjuring by Houston, who, with the traditional smile, childlike and bland, of the heathen Chinee executes a number of astounding tricks of palming, procuring coins from many sources in quite novel ways. Pigeons are produced from the folds of flags of many nations, and Houston's final feat is to pour water into an empty pan, from which a number of geese clamber cackling in various stages of bewilderment. Mr. Houston has many methods of provoking laughter, not the least effective of which is his manner of picking up a table or a chair and reducing it to a portmanteau. Mr. Harry May Hemsley, who illustrates a collection of rhymes by means of artistic sketches, also contrives to sing a parody of "Sally in our alley" and other ballads while portraying the incidents on the easel. He causes much merriment, which is added to by his imitations of children.

The Philosopher's Diamond still occupies a prominent place in the bill, and the comedy of marvels is effectively presented by Mr. Nevil Maskelyne, the author, as the demented baronet; by Mr. E. Morehen, who arouses constant laughter as the rag and bone man; by Mr. Arnold Mussett, who causes similar manifestations of mirth as Bottles; and by Miss Helen McCulloch as the curious Lady Catherine; the "astral forms" being cleverly depicted by Mr. E. S. Elton, Mr. Charles Glenrose, and Miss Cassie Bruce as the fascinating Monsheen. The Witches of Macbeth still appeals powerfully to the artistic eye and ear, Mr. Gordon Bailey repeating his finished performance of Macbeth; and Miss Cassie Bruce both acting and singing dramatically as Hecate. Mr. J. N. Maskelyne is again seen in his striking performance as the First Witch; and is adequately supported by Mr. Chas. Glenrose and Mr. E. Morehen; Mr. E. S. Elton being a capable Lennox. The spectres, produced on a new plan, are as ghostly as can well be, and the effects of storm and lightning, together with the chorus of invisible spirits, combine to form an entertainment which no one who delights in the mystic art should omit to see.

HOLLOWAY EMPIRE.

A very attractive programme is being presented at this popular hall this week, and business is correspondingly good. Auguste Van Biene, the well-known actor-musician, fills the place of honour at the top in his playlet The Master Musician. This has undergone some modification since its initial production, and now concludes with the death of the musician. It serves to introduce Mr. Van Biene's accomplishments as a skilled 'cello player, and he is nightly delighting the audience with his solos. Very efficient support is forthcoming from Miss Mary Mannering as Jenny, and Mr. Percival Goffin, who is Mr. Van Biene's musical-director, himself renders valuable aid with the piano accompaniments. The reception at the conclusion is particularly cordial.

Allan Hanbury, a bright and amusing comedian, makes himself popular in a catchy song. Edith Brown, the musical slavey, is a good entertainer at the piano, and gives a couple of songs, the first on servants' compensation and the second on the Suffragist question, to the evident appreciation of the house. Albert is a clever and versatile artist. His turn, which comprises whistling, imitations of popular artists, instrumental solos, and a capital rendering of "The preacher and the bear," was sustained at the same high level throughout, everything being exceedingly neat and smart and meeting with well-deserved plaudits at the close. The original Gaudsmits are a couple of clever acrobats, the novelty in their act being secured with two dogs, one of which is particularly well trained. Amy Anderson and company in a new act, entitled On and Off the Stage, do very well, the show consisting of songs, dances, and some smart acrobatic work, having plenty of go. The Lyric Mummers, a lady and gentleman, display good voices in a vocal act.

Alf. Holt is a good whistler and mimic, and though suffering from a cold gave a pleasant and clever show, his bird imitations being very faithful reproductions of the originals. Gertie Gitana, who is at the bottom of the bill, scored a most decided success, singing four songs and dancing in a style that proved her to be a gifted young lady. Mr. Camp's orchestra is a feature of the evening, and Mr. Bertie Ralland is very attentive in the front of the house.

AT the Boscombe Hippodrome Evie Greene, the Queen of Musical Comedy, is the great attraction this week, and in selections from her répertoire gains tremendous applause from an appreciative audience. Mark Brand, eccentric comedian, keeps the house in roars; Vincent Kelway and company present their romantic French episode, The Poet of the People, and are well received. Morrin and Cardiff, comedians and dancers, execute their turn in a pleasing manner, and come in for a good round of applause. Le Strad, in his original impersonations of celebrated musicians, is appreciated; Victoria Dagmar and Clown, as eccentric gymnasts, are very good, as also is Ethel Arundel, vocal comedienne. The Hippo Pictures, showing latest subjects, conclude the bill.

DATAS has been springing his wonderful memory feats upon hard-headed Sheffield audiences at the local Empire, where he is deputising with no little success.

INVENTIONS.

[The particulars furnished below of recent applications for patents are taken from the official records. Correspondence is invited with our readers on all matters relating to new ideas and inventions, with a view to affording them advice and assistance. Letters should be addressed to the Manager, Inventions Department, "The Era," 5, Tavistock-street, Strand, London.]

Inventors and others who have no business representative are invited to communicate with the Manager of the Inventions Dept. as above.

APPLICATIONS.

ABRIDGMENTS OF SPECIFICATIONS.

19,713.—Phonographs, cinematographs. Grünbaum, J., of Berlin.

The synchronous running of a cinematograph with a talking machine is indicated by the motion of pointers, or by the lighting of lamps. The cinematograph shaft and the shaft of the talking machine each make electric contacts momentarily, energising separate electro-magnets, from the armatures of which, by suitable mechanism, motion is independently transmitted to two pointers, which, when the running is synchronous, move together by jerks round a dial. Contacts may be fitted to the shafts of these pointers, so that when one lags or leads a red or a blue lamp may shine instead of a white one. In the vertical section shown in Fig. 2 the electro-magnets (2, 3) are energised intermittently by the cinematograph and talking machine respectively.

Pawls (17) attached to the armature of each actuate ratchet-wheels (18, 19), which by cog-wheels (26, 28, and 21, 22) rotate the tubular and solid shafts carrying the pointers (29, 24). Attached to the tubular shaft (27) is an insulating disc (31) having a conducting-rim (32), which brushes against a spring-contact (33), and is also connected with another spring-contact (35) on the under side of the disc (31). During synchronous running the piece (35) remains in contact with a segment (36) (see also Fig. 4) on the upper side of a disc (39) attached to the solid shaft. The piece (36) is electrically connected to a ring (40) on the under side, in continual contact with which is a contact-spring (44), leads (53, 48) completing the circuit for the white lamp. Should the cinematograph pointer (29) advance or lag relatively to the pointer (24), the spring-piece (35) comes in contact with one of the segments (37, 38). The former segment is connected to a ring (42), which rubs the contact-spring (45), the circuit of the red lamp being completed by the leads (47, 53), while the segment (38) completes the circuit of the blue lamp by a middle ring (41), contact-spring (46), and leads (49, 53).

19,847.—Racing tracks, &c. Martyne, H. H., of Manchester.

Tracks for racing purposes, with or without railway lines, are so arranged that although the track curves so as to come within an approximate square, the course of each competitor is of equal length, without the tracks crossing one another. The tracks (A, B, C) start at D, E, and end at E, F. At f and g the tracks diverge somewhat in order to make up by the curve at those points any distance lost at the curves at the other points. The idea may be applied to toy tracks.

20,084.—Theatrical appliances. Hart, J., of Bradford.

Each scene, curtain, or the like is independently raised by power and falls by gravity. The ropes supporting the scenes are wound on drums, riding loose upon a driving-shaft, and thrown into engagement with the shaft by suitably-operated clutch mechanism (f, Fig. 1). At the top of each scene is a steel bar to which three ropes are attached, the ropes either being taken to a ring or being left separate. In the former case the rope on the winding-drum is secured to the ring; in the latter case the three ropes are each taken to the drum. The intermediate guide-pulleys have the requisite number of grooves. To check the motion of the sheet, a ratchet-wheel (n, Fig. 4) attached to the drum engages with a spring-pressed pawl (o) pivotally mounted to a fixed part of the apparatus. The pawl is operated by a hand-lever (s), which is pivoted at t and secures the ends of a brake-strap (r) working on a brake-drum (q) attached to the winding-drum. Instantaneous or gradual stoppage of the descent of the screen can thus be obtained by bringing the pawl brake-strap respectively into operation. Another and more silent method consists of a brake-strap (r) combined with a hand-operated eccentric (v, Fig. 3) mounted on a shaft parallel to the shaft of the brake-drum and provided with a gripping-surface (w) to engage the brake-drum as the eccentric is oscillated. A weight (x) urges the eccentric into the gripping position, and a stop (4) attached to an arm (y) on the eccentric limits the movement of the eccentric. A stop, attached to a rope wound on a drum attached to the winding-drum, engages a fixed plate when the scene reaches its lowest position, a spring attached to the stop serving to cushion the blow when the stop engages with the plate.

19,892.—Cinematographs. James, R. N., of London (Compagnie Générale de Phonographes, Cinématographes, et Appareils de Précision, of Paris).

A centring device suitable for films varying in width consists of a jointed parallelogram (a, b, c, d) with the centres (e, f) of the shorter sides fixed to the instrument, and a spring (g) to keep the longer sides constantly pressing in.

CINEMATOGRAPH PRECAUTIONS.

In view of the danger attending cinematograph entertainments, the L.C.C. Education Committee has unanimously decided to ask the L.C.C. to add a clause forbidding cinematograph entertainments to the regulations governing the letting of L.C.C. schools.

FINANCIAL.

HACKNEY AND SHEPHERD'S BUSH EMPIRE PALACES.—The statement of accounts for the year to Dec. 31 last shows that the net profit, including the balance brought forward, and after allowing for debenture interest, depreciation, and all other charges against revenue, including the managing-director's salary for 1907, amounts to £15,106. From this there fall to be deducted the dividend at the rate of 6 per cent. on the preference shares for the year, and the interim dividend upon the ordinary shares paid in July last, which amount in the aggregate to £5,200. The balance of £9,906 thus remains to be dealt with at this time. The directors recommend that this amount should be applied as follows: That a dividend be declared and paid upon the ordinary shares for the half-year to Dec. 31 last at the rate of 20 per cent. per annum, free of income-tax, amounting to £5,000, and that the balance of £4,906 be carried forward, subject to the managing-director's remuneration for 1908. The directors attribute the decrease in profits as compared with former years partly to the very fine weather of the past summer, which had naturally a prejudicial effect upon indoor amusements, and partly to the popularity of the Franco-British Exhibition, the site of which was adjacent to one of the company's properties. The directors have acquired an interest in the Stoke Newington Theatre.

LUNA PARK, PARIS.—Jan. 13. £30,000 (£1). Builders, purchasers, and operators of amusement parks and other public amusements and entertainments, &c. Agreement with J. H. Iles, G. Akoun, Frank C. Bostock, and the L. A. Thompson Scenic Railways Continental, Ltd. Private. 210, Strand, W.C. (101,103.)

JURY'S IMPERIAL PICTURES.—Jan. 20. £20,000 (£1). To take over the business of a dealer in cinematograph machinery, appliances, films, and materials, &c., carried on by W. F. Jury, of 142, Long-acre, W.C. Private. 142, Long-acre, W.C. (101,187.)

TO STAGE MACHINISTS AND ELECTRICIANS. — The Manager will be pleased to receive particulars of any new stage appliances or ideas for same for illustration in this column.

Can You Invent?—Do you wish to know of prizes offered to inventors valued at £10,000, £5,300, £5,000, £4,000, £1,000, £400, £300, £200, £100, and £50? If so, then get a copy of Patents and Designs, a newspaper called into existence by Mr. Lloyd George's Patents and Designs Act, 1907. Patents and Designs, price 2d., can be had at all bookstalls, newsagents, and at the Publishing Office, 5, Tavistock-street, Strand, W.C.

NEW YEAR'S COLLECTION FOR THE MUSIC HALL HOME.

In again directing the attention of our readers to The Era New Year's Shilling Fund on behalf of the Music Hall Home we are in the happy position of being able to associate with the appeal thus being made the name of the foremost music hall comedienne—Miss Marie Lloyd. It seems scarcely necessary to remind our readers of the deep interest Miss Lloyd has ever taken in matters affecting the welfare of her brothers and sisters of the variety profession. It is her desire that her "year" will be marked by a considerable increase in the subscriptions of previous years, and she therefore, through The Era, commends the Music Hall Home to the charitably-minded. Mr. Thomas Barrasford, the President of the Fund, is again this year exerting himself in its behalf, and this fact is sufficient indication that he is satisfied as to the way in which the institution is being conducted, and that he considers it worthy of support.

Mr. Ben Woodger, the secretary of the Music Hall Home, tells us that in 1907 the inmates averaged ten, but that in 1908 there have been as many as twelve. The address of the Home is 31, Wilson-road, Camberwell, and there the matron (Mrs. Fruin) busies herself for the comfort and convenience of her "family." At present there are eleven of these, and the desire is to increase the number, which can only be done when sufficient funds for the purpose are collected. During the past twelve months three or four of the inmates have recovered their health and strength sufficiently to enable them to look for engagements. These secured, they left the Home, and the vacancies thereby created were immediately filled up. Now, this Home requires keeping up, and it cannot be kept up on air. There is no need for us to refer to all the good work which has been performed by the institution in the past, as that must for the most part be within the recollection of our readers. The ages of the inmates range from fifty to seventy-six. In all probability these men will be maintained in the Home until the day of their death, and their funeral expenses paid for out of the funds of the Home.

The Era New Year's Shilling Fund is the main source of income to the Home, and this means of sustenance is added to by the donations of artists, either given directly, or through the collecting boxes through which many managers of variety theatres collect pennies from "dead-heads" and from artists who desire free admission.

MISS MARIE LLOYD,
The Fair Worker for the Home.

Anyone can be supplied with a collecting-card by sending a postcard to Mr. Woodger.

Briefly, we may once more repeat that the objects of the Music Hall Home Fund are to provide shelter for deserving members of the variety profession who have been stricken with poverty or illness in their declining years, or who have in other ways fallen on evil times. Mr. F. H. Pedgrift, the hon. treasurer, will be pleased to receive filled-up collecting cards addressed to him at The Era, 5, Tavistock-street, Strand, W.C., and to acknowledge them in these columns.

"ARTFUL."

Play, in One Act, by Sydney Blow, produced at the Coliseum on Monday, Jan. 25.

Harry Binfield ..... MR. CYRIL VERNON.
Winnie Binfield ..... MISS ETHEL BEALE.
Beatrice May ..... MISS SYDNEY FAIRBROTHER.
A Burglar ..... Y. KNOTT.

The advent of so distinguished a character actress as Miss Sydney Fairbrother on the variety stage is an occurrence of considerable interest, and her appearance at the Coliseum during the week is another proof that Mr. Stoll is determined to give every possible opportunity to artists of the legitimate stage to appear at the Coliseum, at which we have had so many excellent theatrical attractions. The vehicle arranged for Miss Fairbrother's début at the fine house in St. Martin's-lane is a playlet by Sydney Blow, part author of No. 2, which was successfully launched at the Palace on Monday by Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Sleath. It is entitled Artful—by no means a cleverly-conceived title—and in it Miss Fairbrother embodies two characters—those of an actress and a burglar. Beatrice May's performance in a new play has been unfavourably noticed by a lady critic, Mrs. Winnie Binfield, who is living in the flat below the actress. On the curtain rising a burglar is discovered annexing various articles in the Binfield's flat. When disturbed by the return of the occupants, the cracksman's plaint of poverty and his story of hungry little ones completely wins over Harry Binfield, who permits the apparent criminal to depart. The discovery afterwards of a rope hanging from the flat above leads to inquiries being made as to whether the "burglar" had attempted another robbery. But Miss Beatrice May, who is sent for, knows of no untoward occurrence of the kind. Presently, however, the "burglar" returns with some property that has been purloined from the Binfields, and, doffing disguise, the identity of the actress with the amateur criminal is revealed. After all, Miss Beatrice May has shown that she can act. Miss Fairbrother presents an excellent study of the burglar; and the other parts are agreeably played by Mr. Cyril Vernon and Miss Ethel Beale.

THE V.A.F. AND ITS CRITICS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—I trust you will give me space to reply very briefly to the remarks made by Mr. F. V. St. Clair about myself in his letter to you recently. Mr. St. Clair says I am "guilty of engineering" the strike—it is a strange coincidence that I should be writing this letter on an anniversary of that event—but that is the misleading and inaccurate statement which has been circulated by certain individuals, and which has kept me from obtaining even one week's work in the past two years.

I am no more responsible for the causing of the strike than Mr. St. Clair himself. The minute books will show that I was duly authorised to do all I did. I was a paid official, and carried out my instructions without fear or favour on behalf of those whom I represented. On the other hand, I am responsible for the way the battle was fought, and I have not yet been accused, even by my worst enemy, of fighting it in a half-hearted fashion.

Further, I am not responsible for the breaking of faith with the musicians and stage employees, nor had I anything to do with the arbitration proceedings, which cost the Federation hundreds of pounds.—Yours faithfully,

FRANK GERALD.

THE SHOWMAN WORLD.

The Guild and the Oldham Corporation.

THE London meeting led to a conference between the President of the Guild and the Executive officials. It was determined that all possible means of arriving at a working agreement with the Oldham Corporation should be exhausted before proceeding to the extremely costly process of petition against their Bill. With this end in view, the Rev. T. Horne has addressed the following official letter to the Town Clerk to lay before the Mayor and Corporation :—

"The Guild Offices,
"5, Tavistock-street, Strand, W.C.

"GENTLEMEN,—The Committee of the Guild have had before them and have fully considered the additional powers clauses in your new Bill. They respectfully point out :

"(1)That in recent years the Private Bills Committee have invariably thrown out such clauses on our petition.

"That in the Halifax Corporation Bill similar powers to those you are seeking were thrown out; also that in the Rotherham Corporation Bill the Corporation upon a representation from us withdrew like clauses.

"We do not desire to enter upon opposition to your Bill by petition and counsel until we have exhausted all possible means of conciliation.

"(2) We ask you to receive a small deputation, consisting of our president, Mr. P. Collins (a tenant of your Fair on Tommyfield), Mr. T. Hurst, hon. secretary (also a tenant of your fairground), and myself, the official organiser and chaplain of the Guild.

"Fix a date, say Feb. 9 or 10, or suggest another date more suitable to you, and we will meet you and explain our position.

"(3) I have to forward you the following resolutions passed at our annual gatherings in Manchester and in London :—

"Resolution I. : 'That this meeting of showmen protests against the proposed monopoly of Fairs clauses in the Private Bill of the Oldham Corporation, and it pledges itself to take all possible means to defeat the reactionary proposals of the Corporation, manifestly aimed at the principle of free trade in fairs.'—Passed at the Memorial Hall, Albert-square, Manchester, Jan. 13, 1909.

"Resolution II. : 'That this annual meeting of delegates of the Showmen's Guild, drawn from all parts of the United Kingdom, protests against the Oldham Corporation Bill asking for a monopoly of fairs in the borough boundary.'—Passed at the World's Fair, Islington, Jan. 20, 1909.

"Awaiting a reply, yours faithfully,
"T. HORNE.

"Jan. 27, 1909.

"DEAR SIR.—I have to acknowedge the receipt of your letter dated the 23rd instant (but only received here yesterday) upon the above subject.

"I am seeing the Chairman of our Markets Committee thereon, and will write you further in due course.—Yours faithfully,
"J. H. HALLSWORTH, Town Clerk.

Mr. Calvin Brown to the Front..

THE International Exposition at Nancy, France, opens a six months' season on May 1, and the French Government has, through the Colonial Department, taken hold of it in conjunction with the city of Nancy and the Chamber of Commerce of that city. To the Anglo-American Park Manager J. Calvin Brown, proprietor of the White City of Manchester, has been entrusted all the amusements and shows that will be placed in the Exposition grounds. Mr. Brown passed through London on Tuesday in company with his French representative, Mons. G. A. Brunnarius, and several of the parties to whom he has awarded concessions. Work on the building of the amusement portion of the Exposition will begin next Monday, as most of the construction contracts have been awarded, and workmen are on the ground ready for the signal to begin to be sounded. Nearly all the space available for amusements has been let. The Exposition proper will close every night at six o'clock, at least the buildings will, but the gardens, all the shows, the restaurants, and the bands will go on without ceasing until midnight. This is the first time any exhibition ever made such concessions to the builders of amusement devices, and seems to assure a good return for concessionaires. Mr. Brown's White City in Manchester will have a preliminary season during Easter week, but the third regular season will not begin until Saturday, May 15, and will continue for twenty weeks.

News from Holland.

HENRY'S Hungarian Circus has pitched its tent in Rotterdam, Holland, and is meeting with undoubted success. The performances are given daily, and two matinées weekly. The circus is got up on an extensive scale, with numbers of well-trained animals. The Hungarian horses exhibited by Manager Henry in person are handsome specimens, and attract much attention. There is some good riding done by Mlle. Tenzi and Mr. Alberto, and a couple of amusing numbers by the clowns, &c. The Staigs company perform some of their sensational velo and motor feats; and the Three Tiger Graces are seen in their acrobatic groups, which are no less sensational and unique.

Carmarthen.

ON Monday evening Alone in the Desert was capitally presented at the Phœnix Theatre, at the Carmarthen Pleasure Fairground, and was followed with the screamingly funny comedietta The Lady with the Cork Leg. On Tuesday evening East Lynne was given with much success; on Wednesday evening a dramatic interpretation was given to The Beggar's Petition; on Thursday Married Life was realistically portrayed; and on Friday evening The Murder in the Lime Tree Walk was splendidly performed. For Saturday afternoon a special performance for children, the pantomime Jack the Giant Killer, was billed, and for Saturday evening the nautical play, Ben the Bo'sun. The proprietor-manager, Mr. Harry Cowell, has recently strengthened the company, with the result that the various plays are presented with much power, and consequently meet with cordial and enthusiastic receptions.

Burslem Winter Carnival.

MAINTAINING the fair were P. Collins' No. 2 racing motors and No. 1 Laughterland Exhibition of animated pictures, depicting nightly the Messina earthquake to fairish houses; P. Collins, jun.'s, twin yachts; A. Birch's cocoanut saloon and gingerbread stalls; and E. A. and A. Hart, of minor shows, novelties, and attractions too numerous to mention.

THE DISPUTE BETWEEN SHOWMEN AND THE PENZANCE CORPORATION.

SUCCESSFUL MEDIATION OF THE GUILD.

The serious dispute over tolls with the Corporation of Penzance carried on by the organised West of England showmen reached a most happy ending on Thursday last, Jan. 28, when all the points at issue were considered and determined by a Round Table conference of the representatives of the showmen and the Corporation, held at the Council Chambers, Penzance. The serious consequences that the Round Table averted may be seen in the statement of claim of the Corporation in their action for damages and costs against the showmen and the tenant of Col. Bolitho, who let the showmen have a field at Heamoor, just outside the town.

IN THE HIGH COURT OF JUSTICE
MR. JUSTICE JOYCE.

Writ issued the 19th day of October, 1908.

Between the Mayor Aldermen and Burgesses of the Borough of Penzance (plaintiffs) and Otho Glyn Bolitho (against whom proceedings have been discontinued) John Kemp White Albert Anderton and Arthur Rowland (trading as Anderton and Rowland) William Hancock Charles Hancock and Sophia Hancock (trading as W. C. and S. Hancock) and Joseph Brewer (defendants).

STATEMENT OF CLAIM.

1. The Plaintiffs are by prescription and by divers Letters Patent and in particular by the Letters Patent hereinafter in this paragraph mentioned entitled to and possessed of a Fair or Mart holden in the Borough of Penzance on the Eve and Day of Corpus Christi and the two days following—By Letters Patent dated the 9th day of May in the twelfth year of the reign of His Majesty James I. being the Letters Patent hereinbefore particularly referred to his said Majesty granted to the Mayor Aldermen and Commonalty of the Vill of Penzance and to their successors (inter alia) that they and their successors hereafter for ever have hold and keep and shall be able to have hold and keep within the aforesaid Vill of Penzance and within the liberties and precincts of the same yearly and every year for ever seven Fairs or Marts therein particularly mentioned the first of the same Fairs or Marts to be holden continue and last on the Eve and Feast or Day commonly called the Body of Christ's Day together with Courts of Pie Powdre there to be holden at the time of the said Fairs or Marts from time to time for ever with all liberties and free customs tolls stallages piccages fines amerciaments and all other profits commodities advantages and emoluments whatsoever to such Fairs or Marts and Courts of Pie Powdre appertaining arising happening accruing or in any manner belonging and further his said Majesty did grant and confirm to the aforesaid Mayor and Commonalty of the Vill of Penzance aforesaid and their successors all and all manner of liberties franchises immunities privileges profits easements pre-eminences commodities advantages customs rights jurisdictions emoluments and exemption whatsoever which the inhabitants of the vill aforesaid then had held used and enjoyed or ought to have had held used or enjoyed by reason or pretext of any gift grant or confirmation theretofore had made or granted by his said Majesty or by either of his progenitors or ancestors late Kings or Queens of England or by reason or pretext of any prescription use title right or custom theretofore had used or enjoyed or holden.

2. The Plaintiffs have always held the said Fair or Mart on Corpus Christi Eve and day and the two days following. The said Fair or Mart was formerly held in the streets of the Borough of Penzance but of recent years in a field within the boundaries thereof known as the Recreation Ground which had been assigned or appropriated by the Plaintiffs for the purpose thereof. Upon such Fairs being held persons resorting thereto for profit have erected stalls or booths or have taken from the Plaintiffs pieces of land or standings for the purpose of trading thereon and for the purposes of holding shows and performances and giving facilities for pleasure or pastime.

3. The Plaintiffs have always as of right levied from and charged upon and have been paid by the persons so erecting stalls or booths or taking pieces of land or standings reasonable sums of money as and by way of customs tolls stallages piccages fines and other lawful dues or emoluments to the profit of the Plaintiffs.

4. On or about the 20th March 1908 the Defendants Albert Anderton and Arthur Rowland wrote a letter to the Plaintiffs and enclosed therewith a communication in writing signed by the said Albert Anderton and Arthur Rowland who thereby purported to act on behalf of themselves and other showmen who usually resort to the said Mart or Fair. The said communication suggested the arrangement by the Plaintiffs for the purposes of the Mart or Fair of the Plaintiffs fair ground according to a plan set out upon the said communication and the maximum rents to be charged to such showmen for the ground and threatened that if the Plaintiffs were unable to comply with their suggestion they would carry on the Fair on ground not controlled by the Plaintiffs. The Plaintiffs by letter dated the 8th April 1908 refused to accept the terms offered by the said Defendants.

5. On or about the 15th June 1908 being two days prior to the Eve of Corpus Christi Day the Defendants other than the Defendant John Kemp White or some of them entered into an agreement with the said John Kemp White who was the tenant of land known as Poltaire Heamoor at a distance of one mile or thereabouts from the said Borough that he the said John Kemp White should let a part of the said piece of land to them the said Defendants so agreeing for four days beginning on the Eve of Corpus Christi Day for the purpose of holding a Mart or Fair on such piece of land. The consideration for such letting which was paid by the Defendants or some of them to the said John Kemp White was the sum of £70. The Plaintiffs have no particulars of the said agreement other than those which are stated in this paragraph.

6. The Defendants largely advertised in the public papers by means of placards or posters affixed in the said Borough and the vicinity thereof that a Mart or Fair would be open at one p.m. the 18th June Corpus Christi Feast Day and would be continued the two following days and that a charge of one penny per head would be made for admission to the ground.

7. The Defendants proceeded to hold and did hold a Mart or Fair on the land at Poltaire aforesaid on the said 18th June and the two succeeding days by letting the said grounds taken by them from the said Defendant John Kemp White to stall booth and stand holders and to showmen and by charging for admission to the said piece of ground. The Defendants other than the said John Kemp White further set up and held during the said three days stalls booths and stands. Large crowds of people resorted to Poltaire aforesaid who would if no such Mart or Fair had been held have resorted to the Plaintiffs Mart or Fair whereby the Plaintiffs lost the dues emoluments and profits thereof which they would otherwise have had and did not enjoy the said Mart or Fair and the dues emoluments and profits thereof in so ample and beneficial a manner as they of right ought to have done.

The Plaintiffs claim :

(a) A Declaration that they are by prescription and by virtue of Letters Patent dated the 9th day of May in the twelfth year of His Majesty King James the First entitled to and possessed of a Mart or Fair to be holden continue and last on the Eve and Feast or Day commonly called the Body of Christ's Day and the succeeding two days in the Borough of Penzance in every year.

(b) An injunction to perpetually restrain the Defendants their servants agents and workmen from establishing any Fair or Mart upon any portion of the land known as Poltaire Heamoor or elsewhere within seven miles of the said Borough and from using or permitting to be used any portion of the said land or property or any other land or property within the limit aforesaid so as to interfere with or disturb or prejudicially affect the rights of the Plaintiff Corporation in the said Fair or Mart as hereinbefore declared.

(c) An enquiry what damages have been caused to the Plaintiffs by reason of the said letting of ground at Poltaire Heamoor by the Defendant John Kemp White to the other Defendants and payment of the amount found to be due by the said John Kemp White.

(d) An enquiry what damages the Plaintiffs have sustained by reason of the Defendants other than the said John Kemp White having held the said Mart or Fair at Poltaire Heamoor in disturbance of the Plaintiffs Mart or Fair and payment of the amount found to be due by the Defendants other than the said John Kemp White.

S. H. LEONARD.

Delivered this 21st day of January 1909 by Dangerfield and Blythe of 26 Craven Street Charing Cross London W.C. Agents for T. H. and J. B. Cornish of Penzance Plaintiffs Solicitors.

The Cause of the Quarrel.

The matters in dispute have arisen during the past two years, and the fault is partly owing to the competition of rival showmen tendering higher rates than the usual tolls. Taking advantage of this rivalry amongst the showpeople, the Corporation increased the tolls, especially for the big shows and roundabouts to that extent that in 1907 a petition was drawn up at the fair and given to Messrs. Rowland and Anderton to get additional signatures and then to present it to the Corporation. This was done, but met with no material response from the Corporation. Following upon this a meeting of the showmen tenants was held at Redruth Fair on Whitsun Day, a week before the Fair at Penzance was due. Messrs. Anderton and Hancock went down to Penzance, and failing to get their terms from the Corporation, took the land in dispute at Heamoor from the farmer, Mr. J. K. White, and opened there as a carnival, charging gate-money, in the hope that the Corporation might not regard their enterprise in any severer light than a trade strike against exorbitant tolls.

The Intervention of the Guild Chaplain.

The West of England showmen in their trouble sought the good offices of the Guild Chaplain, the Rev. T. Horne. The Chaplain went down to Penzance, and in the interests of peace opened up negotiations with the Mayor and the Town Clerk.

A Suggested Schedule of Tolls.

Amongst other good things done by the Chaplain was the drafting (at a meeting of amusement caterers of all grades at Heamoor) of a reasonable scale of tolls. This was sent to the Corporation on July 3, 1908, following the carnival, and was duly acknowledged. The fairness of this scale is evidenced by the fact that it was ultimately taken as the basis of agreement between the showmen and the Corporation, and the schedule that forms part of the corcordat of peace, and which we are privileged to give below, is, with very slight differences, identical with it.

Local Reasons for Seeking an Injunction.

We need not go into the matter too closely, for the case for the showmen never presented insurmountable difficulties to the conciliators. The Corporation, in order to prevent attacks upon their other market and fair rights under the charter (a most valuable monopoly), determined to seek an injunction—more against the letting of land than against their showmen tenants.

The Story of the Negotiations.

The following letters (out of many) will show how strenuously the Guild has laboured to bring about a peaceful settlement and to get the abandonment of the High Court action. After the writs had been served on the defendant showmen the Rev. T. Horne sent the following letter to the Corporation, under date Nov. 19, 1908 :—

"To the Mayor and Corporation of Penzance.

"GENTLEMEN,—I have been acting as mediator in the regrettable dispute between your Markets and Fairs Committee and the organised showmen. I have been in correspondence with the showmen, who have received writs, in the action entered by you in the High Court for an injunction.

"In their name, and with a view to effecting a peaceful settlement, I suggest—(1) That all the defendants recognise the rights claimed by you under your Charter. (2) That you, on your part, withdraw the action from the High Court, each side to pay its own costs. (3) That the Markets and Fairs Committee accept my previous letter as a basis for agreement on the vexed question of tolls, and that other points with reference to conditions as to entrance upon and departure from the Fairground, be considered on their merits. I am particularly anxious that the Corporation should understand that the policy of our Guild is to conserve the rights of the people for their annual holidays and fairs, as secured to them by Charter and ancient custom. The unfortunate strike, which led to the enterprise of a carnival at Heamoor, was a regrettable incident in the struggle of the local showmen for rights which they considered to be in danger. I am in a position to assure you that, if this matter can be brought to a peaceful conclusion, and without recourse to expensive and, in all probability, unsatisfactory litigation, that you will find the showmen all the better tenants for having got to the bottom of their troubles, and also having obtained wise and magnanimous treatment from the Corporation.—I am, Gentlemen, yours ever for God and for good,
"T. HORNE."

The Reply of the Corporation.

"MAYOR AND OTHERS v. BOLITHO AND OTHERS.
"Penzance, Nov. 23, 1908.

"DEAR SIR,—We thank you for yours of the 19th inst., enclosing suggestions on behalf of the showmen defendants, for settlement of this action.

"Will you kindly inform us if you have the full authority and sanction of the solicitors acting for Messrs. Hancock, Brewer, and Anderton and Rowland, to submit the proposals?

"The Council cannot accept the conditions laid down in your letter, but will shortly, if all is in order, submit alternative terms.

"We assure you that the Corporation have no wish to carry this matter into the Courts if a just and equitable settlement can be arrived at.

"They feel, however, that they would be neglecting their public duties if they did not obtain a judgment for the claim set out in the writ, and they certainly cannot forgo damages. Without prejudice,—Yours faithfully,
"T. H. AND J. B. CORNISH.

"The Rev. T. Horne, c/o The Era,
"5, Tavistock-street, Strand, W.C."

"Nov. 26, 1908.

"THE MAYOR AND OTHERS re BOLITHO AND OTHERS.

"GENTLEMEN,—I thank you for your communication of the 23rd instant. I have full authority from the showmen concerned to effect any reasonable and friendly settlement of the matter in question. During my visit to Penzance, when I interviewed both the Mayor and the Town Clerk, as the fully accredited conciliator for the showmen, I also interviewed Colonel Bolitho and Mr. White, and since then I have been in communication with both these gentlemen, Colonel Bolitho, through his solicitor, and Mr. White directly. I am in a position to say, therefore, that I have authority from all parties concerned to attempt a satisfactory issue of the matter by conciliation from the parties concerned.

"I am sorry to find that the Council cannot accept my proposals in their entirety, but, on the other hand, I am glad that alternative terms are to be submitted. I note with extreme gratification, and, in fact, I have never doubted, that the Corporation have no wish to carry the matter into the Court if a just and equitable settlement can be attained.

"With regard to the definition of the full powers of your Charter, is it not possible to obtain this in a friendly suit involving, of course, but little legal costs?

"I am extremely sorry to hear that the Council will not forego their claim for damages. Their insistence upon that point seriously increases the difficulties of my work as conciliator, and as I shall have to open up communications with all the defendants, I should like to have some definite statement as to the amount of money the Corporation claims by way of damages.

"I am, of course, writing to all the showmen defendants, and also to Colonel Bolitho's solicitor, and to Mr. White.—Yours faithfully,
"T. HORNE."

The Growing Anxiety for Peace.

The Chaplain's peaceful overtures were met in the same spirit by the Corporation, as the following letters indicate :—

"Penzance, Dec. 19, 1908.

"MAYOR AND OTHERS v. BOLITHO AND OTHERS.

"DEAR SIR,—We are obliged by yours of the 17th inst. We are glad to note that, to a very large extent, the difference between us in this matter is not so very great. We think that we can assure you that the Corporation has no wish to fight a long and costly lawsuit over this matter unless they are compelled to, but matters having gone so far as they have, it becomes imperative that they should vindicate their right to hold a Fair, and in order to do so effectually they must endeavour to obtain a judgment as per the particulars endorsed on the writ.

"When this has been satisfactorily settled, we feel sure that the Corporation will be quite prepared to confer with you, as representing the showmen usually attending the Fair, as to the future working of the Fair. As it is to our mutual interest that the Fair should continue, we feel sure that the Corporation will be prepared to consider any reasonable proposal that the showmen may have to make as to the future.

"It seems that the chief difference between us is that you want to discuss these matters before we obtain judgment, and we want to obtain judgment before we discuss these matters.—Yours truly,
"T. H. & J. B. CORNISH.

"To the Rev. T. Horne."

"Penzance, Jan. 1, 1909.

"THE MAYOR OF PENZANCE AND OTHERS v. BOLITHO AND OTHERS.

"DEAR SIR,—We beg to acknowledge the receipt of yours of the 21st ulto., which we have been unable to reply to ere this.

"You can assure the showmen that the Corporation will deal with whatever grievances they have in a fair and reasonable way.

"With regard to the suggested conference, we have now heard from Messrs. Bond and Pearce, acting for Messrs. Hancock and Brewer, in the same strain as you write, and we will see our clients thereon at an early date and let you hear from us again.—Yours truly,
"T. H. & J. B. CORNISH.

"To the Rev. T. Horne."

"Penzance, Jan. 5, 1909.

PENZANCE CORPORATION v. BOLITHO AND OTHERS.

"DEAR SIR,—In reply to yours of the 21st ulto., we have now had an opportunity of consulting with our clients, and they are prepared to meet the defendants at a round-table conference to discuss all matters in dispute connected with this action.

"They offer Saturday, the 16th instant, at the Council Chamber, Penzance, at 11 a.m., as the time and place for the conference.

"We shall be glad if you will let us hear from you hereon, together with any terms that the defendants may wish to submit for the consideration of the Corporation. A copy of this letter has been sent to Messrs. Bond and Pearce, acting on behalf of the Messrs. Hancock and Brewer, and to Messrs. Borlase and Venning, Penzance, acting on behalf of Colonel Bolitho and Mr. J. K. White.

"This letter is, of course, written 'without prejudice.'—Yours truly,
"T. H. & J. B. CORNISH.

"The Rev. T. Horne."

The Conference Held, and a Peaceful Settlement Obtained.

The following are the official minutes of the conference and terms that will be submitted to the High Court for complete settlement and withdrawal of the action. It is a most gratifying fact that the Rev. T. Horne was most warmly thanked at the end of the conference, the Mayor, the Chairman of the Markets and Fairs Committee, and Alderman Vivian Thomas (a former Mayor of the borough) joining in the encomiums :

Minutes of the Conference held on Jan. 28, 1909, at the Council Chamber, Public Buildings, Penzance.

Present :— The Mayor (Coun. A. K. Barnett), Mr. B. C. Matthews, Mr. J. Vivian Thomas, the Town Clerk (Mr. T. H. Cornish), and Mr. B. J. Trewavas, representing the Corporation; the Rev. T. Horne, representing the Showmen's Guild; Mr. J. Jewill Hill, representing the Messrs. Hancocks and Brewer; Mr. W. H. Borlase, representing Mr. J. K. White; and Miss S. Hancock, Mr. Brewer, and Mr. Anderton in person; and Mr. G. Norton, agent of Showmen's Guild, West Penwith.

Agreed : All proceedings "without prejudice."

The Mayor welcomed the members of the conference. The Rev. T. Horne raised the question of tolls in previous years, considered by the Guild to be excessive.

The following scale was agreed to :—

Galloping horses, not exceeding 50ft. diameter, No. 1 £13, No. 2 £12, No. 3 £11; No. 4 £10, according to position in field.

Switchbacks, not exceeding 50ft. diameter, £13, whatever position.

Shows, not exceeding 63ft. by 80ft. diameter, £10, two principal (each).

Show, not exceeding 40ft. by 70ft. diameter, £6, third.

Side shows, 2s. per foot run.

Shooting ranges, 2s. per foot run.

All throwing shows, 1s. per foot.

Dolly frames, 1s. per foot.

Swingboats, 5s. per boat.

Juvenile roundabouts, 1s. 3d. per foot (diameter).

Striking machines, 5s. each.

Positions for galloping horses and switchbacks to be drawn for by lot in the presence of a Corporation official.

The question as to hire of entrance on ground previous to opening the fair and of leaving ground on Sunday was raised, and the Mayor undertook that the same should receive the most favourable consideration of the Corporation.

The Rev. T. Horne and Mr. J. Jewell Hill suggested the Corporation taking judgment under clauses A and B in the Statement of Claim and abandoning C, D, and E.

Mr. W. H. Borlase assented to the proposition.

The Town Clerk submitted offer to settle action as per Statement of Claim. Damages £100, in payment of half-taxed costs.

The Rev. T. Horne, on behalf of all defendants, offered £80 inclusive.

The Town Clerk made further offer of damages £100, and £5 5s. on account of costs, and said that this was the final and irreducible offer and amount the Corporation would take.

The Rev. T. Horne, on behalf of all the defendants, accepted this final offer.

Judgment to be taken against all the defendants as per Statement of Claim and admission as to damages.

Signed on behalf of all defendants, in the presence of Mr. C. Batten (articled clerk), T. HORNE.

Signed on behalf of the plaintiffs, in the presence of Mr. C. Batten (articled clerk), H. CORNISH.

DEATH OF CELEBRATED GLASGOW SHOWMAN.

An old link with the old circuses, the old theatres, and the old music halls of Glasgow has been broken by the recent passing away of Mr. James French. He was a Cheshire man, but passed his early life in Manchester. He began his connection with show life in 1869, when he travelled with Manders' great menagerie. Prior to this he spent a few years in the Royal Marines. Leaving the menagerie, Mr. French joined the tenting circus of the Brothers Sanger (John and George), and was "the Prince of Wales" in the gorgeous circus procession which startled and delighted the inhabitants of the towns and villages through which they passed. Settling permanently in Glasgow over thirty years ago, Mr. French found employment first with Mr. Rossborough, of the old Britannia Music Hall. He was later on employed with Mrs. Baylis, of the old Scotia Music Hall, now the Metropole Theatre. Of the theatres and music halls with which Mr. French had been connected may be mentioned the Prince of Wales's (now the Grand), Theatre Royal, the Princess's, the Gaiety (now Empire Palace), the Metropole, the Folly, and the Coliseum; of the old circuses and circus proprietors, Charles Hengler, Jamie Newsome, Fred Ginnett, Myers, John Swallow, &c. Mr. French had also many recollections, and was thoroughly of opinion that the entertainments of the old days were better than those of to-day, dominated as they are so largely by the music-hall element. Mr. French was an expert conjurer, illusionist, and Punch and Judy man.

On Dec. 4, 1908, James French passed away at the age of sixty-five, and was buried in Sandymount Cemetery. He leaves a widow to mourn his loss.

PRESENTATION IN THE ARENA.

A pleasant little incident took place at Connor's Circus, Crystal Palace, on Saturday night last, when Mr. Fred Connor, the proprietor, his little daughter, Mona, and Whimsical Walker were the recipients of handsome presents in the shape of a dressing-case, silver-mounted handbag, and silver-mounted cigar-case, the donor being Mr. Chas. Hyatt, the amusement caterer of the Crystal Palace and Agricultural Hall. During little Mona Connor's riding turn, Mr. Herbert E. Godfrey, the popular musical-director, came into the arena and made the presentations. In the course of a pleasing speech he referred in terms of high praise to Mr. Connor's abilities as a circus proprietor and to his daughter's skill as an equestrienne, and alluded to Whimsical Walker as the prince of clowns and jesters. Mr. Connor, who was loudly cheered, on behalf of his daughter and himself, made a neat and appropriate speech, in which he thanked Mr. Hyatt and Mr. Godfrey. He also thanked the directors, the staff, and the audience, the latter for the generous applause bestowed on his artists. Whimsical Walker, the Royal clown, then had a few words to say, in which he thanked Mr. C. Hyatt, Mr. Godfrey, and his band. At the conclusion of the entertainment the band played "Auld lang syne."

FILM GOSSIP.

Showmen and Managers throughout the United Kingdom, and in every English-speaking country, will find in this column particulars of some of the best and newest Films in the Market. Many of these Films we have seen ourselves, and can confidently recommend showmen to add them to their list of attractions.

Pathé Frères.

WILBUR WRIGHT, THE BIRD-MAN.—This exceedingly interesting film shows various phases of a two-hour flight, the aeroplane rising about 360ft. from the ground. We are shown the aeroplane being brought to the starting place, the getting ready, its flying 100ft. high, and running along the ground. On Nov. 13, 1908, Wilbur Wright flew over a line of small balloons placed at a height of 165ft. and won the Sarthe Aero Club prize. Afterwards he took the Michelin Cup, doing 65 miles in the air in two hours. On Dec. 18, 1908, Wright went up about 360ft. from the ground, passing over a balloon standing 300ft. high. The pictures in this series depict these different performances.

BOB THE SCULLION.—Bob is a pastrycook's apprentice, but he prefers playing marbles to looking after the things that are cooking. He likes trifling time away in the street, and on watching him one recollects delightful pictures by Chocarne Moreau of many a white-capped young pastrycook or telegraph boy up to some mischief again. While a kind gentleman is helping Bob to put back into his basket the cakes which have just been tilted over, the naughty boy is busy filling the gentleman's top-hat with flour. Further on, Bob and a handful of scapegraces manage to get hold of a watering-hose, and they play it skilfully on every passer-by. In the end Bob's numerous victims come to his master and complain bitterly. Bob is chased, but he takes to his heels and disappears behind a high wall, then into a large fowl crate, and his pursuers follow suit. But as the crate has a side issue, Bob struggles himself free, and then sets fire to the four corners of the fowl-house, where his victims are entrapped.

THE PRESTIGE OF THE UNIFORM.—Two people, armed with a skeleton key, sneak into a policeman's house, and, thanks to the vacillating light of their lantern, which throws on the walls all sorts of weird shadows, they can lay their hands on a brand new uniform. In a den on the outskirts of the large city one of them dons the uniform, through which they will be able to make dupes. They succeed in gathering together a lot of valuables and money—until the moment when they are arrested by a genuine policeman.

VILLAGERS' QUARREL.—These scenes are acted in a marvellous landscape, with as a background the sombre outlines of the Pyrenees. They represent in the first part of the film picturesque tableaux of love in the country. But on account of one man's cow eating the neighbour's cabbages a quarrel arises between the families of the two sweethearts. When he sees his son so sad, after surprising him near the river looking straight into the deep water with an eager look, the old farmer, fearing a fatal ending to this state of affairs, decides to make it up with his enemy. The old quarrel is forgotten in the joy of the betrothal.

HAWKING.—As everybody knows, the hawk is a bird of prey, possessed of a short, hooked beak. It was used in past centuries for hawking, but before the bird could be of any use it had to be trained to come back to the sportsman's right fist when recalled. For this special sport a ferret drives the rabbit out of its hole. As soon as the prey is eighted the hawker alternately lifts and lowers his fist, the hawk takes its flight, first keeping close to the ground, then circling up gradually until it sees it quarry, which it then harasses with its beak and talons, and only lets go when it falls to the ground utterly exhausted. The dogs then secure the wounded animal, and the hawk returns to the sportsman's fist. The scenes in this picture are descriptive of the famous sport.

HIS OWN WEAPON.—Thus is the story told:—Mr. Easyled is jostled in the street by Mr. 'Arry Fly, known in his set as Knight Fly, afraid of nothing. Mr. Easyled reproaches Mr. Fly with his rudeness, slaps and blows are exchanged, also visiting cards. On reading Mr. Easyled's address Mr. Fly lets a smile hover about his thin lips. Mr. Easyled is so feverish that he must go home and have a little practice with his sword and pistol, the result of which is that he damages his furniture. While Mr. Easyled goes out in search of his seconds Mr. Fly breaks into his house, and, with the aid of some accomplices, he removes everything. In order to show Mr. Easyled that he has not forgotten the duel Mr. Fly leaves this note behind:—"Thanks for having given me your address. Having the right to choose the weapons, I decide on the skeleton key. My honour as a housebreaker is satisfied.—'Arry Fly."

THE COMMANDER'S ARMOUR.—A burglar breaks into a house at night, and as he is on the point of being found out he hides inside a commander's armour. The master of the house comes in, and, finding his wife at home, he tries to tease her; but she is in no mood for it, and consequently leaves the room. The housebreaker is feeling quite stiff in his armour, and he begins moving his arms and legs. The husband is so scared that he falls into a swoon. The ruffian avails himself of the opportunity to dress the other man up as a commander, and then he hides himself behind a large piece of furniture. A servant seeing this retires hurriedly, shouting the while that there is a ghost in the house. The other servants arm themselves with shovels and brooms, and, entering the haunted room, they send the frightened ghost away, who sees everybody running away from him; not even the policemen have the courage to arrest him. After several incidents the poor husband takes refuge under the arches, and there making the acquaintance of a hooligan, he can at last return to his home in the company of his new friend.

Gaumont Films.

THE AGED PARALYTIC.—A wealthy family are going for a yachting cruise, and on leaving say good-bye to the grandfather, who is paralysed. Instructions are given to the valet to take the old man down to the sea-front. After the family have gone the valet's behaviour changes towards the old man. From being gentle, he pushes him about roughly, and strikes him sharply across the face with his hand. The scene changes to the waterside. The child of the family feels cold, and returns home for her coat. Something in the manner of the valet arouses her suspicion, and she decides to stay behind. On the old man arriving at the sea-front the valet whistles, and two men appear. He produces the keys of the house, and a plot is arranged to enter and secure what money may have been left on the premises. The child hears this plot from behind a tree. After the thieves have divided the notes with the valet, to throw off suspicion before leaving they bind and gag him. The little girl steps out and raises an alarm. The family, returning, hear her, and are told what has happened. The stolen notes found on the man confirm her story, and he is handed over to the police.

JACKO THE ARTIST.—This attractive film gives a demonstration of the talents of an educated and clever monkey. Jacko is able to paint as well with his hind legs and tail as with his hands. He models in clay, plays the violin, mouth-organ, and accordion, and is a marvel at building with toy bricks.

MORE MILK FOR BABY.—Mr. and Mrs. White, who own a milk shop, decide to go out, and the baby is left with nurse. The child does nothing but cry, and the nurse, getting tired of it, takes the opportunity of going out with a friend who happens to call. The child is left with the man in charge of the shop with instructions that if the child cries to give it some milk. After it has disposed of the contents of several bottles and still cries the man thinks of a brilliant idea. He produces some rubber tubing, and fixing one end to the tap of a large glass urn he gives the baby the other end. A customer comes in, and after having attended to her wishes, he is surprised to find the milk has all vanished, the child crying again. He again fills the glass urn up, and the milk disappears as if by magic. Mr. and Mrs. White return, and go to take up their son, when they find that he has developed to a regular young giant, turning the scale at 18 stone.

PEGGY'S FIRST FRANCE.—The orderly is grooming down the horse of the Colonel, who arrives with his wife. After reprimanding the orderly for being slow, the wife's maid, Peggy, comes on the scene with her mistress's parasol, which had been left behind. The soldier makes love to Peggy, and suggests she shall have a ride. After assisting her on, the horse starts off, dragging the orderly with it. It gallop through a greenhouse, breaking the flowerpots right and left. After knocking over tables, &c., the orderly at last manages to get on the horse also. The animal finds its way eventually into the Colonel's garden, who, with his wife, rushes out, only to find the male and the female servant in a state of collapse on the grass.

THE RECENT EARTHQUAKE.—The Gaumont Company has now received from their operators in Sicily and Calabria a further film showing the destruction wrought by the earthquake. The picture is most realistic, and of excellent quality throughout. The series opens with a scene showing a priest celebrating mass in the open air. The Milan Red Cross ambulance is then seen at work, the wounds of some of the survivors being very carefully tended. The saddest scene in the picture is the discovery of a victim buried beneath the ruins, and a close view of some of his belongings is shown. His watch is seen to have stopped at a quarter to six, the time that the earthquake took place. Following this, there is a view of the refugees being fed, then a panoramic view of some devasted villages, and the ruins of a cathedral, in which a statue of the Virgin, uninjured, is clearly seen. The picture concludes with a view of an open-air encampment of survivors.

GAUMONT SYNCHRONISER.—We are informed that the Gaumont Co., Ltd., will shortly place on the market a new universal synchroniser, by means of which it will be possible to run any of their very large stock of singing pictures on any projector and talking-machine joined by this device. The cost of this new invention will be nominal only, and it appears that the hire fees per week for singing pictures will range from 5s. to 12s. 6d. for ordinary subjects. This appears to us to be a most important step, as Gaumont's singing pictures, which have so far remained practically the monopoly of very large exhibitors, will now be brought within the reach of those showmen who conduct their business on more modest lines.

UNDER NORTHERN SKIES.—All the world's a stage. The play is ever on; no curtain lowers between the acts—the scenes are simply shifted. The players come and go and play their different parts. To some it is a tragic tale, while others see but comedy. The scenes may change and costumes vary, but the company is that good old "stock"—humanity. Away in the Northern woods, where the lumberman's axe makes the echoes ring, where Jack Frost holds sway, and winter is long and earnest, even there love finds his way and melts a path to human hearts, and sometimes sees happiness crown his work and sometimes havoc. Two comrades in the same lumber camp—breathing the air that makes men sturdy, happy until Love knocks for admittance—find a change come over the spirit of their dreams when the heroine, the lumber king's winsome daughter, comes. Then fate begins to toss the shuttle, and the comrades are caught in the grind. The hero finds the paymaster unconscious, revives him, and learns that his loved comrade has turned thief. To shield him and the woman he thinks he has lost (and his comrade won), he takes the guilt on himself, and even lies in Court to shield those he loves. But his well-meant effort is fruitless, for the guilty man, unable to bear the sacrifice, breaks down, confesses all, and gives the girl up to the man whom she misjudged, but always loved.

THE WORM WILL TURN.—The master-poet gave us a "Taming of the Shrew" that stands unequalled; but Mr. Pepper, who, unlike his name, was a very mild man (until Mrs. Pepper began to grind him), started a comedy going when he finally rebelled at petticoat tyranny that would make the immortal one "turn green with envy." Weary of the perpetual nagging, he holds a council of war with himself behind the woodshed, and determines on a plan of action. Recalling an old Army comrade who closely resembles Mrs Pepper's first husband—with whom she is always comparing poor Pepper to his eternal disadvantage and mortification—he arranges with him to come on a visit and impersonate the sainted No. 1, who was supposed to have been lost at sea fifteen years before our story opens; but the wise ones hinted at a different reason for his absence. Well, our hero arrives and catches Mrs. Pepper wielding a frying-pan over Pepper, who is crouched in a corner. Talk about transformations! She imagines No. 1's ghost confronts her. When she learns that he is really flesh and blood come to claim her she becomes meek as a cow, and the two old cronies nearly die with laughter—but not until they are smoking a pipe behind the aforesaid woodshed. When the conspirators ate through with their work Mrs. Pepper returns, a chastened and wiser woman, and the dove of peace nestles cosily in the chimney corner ever after.

CINEMATOGRAPH FIRES.—The following question was put by Mr. Walter Reynolds to the chairman of the Theatres and Music Halls Committee at the meeting of the Council on Jan. 26, 1909:—As two cinematograph fires have occurred during the last month, at both of which a considerable number of persons were seriously injured, and in view of the continually increasing number of premises used for dangerous cinematograph entertainments, whether this committee will consider as to recommending the Council to send another deputation to the Home Secretary again to point out to him the grave danger in these exhibitions and the responsibility resting on his department of allowing the existing state of things to continue, and to urge the necessity for introducing without further delay legislation empowering local authorities to exercise proper control over all premises in which cinematograph exhibitions are given.

THE answer of the committee was as follows:—The Theatres Committee will have before them on Feb. 3, 1909, a letter from the Middlesex County Council stating that they understand the Council is about to send a deputation to the Home Secretary on the subject of cinematograph entertainments, and that they will be glad to send members to attend with the deputation and support the representations proposed to be made with a view to the controlling of cinematograph and similar exhibitions. As the Council is aware, a deputation consisting of members of the Theatres and Music Halls Committee attended on the Home Secretary on Feb. 28, 1908, and was informed by Mr. Gladstone that he was well aware of the importance of the matter, and would consider whether it could possibly be dealt with in the then current session of Parliament. The committee have not considered as to sending another deputation to the Home Secretary, but in view of the terms of the letter from the Middlesex County Council, I can assure Mr. Reynolds that the matter will now receive the consideration of the committee.

DEARTH OF FILMS IN AMERICA.—An American correspondent asks:—"Are you aware that not a foot of new film can be purchased in the United States? We understand that the market in Europe is glutted with film; if such is the case, there is a good outlet here. There are 5,000 small showmen in the United States who have little theatres where moving pictures are shown. At present they are floundering around without any means of continuing their business, as a trust has bought up and contracted for the output of films from the principal makers of this country. The small places I refer to cannot afford to pay the price asked by the trust for the service, so will have to close up, at a great loss to themselves."

Mr. Waldon's Theatres (third time),
All Mr. Buchanan's Theatres (third round),
Mr. Savile's Theatres (second visits), and many other important houses.

Another Glorious Success in Blackpool. Splendid Opening. Receipts increasing nightly. Third visit. Business better than ever.

Blackpool has many admirers of Marie Corelli, and they will be vastly interested in this week's visit of her much-discussed "Sorrows of Satan" at the Opera House, particularly when it is given by such talented players as Mr. Edward Neville and Miss Rosie Neville. A large audience assembled last night, and enthusiastic receptions were accorded the clever artists of the company. . . . A considerable amount of discrimination and dramatic sense has been displayed by the adapters, and the handling is remarkably fine. Mr. Neville invests the character of Prince Lucio Rimanez with remarkable fascination, and Miss Rosie Neville is a delightful, if worldly, Lady Sybil Elton. She infuses into the rôle true dramatic art throughout, and her charm of manner is most effective. The scenery and mounting is most effective.—Herald, Jan. 26.

Above is but a sample. More next week.

Wire or write,
LOIE ESMOND, Opera House, Blackpool.

270 Replies.
WANTED, Wanted, Known,
Sir,—
I inserted an advertisement, asking for Music Hall Artists in the last week's issue of "The Era." May I say that I am absolutely astounded at the number of replies I received to my small advertisement, no less than 270 Artists favouring me with applications. May I by this means thank the many artists who sent in their terms, as it is impossible for me to reply to each individual. I thank all for their very kind promptitude in responding to my advertisement.
I remain, yours faithfully,
ALFRED BALL.

IMPORTANT NOTICES.

RE APPLICATIONS FOR ENGAGEMENTS.

All applications by either Artists or their Agents must be made to the Head Office. Lowest terms must be stated, and distinction made between salaries required for larger and smaller towns. Vacant dates should be stated. If a list of existing bookings be sent, it will render selection easier.

Artists employing Agents should accredit one only at one time, as the friction arising when several Agents are employed at the same time, all expecting the one booking to go through each of them, often renders it expedient to avoid that booking altogether rather than give undeserved offence to several Agents.

New Acts seeking Engagements, or turns not rebooked (possibly because they have played a series of dates without introducing new business), will facilitate matters by having their acts seen by our District Managers. Their Districts and Postal Addresses are as follow:—

EDINBURGH, GLASGOW, NEWCASTLE, AND DISTRICT.
MR. B. GETHING, Empire Theatre, Glasgow.

BIRMINGHAM, NOTTINGHAM, LEICESTER, AND DISTRICT.
MR. HATTON WHARTON, Empire Theatre, Nottingham.

SOUTH WALES DISTRICT.
MR. ALBERT MITCHELL, Empire Theatre, Cardiff.

LEEDS, SHEFFIELD, HULL, BRADFORD, AND DISTRICT.
MR. T. GERALD MORTON, Empire Palace, Leeds.

LIVERPOOL, MANCHESTER, AND DISTRICT.
MR. ALBERT BULMER, The Empire, Liverpool.

LONDON DISTRICT.
MR. J. CHRISTIE, Empire Theatre, Shepherd's Bush, W.

N.B.—Mr. OSWALD STOLL or Mr. FRANK ALLEN can be seen by appointment on all matters arising out of the above, and for the discussion of entirely new Numbers.

All Artists or Agents who communicate with our District Representatives must have made definite applications, in accordance with above directions, to the Head Office, at the same time, or just previously.

Artists and Agents are requested to note that the Alexandra Theatre, Stoke Newington, Standard Theatre, Shoreditch, and the Terriss Theatre, Rotherhithe, come within the areas absolutely barredby us. Artists and Agents are also requested to n ote that the Hippodrome, Aston, Birmingham, comes within the area absolutely barred by the Grand Theatre and Empire Palace, Birmingham.

INSTRUCTIONS TO ARTISTS.

Artists must have at least Fourteen Band Parts for English Orchestrations, and Seventeen Band Parts for Foreign Orchestrations. Matter of Bill, Blocks, and Specimens of Pictorials FOR ALL THE ABOVE THEATRES must be sent to Co-operative Offices, at above address, THREE WEEKS before Opening, failing which Artists will run the risk of having their Engagements cancelled.

IMPORTANT.—Artists must forward Copies of Songs to the STAGE DEPARTMENT, ABOVE ADDRESS, TWO WEEKS previous to opening, with Assignments for same, which will be returned. Artists are requested to note carefully that the clause in their contracts relating to rehearsals will in future be strictly enforced. Artists' Scenery, Properties, &c., MUST be fireproofed in accordance with the regulations of the Licensing Authorities.

ARTISTS WILL CLEARLY UNDERSTAND THAT THEIR BUSINESS MUST BE FREE FROM ALL VULGARITY.

No order or contract for goods or services must be accepted for any of the foregoing theatres except upon receipt of an Official Form, issued from the Co-operative Offices, London, and signed by either Mr. Oswald Stoll, Mr. Frank Allen, or the Chief Accountant, otherwise the Company concerned will not be responsible for same, and will refuse payment. In special cases, where goods are required at once, suppliers must look to the individual placing the order, who will be personally liable, unless an official confirmatory order, signed as above, is received within forty-eight hours. Invoices must be sent to the Theatre, but monthly statements should be sent to the Co-operative Offices. The individual Company on whose behalf orders are signed is solely responsible for payment. The Management will not hold themselves responsible in the event of loss of or damage to any MSS., Songs, &c., submitted for consideration.

THE LARGEST FILM MANUFACTURERS IN THE WORLD.

ACTUAL OUTPUT OF FILMS PER DAY, 80 MILES.

THIS WEEK'S NOVELTIES.

WILBUR WRIGHT, THE BIRD MAN, Performs a Two Hours' Flight and Rises About 360ft. from the Ground.

Code Word, "GIGOGNE."

Titles of pictures:—The aeroplane is brought to the starting-place—Getting ready—Flying 100ft. high—Running along the ground—On November 13th, 1908, Wilbur Wright flies over a line of small balloons placed at a height of 165ft., and wins the Sarthe Aero-Club prize—The Michelin Cup, 65 miles in the air in two hours—On December 18th, 1908, Wright goes up about 360ft. from the ground, passing over a balloon standing 300ft. high.

660ft. SECOND EDITION NOW READY. The Subject, £11 0s. 0d.

VILLAGERS' QUARREL.

Code Word, "FUSILLER."

A cow straying into the neighbour's cabbage-patch was the cause of a quarrel between the parents of an engaged couple, and had it not been that the boy's father became quite concerned when he saw him wandering about the fields with a vacant look, matters might have been worse; but the old peasant, pocketing his pride for the sake of his son, goes to his enemy, and makes it up with him so that the young people may be happy.

428ft. The Subject, £7 2s. 8d. Toning, £1

THE FAN.

Code Word, "FUTAINE."

This film conjures up the period when ladies wore "Panier" dresses, when Marquises were powdered, and slow minuets were in fashion, for on the fan are displayed in a very charming manner such small figures gracefully dancing.

230ft. The Subject, £3 16s. 8d. Colouring, £2 7s. 0d.

TOM THUMB (from Perrault's Tale).

Code Word, "FUYARD."

This is a pretty fairy tale so loved by children, showing how Tom Thumb, a small boy, succeeds in making his family happy after escaping a hundred-and-one dangers, such as that of being eaten by the Ogre together with his six brothers, then finding his way home in the great wood after putting on the seven-mile boots of their giant enemy, and bringing home to his mother a casket full of gold cunningly obtained from the Ogre's wife as a pretended ransom for her husband, who is supposed to have been taken a prisoner by a gang of thieves.

1023ft. The Subject, £17 1s. 0d. Colouring and Toning, £6 10s. 0d.

HIS OWN WEAPON.

Code Word, "FUSION."

'Arry Fly jostles in the street Mr. Easyled, with whom he exchanges cards. 'Arry is a professional house-breaker, and as he repairs to the house of his victim he rehearses in his mind the note he will ultimately leave in Mr. Easyled's house after stripping it of its valuables; and these lines, hastily scribbled, cannot leave the least doubt as to 'Arry's true character. They run thus:—"Thanks for having given me your address. Having the right to choose the weapons, I decide on the skeleton key. My honour as a house-breaker is satisfied.—'Arry Fly."

314ft. The Subject, £5 4s. 8d.

HAWKING.

Code Word, "GAGE."

The hawk is a bird of prey, which has been used for centuries for rabbit-catching. Before the bird can be of any use it must be trained to come back to the sportman's fist when recalled. After the sport the bird is rewarded with the lure.

396ft. The Subject, £6 12s. 0d.

TAMBOURINE MAKING.

Code Word, "FUTILE."

The workman puts together pieces of wood and cardboard, scoops out the holes into which he eventually will place the cymbals, fixes the parchment onto the frame, varnishes the tambourines, and trims them with ribbons. The pretty and dainty instruments are now ready, which will eventually accompany the Tarantella dance on the terrace at Palermo in front of the blue Mediterranean.

264ft. The Subject, £4 8s. 0d. Toning, 13s.

THE COMMANDER'S ARMOUR.

Code Word, "FURIE."

A burglar having broken into a house at night is surprised by the tenant coming in unexpectedly. He just has time to hide inside a commander's armour, but as the newcomer does not seem to think of leaving, the burglar cannot stand his cramped position any longer. He moves his limbs, whereupon the witness of this unusual deed falls down in a dead swoon. Mr. Thief avails himself of the opportunity thus afforded him for dressing the other up in the armour. A servant entering the room, withdraws hurriedly, shouting that he has seen a ghost. People come in with brooms and saucepans and expel the wretched ghost, who sees everybody run away from him in the street. As no policeman is to be found who will protect him, Mr. Fright makes the acquaintance of a kindly hooligan, who condescends to see him home safely.

560ft. The Subject, £9 6s. 8d. Toning £1

Code Word, "FUSAIN."

A faithful servant has been taking care of the children of her dead mistress for a long time, and the widower, fearing lest she should leave them, asks her to marry him in order to ensure for them her untiring devotion. Yet a scoundrel who has behaved shabbily towards the poor woman attempts blackmailing when he hears that she is married. Her little child having cost her her last savings, she cannot comply with the man's wishes, and in her despair she goes and meets him, with a weapon in her hand in case she should want to defend herself. Her husband, who has found the letter, follows her, and seeing how matters stand he forgives the past and adopts her baby as his own.

692ft. The Subject, £11 10s. 8d. Toning, £1 10s.

BOB, THE SCULLION.

Code Word, "FLEGME."

428ft. The Subject, £7 2s. 8d.

THE PRESTIGE OF THE UNIFORM.

Code Word, "FUTAIE."

Two people, armed with skeleton keys, sneak into a policeman's house, and, thanks to the vacillating light of their lantern, they can lay their hands on a brand new uniform. In a den on the outskirts of a large city, one of them dons the uniform, which will enable them to make dupes. Effectively, they succeed in gathering together a lot of valuables—until the moment when they are arrested by a genuine policeman.

510ft. The Subject, £8 10s. 0d. Toning, 12s.

NO MORE LANTERN SLIDES. THE LATEST NOVELTY.

LAST WEEK'S NOVELTIES.

Code Word, "FRAISE."

Mr. Skittish, in spite of his being a married man, believes himself to be in love with a pretty dancer, to whom he sends flowers daily. His wife, who has a suspicion of the truth, tries to keep him by his fire-side; but she only succeeds in starting a quarrel, from which the frivolous husband escapes by putting on his hat and going out, while poor Mrs. Skittish weeps bitterly. The story ends happily, however, after their little daughter, following her heart's bidding, goes to the dancer and entreats her to give her mamma her happiness back, and the actress, yielding to the little girl's prayers, writes to the father that she will see him no more.

528ft. The Subject, £8 16s. 0d. Colouring and Toning, £4 15s. 0d.

A HOUSE FULL OF EXCITEMENT.

Code Word, "FRETIN."

On the top floor several starving Bohemians are boring a hole through the floor into the room underneath. This enables them to partake of a hearty meal, which costs them nothing. On discovering the theft the neighbours go and arm themselves with brooms, but when they come back they only find an army of rats, against which they fight with the energy of despair. The rain, coming in through the tileless roof, causes the Bohemians to swim about the premises. Presently the gendarmes end the fun by marching off all these excited people.

346ft. The Subject, £5 15s. 4d.

WHY HAVE YOU NOT CALLED ROUND?
WE ARE SURPRISED!

Are you satisfied with an inferior show? You must have a good programme and a good machine. Neither wise men, nor fools, can work without tools. Do not wait until it is too late before you buy a

DREADNOUGHT.

Buy one now, and

SLEEP EASY IN YOUR BEDS.

It is too late to give an order for a battleship when war is declared.

SHOWMEN,

Do not buy a machine because it looks pretty.

Do not purchase a machine which is rock steady when you buy it, and in a week's time is simply useless; buy a

THE BEST IS NOT TOO GOOD FOR YOU.
WE ALWAYS GIVE YOU THE BEST.

Have you ever asked yourself the question why all our customers are successful. It is because we know our business, and are successful ourselves. Our business is built up by not by swollen heads. Which is impossible. Get in touch with us immediately. Delays are dangerous. Don't think your business will run itself because you wear a golly wog.

IT WON'T.

A. R. DEAN & SONS

Beg to thank their many Clients, Proprietors, Managers, and Architects for making last year the most successful of their career.

During the last 30 years A. R. DEAN & SONS have either completely or partly furnished upwards of 1,842 THEATRES, HALLS, and PUBLIC BUILDINGS.

Last year alone, 108 THEATRES, HALLS, HOTELS, and Public Buildings were either completely or partly decorated and furnished by them. This is a record which has not been approached by A. R. DEAN & SONS before.

Fully 95 per cent. of the Contracts going for this class of work last year (1908) was gained by A. R. DEAN & SONS.

Notwithstanding the immense amount of work entailed in completing these Contracts, A. R. DEAN & SONS are proud to say that every Contract was completed to time, and has invariably given the greatest satisfaction.

In December, 1908, A. R. DEAN & SONS completed their Contracts, and saw opened the following Theatres and Halls:

NEW EMPIRE, OLDHAM.
NEW GRAND THEATRE, OLDHAM.
NEW HIPPODROME, ACCRINGTON.

NEW PALACE OF VARIETIES, KIRKCALDY.
NEW CINEMA. PALACE, RICHMOND
NEW PALACE, ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE.
NEW HIPPODROME, BIRKENHEAD.

This Year (1909) A. R. DEAN & SONS intend to beat their past records.

Already, although the year is young, they have in hand for completion the whole of the Re-upholstery and Re-carpeting (including 3,000 yards of the Best Wilton Carpet) of

The ALHAMBRA THEATRE, PARIS.
The complete Reseating of the NEW HOLLOWAY HALL, Holloway, London. Upwards of 900 Tip-up Chairs.
The NEW KING'S HALL, TOOTING. Seating for 1,000 people.
The NEW HIPPODROME, ILKESTON. Complete Furnishing and Seating.
THEATRE ROYAL, ILKESTON. Complete Re-upholstery.
NEW ROYAL HIPPODROME, BLACKBURN. The whole of the Plastic Decorations and Furnishing throughout at a cost of upwards of £2,000.
NEW PALACE HIPPODROME, DUNDEE. Complete Furnishing throughout.
&c., &c., &c.

A. R. DEAN & SONS' Chairs and Seating are far away the Best and Cheapest in the Market.
A. R. DEAN & SONS give four years guarantee with all their Seats from the cheapest to the highest price goods.

PICTURE SHOWS
AND SHOWS OF A SIMILAR KIND.

Last year A. R. DEAN & SONS seated 22 Picture Palaces, including most of the ELECTRIC THEATRE COMPANY'S.
A. R. DEAN & SONS this year have several New Styles in this class of Goods.
A. R. DEAN & SONS succeed in retaining their Old Clients, and making New Clients every day.

The Reason why A. R. DEAN & SONS are always Up to Date.

A. R. DEAN & SONS only employ as Managers and Foremen men who have made a Study of this class of Work; who are reliable; and have been in the employ of the Firm for many years.
A. R. DEAN & SONS' Goods are manufactured in good, clean, and wholesome Works and Factories, complying in every way with the Rules of the Factory Act.
A. R. DEAN & SONS' Managers will, at all times, wait upon Architects, Proprietors, and Managers, to prepare Schemes and Estimates, Free of all Charge. Distance no object. Any part of England, Ireland, or Scotland.

NO CONTRACT TOO LARGE. NO ORDER TOO SMALL.

The Largest Theatre or Opera House. The Smallest Portable Theatre or Hall or Booth.

A. R. DEAN & SONS' System of Business is—Honesty, Promptitude, and Civility.

ABERAMAN.—GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. A. Jackson Withers.—Miss Harriet Greet and Mr. G. W. Bowe's company is here in The Sign of the Cross. Mr. Leonard Yorke delights the audience with his impersonation of Marcus; Mr. Edward Clowes's rendering of Nero is very impressive, and Mr. Donald McAdam gives an amusing study of Glabrio. Mr. Frank J. Fox is good as Servilius, Mr. G. Osmond Tearle submits a finished piece of acting as Tigellinus, Mr. Rupert Carlton gives a powerful rendering of Licinius, and Mr. C. Edwards is a dignified Favius. Miss Hazel Dent is earnest and sympathetic as Mercia, Miss Lilian Ward is prominent in the part of Poppœa, Miss Florence Maber portrays the beautiful patrician Berenice with fine effect, Miss Effie Dane as Stephanus gives a touching and skilful representation, and Mrs. Nora Goulden is successful as Ancaria.

ABERDARE.—NEW THEATRE.—Proprietors, The Aberdare Public Hall Theatre and Billposting Co., Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Z. Andrews; Acting-Manager, Mr. B. Richards.—Mr. Tom Owen and his Royal Welsh Pierrots are as popular as ever here in the sketch Checkers. Excellent support is given by Mme. Spencer, who delights the audience with her singing; Mr. Ber Crosbie, rag-time dancer; Miss Esaline Thorne, comedienne; Mr. Cecil Bradly, tenor; Miss Mollie Gwynne, contralto; Mr. Alfred Bale, tenor; Miss Ethel Vere, a dainty soubrette; and Mr. Harry Vernon, descriptive vocalist.

ABERDEEN. — H. M. THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Adair Nelson.—Mr. William Mollison opened his Shakespearean week on Monday with Macbeth, and the house was filled in every part. Mr. Mollison gave a very striking portraiture of Macbeth, showing with rare fidelity both the ruggedness and weakness of the man; Miss Evelyn McKay made a most impressive Lady Macbeth, her appearance in the sleep-walking scene in particular being most effective; Mr. William Calvert was an heroic Macduff; and Duncan and Malcolm were very capably impersonated by Mr. W. A. Mackersy and Mr. Henry Deas. Miss Gladys Brandon-Gower was the principal of the Weird Sisters, and her lines were delivered with telling and gruesome effect. All the other members of the company showed skill in their parts. On Tuesday The Merchant of Venice was presented, with Mr. Mollison as Shylock and Miss McKay as Portia.

PALACE THEATRE.—Lessees, The United County Theatres, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Walter Gilbert.—The Piccolinos are enthusiastically applauded for their daring and dexterous effects in cycling, wire-walking, and dancing; the celebrated Pickel troupe of acrobats are no less successful; Mr. W. J. Churchill (Uncle Willie) is undoubtedly one of the breeziest and most resourceful comedians on the stage; the sporting farce The Lady Jockey is played by Miss Teddy Edmunds and her company, which includes Mr. Jimmy Rouse, with exuberant vivacity; the comedy duologue What Is Life? by Mr. Paul Edwards and Miss Louie Dacre, is also heartily appreciated; little Miss Tiny Arnold pleases the audience greatly; and Mr. Carl Colyer shows much promise as a comedian.

EMPIRE MUSIC HALL. — Managers, Messrs. R. Calder and J. Montague.—Both the Empire and the Alhambra are packed nightly. Among the principal artists appearing at both houses are Miss Dolly McCarthy, a clever comedienne; the Sisters Du Barrie, capital vocalists and dancers; Sandy Mac, an entertaining comedian; Mr. Jack Marson, the popular vocalist and raconteur; and Mr. Archie Murray and Miss Marie Rose, who are repeatedly encored for their duets and humorous interludes.

ABERTILLERY.—THEATRE METROPOLE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. C. J. Seaborn.—The pantomime Aladdin is being played here. The title-rôle is very daintily portrayed by Miss Marie Wall, who receives appreciation for her songs and dances; Mr. George Helm is particularly smart as Abanazar and never fails to create merriment; Miss Emmie Cozens makes an ideal Princess; whilst the Fairy is very naturally performed by Little Babs Lloyd. The part of Widow Twankey is very amusingly produced by Mr. Bob Stephenson, and Mr. Hayes Watson is a capital policeman. The scenery and dresses are gorgeous, the jokes and songs and choruses are new and up to date, and the production is receiving good patronage.

PAVILION.—Lessees, Messrs. E. and H. Tilney; Manager, Mr. E. Pryce. — The domestic drama Love Rules the World is excellently presented here this week by a powerful company. Mr. Richard Vane gives a very clever rendition of his part as Harold Kingston, while Stephen Blight receives full justice from the able hands of Mr. Stephen Langdon. Miss Grace Jones gives a very effective impersonation of Flo Morton, whilst Maud Carruthers is very dramatically portrayed by Miss Lilian Herrick. Miss Annie Brunette makes a capital Mother Grimble, whilst Mr. Fred Elvin is a distinct success in the comedy character Billy Binks, and creates plenty of fun. Mr. Alex Wynne is a good Paul Carruthers. The scenery and effects are good, the music bright, and the mounting of the piece is exceedingly good.

ACCRINGTON.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. B. Ormerod; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. E. Barnes.—This week Mr. Percy Norman's company is here with A Woman Worth Winning. Mr. Gilbert Standing does everything possible to make the rôle of Amos Pauloff popular; Mr. Sydney Barton invests the character of Czar Nicholas with due dignity; Mr. A. B. Mackay ably brings out the villainy of General Borinski; Mr. B. Crosby is successful as Fergus Lovinsky; and Mr. Wilfred E. Clarke wins general admiration by a powerful portrayal of Ivan Bardoff. Welcome comedy relief is afforded by Mr. Ernest Kendrick as Peter Popples; Mr. Louis Newman as Bertie Scribbles; and Miss Ida Mackay as Katerina; Miss Cissie Bellamy plays with feeling as Roma; and Miss Trixie Leighton achieves success as Lola.

NEW HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, The Accrington Hippodrome Co.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Walter Mould.—An attractive programme this week is headed by the Daunton Shaw Troupe of trick cyclists, and their reception at every performance is of the most cordial description; Ike and Will Scott, versatile comedians, are much appreciated; Les Marbras wins loud applause with their smart acrobatic dancing; J. G. Lewis gives a ventriloquial turn which is distinctly clever; the Dancing Gilberts contribute a most attractive turn; and Master May sings with much expression; Irve Hayman and Miss Miriam Vernon appear in a midnight episode, entitled Christmas-Eve; Spry and Austin, comedy duo, are exceedingly popular; and the Bioscope pictures are interesting.

ALDERSHOT. — EMPIRE AND HIPPODROME. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. Clarence Sounes; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. Gladwin. — An excellent programme is presented for the first week of the variety season, which restarted on Monday at the above house of amusement. The Bob Hanlon troupe, who top the capital bill, and are admittedly the star turn, go through a marvellous aerial gymnastic act; numbering four, they give a clever exhibition of trapeze work. Matt Wilkinson's Laughter-makers in a sketch, On the Flip-Flap, cause a deal of fun; Ess and Hoey are a pair of nimble skate-dancers, and are encored for their duet in song and dance; Carta and Mirtziana display wonderful strength and teeth-power in their gymnastic creation with bicycles, tables, and chairs; Charles Clifford played several airs on his harps, and when encored gave a few more selections on his Irish harp; Nash and Noel, with patter, duets, and dance, again please; and the Sisters Bronson, duettists and dancers, and Violet Beatrice, in songs, also do well.

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill, jun.—A new military drama, Second to None, a story of the Scots Greys, by the popular playwright Mr. Walter Howard, is here for the week. Mr. Leonard Williams as Harry Wilding finds abundance of scope for manly and courageous conduct in depicting the character; Mr. F. F. Lloyd plays the scoundrel with a callousness which calls forth the groans of the audience; as Captain Philip Mannering the worst features of the military officer's character are depicted with emphasis; in Mr. C. W. Spencer, as Sir Reginald Greystone, colonel of the Scots Greys, we get something of the military gentleman; Sergt. Jack Horseman as embodied by Mr. J. G. Maine commends itself as a well-studied impersonation; and Mr. Frank R. Gwyn-Richardson as Lieut. Ballater is also soldierly. Miss Ward as Nell Geystone is sympathetic and tender; Miss Grace Harlington finds in the character of Mary Greystone traits to interpret which win favour; and Miss Clarrie Yandell as Norah, a housemaid, is quite au fait as the maid. The humour of Mr. Geo. Davis as Joe Ruggles and Mr. H. Macaulay as Private Flutter is an effective foil to the more serious "business" of the piece.

EMPIRE HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr W. Leech; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Jesse Bursiem.—Heading the list of artists here are Lester and Moure, from the New York halls. Something Yankee is introduced in song and patter by these clever artists. Les Zelovas, as equilibrists and acrobats, are expert as well as daring performers. Leonard Chatburn's troupe of Young Stars appear to great advantage in song and graceful dance in a pretty scene, A Pic-nic Up the River. Diana Hope presents an entertaining society episode, Her Good Name, assisted by Monte Bayley. Lallie Brooke as the "Old-fashioned Girl" wins applause in the scena The Old Sundial; and Fred Maitland gives an amusing comedy skit, The Suffragette. Burns and Bentley are interesting cross-talkers and vocalists; and the Godfreys, Didie and Kate, give a diverting musical sketch, The Slavey and the Coon. Carl and Mary Ohm's Animal Circus and the Bioscope complete the bill.

NEW PAVILION.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Leech; Assistant-Manager, Mr. T. Edward Owen.—The pictures of Pathé Frère's and Gaumont and others exhibited at this popular pleasure resort are of the best and most entertaining character; this kind of animated living exhibition is growing in favour with the public. This week's "show" of films includes some startling episodes of Negro life. The White Negro is a stirring incident. London East life is seen in the vagaries of 'Arry and 'Arriett; A Plucky Little Girl is full of interest to the spectator; and High Game is another impressive series of scenes. Of pictures illustrating events which are stirring the world of to-day the funeral procession of the hero Constable Tyler and the boy Jocelyn, victims of the recent Anarchist raid at Tottenham, London, is the most important. Jim Cunliffe (vocalist) and Herma (weight-lifter) are also in the bill.

THE PICTUREDROME. — Lessees, Messrs. Weisker Brothers; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Marks.—A new feature here for the week is a series of photographs of topical subjects. We have the scene of the Anarchist tragedy at Tottenham and the funeral procession of the victims; General Gordon's Statue; Binns, the Marconi Operator; the Liner Republic; Scenes in Berlin; and Oxford and Cambridge Boat Crews at Practice. Leonard and Vereker present a fine series of song illustrations.

ATTERCLIFFE.—PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES. —Proprietor, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. Bert Dent.—The premier position of this week's programme here is held by Mr. Fred Moule and a capable company in a mirth-provoking sketch The Battle of the Belles, which is well staged and full of fun. The various parts are capably undertaken by Messrs. Fred Moule, Robb Gresham, C. W. Proctor, Misses Amy Rudd, Jessie Elvin, and Annie Thomas. A clever gymnastic act is given by Ajax and George under the title of Britannia's Levee; Miss Adelina, assisted by Mr. Hal Collier, gives a number of interesting impersonations of celebrities, past and present; Mr. Harry Simms is a good light comedian; Phillips and Merritt are popular in their musical and dancing scena; Miss Ethel Yorke is a pleasing descriptive vocalist; Mr. Will Harris (comedian) meets with much favour; and Mr. Clayton's Attergraph pictures are up to the usual standard.

AYR.—NEW GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry W. Day.—Messrs. Fred J. Little and Fred Darcy produced their grand comic pantomime here on Monday for a week's run. The Forty Thieves lends itself well to endless variety, and full advantage is taken of it by a capable company. Mr. Wal Croft was grotesquely funny as Ali Baba, and his humorous songs did not fail to please the large audience; Mr. Ted Wootten was admirable as Cassim; Mr. Reg. Ewen made a lot of the part of Cogia; Mr. Harry Alvey was as fine a comic donkey as we have seen; Miss Mary Poulton as Ali's son was dashing and pretty; and Morgiana was well acted by Mlle. Carita. The latter sang beautifully, and made an agreeable impression with her song "The tiny seed of love." A great nit of the pantomime was the droll performance of the Five Ex-Rays in the gymnasium of Ali Baba. An interlude was also given by the Gavalotti Brothers, all-round instrumentalists of more than ordinary merit; and the dancing of the Esmeralda Girls was another feature of the production, which is well staged.

BACUP.—NEW COURT THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Denman-Wood.—Mr. Ernest Adrien's pantomime, Dick Whittington, forms the attraction here this week. Mr. Ernest Adrien's Idle Jack is an unqualified success; Miss Violet Oram possesses all the attributes of a successful Dick, and her singing won the highest admiration; Miss Madge Carew is a neat and trim Alice, and sings sweetly; Miss Mary Alxenader as Fairy Bow-bell merits commendation for vocal talent; Mr. Mark Mooney is a quaint and masculine Caroline; Alderman Fitzwarren has a good representative in Mr. Will Daniels; Mr. Bert Warner does good feline imitations as the cat; Messrs. Frew and Frew as Bill Buttercup and Captain Cowslip are highly amusing; Mr. George Gordon makes a formidable Demon Rat. The specialities include the Paulasto troupe of eccentric acrobats; the Tina trio of acrobatic dancers; Frew and Frew, eccentric comedians; and Bert Warner, contortionist. The minor parts are well filled, and the dresses and scenery pretty and effective.

BARNSLEY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, A. C. MITCHELL.—A return visit of The Village Blacksmith, under the management of Mr. Sam Livesey, is drawing packed houses. Mr. Livesey enacts the part of John Strong with great success, his fine physique standing him in good stead in his rendition. Miss Maggie Edwards as Kate Strong does full justice to a difficult part. The interest of the piece is well maintained by Mr. Albert Sinclair as Capt. Leo, Mr. Edwin Mayhew as Lucas Marler, Mr. Thomas E. Marshall as Jeremiah Parkins, Mrs. T. C. Livesey as Sal Parkins, and Miss Cassie Le Grande as Ruth Parkins. A special word should be given to Little Miss Lilly Leicester as the child Harry Strong.

PUBLIC HALL.—Proprietors, Mayor, Aldermen and Corporation of Barnsley; Manager Mr. E. Cheesman.—Mr. Jasper Redfearn's vaudeville company opened here Tuesday night with an excellent bill.

EMPIRE PALACE, LTD.—Managing-Director, W. Smithson; Assistant-Manager, J. J. Tennant.—Marstro and Mlle. Oretta top the bill and give an excellent performance, some of their tricks being astounding; Anieda and Eccentric cause roars of laughter; Vere and Royal give a pleasing duologue, entitled On the Road; the Twin Sisters Anderson contribute a fine dancing act, their skipping rope dancing being exceptionally clever; Fred Vallance is amusing as a ventriloquist; the Wedburns bring down the house with their comicalities, their patter being new and funny; Joe Conway, the pocket comedian, and Nellie Walton, the original singing mill girl, make up a capital programme.

BARROW-IN-FURNESS.—ROYALTY THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Stone. —Mr. George Dance's company in Miss Hook of Holland is here. Mr. Alfred Wellesley is an entertaining Mr. Hook, and Miss Gertrude Melville in the title-rôle is pre-eminently attractive. Mr. W. Balfour displays a capital voice as Captain Adrian Pasp, and Mr. F. Crimp is pleasing as Bandmaster Van Voyt. Mr. George Mudie, jun., is a capable Ludwig Schnapps, and Mina has a winning exponent in Miss Cissie Sephton. Mr. Fred Lyne is an amusing Simon Slinks.

HIS MAJESTY'S.—Lessees and Managers, Mr. and Mrs. Calvert Routledge.—Mr. Robert MacDonald's company in The Dairymaids is paying a return visit here. The company does as brilliantly as heretofore, and Miss Isa Bowman is a bright and musical Peggy; Mr. Richard Telford a capital Sammy, and Mr. Dan Agar an amusing Joe Mivens. Mr. F. Barclay does well as Dr. Byrne, Miss Babs Christopher is good as Lady Brudenell, and Mr. G. Scott Melville is a pleasing Lieutenant Frank Meredith.

TIVOLI.—Lessee and Manager, Signor R. Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. Edgar G. Laban.—A capital programme is presented here this week with Hamilton Hill, the Australian baritone, in the premier position; he has an excellent voice, and he renders his several numbers in artistic manner. A Japanese duologue by Talbot and Pearce is highly successful, the singing being good, and the stage effects capital; Spencer and Marks are smart patterers and dancers; Henry Halton, magician, has several exceptionally good tricks; the Sisters Condor are admirable in a banjo song and dance turn; Edie Colville is very pleasing in her vocal and dance turn; and Vernon's Bioscope conclude with some interesting pictures.

NEW HIPPODROME.—Owners and Managers, Mr. and Mrs. Calvert Routledge; Acting-Manager, Mr. Ralph D. Fenton.—A capital programme of animated pictures is shown here this week.

BARRY DOCK.—NEW THEATRE AND HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Arthur Carlton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Brogden.—Mr. John A. Thompson presented The Babes in the Wood to a crowded house here on Monday. Miss Pattie McCarthy (Robin Hood) and Miss Nina Carlton (Maid Marian) by their capital singing and dancing scored well; Miss N. Pendergast (Fairy Queen) and Mr. F. Halpin (Spirit of Evil) both made a good impression; as Allan Dale and Doris the Sisters Hypatia were successful; the same remark applies to Miss Jennie Thornton (Peggy) and Miss Jean McDonald (Will Scarlett). Mr. Gus Walker (Pansy Blossom) kept the house convulsed by his droll style; Messrs. Lovell Rowlands and Herbert Walton, Ross Warren, and Fred Ward all contributed to the success, and as the Baron Mr. R. R. Worsley left nothing to be desired. One of the successes of the evening was the acrobatic act given by Les Milicent Frères. Miss C. Williams and La Belle Sylvia (the Babes) are applauded. The various dances by the Butterfly troupe are very interesting. Mr. Percy Sheldrake conducts efficiently an augmented orchestra.

BATH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Egbert Lewis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lewis A. Long.—The Catch of the Season is proving a capital draw here this week, and Messrs. Dudley Bennett and T. C. Wray's company give a bright and animated performance of this merry, modern, musical "Cinderella" story. The chief rôles of St. Jermyns and Angela are capitally enacted by Mr. William Greene and Miss Dorothea Clarke, the former being a light comedian that gets every ounce out of the part, while the little lady never spares herself in her endeavours to please. The vocal honours are won by Miss Barry Eldon as Honoria, her "Cigarette" song securing an unmistakable encore; the other sister, Sophia, is hit off with due iciness by Miss Kate Robertson; Lady Crystal is portrayed by Miss Edna Eden with lady-like hauteur; Miss Grace Hampton plays with joyousness the fairy godmother, Lady Caterham; Mr Joseph Bruce as the stammering Dundreary is responsible for a great deal of the laughter heard throughout the piece; and a large and augmented orchestra perform their work with untiring energy under Mr. H. A. Dyer.

PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Chas. Schuberth. — The Bouncing Dillons, comedy gymnasts, are exciting much interest here. In a more sensational way Les Elgonas provoke enthusiasm; the Evalos, too, are quite successful; May Henderson, the dusky comedy queen, and Cherry Lass, comedienne and dancer, are both cordially welcomed; Captain Devereux once again introduces his clever dogs, and a welcome return engagement is filled by A Ba-Be's, picture postcard album. Mr. E. patters away to the accompaniment of merriment, and Raymond's Bio-tableaux retain all their popularity.

BEDFORD.—ROYAL COUNTY THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. E. Graham Falcon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter R. Wilson.—The Crimes of Paris is being presented by Mrs. Frank Bateman and George Conquest's company. Mr. Mayor-Cooke gives a clever impersonation of Viscount de Vismes; the part of Pierre Telport is well rendered by Mr. Herbert J. Walton; Mr. Kendrew Milson is good as the hero; as Pepin Cardel Mr. Clavering Craig has a part that suits him to perfection; Miss Enid Edoni is a graceful Angele Martel; and Miss Vera Clavering Craig is an excellent Jacques Martel.

BELFAST.—GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr. James M. McCann.—This beautiful theatre, which for the past four years has been run as a variety house, reopened its doors on Monday, reverting to its former position as the home of dramatic fare, with every prospect of support. The renovated theatre presented a handsome appearance. The piece presented was the musical play Butterflies, produced by a particularly fine company under the direction of Mr. Wilfred Cotton. The rôle of Max Riadore was well played by Mr. Richard W. Green, his vocalism affording much pleasure. and a delightful impersonation of Rodanthe was submitted by Miss Georgie Corlass. Mr. W. Louis Bradfield achieved a great success as Puck, his fine voice being heard to the utmost advantage, and he easily achieved the honours of the piece. Mr. Blake Adams was capital as Christopher Podmore; and his daughter Elsie was cleverly sustained by Miss Constance Clive. Congratulations are due to Miss Stella St. Audrie upon her exceedingly capable interpretation of Mrs. Podmore; and much humour was imported into the rôle of Yarker, the chauffeur, by Mr. William Spray. The lovers Peter and Gilbert were excellently sustained by Messrs. Roy Sydney and Arthur Hyde; and Lelage and Myra could hardly be in better hands than those of Miss Alice Sande and Miss Elsie Aston. Other rôles were sustained by Miss Cissy Gilbert and Mr. Alfred Selby. The various dances were most successful, especially the classical La Naissance du Papillon, cleverly performed by Miss Phyllis Monkman. The efficient augmented orchestra was under the skilful direction of the composer Mr. J. A. Robertson.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. Will Sley and Fred Willmott; Resident-Manager, Mr. Henry T. Downs.—Mr. Joe Peterman and company present here with much success The Belle of the Orient, in which Mr. George Ricketts is quite inimitable as Ike Novinskie. The feats of Siems, described as the King of Mystery, are certainly wonderful; and Slippere (assisted by Miss Ramsay) affords much pleasure with his entertainment at the piano. Miss Amy Russell's fine voice has been heard to advantage in several songs; and the amazing gymnastic performance of the Bordellas arouses much enthusiasm. The Six Æolians appear in their refined and vocal dancing act; and also here are Hyde and Cody (eccentrics), Smith and Johnson (coloured vocalists), Tiny and Mite (child vocalists), and the Hipposcope.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LIMITED.—General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr. John A. Walker.—The leading item here is provided by Rameses, who appears to great advantage in his Egyptian Temple of Mystery, his feats being really remarkable. Miss Mona Garrick's impersonations of the various characters in sundry plays reflect much credit on her ability; and the Four Figaros, international vocalists and dancers, are accorded a good reception. Duncan and Godfrey return with their famous Cockney sketch Me and 'Er, which takes well, and deservedly so; and Mr. Victor Neuman's impersonations of Dickens's characters are wonderfully realistic. Also here are Miss Ethel Bourne (vocal and instrumental entertainer), Mr. Elton Black (Scotch comedian), and the Bioscope.

NEW ALHAMBRA THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Will White.—Among the films exhibited here are Sicilian Family Honour, Saved by His Dog, and The Unseizable Pickpocket. The Bros. Sydmore, comedians and dancers, appear with success; and Sharon, the street musician, contributes to the programme.

ST. GEORGE'S HALL.—General-Manager, Mr. Robert Wilson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred L. Arthur.—This hall continues to be extensively patronised. A fine series of pictures have been shown, including Romeo and Juliet, Music Teacher, Rent Collector, and Fairy of the Torrent. Symbo (clown and jester) and Mr. Sam Corry (a clever conjurer) are also here.

CLIFTONVILLE HALL.—General-Manager, Mr. O. E. Laumann.—Immense crowds are daily patronising the rink, and roller skating is undoubtedly the rage. The great international mile roller race takes place on the evenings of the 8th, 9th, and 10th inst. Already many entries have been received by the management, and the winner will compete in the final at Olympia, London, on February 25.

BILSTON.—NEW ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. John M. Dawson; Business Manager, Mr. S. Hadskiss Dawson.—The boards here are occupied by Boswell's Royal Circus. In addition to the educated ponies, &c., there are interesting and amusing items by Kame Kasuda (on the slanting rope), Albert Morrow (conjurer), Crusoe (feet equilibrist), the Brothers Austin, and Comical Walker. The Riggs of Mr. Briggs and The Sentinel and the Bear, two amusing sketches, are also presented.

DRILL HALL.—For the fourth week of their stay the Anglo-American Animated Picture company is providing a new series of pictures, including The Fighting Parson and The Messina Earthquake Disaster.

BIRKENHEAD.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr. W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr. Reginald Grant; Secretary, Miss Isabel Morris.—Mr. Herbert Sleath's A White Man company opened to a crowded house on Monday. In the course of an excellent performance Mr. Frank E. Petley wins premier honours by a fine and effective rendering of Captain James Wynnegate, V.C., afterwards known as Jim Carston, in which he is ably supported by Miss Eleanor May, who as Diana Countess of Kerhill proves herself to be a talented and graceful artist. The thankless rôle of the Earl of Kerhill is successfully assumed by Mr. Harold T. Richardson; Big Bill is well played by Mr. R. A. Brandon; Mr. Eric Hudson is a picturesque Indian chief; Mr. Henry Hare is efficient as the Sheriff; and Mr. Gerald Earle as Cash Hawkins and Mr. F. Thornton as Boco White accord valuable assistance. Miss Margaret Fairleigh is a realistic Nat-u-ritch; and a really capable cast also includes Mesdames Gertrude Price, Margaret Duncan, Kathleen Mervyne, and Messrs. William Dempsey, Louis Ashmeade, Martin Henry, and Robert Hamilton. The production is well equipped, and both company and piece have been enthusiastically received here.

ARGYLE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. D. J. Clarke. — Carter Livesey, Lilian Rosebery, and company, in their amusing skit The Would-Be Actors, are fulfilling a most successful return visit; as also are Billy Howard and Katheryn Harris in their well-sustained sketch Adventures of a Happy Tramp. Mr. Gus Garrick, an exceptionally smart mimic and dancer, has made a hit; and Shirley and Ransome in their act 'Arf a Quid are cordially received. A liberal programme is also supported by Ara, Zebra, and Vora, exponents of Indian pastimes; Mr. Arthur Royce, in a musical monologue; Miss Marie Jones, a veritable protean actress; Mr. Hardie Salus, comedian; the Four Sisters Gilbey, instrumentalists and dancers; Miss Aggie Nolan, comedienne; and Brown's Royal Bioscope. Mr. Ernest Denney is musical director.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Ball. — Two performances nightly by Mr. Edward Marris's company of the pantomime Dick Whittington constitute the attraction here. Miss Etty Waldron is a sprightly Dick; Mr. Joe Waldron is a capital Idle Jack; Alice Fitzwarren is admirably played by Miss Dora Gilbert; and the fine voice of Mr. Arthur Lawrence is heard to advantage in the part of the Emperor. The scenic effects are elaborate.

BIRMINGHAM.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Tom B. Davis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Philip Rodway.—A second notice of Dick Whittington appears in another column.

PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE. — Lessees, Messrs. Rodgers, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. J. F. Graham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Henry Johnston. — A second notice of Boy Blue appears in another column.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE. — Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Lester Collingwood; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. F. Guest.—Little Red Riding Hood is now in its seventh week, and is more popular than ever.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Andrew Melville; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Hindle Taylor.—There has been a great run here on The Beggar Girl's Wedding these last two weeks, the play being pronounced "one of Mr. Walter Melville's best." The company, as mentioned in our last issue, is a very capable one, and has met with much favour with Metropole critics. Mr. Otto Minister, Mr. Herbert Morgan, Miss Olive Warne, and Miss Vashti Wynne may be instanced among the principals.

CARLTON THEATRE, SALTLEY.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. James Alexander.—Miss Sidney Crowe is playing here in The Way of the World and Leah, with Messrs. Herbert Skardon and H. Sherwood Martin's company. In the former play, Miss Crowe's acting as Lady Adela Hardy made a deep impression by its intensity and passion; Mr. Herbert Skardon, who, with Mr. H. Sherwood Martin, is presenting the play, proves an interesting and highly popular Cecil Hardy; Mr. Victor Gordon is good in the heavy part, Captain Fred Slade; Miss Effie D. Crawford is a winsome heroine as Kate Montague; and others prominent are Mr. Clarence Temple, Miss Violette Vivienne, and Mr. D'Arcy Kelway.

THEATRE ROYAL, ASTON.—Lessee, Mr. Charles Barnard; General-Manager, Mr. E. Hewitson; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. J. Robertson.—Mr. J. Rice Cassidy's company was made welcome here in that still popular drama, In Holy (?) Russia. Mr. Cassidy's comic and withal sturdy acting in rescuing woman in distress meets with rounds of applause; Mrs. J. Rice Cassidy as the virtuous and adventurous heroine, Renee Rubinoff, wins cheer upon cheer; Miss Amy McNeil displays her fine abilities in the rôle of the police spy, Catska Lavotski; Mr. St. George Frere shows to advantage as Michael Natolski; Mr. Frank Copeland plays with the proper manly spirit as Sir Harry Beresford; and Mr. Henry Compton scores as Colonel Forrest.

PALACE THEATRE, BORDESLEY.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Goodwin Woodward.—Mrs. Sam Duckworth's company is meeting with pleasant receptions here in The Conscience of a Judge. Mr. Stanley Bedwell comes out of the trying titular one with complete success; Miss Eva Moss as Jessica gives a clever portrayal; Mr. Frank Eaglesfield contributes an able study of Sir Edward Mervin; Mr. Cecil Renton makes an acceptable Geoffrey Granstone; Mr. Martin Pedler does well as Cecil Bentley; Mr. Frank Eden, the general-manager of the company, proves a highly comical Horatio Winters; and Miss Mabel Coleman shows many charming traits in the character of Ethel Vaughan.

GRAND THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Edward Foster.—Gus Elen is the big attraction here, his clever coster impersonations being loudly encored. The Howard Brothers are expert jugglers, they play six banjos at one time; Walter Bellonini is also a smart juggler; Brix and Annie are amusing in their barber's shop skit; Jean Macduff, Harry Freeman (who is always popular), and Cornalla and Eddie brighten up the programme with their turns.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Resident-Manager, Mr. A. W. Matcham.—Mr. Laurence Irving and Miss Mabel Hackney are very successful here, their sketch The King and the Vagabond is artistically played; Tom Costello is loudly encored for his song "Homeland, good-bye"; Ethel Newman presents a monologue, Her Wedding Day; and J. W. Pursell and company have a miniature drama, What Women do for Men. Mlle. Pollo is a clever gymnast; Percy Hannan, Ernie Garner, Tony Spring, and the Crisps complete the company.

HIPPODROME. — Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Lyons.—Yukio Tani, the ju-jitsu champion, gives a clever exhibition here; the Columbia Comedy Trio deserve the loud applause that greets them. The long programme includes the names of Harry Brown, Webb and Branston, the Woodwards, Dun and Reano, Philip Levard, Charles Cardow, and Will Douglass's Merry Bakers.

GAIETY THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Albert Bushell.—The Ten-Ji troupe of Japanese magicians' feats are most skilful; Seever and Fridkin's troupe of Russian vocalists and dancers win loud applause; Walter Emerson is always funny; Maxwell and Francis have a good comedy sketch; the Cheers give a scena in which some performing cats are introduced; and Mi Narom sings charmingly.

ASTON HIPPODROME.—Resident-Manager, Mr. T. Middleton.—Haley's Juveniles have a bright entertainment here—their songs and dances win admiration; the Harvey Boys in their act That Was Me are highly amusing; Zeta Grey and company have a comedy sketch, A Lancashire Lass, which is very successful; Queenie May, Albert McKelvin, and Harold Heath add to the mirth of the audience.

KING'S HALL.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Moore and Kennedy.—The picture entertainment here is attracting large and appreciative audiences. Bert and Fay are comedy duettists of a high order, and F. Ind is a most eccentric comedian.

QUEEN'S HALL.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Moore and Kennedy.—The pictures here are taking on well, A Village Marathon Race being most interesting. H. O. Winkler and C. Comet provide the variety.

BISHOP AUCKLAND. — EDEN THEATRE. — Lessees, Messrs. R. Addison, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. J. Huntley. — Mr. William Maclaren's company (including Miss Lily C. Bandmann) opened on Monday in Claudian. Mr. Maclaren, in the title-rôle, played in his accustomed clever manner; as Almida Miss Bandmann again presented the part delightfully; Mr. Douglas Earle did well as Agazil; Mr. Geo. Roberts gave satisfaction as the Holy Clement; Mr. G. Edward Dunstan as Theorus earned distinction; Mr. Bernard Elliott's Tetrarch was effective; Mr. Charles T. Chaloner was an amusing Belos; Miss Amy Hardcastle a charming Serena; and Miss Ruth Trafford a charming Edessa.

BLACKPOOL.—HER MAJESTY'S OPERA HOUSE.—General-Manager, Mr. J. R. Huddlestone.—Mr. J. F. Elliston's Aladdin company is reaping a rich and well-deserved harvest here. The title-rôle is in the hands of Miss Mabel Carr, whose efforts are most warmly appreciated, whilst a success second to none is won by Miss Elsie Roby, who appears as Picie; the Widow Twankey finds an excellent exponent in Mr. Tom Kelso; and Mr. William Fulbrook as Abanazar also finds great favour with the audience. Specialities are supplied by Burley and Burley, comedians; the Walmsley Sextette of dancers; and the Jewel Ballet is also a distinct triumph in stage art.

GRAND.—Owner and Manager, Mr. T. Sergenson. —Mr. T. Arthur Jones and company are appearing here twice nightly in Life's Sweetest Sins and When Other Lips. Miss Marie Daventry is seen to advantage in both plays.

PALACE.—General-Manager, Mr. Geo. H. Harrop; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Waller.—A well-varied programme of excellent turns is provided here this week. Willie Zimmerman carries all before him by his wonderful impersonations; Green and Wood create quite a sensation in their acrobatic act; Correze and Keith are clever jugglers; Gladys Mavius is a pleasing comedienne; Jack Hayworth shines as a Scotch comedian; Ruby Bijou dances well; King Luis and partner excel as equilibrists; and the great Coram may be aptly described as a ventriloquist extraordinary.

BLYTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur C. Moody.—Mr. and Mrs. Levy's juvenile pantomime company, in The House That Jack Built, is meeting with success here. Specialities have been successfully introduced by Doyle and Gibson, the Forget-Me-Not Quartette of dancers, Horace Hilterby, Florrie Edwards, and Wee Gladys Wyse.

NEW EMPIRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur C. Moody.—An attractive bill of fare has been provided here, including Mr. and Mrs. David Donaldson in The Veteran's Birthday, which has proved exceedingly attractive; Fräulein von Tromp introduces several graceful dances; Austin's Comical Nippers fully justify their title; Jennie Mackey, described as the Lavender Girl, has an attractive style; Jack Martin is a strong attraction as a baritone; Mlle. Sylvesto, assisted by Rumbo, finds much fav

C. Bostock's Consul, the Almost Man, in his exemplification of the Darwinian theory; Sidney Mason and Theresa Moore present the dramatic episode entitled The Usurer, and are highly successful; Pasquali Brothers, as acrobatic equilibrists, give a sensational performance; Ryder Sloan, vocal character comedian, is much appreciated; Bromley and Fontein are entertaining in musical comedy tit-bits; Natalia and Diana are a clever pair of light aerial gymnasts, and receive deserved applause; George Collins, quaint comedian, and Edie Anderson, comedienne and dancer, also deserve mention. As usual, the Hippodrome pictures show the latest subjects.

BOURNEMOUTH.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietors, David Allen and Sons; Sole Lessee, Mr. Mouillot; Manager, Mr. Hubert Dunbar. — Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company opened here on Monday in Idols. Miss Edyth Goodall as Irene Merriam deserves special praise for her rendering of the part, her scenes with her husband, played by Mr. A. B. Imeson, being very well done. Miss Moira Creegan, in the difficult part of Ninna Hart, scored a success, and the character of Hugh Coleman was effectively sustained by Mr. Herbert Ford. Mr. Frank Ibberson gave a capital study of a bibulous butler, while as Jacob Hart Mr. Frank Powell did well. The Court scene was really excellent, in which Mr. Harvey Braban, Mr. A. E. Graham, and Mr. George Conroy shone conspicuously.

BRADFORD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. John Hart; General Manager, Mr. T. F. Doyle; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Richardson. — Mr. Hart's charmingly-staged pantomime Jack and Jill continues to delight and entertain large and appreciative audiences, who roar with laughter at the eccentricities of the clever company of comedians, and applaud heartily the brilliant spectacular effects and the lovely scenery and dresses. The gorgeous display and general charm of the production have rarely been equalled in any of the many previous pantomimes presented by the enterprising management.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Coun. F. Laidler; Acting-Manager, Mr. N. Hepworth.—Red Riding Hood is beating all records here in the way of pantomime, and the packed audiences and hearty laughter and applause testify to the all-round excellence of the production, which is brimful of good, broad fun, and a veritable feast of colour and brightness. The principals in the energetic company are very popular.

THE EMPIRE.—Moss Empires, Limited; Resident Manager, Mr. Percival Craig.—We have a splendid tribute to skill in animal training here this week in the wonderful equestrian act presented by Karl Reinsch and Miss Lucie; Hermann Melot, the smart conjurer, on a return visit is again perplexing the audience with his tricks; Alf Chester, the comedian, as the broken-down "Lord of the Lord Knows Where," is diverting. In a comedy sketch, The Window-Cleaner, Henry Carlton is very amusing, and well supported in his part of Billy Shine; Bennie Barrow is a promising young baritone, and his songs are nicely illustrated; the clever acrobatic comedians, the Delevines, entertain highly with their bustling sketch Flipp and Flopp and their remarkable "Scarecrow Dance"; the Yankee Doodle Duo, Jack Ross and Sue Lewis, are very humorous entertainers and dancers; Naughton and Gold introduce some funny patter and dance well; Lily Esplin as a juvenile character comedienne is amusing; and there are some entertaining pictures shown by the Bioscope.

PALACE THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. E. Harrison.—Edward Marris's big company, in The Dandy Millionaire, provide a very bright and sparkling musical episode, which is very finely staged and brimful of humour; in their capital sketch, The Singing Academy, Cosgrove and Burns are highly diverting; Russell Brandow, a coloured comedian, is a very expert dancer who wins much applause; Musical Silvo submits a fine performance on the musical glasses; Norah Desmond, the song-illustrator, sings with expression; in a prettily-arranged garden scene Feldman's troupe of juveniles sing and dance very effectively; and Raymond's Bio-Tableaux are an interesting feature of the bright evening's entertainment.

BRIGHTON. — GRAND THEATRE.—Managing Director, Mr. Ernest Gates; Acting-Manager, Mr Ben Court.—Aladdin entered upon the last week of its run here on Monday. Miss Aimée Roberts (Aladdin) and Miss Blanche Marion (Princess) have proved themselves great favourites; the comedy element has been admirably sustained by Mr. Edwin Garth (Widow Twankey), Messrs. Bennett (Tip Pit), and Martell (Wot Toe), Mr. Frank Dunlop (Abanazar), and Mr. Leo Sterling (Emperor). The last-named and Miss Addie Love (Slave of the Lamp) have scored heavily with their instrumental and vocal scenas; and the Lottie Stone Quartet have contributed much-appreciated dances. On Tuesday evening Mr. Frank Dunlop and Mr. Edwin Garth had a complimentary benefit; while yesterday (Friday) evening was set apart for a similar tribute to Mr. Ben Court, the popular general-manager, under whose personal supervision the pantomime was produced. Special attractions were provided for each occasion.

ALHAMBRA.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Alfred Smith.—James Willard and company achieve distinct success in the dramatic episode The Ace of Hearts; the Lizzette Trio are graceful lady acrobats and pleasing singers and dancers; Phern and Phern submit an excellent musical entertainment; De Lil, illusionist, completely mystifies the audience; Jennie Reeves is a dainty comedienne; Hughes and Elliott are capable vocalists and dancers; Sydney Burns, comedian, is well received; Hulbert is a good ventriloquist; Mollie Augarde sings in charming style; the Venola Brothers contribute an amusing comedy gymnastic turn; and the Alhambra Picturegraph comprises some interesting and amusing films.

HIPPODROME THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs. Barrasford and Smith; Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; Resident-Manager, Mr B. J. Brown.—Edouard José evokes great enthusiasm in the dramatic episode The Strike, his portrayal of the old blacksmith being thoroughly artistic; the Alexander Operatic Trio are highly successful in the prison scene from Faust; My Fancy, the queen of sand dancers, wins unstinted applause; Juno Salmo, the "Devil Dandy," is a wonderful contortionist; the Klein Family are very clever trick cyclists; the Bijou Juvenile Troupe appear in Pansy's Birthday, and display most graceful dancing; the Camplins, comedy duo, are diverting; the Havannas Troupe submit a capital comedy act; St. Ruth and Conyers are artistic operatic duettists; and Cummin and Seaham are good comedy acrobats.

WEST PIER.—Secretary, Mr. A. W. Scholey.—Mr. Ernest E. Norris and company opened here on Monday with The Education of Elizabeth. Miss Florence Tresilian gave an artistic impersonation of Elizabeth; Miss Louisa Peach made a very diverting Blanche Macyntyre; Mr. Ernest E. Norris was drolly entertaining as Reggie Hankey; Mr. Bert Morley was excellent as the infatuated Harry Fairfax; Miss Nona Hoffe acquitted herself admirably as Lucy Middleton; and able support was rendered by Mr. Fred Castleman (Mr. Whitby) and Miss May Norris (Lily Kerr).

PALACE PIER THEATRE.—King's Royal Bioscope is still a great attraction here. A Greek Slave is a charming love story; A Journey Over the Stubenthal Railway, by moonlight, and John Bull's Breadbasket are highly picturesque; and other films include The Financial Scare, Leap Year Proposals, Antiquary Burglars, The Queen's Love, The Mesmerist, and Uncle's Fortune.

COURT THEATRE.—Lessee and Manageress, Mrs. M. Barrasford. The animated pictures here continue to attract crowded houses. The film depicting the manœuvres of the Italian artillery is highly interesting; The Royalist's Wife conveys a drama of adventure in the days of Cromwell; A Mother's Love and Rip's Inheritance are touching stories; and Animated Portraits is a cleverly-executed picture. The song, "Ring Down the Curtain," is submitted by the Cinephone; and the Barrasford Sable Operatic Minstrels appear with great success in a plantation scene.

BRISTOL.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. James Macready Chute.—The popularity of Aladdin continues unabated, which must be very gratifying to all concerned; indeed, the general opinion is that it is in all respects the best pantomime ever produced here. The scenery is exceptionally fine, the costumes rich and tasteful, the artists are all clever in their respective parts, and the entertainment, while most refined, is sufficiently humorous, thus satisfying the varied tastes of the supporters of the Prince's. Miss Ouida Macdermott makes an ideal Aladdin, acting remarkably well, singing pleasingly, and looking the part to perfection; Miss Deborah Volar is happily placed as the Princess, she also acting admirably and displaying much ability as a cultured vocalist; Miss Daisy Lloyd Wood is sufficiently vivacious as Our Mary Ann (from London), her songs and dances obtaining much applause; Miss Topsy Sinden acts prettily as Yu-Bu-Tee, and scores heavily with her graceful and expert dances; Mr. Branesby Williams makes a good part of Abanazar, his various impersonations, which are all successful, giving strong evidence of the versatility of this clever artist; Mr. W. H. Powell contributes much to the success of the pantomime by his amusing impersonation of the Widow Twankey; Mr. Alfred Clark's broad comedy performance of the Emperor is popular; and Mr. Arthur Sutcliffe acts well as Pekoe, his various songs being all well rendered.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Ernest Carpenter; Resident-Manager, Mr. H. C. Alty.—Little Red Riding Hood continues to attract full houses. The pantomime goes merrily from start to finish, it is staged with much taste and liberality, the company is a competent and hard-working one, and the comic business is quite up to the standard expected at the Royal. New business has been introduced, and the topical and local allusions are up to date. On Monday evening Miss Gertie Hall and Mr. Ivor Harvey distinguished themselves in the parts of Margery Daw and Baron Baddelot, in consequence of the unavoidable absence of Miss Marie Free and Mr. Frank Hemming. Several of the principal artists have new songs, the dances of the Sylvan Quartette obtain much appreciation, and the Misses Lee and Clifton score with their speciality dances.

PALACE.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Horace Livermore; Treasurer, Mr. F. J. V. Welchman.—Harry Tate's company of comedians amuse with their funny sktch Fishing; Mendel, blind pianist, is much applauded for his selections and improvisation upon themes; Charles Collette and Ivan Derry have a diverting little sketch entitled Pyjamas; Bert Maddison, Welsh comedian, is appreciated; Florence Hyde and company amuse with their coster sketch Ups and Downs; Tom E. Hughes, comedian, obtains applause; Cestria is a smart comedy juggler, &c; Harry Morris, character comedian, is successful; and the performance concludes with animated pictures.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. B. Pearce Lucas; Resident-Manager, Mr. Sid Macaire.—Maurice Farkoa, of musical comedy fame, heads the programme, his refined style of singing pretty songs obtaining due appreciation from all parts of the house; the Five Whiteleys present a clever turn of acrobatics, wire-walking, and musical potpourri; Mlle. Ottino does an excellent and attractive conjuring act; the Sarony Sisters sing well and dance admirably; May Brilliant is a pleasing comedienne and dancer; Kesman does some good conjuring, &c.; Lizzie Kirk, comedienne, has some good songs; Tommy Dor, comedian, obtains applause; Cling and Clancy amuse as patterers and dancers; and the Corrix Brothers are smart balancers, &c. Interesting animated pictures conclude the entertainment.

COLSTON HALL. — This is the last week of the "Joseph" Poole Myriorama. The season here has been a very successful one, and on Friday evening Mr. Fred Mayer, the courteous manager, takes his benefit, special attractions being provided.

BROUGHTON.—VICTORIA THEATRE, LTD.—Manager and Licensee, Mr. J. Fred Watson. — Frederick Melville's play The Ugliest Woman on Earth, under the general management of Mr. Leyton Cancellor, was well received by a full house on Monday, when it commenced here. Miss Beatrice Horner played the title-rôle with much force and charm; Jack Merryman was well played by Mr. Philip Darien; Mr. Leyton Cancellor ably sustained the part of Hubert Gould; Mr. Leonard Thackeray did well as Antonio Luchesi; Miss Gertrude Harrison made a hit as Rose Courtenay; comedy was well presented by Mr. Freddy Bentley (Tubby Harrick) and Miss Nellie Jackson (Aggie Brown); and good work was done by Miss Violet Macaree as Morita and the other members of the cast.

BURNLEY.—VICTORIA OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—Mr. Charles Constant's pantomime Aladdin entered on its concluding week's visit here. Miss Daisy Lake, on her first appearance in the title-rôle, made a good impression with her singing and acting; Miss Dolly Moore, the Pocket Vesta Tilley, achieved success with her "Football" song; Mr. M. D. Pitts as the Emperor was warmly applauded for his singing of "Thora"; Miss Dorothy Dempster was cordially received for her "Moonflower" song; and Miss Maud Murray's electrical dances are very pretty.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—An excellent programme is provided here. The New York Comedy Four are received with enthusiasm for their comedy medleys; old acquaintances are the Gladenbecks, loudly applauded for their smart hand-balancing; Will Willis (comedian) earns encores; and the Two Erolls supply funny knockabout acrobatics. The Ormesby Quartette greatly please; Ruby Emerson has pretty songs; and Carl Lynn is accorded an enthusiastic welcome for his clever animal mimicry.

PALACE THEATRE AND HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. Julius Simpson.—A most pleasant programme is given here. Joe Peterman's Singing Servants give a two-act operetta full of tuneful songs and choruses; Paul Powell's Electrical Marionettes strike a novel line; Belle Davis, singer of coon songs, is accompanied by real coons, who are most vivacious dancers; and the Brothers Howard give a remarkable exposition of mental telepathy. The Betsons, comedy cyclists, perform clever tricks; and Clack and Clack are good in barrel jumping. The Three Transfields, lady instrumentalists, are pleasing; and Archie Pitt, comedian, has a good song. Raymond's Biotableaux include A Persistent Follower and Clumsy Jim.

BURSLEM.—HIPPODROME.—Lessee, Mr. R. Colin; Manager, Mr. Matt Hall.—Good audiences assemble here nightly, and thoroughly enjoy the up-to-date picture show. This week the following artists appear with success: Little Cliffie, a boy vocalist; Miss Hilda Reynolds, comedienne; and Vale and Derr in a laughable farce.

BURTON-ON-TRENT.—OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Bennett and Bennett; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. de Hague Body.—Mr. C. Watson Mill and Miss Blanche St. Albans' company is here this week with A Warning to Women. The chief interest centres in Miss St. Albans, who contributes a carefully played impersonation of Moira Kennion; Miss Ellen Beverley undertakes the part of Molly O'Moore in a praiseworthy manner; Sheila has a charming and capable representative in Miss Gertrude Vickers; and Miss Edith Rutland is especially good as the crippled boy, Myles O'Moore. Mr. Harry C. Robinson endows the character of Dr. Marcus Dread with the necessary villainous attributes. Mr. Henry Rutland gives a fine performance as Squire Kennion; Mr. William Vane is a thoroughly earnest Shaun; and Mr. Charles O'Connor does well as Fergus M'Naughton. The comic relief is in the safe hands of Mr. W. Palliser Acock as Ferdinand de Joules, Mr. Leicester Jackson as Lord Eversleigh, and Mr. Oscar Power as Mike McQuade, who all give satisfaction to the audience. Mr. Alex Finlayson as the Rev. Emmanuel Wallace and Miss Marie Ramuz as Hildred also deserve mention.

BURY (Lancs).—ROYAL.—Northern Theatres Co., Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. H. H. Potter.—This week Messrs. F. J. Little and Fred Darcy's pantomime Sinbad the Sailor forms the attraction. Miss Marie Reeve plays in dashing style as Sinbad, and her songs are well rendered. A charming Zorilda is seen in Miss Mollie Hackett; and the comic element is in the capable hands of Mr. Willie Barrett as Mrs. Sinbad and Mr. Walter Adams as Tinbad. The specialities are particularly attractive, embracing the Acme Quartette of dancers; M. and Mlle. Van Lachterop, operatic vocalists; and Newco and Sullo, "The Boys in Red," dancers. Others who work hard and well are Miss Marion Ellis, Miss Gertie Webster, Mr. Fred Taylor, and Mr. D. Howell.

CIRCUS OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Northern Theatres Co., Ltd.; General Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Assistant-Manager, Mr. H. H. Potter.—Richard Finberg, an old favourite, tops the bill here, and his impersonations of well-known characters are as good as ever. Texas Hattie gives a clever exhibition of tight-rope walking; the Tiger Lily is a coloured artist of distinct ability; and illustrated songs are well rendered by the Scena Vocas. Others adding to the evening's enjoyment are W. E. Hilton, ventriloquist; Irene and Morton, in comedy act; Ryde and Beeman, eccentric acrobats; and Dolly Harmer, comedienne. The usual Ottograph pictures conclude.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Resident-Acting-Manager, Mr. C. F. Wilson.—Abato and Hurst, in a comedy act, The Sport and the Bootblack, are first favourites in a good bill. A clever demonstration of telepathy is given by the Days. The remaining turns are all good, and include Victor Courtney, "Boots at the Piano"; the Maxwells and their dogs; Princess Pauline, comedienne; Britain's Heroes, Irving golden statues presented by L. and R. Edmond; Sistere Barnes, duettists; Valvero, in his Naval Bombardment; the Frohmans, particularly good in a musical melange; and the Brothers Milford, comedians.

BURY ST. EDMUNDS. — THEATRE ROYAL. — General-Manager, Mr. Auguste A. Peuleve.—Miss Emma Hutchison and company are appearing here in Mrs. Dot. The comedy is beautifully staged and presented by a first-rate cast. Mr. Frank Lacy is responsible for a brilliant performance as James Blenkinsop; Mr. Hugh Kennedy makes an excellent Gerald Halstane; Freddie Perkins is remarkably well played by Mr. Charles Stalte; and Mr. William Midgley is good as Charles. Mrs. Dot is charming in the clever hands of Miss Nancy Beresford; Miss Ethel Grahame is a pretty and unaffected Nellie; Miss Emma Hutchison exactly suits the rôle of Lady Sellenger; and Miss Sybil Brooke is well placed as Miss Macgregor.

CAMBRIDGE. — NEW THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. W. B. Redfern, J.P., D.L.—After a considerable interval of time Mr. Wm. Greet's company appeared here on Monday night with The Sign of the Cross. The play was extremely well-mounted, and was much enjoyed by a good audience. My Cyril Austen-Lee gave a powerful rendering of Marcus; while Miss Constance Little was very convincing as Mercia; Mr. C. Yorke gave a capital account of the infamous Nero; Miss Beryl Hamilton rendered good service as Poppæa; Mr. Charles Aldred was telling in Tigellinus, as were Mr. J. Weatherhall (Licinius), Mr. Frank Wood (Glabrio), Mr. Harry Jones (Philodemus), Mr. H. Thurston Harris (Servilius), and Mr. Ernest Duggan (Strabo). Miss Lily Ward was good as Berenice, as was Miss Cissy Charlton as Dacia. Mr. R. Chapman was very interesting as Melos, Miss Edith Drayson was a pathetic figure as Stephanus, Mr. Walter Fleet (Favius) and Mr. G. Blunden (Titus) made excellent characters of the parts.

CARDIFF.—NEW THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Robert Redford.—The successful pantomime Cinderella finishes this week, and it is universally admitted that Messrs. Milton Bode and Robert Redford's production has achieved a success. The charming Miss Moya Mannering has filled the title-rôle with an exquisite grace and vivacious manner which have endeared her to every section of the large audiences which nightly filled the theatre. Equally as praiseworthy has been Miss Ida Stratham as the principal boy, a part which her prepossessing appearance and fine dashing spirit particularly fitted her. The comedians have gained great popularity since their first appearance, and have been responsible in no small measure for the phenomenal success of the pantomime. Mr. T. W. Volt (Baroness), Mr. Chas. Hanbury (Dandini), Mr. George Brooks (Whiffles), and Mr. Tom Fancourt (Baron) have all done well in their respective parts; while Miss Nelly Lauraine and Miss Jennie Rubie as the Sisters and Miss Felicia Firmin and Miss Victoria Sievers as second girl and boy have also made much of their opportunities. As the Fairy Godmother Miss Lucie Lever has exceptional vocal abilities.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. H. S. Dring.—Mr. George Gray, in The Fighting Parson, has proved a big draw. Mr. Gray's convincing and dashing style, combined with his clear delivery, combine to finish a clever piece of work. The great Rapoli has created a sensation with his artistic and heavy class juggling, his feats of strength and manipulation being unequalled; the Achmed Ibrahim Troupe of Arab acrobats perform some marvellous tricks, their pyramid tableaux being both startling and effective; J. H. Scotland, a basso of no mean fame, renders a couple of songs in a fine voice; Billy Hobbs's patter is exceptionally funny and interesting, and his dancing is clever; Jimmy Shields, the one-legged comedian and dancer, receives a good ovation, his "Collier's Story" going down remarkably well; Jennie Hartley is an entertaining and dainty soubrette; and Winnie Harbor provides a clever and novel turn with her Brittany Boys. Up-to-date pictures on the bioscope complete.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Under the management of Mr. Rollo Balmain.—The attractive musical comedy, The Flower Girl, is played here with exceptional success by Mr. Chas. M. Bestic's company. Miss Eva Nelson as Lily, the flower girl, is a pretty and captivating lady, who sings and acts with irresistible charm; Mr. John T. MacCallum makes huge fun as Joe Wheeler, and is the life and soul of the comedy; Mr. Robert Cranny as the Hon. Billy fills the rôle with evident care; and Miss Georgie de Lara as his sister is the right artist for a difficult character. Mr. John Latham as Johnny Wheeler and Mr. Louis du Cane as Reginald Rockit create a good portion of the merry-making; while Miss Lilian Drake and Mr. Henry Adnes as Madame and Monsieur Racquet are two lively and sprightly exponents of their parts. The chorus is good and the music catchy.

PALACE AND HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Burton.—The sketch this week is one by Mr. Bernard Mervyn, supported by a first-class company, and is entitled 'Twixt Dusk and Dawn. Mr. Mervyn as Baron Murtoni and Miss B. Doyle as Countess Delia Redaire enact the principal rôles with realistic effect, and cause breathless excitement amongst the large audiences who nightly witness this excellent petite drama. Miss Madge Grey is a charming and popular comedienne, her baby mimicry being lifelike, while her stories are entertaining; Hicks and Hunter gain applause for their clever ice skate dancing; and the Royal Czar troupe of dancers are a talented company. George Porter, comedian and Tyrolean vocalist, is exceptionally smart; Maudie Ford is a good comedienne and sand dancer; and Toff Noel, a new comedian, causes much laughter with his humorous sayings. Raymond's Bio-tableaux concludes.

ANDREW'S HALL.—This spacious building is filled this week by large crowds attracted by the Royal Italian Circus. The numerous clever turns and amusing items performed by the highly-trained animals are keenly appreciated.

CARLISLE.—H. M. THEATRE.—Lessees, Mr. Thos. Courtice and Mrs. R. Stewart McKim; Manager, Mr. Thos. Courtice.—Mr. Charles Elderdon's Robinson Crusoe, an excellent production, is played by a clever company. Mr. T. Worth, the author, as Billy Crusoe is certainly not the least entertaining of the many capital comedians engaged; Miss Rosa Revella in the title-rôle makes a hit, her dashing style and attractive personality fitting the part exactly; as the principal girl Miss Gertie Garagan is particularly bright and lively, singing and dancing with delightful freedom and skill; Mr. James Grant makes a good Dame; and Mr. Fred Bolton as Will Atkins is distinctly funny. Miss Dolly Cusdin gains enthusiastic encores for her impressive singing, and Mr. Lawrence McAnelly as the villain is conspicuously successful. Specialities are a big feature of the performance. Carson Hicks, coon delineator and dancer; the Boultons, comedy entertainers; the Marblesque Trio in living pictures; Baby Queenie, dancer; Miss Bartinelli, contortionist; Miss Olive Sara, in a musical and Indian-club act; the Three Eltons, comedy bar artists; Stuart and Worth, comedians; and Rowe and Holden, American dancers and cake-walkers, contribute clever and popular turns.

THE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Signor Rino Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. F. Morgan.—Park's Eton Boys and Girton Girls head the programme; Lily Langtry sings and dances with remarkable vigour and rapidity; Sam Williams is a capital vocal comedian; the Four Jumels display versatility and cleverness; Freedo and Preston as comedians and dancers gain approval; Rosie Pink is a dainty little vocalist and dancer; and Lozelle, who is also on a return visit, is as graceful and daring as ever. The Pepiscope shows some fine pictures.

CASTLEFORD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor and Licensee, Mr. Chas. Gadsby; Business-Manager, Councillor Hy. Masterman, J.P.—Messrs. Alfred Paumier and Walter Howard's company is here in the attractive drama, The Prince and the Beggar Maid, which is effectively mounted, and was much appreciated by a large audience on Monday. Miss Ethel Bracewell is a pretty and attractive Princess Monica, and she plays the part with much earnestness; Mr. Ernest Cox is forcible and convincing as Prince Olaff; the hunchback, Prince Michael, is played by Mr. Melville Bickford in an artistic and carefully thought out manner; as the unscrupulous Prince Hildred Mr. Alfred Brandon acts with much energy and effect; Captain Hector is in the able hands of Mr. Robert Noble, who gives a faithful and intelligent reading of the part; Mr. J. H. Vyvyan gives a diverting performance as Lieut. Karl, and he is well supported in his efforts to amuse by Miss Jessica Black, as Viola, a part in which she is well-suited; Miss Gertrude Branscombe supplies a capital study of Camiola; and Mr. Kenneth Black makes a dignified Bishop of Illyria.

QUEEN'S THEATRE OF VARIETIES. — Proprietors, Messrs. Chas. Beanland and W. H. Emerson; General-Manager, Mr. Will H. Emerson.—An excellent bill is headed by the Four Eugenes, who retain popular favour by a series of well-presented and daring feats as aerial gymnasts; the Adras, in a refined and artistic acrobatic act, meet with a good reception; Kyd and Kyd are a well-matched pair, and their cross-talk and singing win loud applause; Ethel Stephenson is a smart vocalist, and her songs are contributed in an effective style; Hearne and Palmer, in a laughable act, The Hebrew and the Barman, appear to excellent advantage; Bert Lytton sings a couple of amusing songs; Hurman is a smart juggler, and he also excels as a hoop manipulator; and Little Tichborne is a droll comedian and a capital big boot dancer; a good selection of laughter-provoking pictures by the Loyal Dominion Co. concludes.

CHATHAM. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Messrs. C. and L. B. Barnard; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lionel Barnard. — Diana of Dobson's is here presented by Miss Lena Ashwell's company. In the title-rôle Miss Emilie Polini is popular; Mr. Leslie Rea gives an admirable rendering of Captain the Hon. Victor Bretherton; as Mrs. Canteloupe Miss Elspeth Dudgeon is effective; Mr. W. Kingsford Pearce does excellent work as Sir Jabez; and other parts are ably filled. The comedy is preceded each evening by The Bishop's Candlesticks.

BARNARD'S PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. L. B. Barnard.—The Six Brothers Luck remain from last week, and score throughout in their farcical absurdity Hôtel Grande. Clive Watts's dancing is much admired; Nellie Denver is a promising little comedienne and dancer; the Tossing Austins are a smart couple; Lacey's Erascope has a cleverly-manipulated film, The Wonderful Eggs; the Four Delawares, in Biliards; Ivey Aberdare, serio and dancer; and Charles Harvey, comedian, also appear.

GAIETY THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Captain H. E. Davis; Manager, Mr. G. Humphries.—Lizette Kitchen's company top the bill here with the Irish sketch Back to Donnybrook, in which a number of local children appear. The Melody Four prove very entertaining in their novel choir ventriloquial act; the finished dancing of the Lannons is deservedly re-demanded; May Fairclough displays ability in her selections from Shakespeare. St. Kilda, its People and Birds, proves a very entertaining and instructive film as projected by the Edisonograph. Vera Barton, comedienne; the Woelhafs, vaudeville artists; and Fritz Karnau, whistler, complete the bill.

CHELTENHAM. — OPERA HOUSE.—General-Manager, Mr. H. Oswald Redford. — A revised and up-to-date version of The Dairymaids is being played here this week by one of Mr. Robert Courtneidge's companies. Miss Empsie Bowman as Peggy and Miss Vera Crichton as Winifred sing, dance, and act delightfully; Mr. Nelson Keys as Lieut. Brudenell has the lion's share of the light-comedy business, in which he excels, fairly capturing the house in "The Sea Serpent"; Mr. Johnny Osborne is indefatigable as Joe Mivins; and Miss Gladys Silvani, a gifted comedienne, as Eliza ably assists him in sustaining the broader fun. Mr. Percy Marshall is natural as Dr. O'Byrne, R.N.; and the dignified Society parts are well sustained by Miss Carrie Lacey (Lady Brudenell) and Miss Hazel Saqui (Helen). Miss Lucy Edwin is amusingly got up and acts realistically as Miss Penelope Pyechase; and the Little Strangers are represented by a clever trio in Misses Dora Hodgson, Ethel Clare, and Beatrice Evenden. The production is well mounted in all departments, and Mr. Albert Bartlett conducts a full chorus and augmented orchestra.

CHESTER. — ROYALTY THEATRE. — Proprietors, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. B. Fountaine.—The special attraction for this week only is Milton Bode's fairy pantomime Aladdin, produced under the skilled direction of Mr. Trueman Towers. Mr. John E. Conan as Widow Twankey makes a smart and funny dame; and the Abanazar of Mr. Harry Morgan deserves much praise. Mr. Morgan is a smart dancer and excellent comedian. The Fimans, as Chew Chew and Chop Chop delight with their antics and smart patter; and Mr. Neville Delmar as Grand Vizier is good. The Emperor of Mr. Stanley Fields and the Lip Tun Tee of Mr. Will Cane are praiseworthy performances; Miss Blanche Astley as the principal boy plays her part with dash and skill; and the Princess Yo-san of Miss Elsie Skillings is charming. Miss Bob De Loriere makes a hit with her "Directoire dress" song, and as Pekoe is all that can be desired; Miss Eva Chadwick as Niese deserves mention. Of the immortals, Miss Madge White as the Slave of the Lamp, and Miss Cissie Locke as the Geni of the Ring, perform their allotted tasks with the necessary spirit and grace. The Moxon Trio provide a skilful display of acrobatics; and the Collins Troupe of juvenile dancers give an exceedingly smart and graceful exhibition.

COATBRIDGE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, The Coatbridge Theatre Company, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. John Commins. — Mr. George D. Day's company is appearing here with The Prodigal Son. Mr. Albert Ward in the title-rôle shows ability; Mr. Alfred Goddard capably enacts Magnus Shephensson; the Pastor, as played by Mr. A. J. Williams, is all that can be desired; Miss Dorrie Roberts in the dual rôle of Thora and Elin is interesting; Miss Maud Locke is successful as Margaret Neilson; and Helga Neilson is forcibly portrayed by Miss Pearla Gardner.

COLCHESTER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Chas. Macdona; Lessee and Manager, Mr. F. Graham Macdona.—Mr. Percy Williams's company (by arrangement with Bert Coote) is this week presenting The Fatal Wedding. The special feature of the show is the really good varity entertainment in the third act, by the juvenile troupe. Mr. Cecil Melton worthily depicted the hero, Howard Wilson; Miss Ethel Kay ably presented the part of the wronged wife; and the heavy parts were in the hands of Mr. Percy Ballard and Miss Elaine Vanburgh; Miss Ethel Sargeant and Mr. Harry M. Vernon introduced touches of comedy.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Colchester Hippodrome Company; Directors, Messrs. Fredk. Mouillot and Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Ben de Frece.—A capital all-round bill is headed by B. A. Rolfe, whose Ten Dark Knights contribute instrumental music and coon harmony; Mlle. Flora Lumiere presents something quite uncommon and highly popular with all parts; Cissie Lupino is a versatile dancer; Earle and Godfrey, comedy duo, are well liked; Queenie Dell, comedienne and dancer, is much approved; W. F. Moss is awarded applause; and the Gaumont films provide comedy on the screen.

CORK.—OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr. R. J. Bell.—The Moody-Manners Opera Company opened its second week's engagement here on Monday in Aida. This opera, which was revived here last season by Mr. Manners' company, was on Monday night received with great enthusiasm. Madame de Vere-Sapio sang the title part with great charm and skill; the rôle of Radames was filled by Mr. Brozel, who excelled himself in the part; Mr. Manners as Ramphis, the high priest, achieved a noteworthy success, his acting being dignified and impressive, and his singing captivating; Mr. Charles Magrath as the King sang delightfully; and Miss Toni Leiter as Amneris invested the part with grace, her singing being very good; Mr. Lewys James was a most acceptable Amonasro, lyrically as well as dramatically; Mr. Charles Moppett took the part of Messenger well; and Miss V. Brown was a good Priestess.

PALACE THEATRE, LTD.—Manager, Mr. Thomas F. O'Brien.—The programme here includes the Dunedin Troupe, who occupy the premier position. The troupe consists of two ladies and two gentlemen, who give a wonderful exhibition of trick cycle riding, and create a sensation. Las Serenadas, the Royal quartette of Italian opera singers, contribute beautifully rendered solos and choruses; J. Elmer Spyglass, a baritone, contributes well rendered songs; Elliot and Warne, comedy artists, sing some catchy ditties with success; Sid Stanfo, musical comedian, plays on a couple of instruments, and pleases; the Della Sisters are very capable vocalists, and their contributions are excellent; the Lynches give some pretty illustrated songs; and the Palascope shows some new pictures.

COVENTRY.—OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor, Mr. Wm. Bennett.—Another successful week of pantomime is assured in a visit of Aladdin, written by Mr. James J. Hewson, and produced by Mr. Fred Graham under the direction of Mr. Ernest Dottridge. Miss Edith St. Clare gives a charming impersonation of the title-rôle; Miss Lily Lonsdale being successfully responsible for the character of the Princess; Mr. Ernie Myers is funny as Abanazar, the magician; Mr. Fred W. Graham scores as Widow Twankey; Mr. Frank A. Wood displays his possession of a good voice as the Emperor; and the Sisters Brand and the Canton Girls supply pleasing specialities.

HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. S. T. Newsome; Resident-Manager, Mr. G. E. Wright.—Sid May is here again with his inimitable impersonations, supplemented by his wrestling burlesque; Frank L. Gregory's Troupe juggle with hoops in the most marvellous manner; a thrilling episode is that entitled The Spy, given by Percy Ford and Edward C. Webb's company; an artistic instrumental performance is furnished by Mlle. Renee, the lady being an adept on the saxophone, horn, piano, cornet, &c. Other artists who add very considerably to the programme are Teresa d'Silvia, vocalist and burlesque artist; the Three Pirmans, in a novel pantomime gymnastic creation; Herbert La Martine, vocalist and eccentric dancer; and Baker and Desales, America's comedy artists and comedy dancers; two sets of Bioscope pictures finish a good evening's entertainment.

EMPIRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Geo. Dance; Manager, Mr. K. Draco.—Heading the bill is a laughable sketch, entitled Three of a Kind, ably presented by Ethel Arden and George Abel, who have just returned from an American tour; Herbert Clifton is a remarkable boy imitator; Lister and Cook appear in a well-rendered musical act; Miss Edie Gray is a capable comedienne; and Tony Black and R. Beauchamp, as comedians, contribute capably. An excellent set of animated pictures brings the programme to a close.

CRADLEY HEATH.—EMPIRE. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. Jno. H. Morton. — Messrs. Chas. Freeman and Geo. Derricke's company is giving Current Cash, East Lynne, and A White Demon here this week. In Current Cash, Mr. Wilfred Blair as Major Challis acted in a first-class manner, and won constant recognition; Mr. Geo. Derricke was a humorous Lincoln Green, causing roars of laughter; Mr. Claude Gravelly as Harry Chafferton showed great histrionic ability; Mr. Frank Coston as Ned Booles had a lot to do, and did it well; Mr. Arthur Armstrong made a capital Warder; Mr. Tom Arkinstall was a dignified Magistrate; Mr. Fred T. Carroll as Governor of the Prison made the most of his part; Miss Ivy Derry as Delia Challis had a charm of manner that carried the audience with her; Miss Winnie Webster deserved special mention for her able presentment of Sybil Milton; Miss Florence Tench as Grace Milton acted with much taste and feeling; and Mr. Chas. Freeman played Capt to the rôle of Prince Danilo. The dresses are a wealth of splendour; the chorus is quite satisfactory; and the scenery is excellent. Mr. Harrison Frewin skilfully leads the efficient orchestra.

Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll.—An entertaining programme here includes the American Bioscope Co.'s living pictures and picture songs, also a novel feature in the cinephone.

Empire Palace of Varieties.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. Walter Gibbons and Thomas Barrasford; Manager, Mr. Eustace Jay.—Mr. Lewis Waller in the title-rôle of The Admiral's Lady secures great applause. Able support is given by Messrs. E. Waller, G. Heathcote, H. Coveney, F. Beer, and Misses Dorothy Ripley and K. Vyse. The Bensons create a furore in their unflagging efforts to amuse in The Page and the Maid; Honors and Le Prince give an exceedingly smart and humorous acrobatic act; Colonel Gaston Bordeverry's rifle and pistol exhibition is very clever; Fred Hallam is a grotesque comedian; Jeannie Deans, Scotch comedienne, sings and dances nicely; Arabella Allen's impersonations of Shylock and Pete are well studied; Dan Fraser is an interesting Scotch comedian; Manning and Gomersal, comedy duo, are amusing; and enjoyable pictures are shown on the Imperial Bioscope.

DARLINGTON.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. James Bell.—Mr. E. Hill-Mitchelson's company is here with his new drama, King and the Unknown Woman. The part of Prince Loris is cleverly portrayed by Mr. James Stillwell; Mr. Stephen E. Scanlan gives a finished reading of the part of Prince Menski; Mr. W. R. Winning as General Platz is always dignified; Miss Muriel Inglis proves herself an actress of emotional power; Miss Norma Dumayne as Else plays in queenly fashion; Miss Cissie Podmore as Schnappe is clever; Miss Elsie Clark takes a boy's part capitally; Mr. W. E. Passmore's comedy as Stack is good; and Miss F. Conyers Radcliffe is picturesque and effective as Zora. The scenery is well painted.

New Hippodrome, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Signor Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. Hersee.—Mr. Harry Roxbury and company are here with the pantomime Mother Goose, playing twice nightly. Crowded houses on Monday night gave evidence of their appreciation of the company's excellent performance. Mr. Harry Roxbury as Mother Goose is excellent; J. W. Gallager as Jack is well received; Miss Maud Prenton is a sweet Colin; and other parts are in the hands of Miss Lilly Palmer (Jill), Miss Marjorie Prenton, and Miss Ada Beechey. The Four Sidney Girls are clever; the Miltons give a fine skating show; and the Royal Welsh Entertainers supply an agreeable performance.

DARWEN.—Picture Palace and Theatre Royal.—Lessees, The Animated Pictorial Enterprises, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. J. A. Whitehouse.—The Claymore Trio of dancers, jugglers, and singers give a clever turn; Jack Binns, an eccentric comedian, causes laughter; Lira, the one-legged gymnast creates applause; and Hampton and Bauman are both smart and amusing in their character comedy duo. Excellent pictures on the Bioscope conclude a good bill.

Public Hall and Palace of Varieties.—Lessees, Messrs. Thomson, Leivers, and Bennett; Manager, Mr. J. E. Thomson; Assistant-Manager, Mr. J. Kerrigan.—Interspersed with the latest pictures and the cinephone are R. C. Note, an excellent chorus comedian; Ethel D'Ancy, a charming contralto vocalist; and Frank Whiteley, who receives an ovation for his solos on the bones.

DERBY.—Grand Theatre and Opera House.—Sole Proprietor and General-Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Charles Denley.—The boards this week are occupied by Mr. Percy Hutchison's company in Brewster's Millions. Mr. Hutchison, in the title-rôle, submits a highly finished assumption and scores a complete success; Miss Cicely Stuckey as Margaret (Peggy) plays with great grace and charm; Miss Eva Stewart gives a clever study of Barbara Drew; Miss Francis Davie does admirably as Janice Armstrong; Miss Sybil Walsh is praiseworthy as Mrs. Dan de Mille; and Miss Mary Scott does well as Trickey Clayton; Mr. Aubrey Mather (Joseph McLeod), Mr. Henry Hampson (Archie Golding), and Mr. Cyril Rawdon (Charlie Harrison) are admirably suited in their respective parts; Mr. Robert Forsyth as Mr. Grant, the solicitor, and Mr. A. Andrews as Colonel Drew are excellent; and Mr. Frank Hill as Rawles, the butler, is also deserving of praise. Other characters are in the capable hands of Messrs. Charles Esdale, Otho Hazlewood, Douglas Greet, U. S. Haye, Geo. Salver, A. P. Kaye, and Miss May Seton. The yacht scene in the third act is probably the most wonderful example of stage mechanism ever witnessed locally.

Palace Theatre of Varieties.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes.—Mr. James Kiddie's pantomime Dick Whittington is a strong attraction here, and is meeting with a hearty reception. The title-rôle is capably sustained by Miss Lena Page, whose charming presence and tuneful voice make her an assured favourite; the Alice of Miss Nellie Merton is a depiction at once pleasing and clever, and she is to be congratulated upon a thoroughly successful presentment; Miss Florence Hilton as Sir Algernon de Mash is a vivacious little comedienne, whose efforts are greatly appreciated; Mr. Dennis McCarthy submits a droll impersonation of Fitzwarren; and Mr. Fred Spencer as the Cook is in every way entertaining, and does much to secure the success of the pantomime. A first-class set of comedians include the Hannaway Bros. as the Apprentices, Mr. Geo. Ryden as Idle Jack, and Mr. Archie J. Milne as Rodento, and their business keeps the house in a continuous roar. Other excellent characterisations are submitted by Miss Lillie Storrie, Miss Gipsy Ray, Miss Gertie Newhall, and Miss Edie Goodwin. Miss Dorothy Dryden is a graceful speciality dancer, and meets with great acceptation. Possessed of a well-trained chorus and gorgeous scenery, the show goes with an enjoyable swing throughout. Mr. Cyril Dundas is a courteous stage and general manager, and the results of his untiring zeal are such as to redound very greatly to his credit.

DEVONPORT.—Hippodrome.—Manager, Mr. H. Taylor.—The Capture of Venus, by J. C. Piddock and company, is the principal attraction, and proves exceedingly popular. Humour is judiciously interwoven with some cultured singing, Miss Florence Lee being chief contributor in the latter department; whilst Mr. G. Oxley is very amusing as the thirsty Jolliboy. Happy Tom Parker's songs and patter are listened to with great relish; Hillman and Russell supply an amusing duologue entitled The Somnambulist; Allsopp and Beckwith, popular local favourites, are again heartily welcomed; Les Aribos furnish a finished contribution; Wright and Lawson, Tom Saunders, and Frank Weir complete an enjoyable programme.

Theatre Metropole.—Manager, Mr. Geo. S. King.—Mr. Kelly's company, in the ever-popular Royal Divorce, is playing to large houses. Mr. Keith Fraser supplies a rendering of the great Emperor which produces a marked effect; Miss Winnie Tempest is delightfully sympathetic as the unfortunate Josephine; Miss Leah Marlborough is excellent as the bitter and satirical Marie Louise; and Miss Ethel Love does well as the youthful King of Rome. Miss Maude Lacey is an amusing and hard-working Stephanie; Mr. Percy Anson is a capable Talleyrand; and Mr. E. Plumpton is particularly good as General Angereau.

DONCASTER.—New Grand Theatre and Opera House, Ltd.—Manager, Mr. J. W. Chapman.—Mr. Allan Wilkie and company made a successful appearance in The Merchant of Venice on Monday. Mr. Wilkie's conception of Shylock was realistic, and no less effective was the Bassanio of Mr. Alexander Marsh. Miss Haidee Gunn in the rôle of Portia created a fine impression, and Miss Maud Gill was a dainty Stephano, and was warmly applauded. Others in the cast were Messrs. J. Paley, H. Meharry, Frank Royde, Mark Turner, Harold Greaves, and Misses Alice Miller, Agnes Gagan, and Hunter Watt. On Tuesday evening the combination was even more successful in Hamlet.

DOVER.—Royal Hippodrome.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. S. W. Winter; Resident-Manager, Mr. E. W. Holford.—Joe Belmont, known as the "Human Bird," is a great success here in his imitations; F. A. Martell dances on his finger-tips and balances himself on one finger; good songs are given by Will Musgrave; Lucy Gillet is a neat juvenile lady juggler; "On the balcony" and "March away" are two catchy chorus songs introduced by Rose Cambey; the patter of Pueblo and Cropp, comedy artists, is decidedly good, as is also their expert sand-dancing; Frivola and Deep appear in an eccentric acrobatic act; and pictures are shown on the Bioscope.

DUBLIN.—Gaiety Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mrs. Michael Gunn; General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. Charles Hyland. — Robinson Crusoe, which entered on its last two weeks' stay here on Monday, continues to provide immense enjoyment for crowded houses. The smart dialogue and new songs introduced by the principal artists in the second edition has added greatly to its continued success. On Tuesday night Miss Winifred Hare, who has worked so hard during the run of the pantomime, was accorded a well-deserved benefit, when several of the artists from the different theatres, as well as some local turns, appeared, and met with a hearty reception from a well-filled house. Thursday night was set apart for the benefit of Mr. J. J. Dallas (Mrs. Crusoe).

Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Parrington.—The charming pantomime Jack and Jill has entered on its second week here, and continues to be patronised by large audiences nightly. The piece is now running smoothly along, the applause throughout being frequent. Miss Dorothy Ward retains her popularity in the rôle of Jack, and Miss Edith Fink is as attractive as ever as Jill. Mr. George Miller as the Widow Cobble and Mr. J. A. Warden as Baron Bounce contrive to keep the fun going. Mr. George Lashwood continues his success as Prince Opulent. Miss Stella de Marney as Margery and Miss May Rawlinson as the Fairy Princess also score in their respective parts, and the Tiller Superba Quartette execute some clever dances which merit warm approval.

Empire — General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager and Secretary, Mr. George H. Marsh.—The attractions at this house are many this week, chief among them being Fred Storey and capable company in their clever sketch Rip Van Winkle, which meets with a most gratifying reception. A delightful turn is rendered by the popular favourite Miss Lily Burnand, whose latest successes "Cheek" and "Sally" are loudly applauded; Cliff Ryland causes a constant ripple of merriment with his clever patter and songs; Mabel Mignon, comedienne and dancer, scores a distinct success; in a charming novel scena, Lights Out, Jack Crawley earns a large share of applause; Miss Florence Gardner, American comedienne, keeps the audience highly amused by her quaint mannerisms; Marjutti, in an original creation, From Demon to Fairyland, proves a great attraction; Mr. Ernest Clifford is a capital comedian and dancer; and the Empire pictures For the Motherland and A Game of Cards complete a good all-round entertainment.

Tivoli.—General-Manager, Mr. Charles M. Jones; Assistant-Manager, Mr. H. A. Murphy.—The top of the bill here is occupied by Minerva, the American queen of mystery, whose remarkable performance secures much applause. Newell and Niblo are another capital turn, and have a good reception; Arthur Harris, actor-vocalist, is much appreciated; the Brothers Corcoran are excellent in their musical and quick-change act; Renee Graham creates a favourable impression as a vocalist; the Three Orros in a clever gymnastic act score a success; Woolmer Young, vocal comedian, sings a couple of songs in smart style; Hinton and Wooton in a football match on bicycles create much excitement; and J. F. Franklin, an acceptable comedian, and the Bioscope depicting The Galway Bog Slide concludes.

Round Room Rotunda. — The Irish Animated Picture Company is still here, and continues to draw large audiences daily. The list this week includes A Moonlight Trip on the Nile, Views of Italian Cascades, Famous Waterfalls, &c., and a number of humorous pictures which create much laughter. The vocal numbers of Mr. Patrick O'Shea, tenor, Mr. Ralph Goggin, baritone, and Mr. W. M. Grant, cicerone, and the Granpierre orchestra are also well appreciated.

World's Fair and Music Hall.—Proprietor, Mr. C. A. James.—The programme here includes:—The Melvas, champion clog dancers; Jim Meadows, comedian; Miss Nancy Lil, descriptive vocalist; Prof. T. Mowbray, ventriloquist and conjurer; Martin Melia, champion clog dancer; Rhodes and Lanes, comedy patterers and duettists; and the Cinematograph.

DUDLEY.—Opera House.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. Maurice Clement; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. W. Tilley.—The Heathen and The Christian is presented here this week by Mr. Frank Adair and company, and is powerfully played. As Li, the Avenger, Mr. Adair fills a strong character in perfect manner, and Mr. Hugh Mewburn is successful in the somewhat difficult rôle of Lung Hi; Mr. Herbert Robinson is thoroughly earnest as Lord Allendale; and Mr. Gerald Turner gives a polished representation of Admiral Freebold; Mr. Dudley Wynton is perfectly at home in the part of George Berresford, a missionary; Miss Adeline Raby acts the villainous Mira Sampson with perfect abandon, and seems to revel in the part; Miss Eva Reed as Becky Fibbins, a lovesick slavey, causes endless hilarity; and Miss Fay Garnet Vayne takes the trying part of May Berresford in a perfectly easy and winning manner. The piece is elaborately staged, and deserves a successful run.

Empire.—Proprietors, The Midland Entertainment Corporation; Resident-Manager, Mr. F. H. Waters.—Topping the bill this week we have Ebrahim's Four Indian Fakirs, who completely baffle the audiences with their clever and mysterious tricks; a very enjoyable performance is given by Victor Widdicombe and company in a comedy episode, entitled Her Devonshire Dad, the characters being most ably portrayed by Mr. Widdicombe, Miss Clara Russell, and Mr. D. T. Roe, Nellie Lawrence is a gifted singer, and her song, "Croon, Croon," and neatly executed dance gain applause. Another popular turn is that of Stave, musical comedy artist; Joe Cookson is a smart and original ventriloquist; Charles Gardiner, comedian, with good songs, is extremely amusing; and Winnie Stanhope is a chic comedienne.

DUNDEE.—Her Majesty's Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Manager, Mr. Louis Karpe.—A cordial greeting was given to Mr. Fred. Melville's company in Her Forbidden Marriage on Monday. Mr. Henry Lonsdale sustained the rôle of George Madison with dignity and power; Mr. Louis Hector made a duly repulsive Charles Devereux; Mr. Wilfred Mansfield's Sir George was excellent; Mr. Conrad Stratford gave a commendable rendering of the Rev. Mr. Dean; Mr. Fred de Vere as Timothy Tuttut proved himself a first-rate comedian; Miss Isla Garnett-Vayne made a sympathetic Lucy; Miss Florence Hunt a vivid Lady Lucretia; Miss Grace Lester a picturesque and impressive Mother Superior; and Miss Grace Emery a particularly good Patty. Mr. C. Davidson was seen to advantage as Geoffrey Broughton; and Mr. Vincent Loraine caused much amusement as the deaf old rustic.

Palace Theatre.—Lessees, The United County Theatres, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. S. McIntosh.—At the head of affairs here is that merry sketch, Casey's Court, which provides boisterous fun, Mr. Will Murray as Mrs. Casey being very diverting. Mahatma, assisted by Professor Charles R. Steen, gives a remarkably clever second-sight demonstration; Jack Hylton and Walter King, comedians, come in for warm receptions; Boden and Bell are smart juvenile vocalists and dancers; Little Dot Moss, the toy comedienne, is very pleasing; Major Arnold's magical scena is decidedly novel; the Robertys shine in a brilliant balancing act, and the Palascope, with up-to-date films, completes the programme.

Gaiety Theatre.—Lessee, Mrs. Lillie Williams; Licensee, Mr. W. E. Potts; General-Manager, Mr. Frank Percival; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. E. Evans.—A varied and attractive programme is submitted at this popular house this week, top-liners being Bellman and Moore, a Yankee duo; another deservedly popular turn is W. D. MacKenzie's company in their artistic scena, Moments with the Masters, introducing a chorus of fifteen voices; Burnetti, besides proving an excellent quick-change artist, gives life-like impersonations of several leading lights in the music-hall world; Thomas and Taylor make a hit with Fun on the Midland, which depicts in laughable fashion the worries of a railway guard; Irene Meldon is a dainty vocalist, with good songs; Jack Smiles, a comedian with a quaint individuality, scores a huge hit with his witty ditties; Les Frasettis, violin, harp, and xylophone soloists, are particularly pleasing, and the Lombards show strength and agility in their equilibristic act.

Empire Theatre.—Lessee and Manageress, Mrs. Lillie Williams; Business-Manager, Mr. Frank Percival; Acting-Manager, Mr. Alfred Ross.—Newman's British Empire Picture Company are showing a remarkably fine selecton of films this week, the most popular of which are: The Ingrate, The Time of the Normans, Percy's Moustache, and The Vulcanic Chimney. Capital variety turns are contributed by Zenora, who gives a very clever hand-jumping exhibition; and Bandoni, a splendid instrumentalist.

Newman's Picture Palace.—Mr. Fred Newman submits a capital programme of films at his popular house this week. The pictures are all of the most up-to-date character, and many are beautifully coloured. An excellent variety programme includes a Cake Walk Competition, which is proving very popular.

Gilfillan Hall.—Britain's Best Animated Pictures opened here on Monday under the auspices of the Dundee City Concerts and Entertainments Company, Ltd.—A large house thoroughly enjoyed the entertainment.

American Roller Rink.—Managing-Directors, Mr. C. P. Crawford and Mr. F. A. Wilkins; Manager, Mr. Bert Crump.—Roller skating has undoubtedly caught on here, as the large crowds of patrons who daily flock to this spacious and well-appointed rink testify.

EASTBOURNE.—Devonshire Park Theatre.—Sole Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Murray King and Clark.—Mr. Leonard Boyne's capital company is on a return visit with Raffles. As A. J. Raffles Mr. Bille Norwood is a worthy exponent of the part, which he endows with much attractive interest; Mr. Arthur Willoughby is a dignified and polished Earl of Amersteth; Mr. Cecil Brymer plays the part of Viscount Crowley very cleverly, with all the amusing assurance necessary; Mr. E. W. Thomas again displays all the directness and buoyancy which make his work as Curtis Bedford so successful; it is difficult to speak too highly in praise of the excellent efforts of Mr. Haroid West as Bunny Maunders; Mr. Dalziel Heron, forceful and striking, is well placed as Crawshay; and Mr. Sydney Edwards and Mr. Arthur Fitzgerald give excellent help as Goldby and Barraclough. Miss Agnes Knight as Lady Melrose is an able and aristocratic exponent of the part; Miss Elizabeth Fitzgerald is a delightfully animated and girlish Lady Ethel; Miss Lucie Milner gives quiet effect to her performance as Gwendoline; Miss May Brooke is an earnest and commendable Mrs. Vidal; and Miss Dorothy Gordon satisfactorily completes the cast as Marie.

The Royal Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr. Sidney W. Winter; District-Manager, Mr. George Egbert; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Holloway.—Heading the bill here this week is Mlle. Oceana, who smartly escapes from a strait-waistcoat, and then mystifies the audience by emerging from an enclosed barrel filled up with water; Mr. Charles Bignell delights the gallery with his song, "Are we downhearted?"; Belford and Mars are an amusing comedy couple; Gibbon and Belle have a turn of exceptional merit, the gentleman's contortion work being clever and finished; Miss Nina St. Elmo is a very dainty and pleasing comedienne, with effective songs; Milton and Mora are smart, expert, and funny bar performers; Miss Flo Inman sings admirably; and new pictures are shown.

The Pier Pavilion Theatre.—Manager, Mr. George Hayes.—Mr. Henry Swinerd's company is appearing here in Dare-Devil Dorothy. Miss Nellie Valentine is quite a success in the title-rôle, singing and acting in a capable manner; Miss Ethel Griffies is a handsome and artistic Ruth; Miss Nellie Harcourt does bright work as Judith, and she is a smart dancer; Miss Florence Corri as Rosy Ann, and Miss Daisy Holbrook as Polly, introduce some very clever step and acrobatic dancing. Mr. Walter Ashley as Captain Fielding acts well, and uses a good voice to advantage; Mr. Walter Nugent plays with force and depth as Captain Dudley; as Silas Crump Mr. Will Brereton keeps the house in constant merriment, being a very clever dancer, singer, and all-round comedian; Mr. Edward Aldworth is a subtle and distinct Hawkins; Mr. Dean Cliffe is an amusing Haugh; and the remaining characters are satisfactory played.

EDINBURGH.—Royal Lyceum Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs. Howard and Wyndham, Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. Geo. T. Minshull; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. M. Downie.—It is very seldom that a play makes such an immediate success as The Dollar Princess, produced by Mr. George Edwardes's company, did here on Monday evening last. The house was crowded from floor to ceiling, and the audience was lavish in applause. The enthusiasm was well deserved. The musical play was delightfully acted, the singing was admirable, and the mounting was sumptuous even for Mr. George Edwardes, whose name is a synonym for beauty of mise-en-scène. Miss Hilda Moody was in splendid form, and once more proved herself one of the most charming of operatic actresses and singers; Mr. Robert Michaelis is a handsome young actor, who knows how to use his cultured voice with power and expression—his solos were splendidly rendered, and into the duets "Inspection" and "Typewriting" both players infused much humour. Miss Kitty Gordon's handsome figure and majestic style completely realised the part of Olga, a lion queen, and she sang with effect; Miss Alice Moffat was bright and clever in the character of Daisy, and her fresh, sweet voice was heard to great advantage in the music allotted to her; Mr. Fred Winn was effective in a quiet way as Phineas Q. Conder; and as his aristocratic servants, Mr. Robert St. George, Mr. Willie Warde, and Mr. Philip Simmons were excellent. The other parts were capitally filled, and Mr. Carl Kiefert was an able and energetic conductor. The actors were recalled at the close of each act, and had to appear before the curtain at the end of the play.

Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Whitehead.—The pantomime Dick Whittington continues its successful and popular career at the Royal. The actors are as good, as hearty in their endeavours to amuse, as they were in the opening nights of the piece. Miss Jane Eyre, graceful actress and most delightful vocalist, has won hosts of admirers by her charming impersonation of the title part; while dainty Miss Ethel Erskine, by her vivacity as Alice, has helped greatly to brighten up the scenes in which she appears; Mr. Will Evans, an amusing comedian, whose energy never flags, is very droll as Idle Jack; and Mr. Ernest J. Langford as Rupert Raffles, Mr. William Downes as Captain Jack, Mr. Harry Bickley as Eliza, and Mr. Albert Felino in his clever work as Mouser, the cat, assist heartily in the general production of merriment. Miss Molly Maguire's singing as Bluebell is sweet and expressive; and the Ahmed of Miss Florence Ward and the Zoe of Miss Mena Brae are marked by much dash and ability.

Empire Palace Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. Aynsley Cook.—An interesting programme includes among its most attractive items an exhibition of Icelandic wrestling by Joh Josefsson and several of his countrymen, who, in addition to displaying their own peculiar methods, are prepared to meet any middle-weight wrestlers in the Græco-Roman or other styles. Local celebrities have added considerably to the interest of the bouts on the stage during the week. Mr. B. A. Rolfe's Colonial Septette of instrumentalists render a varied selection very delightfully; and Mr. Oswald Williams presents a bewildering succession of clever illusions; Miss Nellie Coleman easily scores as the ong and only female comedian, her eccentric impersonations being exceedingly amusing; Mr. Walter Munroe also has a look-in as an Irish character comedian and dancer; and Miss Lil O'Gorman gives a successful turn. Among the dual performances the Brothers St. Clair are prominent with their exciting football match on bicycles; Fayre and Manning show skill as comedians and dancers; and Guyer and Valli introduce a nondescript American sketch entitled Wait for the Finish. The Bioscope pictures illustrate the methods of training adopted by Johnson and Burns prior to their prize fight.

King's Theatre.—General-Manager, Mr. Amand Mascard.—Dr. Walford Bodie heads the bill at this house this week, giving his remarkable electrical experiments, including the novel and hazardous feat entitled The Cage of Death, in which the performer displays his extraordinary power of permitting a high current to pass through his body. Dr. Bodie also shows his familiarity with mesmerism, and arouses the enthusiasm of his audiences in various cures of paralysed children. The programme contains many other admirable turns, including The Brooklyn Comedy Four, a company of very amusing comedians; Primavesi, a juggler who contributes a fresh act; Pete and Minnie Lee, two clever performers, whose sketch The Scotsman's Visit to London is smart and entertaining; Mr. E. S. Kempton, comedian and dancer; Yetta, an intrepid performer on the slack wire; Miss Bella Skene, burlesque actress and vocalist; and Little Dolly Robson, a pleasant singer.

Cooke's Royal Circus.—Proprietor, Mr. John Henry Cooke.—The closing weeks of the season are indicated by the announcements of benefit nights for individual performers, and a bumper house the other evening marked the appreciation of Talberto and Douglas by their Edinburgh friends and admirers. An excellent variety bill comprised ludicrous interludes and absurdities by the popular beneficiaries; Shakespearean characters very capably portrayed on horseback by Leicester Alfred Cooke; and a unique exhibition of animal training by Miss Edina Marion Cooke. An equestrian serpentine dance was effectively given by Miss Florence Transfield; the Misses Lolo and May proved themselves expert gymnasts and dancers; Horton and Linder were diverting in their comedy horizontal bar performance; Harry Stephenson appeared in a smart jockey act; Herr Guttenberg's violin playing on horseback was marked by skilful execution; and the eccentricities of the droll Shadow and Comical Walker, with an admirable display of bioscope films, all served as a good prelude to the spectacular pantomime of King Gold, which has had a phenomenally successful run.

EXETER.—Theatre Royal.—Chairman and Managing-Director, Mr. Edward J. Domville, J.P.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy M. Dunsford. — Mr. Wentworth Croke's company in The Prodigal Son is proving a great attraction here this week. Mr. Hugh Montgomery as Magnus Stephenson plays with a force and vigour that were both convincing and attractive. In the title part Mr. Gordon Macintosh is seen to advantage, his portrayal of a difficult rôle being commendably natural and unstained; Miss Valerie Crespin as Thora, and later Thora's daughter Elin, is received with entire approbation; and Mildred Cottell as Helga is excellent. Anna is pleasingly enacted by Miss Barbara Gott; Margaret Neilson is depicted by Miss Marie Harcourt in an entirely successful manner; and the Governor, the Factor, Dr. Olsen, and Neils Finsen are carefully and capably delineated by Messrs. Bellenden Clarke, Philip Renouf, Bruce Lindley, and Charles A. Maynard respectively.

New Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. Fred Karno and A. H. Edwards; Resident-Manager, Mr. Frederick Sandy.—Jan Rudenyi, supported by Miss Dora de Winton and Mr. John D. Saunders, in The Power of Music, provides a rich musical treat; Berzac's comedy animal act is well received; and George D'Albert also proved a popular turn. Celest is a remarkably clever and original gymnast; and Eadie and Ramsden also achieve success; Miss Violet Hollom, who has been playing Cinderella at the Theatre Royal, had an excellent reception, and was deservedly encored; Helen Martin is a pleasing vocalist; and Kurkamp, the singing conductor, is much appreciated.

FALKIRK.—Grand Theatre and Opera House.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. Horace W. Ebbutt.—Another delightful musical comedy in The Merry Widow is being staged this week, and even in a successive round of capital pieces this is voted one of the most bewitching. The company is that of Mr. George Edwardes, and Miss Mysie Devine appears in the title rôle, while Mr. Frank Greene plays the Prince. Both are excellent. Mr. Ripley Evans as the Vicomte has many opportunities of declaring a rare tenor voice; Natalie is taken by Miss Ada Thomas, who proclaims herself a charming actress; the part of Baron Popoff is well spiced with drollery and quaint repartee, of which Mr. Edward D'Arcy makes the most; and not far behind him is Mr. Fred Fowler as Nisch.

GAINSBOROUGH.—King's Theatre.—Lessees, Gainsborough Theatre Co.; Managing-Director, Mr. Fred Leighton.—Mr. Chas. Constant's Blue Beard pantomime company opened here on Monday for three nights. Miss Marie Duncan made a charming Fatima; Miss Daisy Lake a dashing Selim; Sister Ann was well played by Mr. Johnny Clegg, who was well supported by Mr. Walter B. Frear and Mr. Jack Parker. Some clever specialities were introduced by Messrs. Harlin and Hanlon, Russel and Gage, and the Florodorians. Miss Laura Wickenden sang well as the Fairy Queen.

GATESHEAD.—King's Theatre.—Lessees, United County Theatres, Ltd.; Resident-Manager and Licensee, Mr. Harold Arnold.—Yangar's illusions here are out of the ordinary; Ferguson and Mack are exceedingly funny acrobats; the Cumberlands, with a cycling show, are very popular; Johnny Dwyer, a comedian of more than average ability, makes many friends; the Crown Trio of vocalists are entertaining; the Musical Keiths render popular melodies on a number of instruments; and Harry Bent, mimic, Carlotta Lunn, comedienne, and the Kingscope also provide suitable entertainment.

Metropole Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. F. W. Bolam; General-Manager, Mr. R. G. Elder; Acting-Manager, Mr. Ernest Dixon.—The management here are to be congratulated on the engagement of Mr. Wentworth Croke's company in The Bondman. Chief honours go to Mr. R. Scrope Quentin, whose Jason is a very fine performance; next comes Miss Georgina Wynter, who makes a beautiful Greeba, being powerful and pathetic; Mr. W. H. Hargreaves is a picturesque and dignified Michael; a pleasing Adam Fairbrother is Mr. Oswald Lingard; Mr. W. H. Rotheram in the dual rôle of Father Ferrati and Grandfather reveals histrionic ability; Miss Madge Lanerton ably undertakes the part of Mrs. Fairbrother; other members of the cast perform admirably; and the effects are excellent.

GLASGOW.—Theatre Royal, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy Humphrys.—The pantomime here is still attracting large audiences, and it is to be regretted that its early withdrawal has been announced. Mr. George Robey as Buttons is still adding to his popularity, and the applause which greets him nightly is fully justified. The work of the other artists is excellent. Miss Violet Loraine as the Prince and Miss Iris Hoey as Cinderella are particularly attractive, and Mr. Harry Dent (the Baron) keeps the audience in the best of humour with his grotesque impersonations. Mr. Willie Garvey, the Brothers Obo, Miss Edith Kirkwood, and Mr. Paul Sundberg have a big share in the success of the production. The singing is of a high order, and the scenery and dresses throughout are pretty and effective.

Royalty, Ltd. — Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Carpenter.—Mr. Fredk. Mouillot's company is giving a fortnight's revival here of Richard Ganthony's play A Message from Mars. As the selfish Horace Parker Mr. Wallace Widdicombe acts extremely well; Mr. Wm. H. Brougham in figure and voice is exactly suited to the part of the impressive Messenger; Mr. Norman Clark infuses much pathos into his portrayal of the Tramp; Miss Winifred Knightley is very good as the aunt, Miss Parker; and Minnie Templar is played with quiet effect by Miss Rose Helene. A clever touch of character is introduced by Miss Katherine Camp as a poor woman. Other parts are ably played by Mr. Robert Grey as Arthur Dicey, Miss Mary Glenbrane as Mrs. Clarence, Mr. Alfred Drayton as a policeman, and Mr. Guy O'Neil as Dr. Chapman. The weird effects in the first scene are well managed.

Grand.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. B. G. Maclachlan; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. Christie Grant.—Cinderella still holds the field here, and crowds are flocking to see it. Mr. George French as the Baron provokes lots of laughter in his humorous Scotch song, with its still more humorous orchestral accompaniment; Mr. Whit Cunliffe as Dandini in his various songs keeps the hilarity going; a prominent figure is that of the overbearing Baroness (Mr. Tom Conway), who knows how to rule a husband properly; her two comically-forward daughters are well portrayed by Misses Kate Walbran and Nellie Cozens; Mr. Barry Lupino as Capers supplies a fair share of the fun; Miss Queenie Finnis in the title-rôle is simply charming; Miss Violet Halls as the Prince heads the long list of delightful "boys" and "girls" who move so pleasantly through their parts in song or dance. From the opening scene, in which the children are put to bed by the Fairy Godmother (Miss Olive Tempest), till the curtain falls on the spring scene and the wedding of Cinderella there is not a dull moment.

Royal Princess's.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich. Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Hugh Murdoch.—Diccory Dok is still attracting crowded and enthusiastic audiences. All the members work well together, keeping the ball of fun merrily rolling. Miss Flora Cromer as Dick is a great favourite, all her songs being encored; and Miss Ella Retford's personation of Winnie is a fine performance, characterised by all the go which is peculiar to this highly-popular artist. Miss Edith Haley as Ronnie and Miss Maggie Fraser as Pansy contribute several fine songs. Mr. Syd Walker's Professor Pillbox is an artistic bit of comedy, and Squills in the hands of Cliff Lake is most amusing. Mr. Peter Bermingham as Wee Hughie makes an exceedingly mirthful Scotchman, who is responsible for some genuinely funny business. Talented performers also are Mr. Harry A. Gribbon, a genuine droll, as Squire of Eaglesham, Mr. Walter Dale (as Sparkle), Miss Daisy Bartholomew (to be commended for her Matt), Miss Violet Bartholomew (admirable as Jennie), and Miss Ivy Proudfoot (of good service as Sweetbriar), and Miss May Beatrice (as Discord).

Metropole, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Gordon Jefferson.—The attraction this week at the Metropole is that evergreen drama The Silver King. The house this week has proved incapable of holding the vast crowds nightly waiting for admittance. The company is that of Messrs. G. M. Polini and Austin Melford. Mr. Fred Daviss gives a capital representation of Wilfred Denver; Mr. Edward George appears in his accustomed part of Jaikes and is extremely popular; as Nellie Denver Miss Madge Morley is capital, and her representation of the part lacks nothing. The staging of the play is as good as ever.

Lyceum.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich. Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. H. Oakden.—The patrons of this house have a treat this week in the appearance of Fred Karno's company in His Majesty's Guests. The funniosities of Mr. George Hestor as Sergeant Lightning were greatly enjoyed, and he was ably supported by Mr. Rupert Stutfield as Lord Easem, Mr. Chas. Usher as Mr. Miffin, and Mr. C. Griffiths as Harry, who all figure prominently in the humorous burglarious complications that ensue. Variety is lent to the play by the acrobatics of Mr. C. Richardson as the Flunkey and Mr. Tom Manardo as Selina, while Miss Edith Ager efficiently assists Mr. Stutfield with the lyrics. Miss Brunton gives an amusing caricature of the New Woman, and Miss Aggie Morris catches the audience with a successful performance as the charming shoplifter (Lady Maud Easem).

Empire.—District-Manager, Mr. S. Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Manners.—Les Fleury, in their revuette Paris Types, give a most interesting sketch, in which the lively portrayal of about sixteen different characters goes to make an exceptionally good star turn; Mr. E. Dagnall and company present a smart and well-acted play in Slippery Jim; Renee Glendower and company give another playlet of an amusing type, A Bit Too Clever; the Brennans show wonderful dexterity and neatness in their clog-dancing; the Miles-Stavordale Quintette again give their wonderful imitations of the human voice on instruments; Jock Mills is amusing in his Scotch songs; the Three Welsh Girls deputise agreeably for an absent turn; Fred Elton scores in his scena at the piano; Rhoda Paul sings well; and the Bioscope shows Johnson and Burns training for their great fight.

Zoo-Hippodrome.—Proprietor, Councillor E. H. Bostock; Assistant-Manager, Mr. E. H. A. Bostock.—An all-round excellent company is provided this week and good houses are the outcome. The Royal Delomes present a little dancing speciality in which they introduce the phantom clogs, and their show is thoroughly enjoyed; Rose Elliott is extremely popular, and her choruses are taken up with zest; and Sinclair and Whiteford are ever welcome, and their humorous sketch Getting Even provokes the same hearty mirth as formerly. Another amusing item is supplied by Walter Ellis and company in an original little sketch entitled The Sleepwalker, which is responsible for much laughter. Gold and Sterling, in their musical comedy The Maid and the Artist, get through their work effectively; the Three Stewarts provide a capital equilibristic turn; Will McIvor is a vocalist above the average; a new military sketch, The Kilties' Camp on the Frontier, is productive of some good singing and dancing; Pop Dearly, coon comedian, is responsible for a couple of smart turns; and the Bioscope terminates the programme.

Pavilion, Ltd.—General-Manager, Mr. Samuel Lloyd; Assistant-Manager, Mrs. Evan Good.—An excellent turn has been secured here this week in the Eight Welsh Miners, who, in a special and realistic scene representing ser and company appear in a sketch, The Prima Donna, in which various songs are given, including the Jewel Song from Faust and the waltz from Romeo et Juliette; a clever and picturesquely set turn is that of the Sisters Macarte in their vocal, instrumental, and wire-walking items; Dora Barrington, assisted by Netta Grey, also gives an interesting vocal scena, introducing operatic and other ballads; the Richards Trio submit a clever acrobatic and balancing display; the Three Sisters Wynne sing and dance well; Charles Ulrick again shows his dexterity at barrel juggling; and Biff Hall is amusing as a melancholy Hebrew.

PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich. Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry McKelvie. — Crowded houses are the rule here this week, a strong company being headed by Houdini, of handcuff fame, who introduces his latest sensation, that of escaping from an iron can filled with water and locked with six padlocks; the Four Royal Scots make an excellent impression with their vocal and instrumental sketch The Waif; a vocal scena by Corman's juveniles pleases the house immensely; Tom E. Conover scores heavily with song and gag; and a smart comedienne is seen in Kitty Beresford. An amusing pantomime act is contributed by the Arthur Bedini Trio; and the vocalist and mimic Fred Horsfall gives a refined show. The Palacescope is a popular feature.

COLISEUM.—District-Manager, Mr. S. Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Burdette.—The Four Holloways are starring here and earning unstinted applause for their smart acrobatic work and astonishing cycling feats on the tight wire; the Ten Zerbinis submit a very pleasing act, The Enchanted Glen, in which scenic beauty, instrumental talent, and humour are nicely blended; Horace Pollock is again seen in his amusing impersonation of the Curate in Hester's Mystery, being ably assisted by Messrs. Harry Collier and Edmund Pollock and Misses Pattie Groves and Pearl Keats; that accomplished character comedian Charles Coborn is also on the programme; the eccentric comedy act of Will Dacey and Nellie Lewis proves diverting; for her principal song Bessie Slaughter sings "The Better Land" with fine effect; the clever American mimic Alf Holt, The Page's Recreation, by Vetter Bros., and Mr. Pat Rafferty are also in the programme.

GAIETY, LTD. — General-Manager, Mr. Harry Bowerman.—Tweed Andrews, a Scotch comedian of more than ordinary ability, met with much acceptance; Ingram and Irving, in a little sketch entitled The New Office Boy, are highly entertaining; Amy Bathurst, who appeared in place of Miss Madge Pollard, in coon song and dance, was well received; Gus Hindell, who sings sensible songs, makes a fine impression in a scena entitled Boys Will Be Boys; T. W. Barrett, whose name must carry old music-hall frequenters' thoughts back to the old Scotia days, sings a couple of ditties in his own particularly eccentric style; Miznah gives a smart conjuring show, concluding with a mysterious tank trick; and animated pictures are also given.

PANOPTICON.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. A. E. Pickard.—J. H. Harris, always a strong favourite here, sings two parody songs in fine style; the Newingtons give a clever acrobatic display; Caryll and Dean are vocalists of ability; Queenie Swift is a charming comedienne; and Tom Duncan, vocalist, is also worthy of note. The Bioscope has a series of interesting pictures.

GLOSSOP.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Sydney Spenser.—Messrs. Hardie and Von Leer's company, in Two Little Vagabonds, is proving an excellent attraction here this week. Mr. George Denham as George Thornton is responsible for a clever portrayal; an equally successful representation of Captain Darville is given by Mr. Norman Yates; John Scarth is in the capable hands of Mr. Joseph Brandon; Mr. James Skea as Bill Mullins, Mr. Leo St. Clare as Dido Bounce, and Mr. Fred Archer as the Coughdrop make a typical trio of unprincipled scamps; Miss Leonora Castelle displays dramatic instinct in the rôle of Marion Thornton; Miss Florence Radcliffe gives an impressive rendering of Barbara Scarth; Miss Ida Drayton makes a sympathetic nurse as Sister Randle; Miss Josie Beltram depicts in an extremely pathetic manner the character of Wally; and as his supposed brother Dick Miss Lizzie Hall (Mrs. Sydney Spenser) well earns the unstinted applause which is bestowed upon her.

GLOUCESTER. — PALACE.—Proprietors, Poole's Theatres, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. C. W. Poole.—The Eight Lancashire Lads head a good all-round bill here, and earn a good reception with their clever dancing; Bert Weston pays a welcome return visit; an act apart from the usual run is presented by the Four Dorians, athletes on the trapeze and rings; a smart turn is provided by the Zenary Brothers with hand-balancing and acrobatic feats; Probyn and Bates as The Dude and Soubrette are good in mock drama, the gentleman's legmania dancing being very fine; Lillie Luraine has a popular musical speciality; and Paul Pelham adds to the humour with his comedy; Dorothy Dundas goes well in chorus songs; and Kinnard (magician) and a good film on the Palacescope complete the programme.

KING'S THEATRE.—Proprietors, Poole's Theatres, Ltd.—The pictures are going as well as ever, and this week's selection of films are good. Miss Gertie Nicholas contributes illustrated songs, and in addition are shown the Cinephone talking and singing pictures.

GREAT YARMOUTH. — ROYAL AQUARIUM.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. W. Nightingale; Assistant-Manager, Mr. W. H. Nightingale.—The first pantomime of the season is being presented here by Mr. Fred J. Little and Mr. Fred Darcy's company in Red Riding Hood. In the title-rôle little Prudence Ayrton is greatly admired for her clever singing and dancing; Miss Florrie Bray, an excellent principal boy, wins great applause; Miss Kitty Marion is a first-rate Prince Charming, her fine presence, coupled with a dashing style, making her a big favourite; Mlle. Tessie D'Alberti's excellent voice is heard to advantage as the Fairy Queen; Messrs. Kerr and Koe as Johnny Green and John Stout create roars of laughter; Mr. George Rapley as the Dame makes a lot of fun; Mr. Sydney T. Russell as the Page is humorous, his song, "Put me on an island," getting many encores; the Baron is well played by Tom Melbourne, whose character songs are much appreciated; Miss Nellie Moore is a dainty Miss Muffit; and Miss Madge Seymour a humorous Maud. Mr. Richard Hamilton gives a clever impersonation of the Wolf. The pantomime is beautifully staged, the scenery and dresses being excellent.

HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. George Gilbert.—Excellent films are being shown here. The film illustrating the Tottenham Outrage is of special interest; many humorous subjects are presented, and the one entitled High Game is worthy of special mention. Sabino gives a clever musical turn; Baby Vi Davis is a clever singer and dancer; Horace Minto a first-rate dancer and club-swinger; and the Four Jimsons appear in an exceptionally amusing sketch.

THE GEM.—Lessees, The Yarmouth Amusement Centre, Ltd.; Resident-Director, Mr. C. B. Cochran; Manager, Mr. Sidney Lawrance.—Fine films are being exhibited here this week. The principal one is entitled A Bargee's Daughter. The illustrated songs are still very popular.

GREENOCK.—ALEXANDRA THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Directors and Managers, Messrs. A. B. and J. J. Wright.—Sherlock Holmes is here this week, with Mr. Joseph Millane in the title-rôle, and audiences have enjoyed as much as formerly the adventures of the famous detective. Mr. Arthur Shelton is seen to great advantage as Dr. Watson; Professor Moriarty has an ideal exponent in Mr. Robert Gilbert; as Billy Master Thomas Russell creates a favourable impression; and Mr. Mark D. Draper lends powerful aid as James Larrabee. Miss Elsie Goulding proved herself an accomplished actress as Alice Faulkner; Miss Edith Vogue gave a capital interpretation of the rôle of Madge Larrabee; and Miss Gwenllyn Cattell as Mrs. Faulkner is all that can be desired.

EMPIRE.—Lessees, the Greenock Empire Syndicate; Responsible-Manager, Mr. Edward McCormick; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. J. Colquhoun.—An excellent programme is headed this week by the Ten Loonies in their humorous musical production Dotty, which has been richly enjoyed. Ernesto performs some remarkable equilibristic feats and juggling novelties; Harry Wright gains great applause for his extempore songs; Fred Dunstone scores as a comedian; the vocal contributions of Grace Darling are pleasingly rendered; Nellie Gannon, contralto vocalist, is popular; and the Bioscope pictures are greatly appreciated.

HIPPODROME.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Harry L. Skivington.—The pantomime Robinson Crusoe, presented twice nightly, is the attraction here this week. In the title-rôle is Miss Amy Randolph, whose spirited acting, combined with a handsome presence, makes her a most attractive principal boy; Fairy Pearl has a pretty and winsome exponent in Miss Dora Lindsay, who renders her songs most agreeably; and Miss Elsa Arnell is a captivating Polly Perkins. Mr. J. Telly Dillsen gives a highly-amusing impersonation of Mrs. Crusoe; as Will Aitken Mr. Fred Davies is particularly good; and Mr. Berte Harte causes roars of laughter as Kernoodlum. The specialities are exceptionally fine, including the Ten Dixie Girls, the Sisters Selwyn, May Carter, Lindsay and Harte the Sisters Poole-Pelham, and Justin and Mantell. The staging and dresses form a wealth of beauty.

GRIMSBY.—PRINCE OF WALES THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. H. Curry; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. W. North.—When Knights Were Bold is greatly enjoyed by good audiences. Mr. James Welch has sent an excellent company, with Mr. Henry J. Ford as Sir Guy de Vere. Mr. Ford extracts the maximum of humour from the part, and creates almost constant laughter; Miss Agnesse de Llana is admirably fitted to the character of the romantic Lady Rowena; Mr. H. Agar Lyons capitally portrays Sir Brian Ballymote; Mr. Vernon Sansbury is responsible for good character acting as Isaac Isaacson; Mr. Guy Lane is completely successful as the Rev. Peter Pottleberry; Mr. Talbot Homewood and Mr. Reginald Hunter cleverly realise the retainers Wittie and Barker, and others taking prominent parts are Mr. Cecil Clayton as the Hon. Charles Widdicombe, Miss Ethel St. John as Sarah Isaacson, Miss Mary O'Hea as Lady Millicent, Miss Ruth Bower as Lady Marjorie, Miss Marion Ryder as Kate Pottleberry, Miss Mabel Younge as the Hon. Mrs. Waldegrave, and Miss Bessie Walters as Alice Barker.

THE PALACE.—General-Manager, Mr. G. Rhodes Parry.—Jock Whiteford retains his former popularity to the full, and his new songs and business are being enthusiastically received, whilst his burlesque of the football spectator is nightly asked for; a pretty spectacle is presented by Lennie and Hast in their speciality The Sea Nymph, which also includes excellent comedy and vocal work; Percival is a comedy pianist with original ideas, and provides a very entertaining turn; the Paul Hesse Trio of acrobats display exceptional skill and daring; Cassie Walmer is a favourite coon vocalist, with pleasing songs; Margaret Huntley and company appear in an interesting sketch, That Girl, Carrots; Julian Ross, comedian, gives a capital item, and an extra turn has been given by Mildred Kersh, a juvenile impersonator of popular artists.

GUERNSEY.—THEATRE ST. JULIANS.—Lessee, Mr. Ed. Marris; Acting-Manager, Mr. Stanley Hope.—Owing to the success that attended The Babes in the Wood a fortnight ago, Mr. John A. Thomson arranged for a return prior to the company's departure for Weymouth. Miss Pattie McCarthy, the handsome Robin, is high in favour; Miss Nina Carlton pleases immensely as Marian; La Belle Sylvia, a clever petite artist, and Miss Cissie Williams, score with their clever dancing; Mr. Frank Halpin and Miss Nora Prendergast's musical efforts are highly appreciated; Les Millicent Frères repeat their sensational turn; Mr. Lovell Rowlands comes in for the bulk of the comedy, receiving able support from Messrs. H. Walton, G. Walker, and R. Digby Ross. Miss Winnie Hypatia and Miss E. Hypatia foot it with much grace. On Thursday the boards were held by the Guernsey Musical and Dramatic Society with Dorothy.

HALIFAX.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling.—Messrs. Dottridge and Longden's successful pantomime Robinson Crusoe is playing to big business here. Miss May Mars, full of resource and vivacity, makes an ideal Robinson Crusoe; Miss Nancy Thornton, a pretty singer and a graceful dancer, with a winning stage presence, has made Polly Perkins a decided success; Miss Kitty Brewster, the Princess, is a vivacious young lady, with a charm of manner her own; Mr. Arnold Richardson as Billy Crusoe is the life and soul of the show—he is very amusing, and when his comedy is combined with that of Mr. Flockton Foster (Captain Cutter) laughter reigns supreme. Mr. Foster is also author, producer, and stage-manager. Bill Starboard and Tom Mainbrace (Elton and Elma) are two very good parts; these artists also introduce a clever comedy triple-bar act. Mr. C. D. North is an impressive Cannibal King, and uses his fine voice to good effect. Mr. Ivan Berlyn (Will Atkins), Mr. Jack Lennol (Dame Crusoe), the Sisters Cora (Jack and Sally), Mr. Oswald Battye (Friday), Miss Jennie Weston (Dick), and Miss Marie Longden (Daisy) are all good. The dresses and scenery are splendid.

GRAND THEATRE, LTD. — Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Resident-Manager, Mr. S. Winks.—The Lancashire Lad is at the Grand. Mr. C. Stafford plays with feeling as David Elmore; Mr. E. Vaughan (Max Carlton), Mr. H. Wallace (Jem Wincott), Mr. W. Kenion (John Willie Wardle), Miss Phyllis Elton (Jessie Wincott), Miss Nell Oliver (Lorna Wincott), and Miss E. Roselle (Kitty de Vere) are all good; Mother Wardle and Jane Alice Clitheroe are two Lancashire dialect parts well played by Miss Molly Monoghan and Miss L. Pearce, both ladies sticking well to the correct vernacular; and the Misses Gertie and Daisy Gaye, two pretty, refined-looking girls, contribute several clever dances and duets.

PALACE AND HIPPODROME, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Reg. H. Foster.—Yettmah is a smart and clever conjurer, with an easy, confident manner; Brull and Hemsley introduce some clever eccentric dancing in Fun in a Music Shop; Jake Friedman and company appear in a successful tabloid opera, Happy Holland; the Fitzroys are capable gymnasts; Mr. and Mrs. George Leonard make a welcome return visit in Coming Home; Godfrey James renews his popularity as the singing collier; and Rosie Reval, comedienne and dancer, and the Bio-Tableaux complete.

HANLEY. — ROYAL. — Proprietors, Hanley Theatres and Circus Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. G. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. Douglas Elphinstone. — Messrs. Lyn Harding and Sidney Cooper's company is here in The Flag Lieutenant. Mr. Lionel Atwill plays Lascelles in a manly style; Mr. George Mallett is an estimable Admiral; Mr. H. Montague Love is a truly artistic Thesiger; Miss Viva Birkett's Lady Hermione is winsome and tender; Miss Florence Jackson as Mrs. Cameron is fascinating; Mr. W. J. Yeldham is well suited; and Miss Stella Leigh is very good.

GRAND.—Proprietors, Hanley Theatres and Circus Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. G. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. Arthur Rand.—Sam Mayo is making a hit here; Mr. Fred Lindsay, with his 25ft. stock whip, astounds all by his almost miraculous manipulation; Evelyn Taylor again scores heavily; the Bros. Bradshaw are received with favour; Jack Neil, comedian, is good; Celesta's Quartette are successful; Ossi Souplessi is clever; and Merill and Ward are well received.

KING'S.—Lessees, Messrs. Moore and Kennedy; Manager, Mr. H. Kennedy.—A really grand display of animated pictures is again attracting packed houses. Mr. Walter Brookes, vocalist, is popular.

HARROGATE.—GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr. Eric Fielding-Smith.—For the first three nights of this week Mr. Herbert Ralland's company appeared in A. W. Pinero's comedy, His House in Order. Mr. J. Herbert Beaumont was excellent as Hilary Jesson, and Mr. Patrick Robertson as Filmer Jesson made an able foil. Mr. Langford Browne as Sir Daniel and Miss Avis Grahame as Lady Ridgeley were both well-placed, and in their smug respectability they were ably seconded by their odious children, Geraldine and Pryce, both capably played by Miss Wray and Mr. Dudley Stuart. Miss Elsie Roberts as Nina was all that could be desired, and played the part to the life. The small parts were in safe hands. The play was well mounted and beautifully dressed. For the remainder of the week Mr. Hamilton Stewart in Secret Service was announced.

HARTLEPOOL.—EMPRESS.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Albert Matham.—There are capital houses here nightly, and all thoroughly enjoy the series of films shown by Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope. The Drama in a Stone Quarry is intensely vivid, as also is that depicting An Old Cashier's Loyalty. Considerable amusement is caused by Two Pigtails and The Ragpicker's Wedding. Films that are watched with considerable interest are the Visit to Couillet Steel Rail Works, Different Aeroplanes, and Two Old College Chums. Gramophone competitions are held nightly, and are a good draw.

HASTINGS.—GAIETY THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland; Resident-Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles E. Scutt.—Toddles was presented on Monday to an eagerly expectant house by Mr. Murray King and company. As Lord Meadows Mr. Murray King was hugely entertaining, and was admirably supported by his company generally, notably by Miss Naomi Neilson as Lady Dover, Mr. Ardene Linden and Miss Evelyn Shelly as Mr. and Mrs. Joblyn, Miss Ada Champion as la Comtesse de Chambry, and Miss Doris Langdon as Constance Joblyn. A clever musical sketch by Mr. Mattie Cheshire formed an agreeable diversion, and secured him unlimited applause, which was deservedly shared in by Miss Evelyn Shelley and Miss Doris Langdon. The piece is well-staged under the management of Mr. C. Douglas Cox.

HIPPODROME.—General-Manager, Mr. H. Vivian-Fisher; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Walter Norman.—An interesting programme is started by Miss Belle Harcourt, an attractive vocal comedienne; some effective pictures are shown on the Bioscope; La Danseuse is a juvenile dancer whose versatility is much applauded; the Cedrics offer a very laughable and original act, Chish and Fips; Gravetta and Parr very cleverly represent a number of celebrities in their pleasing pot-pourri act; the drolleries and patter of Mark Henton are highly amusing; a diverting operetta, in which Boyd and Gilfain prove themselves to be excellent vocalists, is much appreciated; and Vela presents a turn at once clever and entertaining, entitled The Tramp on the Clothes-line.

PIER PAVILION.—General-Manager, Mr. J. D. Hunter.—The delicate pathos and quiet humour of Dickens' "Cricket on the Hearth" is exemplified in a dramatic version introduced by Mr. Frederick Moyes and his talented company. The interpretation by these artists is in every way adequate. A finished and intelligent study of John Perrybingle is given by Mr. Frederick Moyes; the unfeeling character of Gruff Tackleton is satisfactorily taken by Mr. W. Maule Cole, and Mr. Edward Harrison makes an excellent Caleb Plummer, the toy-maker; the dual part of the Stranger and the young bridegroom is well taken by Mr. Maxwell Fraser; Miss Ella Dixon as Dot Perrybingle is exceptionally gentle and sympathetic; a tender and womanly touch is given to the part of May Fielding by Miss Kate Lamont, and her mother is cleverly depicted by Miss Eva Bayley; Caleb's blind daughter Bertha is delicately represented by Miss Clarissa Selwynne, and Miss Blanche Bayley is comically emphatic as Tilly Slowboy.

HEREFORD.—GARRICK THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. Barnsley.—The Gay Goddess, played by Mr. J. Graham's company, was cordially received on Monday. Mr. Arthur Staples is excessively funny as Twinkle; Mr. Richard Te asdale makes the character of Sherlock Blake particularly enjoyable by his singing and excellent dancing; Miss Graham Beck is indefatigable as Juno; Miss Leah Howard makes a charming Priscilla; and Miss Cissy Williams is well placed as Lottie Stimson.

HORWICH.—PRINCE'S.—Lessees, The Horwich Theatre Co.—Messrs. Battersby and Forbes' company, in The Empty Cradle, kept the audience quite absorbed on Monday. The company is an excellent one, dresses and scenery being handsome. Mr. St. Clair Forbes makes Kenneth Bloodworth a fine, manly specimen of muscular Christianity; Mr. Claude H. Seaton paints Carnaby Bloodworth, an unmitigated scoundrel, in very lurid colours; Mr. D. Urquhart plays Sir Carnaby Bloodworth in good style, his repentance appealing powerfully to the audience; Mr. Fred Wells as James Boswell gives a fine representation of the old Romany; Mr. Kenneth Scott scores heavily in the rôle of that erratic impecunious youth the Hon. St. Clair Selby; Mr. Wallace Black as Little Misery, a cripple, has a very heavy task, and deserves the unstinted applause bestowed on his efforts; Mary Barton, Carnaby's accomplice in villainy, is capitally portrayed by Miss L. Marte; Miss Connie Meadows is a very comic slavey, her eccentricities creating roars of laughter; Martha is very carefully rendered by Mrs. Tom Wilson; Miss Nancey Battersby's Ida Boswell is a most artistic and pathetic performance; and the minor characters are in good hands.

HUDDERSFIELD. — HIPPODROME, LTD.—Resident-Manager, Mr. N. M. Robinson.—This week's bill is filled by the Original Leopolds and their company. The various turns are The Houseboat, a bustling sketch, full of good fun and clever acrobatics; Chiko, equilibristic contortionist; Miss Maude Clifton, comedienne; the Stadium Boys, in their smart athletic performance; Francis O'Flynn, banjoist; Tennis and Launе, vocal duettists; Tom Drum and Katie Major, in an amusing comedy duologue; and a series of particularly interesting pictures on the Bioscope.

HULL.—GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Morton's, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. W. F. Morton.—On Monday Mr. Martin Harvey and his company opened in Mr. Stephen Phillips' play The Lost Heir. As a piece of dramatic construction it is somewhat lacking, though the characterisation is cleverly suggested, Mr. Harvey filling his rôle with conspicuous success. Miss N. De Silva, who figures as Lucy Ashton, is essentially pathetic in the part, and she makes it riveting and powerful; Miss Mary Rorke gives a delightful reading of the mother rôle; Mr. Chas. Glenney plays the part of Captain Craigengelt with a fine touch; and Mr. A. E. Rayner is a pleasing Sir William. The Lost Heir is superbly staged. The Corsican Brothers, The Only Way, and The Breed of the Treshams have been in the bill. That veteran artist Mr. Fred Wright is in the company.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr. W. Morton; Manager, Mr. Tom Bogue.—Once again Sunday is occupying the boards at this house. On this occasion we have made the acquaintance of a new representative of the name-part in the person of Miss Janet Lind. She has many attributes, which help her to give a very faithful realisation of the rôle. The rest of the company are capable.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Morton's, Ltd.—Mr. Geo. Morton, Manager.—Pantomime holds the sway at this theatre. Aladdin, which is submitted by the Dottridge and Longden company, is exceedingly well mounted; it has many pleasing melodies, and is played by a company which includes such well-known people as Miss Ray Wallace, who has established herself a great favourite already; Miss Mildred Bryan, whose voice is heard to good advantage; Mr. Leonard Russell, a great favourite in Hull; and others. Amongst the specialities are Robins and Collier, and Mlle. Pauline Rivers' Quartette. The pantomime remains here for a season of three weeks.

THE HIPPODROME.—Lessee, Mr. Alfred Graham; Manager, Mr. Harry Dunford.—The Grip of Iron provides an acceptable principal turn; Mooney and Holbein appear in a laughable comedy: and other artists include Morander and Darius Stacey and Williams, Jan V. Vaubert, Cavalli, and Bert Brantford.

THE EMPIRE.—Lessee, Mr. Harry Slingsby.—Bert Wickham gives a novel exhibition of feats of strength; the other turns are of good standard merit.

THE CIRCUS.—Resident-Manager, Mr. E. Emerson.—Animated pictures are drawing to a close for a period to make room for a circus.

ILKESTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. L. F. A. Rogers.—A Country Girl in London is the attraction this week, the players being the company of Messrs. Alfred Northway and W. V. Garrod. Mr. Garrod himself as Frank Gordon gives a capital performance; and Miss Bertha Kingston as Marjorie Hamilton plays feelingly. Miss Josephine Colona is a clever exponent of Gwendoline Gordon; Mr. John Belton is a quaint Heinrich Oppenheim; and Mr. Seymour Perry (Wilberforce Puddyphat) and Miss Ethel Whiteley (Adelaide) also provide amusement. Mr. John S. Sheridan as John Hamilton is successful. The darker side of the play is ably represented by Mr. Leonard Booker as Godfrey Clinton and Mr. Clifford Marle as Job Smithers. The scenery and electrical effects are admired.

ILKLEY.—KING'S HALL. — Proprietors, Ilkley Urban District Council; Lessee, Mr. Frank Hall.—On Tuesday night Miss Inez Howard's company, under the management of Mr. Henry Chattell, gave a performance of the drama, The Soldier's Wedding, by Walter Melville. The part of Jack Brown was effectively played by Mr. Chas. Baker, and Miss Jean Wigney was charming as his sweetheart, Nancy Lee. The arduous rôle of Julie de Beauvais was rendered with great dramatic effect by the powerful actress, Miss Helen Forest, a lady who used to delight the visitors at Craiglands, Ilkley. Mr. Henry Lancey made a dignified Colonel Graham, and Mr. Frank Fenn furnished a strong characterisation as Charles Courtney. Mr. Willis Collins gave a clever character sketch as the old farmer, Nat Lee.

BRIDGE PAVILION.—Lessee, Mr. Frank Barron; Manager, Mr. George Asaf.—The Coronets opened on Monday evening, under the management of Mr. George Asaf, late manager and founder of the late Royal Magnets. In their new costumes the artists, seven in number, look pretty. The company consists of Miss Phyllis Beryl (contralto), Miss Barbara Merle (soprano), Miss Leila Byron (soubrette), Mr. W. Edwardes-Towle (bass), Mr. Godfrey Pariss (comedian), and Mr. George Asaf (comedian). Mr. Reuben Stamford is an excellent pianist and accompanist. In every way the entertainment is the best of its kind ever given in Ilkley.

INVERNESS.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr. Cameron Burgess.—Mr. Robert Macdonald's company opened on Monday here with The Dairymaids. Mr. Edwin Dodds was the life and soul of the piece as Joe Mivens; Mr. Bernard Vaughan was a capital Doctor; and Messrs. J. Horace Manger and J. H. Bernard, as the two Lieutenants, were responsible for a great amount of fun. The part of Peggie was well played by Miss Janet Reeve; and Miss Dorothy Fife was a pleasing Winnie. As the maid-of-all-work Miss Maud Lucy made things go merrily; and Miss Dorothy Belmore as Lady Brudenell and Miss Julie St. George as Miss Pyechase acted well.

IPSWICH.—LYCEUM THEATRE.—Mr. Eugene C. Stafford's company occupies the house this week with The Private Secretary. The company is excellent all-round, not a point being missed throughout where a laugh can be raised, and the fall of the curtain brings rounds of appreciative applause. Mr. Donald Price Evans as the Rev. Robert Spalding, Mr. W. Hargreaves as Mr. Cattermole, and Mr. Frederick Tyrrell as Stanley Gibson act their parts to the life. Mr. Frank Stanley is Mr. Marsh, and Mr. Alex. Begbie is the Nephew, and Mr. Herbert Garshom plays Douglas Cattermole. Mr. Chas. Wallace and Mr John Macready are respectively John and Knox. Miss Nan Macrea as Edith Marsland and Miss Janet Warden as Eva Webster share the honours of the heroines. Mrs. Alfred Davis played Miss Ashford, and Miss Marie Scharning the Landlady, Mrs. Stead.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. E. H. Bostock.—Fred Karno's London Suburbia heads the bill, and produces great fun; Miss Jennie Alexander, a child comedienne, gives promise of great ability, her mimicry of Marie Lloyd, Vesta Tilley, and others being really excellent; the Leotard Brothers give some clever balancing feats, and have some amusing business; Mr. J. H. McCann demonstrates cleverly and skilfully the possibilities of roller skating; Parker and Parr are duettists; Jolly Jimmy Walker sings and dances well; and Tom Lloyd is well-known to an Ipswich audience. The Bioscope concludes.

JARROW.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. H. Locke.—A visit is being paid by Messrs. Bliss and Bliss's pantomime company with Mother Goose. Mr. Leo Bliss is funny as Widow McGooseley and Mr. Ernest Percival is a droll Jack; Miss Ray Ford is a winning Jill, and Mr. Lewis Kerno is well placed as King Geezer, and Miss Ethel Dunford is a captivating Prince Lothario; the Two Rubies give some excellent specialities; Mr. Frank Probin sings well as the Demon of Folly, and as the Fairy Wisdom Miss Damaris Du Pore is well placed; Messrs. Pete and Juno are excellent sand dancers and receive numerous encores. The chorus is effective.

KETTERING.—AVENUE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Payne.—Mr. Harry Josephs' company are here with Robinson Crusoe. Miss Lena Stanton is a dashing and vivacious Crusoe, and has established herself a prime favourite; Miss Gertie Lovedale is a bewitching Polly Perkins; and Mr. Sidney Dean is most amusing as Mrs. Crusoe. Mr. Melville Page is highly successful as Will Atkins; and Little Keeno creates quite a furore by his comicalities as Sunny Jim Crusoe. The Leglerc troupe of acrobats contribute a very clever performance; and the Alhambra Girls are deserving of the highest praise.

VICTORIA THEATRE.—Managers, Messrs. Alf. Bailey and Co.—The attraction here is Mr. J. Bannister Howard's pantomime of The Forty Thieves. Mr. A. G. Spry is a host in himself as Ali Baba; and Mr. Paddy Dupres is very funny as Mrs. Ali Baba. Messrs. Woodhouse and Wells, an excellent pair of comedians, impersonate Hassarac and Bassarac, and their efforts keep the house in roars of laughter; Miss Olive Astor is a fine Abdallah; Miss Nellie Barnwell a charming and graceful Morgiana; and Miss Rosina Effingham an attractive Fairy Queen.

KIDDERMINSTER.—NEW OPERA HOUSE.—Licensee and Managing-Director, Mr. Jas. P. Moore; Acting-Manager, Mr. R. C. Gudgeon.—For the first three nights this week Mr. Wentworth Croke presented the new version of The Christian. Mr. P. Gedge Twyman was an excellent John Storm; Miss Margery Fane made an admirable Glory Quayle; Mr. Edward Ouston did well as Horatio Drake, and Mr. G. Montague Lane as Lord Robert Ure was satisfactory. Father Lamplugh was played in a dignified manner by Mr. John Hastings Batson; Mr. William Mallalieu as Archdeacon Wealthy was effective. Polly Love was nicely enacted by Miss Gladys Vernon, and Mrs. Callender was in the capable hands of Miss Alice Maude. For Thursday, Friday, and Saturday A Woman from Russia was billed.

KING'S LYNN.—NEW ROYAL THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. B. Pareezer; Acting-Manager, Mr. Reginald Pareezer.—For the first three nights this week Mr. Julian Malvern's company presented Mr. Arthur Shirley's sensational drama, I Defy the World. Mr. F. B. Woulie did well as Leon Darville; Mr. Max Coutts was effective as Count de Beaulieu; and Miss E. Loraine was an interesting Pauline Delaporte; the humorous interludes were admirably presented by Mr. C. M. Julian and Miss Maud Lilian as Samuel and Maria Wozzle.

KIRKCALDY.—NEW PAVILION.—Lessee, Dr. Walford Bodie; General-Manager, Mr. G. W. Walker.—Howard and Thorne, sketch artists, form the leading attraction this week, and prove to be worthy of the "top" position; Henrietta and Selina are really remarkable musicians; a pretty Japanese conjuring act is presented by the Balzeus; and Master Hendry appears again this week owing to success. The pictures are specially good.

LANCASTER.—GRAND THEATRE—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. C. Howitt.—This week Miss Florence Glossop-Harris is here in a round of plays, presenting The Taming of the Shrew to a good house on Monday. Mr. Frank Cellier appeared to special advantage as Petruchio, rendering his lines with remarkable clearness; Mr. E. Stuart Vinden was excellent as Grumio; and the parts of Lucentio and Tranio were remarkably well played by Mr. Murray Kinnell and Mr. A. D. Layland respectively. Miss Florence Glossop-Harris's Katherine was a fine performance. On Tuesday Romeo and Juliet was presented. As You Like It, Much Ado About Nothing, Hamlet, Twelfth Night, and Othello are also in the repertory.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. John Porter and W. J. Fergusson.—Mr. Chas. Coverdale meets with much applause here; a powerful dramatic sketch, Paying a Debt, is presented by Mr. Harold B. Lewis; and Alpho is a capital ventriloquist. Daisy Reed sings well; the Falcons are clever comedy acrobats; and Ray Maskell both sings and dances admirably. The programme is completed by Gena Manon, vocalist, and the Hippograph.

LEAMINGTON. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessees, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Manager, Mr. George G. Ridley.—Are You a Mason? is being performed here by Mr. Charles Macdona's principal company to appreciative audiences. Mr. E. H. Paterson gives an excellent representation of Amos Bloodgood, and Mr. H. Langdon Bruce is equally successful as George Fisher. Mr. Stanley Gronne appears as Frank Perry, Bloodgood's son-in-law, and Mr. R. Wilton is seen to distinct advantage as Ernest Morrison. The other parts are sustained in an admirable manner by Mr. G. P. Polson, Mr. Erskholme E. Clive, Mr. R. Wiseman, Miss Adelaide Grace, Miss Rita Narcelli, Miss Rita Johnson, Miss Dulcie Verney, Miss Viola Garland, Miss Mary Kilpak, and Miss Pheongains. Old Maid's Corner, in which the characters are well taken, precedes.

LEICESTER.—PALACE THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; District-Manager, Mr. Hatton Wharton; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. Finch-Hatton; Assistant-Manager, Mr. W. S. Buccleuch.—Heading the programme here is Fred Karno's company in the uproariously mirth-provoking sketch G.P.O., in which Mr. Fred Kitchen as Perkins is conspicuously successful. At the other end is the "Moto Girl," presented by Mr. Frederic Melville. The whole performance is gone through in a bewildering and successful manner. A hit is being made by Dennis Drew and his boys in a thoroughly enjoyable musical scena, entitled Back to Barracks; Watson's Royal Fox Terriers, presented by Miss Ida Kessanley, show the perfection of canine training; Bert Williams is a funny and clever ventriloquist; Tom Moore a first-class character comedian; Bertha Winder scores her usual success as a dancer; the Sisters Grosvenor are excellent singers of popular melodies in harmony; and the American Bioscope is also attractive.

PAVILION THEATRE. — Proprietor and Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr. Joe Lawrence.—The lead is taken here by Ted Karno and company in the pantomime absurdity entitled Dinner Hour. Poole and Maguire are aptly described as the immaculate vocal and comedy duo; Sybil Montague is an excellent soprano vocalist; J. H. Grenner, the singing pit lad, is making a hit; and other entertaining turns are submitted by Tom Garland, a good ventriloquist; the Delgarnos, in Caught Napping; Professor Anderson, conjurer; and Walter H. Pallister's Bioscope.

THE EMPIRE.—Lessees, the New Bioscope Trading Company; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles R. Craig.—A liberal and diversified assortment of moving pictures is shown here, including Tale of the Autumn Leaves Told, The Great Bargain Sale, Retribution, The Boxing Mania, The Text-Book of a Perfect Gentleman, My Neighbours are Giving a Dance, Onions, and Worries of King Slap-on-the-Head, which are interspersed with excellent entertainment by R. Hyde, society comedian.

THEATRE ROYAL.—A return visit is being paid here by Messrs. Armadale and Warren's company in The Face at the Window. Mr. E. Hoggan-Armadale is a conspicuous success as Lucio Delgardo, the same remark also applying to Mr. Scott Leighton as Paul Gouffet. Miss Lizzie Chambers plays with ability as Babette; and Mr. Bert Ellis is also funny as Peter Pottlebury. Miss Elsie Marriott-Watson is deserving of high eulogium as Marie de Brisson.

OPERA HOU

the Player King; Ophelia was commendably acted by Miss Katherine Harrington, and Miss Gertrude Littlewood played Gertrude with good effect. An excellent equipment of scenery and dresses contributed to the success of the production. The week's bill has also included very creditable presentations of The Merchant of Venice, Romeo and Juliet, Othello, and Macbeth, with a version of David Garrick. In his renderings of the leading rôles throughout this series Mr. Maclaren has shown himself an earnest student and careful interpreter of Shakespearean characters.

LINCOLN.—Royal.—Lessees, Messrs. Seddon and Pope; Resident-Manager, Mr. Ernest Pope.—Miss Hook of Holland proved an excellent attraction on the first three evenings of the week, and was capitally done by Messrs. Dudley Bennett and T. C. Wray's company, with Mr. Charles B. McLagan as Hook, Mr. Fred Dark as Slinks, Miss Ethel James as Sally, and Miss Muff Carew as Mina. The show is very effective throughout. A Life for a Life is billed, by Mr. Chas. H. Lester's company, for the rest of the week.

Palace.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Arthur Miller.—An entertaining comedy act by the Warsaw Brothers catches on; and Pyck, Tholl, and Taylor's amusing sketch The Dancing Master deserves special mention. Dolly Dewar, W. H. Downs, Willie and Johnny, Jim E. James, and the Morning Leader pictures make up the bill.

LIVERPOOL.—Rotunda Theatre.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery.—Mr. J. F. Elliston's Puss in Boots pantomime has played to crowded houses here during its second and final week.

Star Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Harris Fineberg.—The Girl Who Took the Wrong Turning was the attraction here this week, and despite the fact that many pantomimes were in the city, this popular melodramatic house got a large share of public support. Mr. Walter Melville's company included Mr. F. Ronald Adair, who gave a fine rendering of the part of Willie Mason; Miss Jessie Belmore, a most careful and painstaking Sophie; Miss Zoe Davis, who pleased greatly with her Lucy Coventry; Mr. Sidney Sarl, a powerfully dramatic Bill Slater; Mr. Frank Denis, who acted the rôle of Richard Fenton in most creditable style; Miss Marie Kildare, a very humorous Poppy Slater; and Miss Nannie Meade (Vesta).

Empire.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Horace Cole.—Top of the bill here this week has been Mlle. Camille Ober, whose remarkable vocal powers (she is declared to have a voice range of four octaves) created some astonishment, besides affording much pleasure; W. Selkirk's Scottish juvenile spectacle, The Gathering of the Clans, was received with every satisfaction; a refined musical turn came from the Courtiers, who included Mlle. Louise Van Dalle, Mr. George Hilton St. Just, and Mr. T. H. Wood; Jimmy Curwell, an ex-newspaper boy in Liverpool, made his first appearance as a pianist, and showed a large amount of skill; as gymnastic comedians and burlesque wrestlers the Miller Brothers proved exceedingly diverting; Harry J. Crane and company were received with considerable favour for their pathetic musical episode Truth in Absence; Harry Leybourn, as the nervous lady was particularly amusing, and contributions also came from the Martineks, with the novelty The Rag Doll, and Arthur Astill, whistling mimic.

Queen's Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred Granville.—Mr. Granville's pantomime Beauty and the Beast occupied the boards here this week, and met with general approval. It is of a character to attract good business, being pretty, funny, and lively. Miss Hilda de Grey was a dashing Prince; Miss Maude Sprightly proved exceedingly popular as Beauty, singing several numbers with a deal of charm; a capital Wilhelmena was presented by Miss Florence Sprightly, who earned much applause; and the fun was provided by Messrs. Daleno and Stream (the Ruffians), Leslie Austin (the Beast), Juan Wood (Sir Mackintosh Winkles), and Sidney Milton (Witch Spitfire). Specialities were introduced by Kennedy's Kiddies, Barry and Wood, Three Sisters Sprightly, Mlle. Benita, the Sisters Kebble, and a troupe of ju-jitsu dancers.

Lyric.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry C. Arnold.—Cullen and Carthy's pantomime Babes in the Wood did big business last week, and remained a further six nights.

Royal Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; Manager, Mr. Walter Hassan.—Heading the programme here this week was Karno's laughter-maker London Suburbia, which afforded the utmost pleasure to big audiences; Emerson and Baldwin, comedians, made a first visit to Liverpool and caused roars of laughter, while their juggling was very expert; Dave Carter, possessed of a rich tenor voice, pleased with his singing; the Brothers Wills were a most diverting pair of eccentrics; Maxey and Pete gave a smart exhibition of trick and comedy cycling; much amusement was aroused by the sketch The Tramps in the Nursery, given by the Forsyths; and the list also contained the names of Lena Wylie, soprano, and Elmo and Rego, comedy acrobats.

Royal Palace of Varieties.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank O'Toole.—Good business continues to be done here by the stock company, who this week gave The Village Forge. Included in the principal characters were George Rylands (Mr. Sydney Grant), Harry Greyling (Mr. David G. Noble), Jim Greyling (Mr. R. Seath Innes), Joe Cose (Mr. Tom H. Solly), Grace Glynde (Miss Florence Palmer), and Agnes Payne (Miss Lilian Radbourne). Mr. Anthony Brown's Bioscope showed the latest pictures.

Westminster.—Lessee, Mr. Fred E. Weisker; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Montgomery.—In addition to a fine series of cinematograph pictures shown here, the following artists appeared during the week:—Beatie and Babs, a clever little couple, whose Pavement Rehearsal gained for them warm approval; Charles Lestree, comedy juggler; Esaw and Jacob, Hebrew comedians; and F. S. Hulme, vocal comedian.

Olympia.—District-Manager, Mr. Albert Bulmer; Acting-Manager, Mr. Ernest Wighton.—A tremendous attraction during the week has been the new water spectacle, The Sands of Dee, in which J. H. Barnes (Rube Stephens), Norman Trevor, Rodney Stewart, Ella Gillette, Lawson Butt, and Ruth Maitland took part; Terry and Lambert were as richly enjoyable as ever; the Albert and Edmunds comedy troupe pleased greatly with their pantomimical absurdity Neighbours; Roma and Romani gave a delightful musical act; capital songs and dances came from the Eight of Hearts Troupe; Fred Keeton had some funny songs and patter; and likewise in the list were E. J. Shelton and the Almas, gymnasts.

Pavilion.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Manager, Mr. Henry Hearn.—This house during the week has been packed from floor to ceiling, there being space to accommodate something like 3,000 persons on each occasion. The draw was Tiller's admirable pantomime Red Riding Hood, which was received with the utmost delight. Miss Eve Coulton assumed the title-rôle with credit; a most amusing Baron was submitted by Mr. Fred Russell; Howard Ward helped with the fun in the part of the Dame; Nancy Hearne was a charming Prince; Emmie Franks afforded every satisfaction as Lieutenant Tommy Tucker; and Louie Davies pleased with her Margery Daw. Some capital specialities were introduced by the Sixteen White Guards, from the Olympia, Paris; the Poppy Quartet, and the Excelsior troupe of children. Matinées were given on Monday and Saturday.

Grand Tivoli.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Jasper Redfern.—The Bioscope pictures shown here continue to please. During the week variety turns were, in addition, provided by the following artists:—Rose and Wold, with a comedy wire act; Frank Coyle, comedian; Barney Vox, ventriloquist; Luigi Salvan, boy musician; Leolin, club juggler; Boy Daly, vocalist; and Carriden and Rosslyn, with the sketch Woman's the Master.

Park Palace.—Lessee, Mr. Jasper Redfern.—This week the usual cinematograph show, along with varieties, was dispensed with, and a pantomime, Babes in the Wood, from the pen of Joseph L. Barry, given instead. The production earned a deal of popularity, the following artists affording every satisfaction:—Messrs. Norman Hall (Baron), Alfred Brooks (Dame), Will Donnett (the Page), the Kimberley Boys (Ruffians), Violet Wilson and Baby Boden (Babes), Cissie Paris (Robin Hood), and Marie Elsie (Maid Marian). Specialities were provided by the Six Emerald Gems, the Kimberley Boys, and Boden and Wilson.

New Century Picture Hall.—Proprietors, The New Century Animated Picture Company, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Walter W. Hook.—The pictures given here continue to afford satisfaction both for their steadiness and variety. During the week the following subjects were in the list:—Mary Queen of Scots, Count of Monte Cristo, Favourite Doll and the Golliwog, the Worthless Husband, and a number of humorous ones.

LOUGHBOROUGH.—Theatre Royal and Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. Payne Seddon and George Robertson; Resident Business-Manager, Mr. W. Payne Seddon.—Mr. Wentworth Croke's excellent company has been drawing good houses in the new version of The Christian. Mr. P. Gedge Tywman as John Storm plays the part in a manly and artistic manner; Mr. Edward Ouston makes a highly commendable Horatio Drake; Mr. G. Montagu Lane enacts Lord Robert Ure in a masterly manner; Mr. John Hastings Batson acts the part of Father Lamplugh cleverly; and Mr. William Mallalieu is an admirable Archdeacon Wealthy. Miss Margery Fane as Glory Quayle captures the sympathy as well as the admiration of the house by her finished acting; Miss Alice Maud as Mrs. Callender, Miss Gladys Vernon as Polly Love, together with the rest of the large cast, give great assistance to the principals. The play is splendidly staged.

MACCLESFIELD.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. W. K. Gatley.—Miss Lena Stanton and Mr. Harry Joseph's pantomime Aladdin is here. Miss Janet Lawton in the title-rôle plays with ability; Miss Kitty Avey, with a pleasant voice, gives an excellent representation of the Princess; Miss Minnie Millwarde as Slavee Sho sings and dances admirably; and Miss Ella Rose makes a pleasing Pekoe. Mr. Will Terry affords much amusement as Abanazar; Mr. H. Harcourt is an entertaining Widow Twankey; and Mr. Geo. Guss as What O and Mr. F. Anderton as What Hi evoke the heartiest of laughter.

MAESTEG.—Town Hall Theatre.—Lessees, Poole's Theatres Co., Ltd.; Manager, Mr. C. F. Knowles.—Mr. F. R. Benson's South company opened here on Monday before a crowded and appreciative audience with The Merry Wives of Windsor. Mr. Ross Shore, who le't an indelible impression on local theatregoers on the occasion of his last visit, fully sustained his reputation in his clever impersonation of Sir John Falstaff, his acting bringing forth round after round of applause. Messrs. Chas. Warburton and John Cairns as Ford and Page won the evident appreciation of the audience; Mr. Victor Hardy, who impersonated Slender, was exceedingly good; and others whose acting secured for them a fair share of the plaudits were Miss Mary Webb as Mrs. Ford and Miss Constance Bromley as Mrs. Page. Other plays in the répertoire were The Taming of the Shrew and Othello.

MAIDENHEAD.—Town Hall.—Secretary, the Town Clerk.—There was a house crowded in every part to witness Married to the Wrong Man, played by Miss Inez Howard's company, under the direction of Mr. Henry Chattell, on the 28th ult. In the part of Ruth Miss Margaret Savill did well; Miss Mabel Scudamore was good as Rose O'Connor; Miss Nancy Tripp was well placed as Nurse Manners; Miss May Day was a vivacious Dolly; and Miss Clara Stanforth was true to life as the drunken hag, Mother Snaggs. An equally clever character sketch was the Jasper Skinner of Mr. H. C. Gilpin; Mr. H. C Cooper capably filled the repulsive rôle of Captain Deering; Mr. Clem Horlock did well as Sergt. Manners; Mr. Walter Hicks was an amusing Timothy, and Mr. C. Quinton Fulford won applause as Jack Gladwin.

MAIDSTONE.—Palace.—Resident-Manager, Mr. S. Baskerville.—Mr. Brydon-Phillips' pantomime, Little Red Riding Hood, is a great attraction here this week. It is well mounted, the dresses are pretty and quaint, and the entertainment goes with a pleasant swing. Miss Kittee Rayburn as Prince Amoroso is making a great hit with her songs, the choruses of which are taken up vigorously by the audience; Miss Ena Corelli as Little Red Riding Hood dances and sings to the delight of all; Miss Euphan Maclaren is charming as Cupid; Miss Kitty Wells and Miss Maisie Mildare as Jack and Jill are good; Miss Alice Vokes appears as Margery Daw; Mr. Harry Ewins as the Wolf and Mr. James Ewins as the Poodle are very funny; and Bishop and Vale as Simple Simon and Johnny Stout keep the audience in laughter by their antics; Miss Edith Jefferies as Fairy Gossamer is charming, and Mr. Henry de Solla as Lawyer Slyfox does well. A capital harlequinade has Mr. Harry Ewins as clown.

MANCHESTER.—Theatre Royal.—Lessees, The United Theatres Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Edmondstone Shirra.—Success still attends the performances of Goody Two Shoes at this theatre. The brilliance and splendour of the staging, which made so good an impression on the first night, are of course a fixed element of the production; but the humour, which was at the outset busy and sparkling enough to satisfy the most exacting theatre-goer, has been developed to an even higher pitch of excellence. In the principal story-parts, Miss May Beatty as the Prince and Miss Hylda Dugdale as Goody Two Shoes, do a great deal in a picturesque and vocal way to keep things moving, and they are admirably assisted by other lady members of the cast; while Mr. Mark Sheridan as the Baron, Mr. Harry Conlin as the Widow, and the Brothers Egbert as two gentlemen of leisure, are constantly adding to their many opportunities for fun by impromptu eccentricities and allusions. Many popular songs are introduced, and a pretty feature of the show is the work of the children in the ballets and song-scenas.

Prince's Theatre.—Proprietors, The United Theatres Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Lee.—The first production in Manchester of A Waltz Dream here on Monday drew an extraordinarily large attendance, many being unable to obtain admission. The cast approaches the very best that could be got together, Mr. Robert Evett being at the head in his original rôle of Niki. Mr. Evett's rendering of the "Waltz" song was enthusiastically received, and his work throughout was spirited and accomplished to a high degree; a very clever and engaging performance of Franzi was given by Miss May de Sousa, who contributed much to the success; and Miss Ethel Cadman was applauded for her excellent singing and her nice impersonation of the Princess Helene; while as Friedrike, Miss Amy Augarde gave a popular and finished impersonation. Mr. Eric Thorne, a big favourite, was continually funny as Joachim XIII.; and Mr. Leslie Holland as Count Lothar gave a distinctly humorous performance. Very good work was done also by Mr. John Hamilton, Mr. Langford Kirby, Mr. Albert Cavanagh, Mr. Willie Warde, jun., and Miss May Morton (the "Big Drum"). The chorus and augmented orchestra were under the direction of Mr. Hamish MacCunn. The piece remains for three weeks.

Gaiety.—Proprietress, Miss A. E. F. Horniman; Manager, Mr. B. Iden Payne; Acting-Manager, Mr. Edwin T. Heys.—A truly notable production—that of John Galsworthy's The Silver Box—took place here on Monday. The tragi-humorous realism of the play, its splendid characterisation, and dramatic suggestiveness, are something for the ordinary playgoer to remember, and not the most exacting could have wished for a better interpretation. The play was given by Miss Horniman's company. Mr. Jules Shaw as Jones, the misplaced delinquent, gave a fine performance; and Miss Ada King was excellent as his wife, the drudge. Mr. Basil Dean as Jack Barthwick provided a capital study of the idle, mischievous, but not bad-hearted son of the M.P.; while his parents were capitally impersonated by Mr. Michael Sherbrooke and Miss Sybil Thorndike. Many other clean-cut, natural characters are in the play, and such clever people as Mr. Charles Bibby, Mr. Edward Landor, and Miss Hilda Bruce Potter made the most of them, the total result being a strong and memorable performance. The play was preceded by Basil Dean's one-act episode, Marriages are Made in Heaven.

Royal Osborne Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Mason.—A Soldier's Wedding, played successfully last week at the Grand Junction Theatre, is the attraction here.

Metropole Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Dry.—Harry Burns's pantomime, Robinson Crusoe, seen the other week at a local house, is attracting good audiences twice nightly.

Grand Junction Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Hewitt.—This week we have here A Girl's Cross Roads, which was played successfully last week at the Royal Osborne Theatre.

Empire.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Hall.—John F. Preston and company, in Rogues of the Turf, and the Olympians, exponents of ju-jitsu, are the two leading turns here this week, both being very well received. Very good items are added by Frank Cass, vocal comedian; Nance Elder, refined comedienne; Baker and Balfe, xylophone experts; the Strolling Players, in their musical pot-pourri; Burke, Andrus, and Frisco, in their Trafalgar-square absurdity; Harry Lawson, eccentric comedian; the Jackson Family, accomplished instrumentalists; and Frederick Villiers, the famous war correspondent, in a highly interesting "Fifteen Minutes on the Warpath," illustrated on the screen.

Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. Nelson Barry.—The places of honour here are occupied by Victoria Monks, the popular comedienne, who scores a big success; and Alice Pierce, the famous impressionist actress, whose impersonations of well-known players are finely done. Enzer, assisted by Miss Clarice, gives an exhibition of juggling and ju-jitsu; Tom Bryce, assisted by Miss Price, is seen to advantage in a comedy sketch; Tom Child the Yorkshire tenor, is well received; some remarkable cycling is done by the Selbinis; and other capital turns are the Dumond Trio of refined instrumentalists, in a Parisian street act; Paul Barnes, song-writer and monologist; Haidee Lee and Wallace Kingston, in A Resourceful Lover, a clever lyrical sketch; and Edie Endon, a smart comedienne and acrobatic dancer.

Palace.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Freece; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. J. Carter.—Prominent here this week are Zona Vevey, assisted by Herr Max Erard, in My Lady's Bower, an especially good thing; James Callahan and Jenny St. George, in their Irish comedy musical sketch; and Caryl Wilbur and company, in his comedy episode, 61, Prospect-street. Enjoyable turns are added by Oliver Martyn, patter comedian; the Gilberts, in a smart wire act; the Three Orleans, vocal and dancing experts; Fred Terry, comedian; Florence Kay, an accomplished vocalist; and the Haydas Troupe of comedy acrobats and tumblers.

King's Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. James R. Trippett.—Mr. John Tiller's capital pantomime, Jack and Jill, is playing to full houses here this week, after a highly-successful visit to the Queen's Park Hippodrome.

Tivoli.—Managing-Director, Mr. Charles A. Wilkes; Manager, Mr. Arthur B. Wilkes.—Mlle. Lydia, assisted by Mons. Mastel, is the top star here this week, in a very pleasing artistic act. To the front also is Frederick Victor, a fine actor, in a first-rate sketch, Meredith's Masterpiece, in which he is well supported; Nelson's Boys and Girls in a smart vocal scena are good; whilst other enjoyable items are those of Edith Harmer, comedienne; Victoria Glen, in a neat speciality; Les Currys, in a pleasing musical act; Les Froliques, entertainers; Harry Desmond, quaint comedian; and Alice Danby, comedienne. Ruffell's Pictures complete.

Queen's Park Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. W. Meek.—Captain Roberts is to the front here this week in a smart athletic and balancing display, whilst playing different instruments, and is ably assisted; Marie Blythe, a pleasing comedienne, takes well; Jack Truman, tenor vocalist, is well received; the Sisters Belmont are clever and graceful dancers; Jim Cheetham is an exceedingly smart whistler and bird mimic; George Lawrence, light vocal comedian, makes a hit; Bradley, the cycling Jew, is decidedly smart; Mint and Mart are wonderful paper manipulators; Farrell and Dunn, comedians and patterers, are entertaining; and Charters and Clare cause amusement in a mock drama scena. The Earthquake and Ruins of Messina are shown on the Bioscope.

Hulme Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. Thomas Baker.—Dolly Elsworthy, supported by a capable company, tops the bill here this week in Sweet Mistress Dorothy, and scores a big success in the title-rôle; Wild, Willie, and West, the bounding navvies, in a decidedly clever turn, cause roars of laughter; Harry Blake as "an observer of the times" is highly amusing; Joan Dearing plays capitally on the violin; Edwin Austin, concertinist, takes well; Jack Hartley makes a hit in song and patter; and Edwards and Ward are popular entertainers. A Tale of the Revolution is told on the Bioscope.

MANSFIELD.—Victoria Hall.—Lessee, Mr. A. Fox.—The Victoria pictures continue to draw large audiences. The singing pictures commencing this week gained loud applause.

MARGATE.—Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. E. Michael; General-Manager, Mr. W. W. Keene.—Mr. Evelyn A'Dell's company has been playing this week in His Sister's Honour. Mr. Evelyn A'Dell as the hero, Frank Stanley, is conspicuously successful. Mr. Walter Wilson is effective as the villainous Sir Richard Redvers; Miss Flora Leslie makes a good impression as Dora Stanley; and Miss Edith Ashleigh is excellent as Ivy Merton. Mr. H. Macdonald is capital as Dr. Godfrey; Mr. J. Braithwaite makes a humorous Timothy Timid; and Miss Maudie Vincent as Maria is deserving of praise. Mr. S. Verrier adds to the success as P.C. Worthie.

Hippodrome.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. Fred. Mouillot and Walter De Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. F. Bawtree.—Again this week, with the exception of two vocal turns, Iris Banfield, comedienne, and George Norton, comedian, the programme is made up of pictures.

Hall-by-the-Sea.—Sole Proprietor, Lord George Sanger; General-Manager, Mr. C. Evans.—Alfred West's pictures of Life in Our Army and Our Navy are here this week.

MERTHYR TYDFIL.—Theatre Royal.—Sole Lessees, The South Wales Entertainments, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Albert Jackson.—The Coal King, presented by Mr. A. Clifton Anderson, is here. Sir Reginald Hartford is satisfactorily assumed by Mr. Ulick Burke; Walter Hartford is creditably impersonated by Mr. Escott Robson; Mr. Clifton Anderson is an excellent Tom Roberts; and Mr. Frank Dalton a praiseworthy Dick Shirley. Miss Winifred Love ably fills the part of Grace Shirley; and Miss Joan Wellman is good as Mad Ann.

Temperance Hall.—Manager, Mr. Israel Price.—Jack and Evelyn are well received; the Paul Kramer troupe of head-balancers perform some wonderful feats; the Musical Tritons are very entertaining; and the Mars Trio, military gymnasts; George Yorke, in song and dance; Harry Friskey, comedy juggler; Indiana, the flexible lady; Mueller and Coyne, vaudeville artists; and the Biograph make up the bill.

METHIL.—Gaiety Theatre.—Proprietors, the Methil Theatre Co., Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. J. Burnett.—Miss Winifred Chalmers' company is this week presenting Dearer than Life and The Master Criminal. In the former Mr. Henry L. Osmond as Harry Royce deserves the highest praise; Mr. J. C. Carlyle is good as Armaud Dubois; Mr. Harry Cooke distinguishes himself as Tommy Dale; Mr. George Wilson is seen to advantage as Henri Dubois; Miss V. St. Lawrence is specially good as Katalie Latour; Miss Lilian Burns as Mona Brayton also displays ability; and Miss Mabel Tremere scores a success as Estelle.

MEXBOROUGH.—Prince of Wales' Theatre.—Manager, Mr. W. H. Melton.—Mr. Chas. W. Poole's Myriorama is here this week. The pictures, exceedingly well painted and thoroughly up to date, comprise a complete world tour. Some excellent films include one depicting the effects of the recent earthquake. The variety turns are a capital selection, and include the Royal Banzais, Japanese acrobats; Sydney Bach, the Welshman at the piano; Willie Dean, comedian; Eileen Russell, vocalist; the Seven Bramusas, in a brass band extravaganza entitled Music Afloat; and Harry Raymond, coon singer and dancer, he being supported in the latter department by his little daughter Ivy. Mr. J. R. Poole makes a capable guide and Mr. A. S. Morrell an efficient chef de orchestre.

New Picture Hall.—Proprietor, Mr. Will Hunter; Manager, Mr. E. H. Jones.—Amongst others in an excellent programme here this week are In Time of Rebellion, Pleasant Surprise, The Vestal, Sold by His Parents, A Broken Heart, &c.

MIDDLESBROUGH.—Opera House.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Ed. Jowsey; Manager and Licensee, Mr. W. Ker Chatto.—Mr. Seymour Hicks' production of The Gay Gordons gave pleasure to a very large audience here on Monday, and the succession of pretty songs, catchy choruses, and rippling fun never allowed the audience a dull moment. Mr. Stanley Brett as Angus Graeme is the life and soul of the play, and his witty sayings and generally amusing actions keep the audience in a continual roar of laughter. He was supported in a most able manner by Miss Maie Ash as Peggy Quainton; both sing and dance admirably, and are unquestionably the success of the production. Mr. Ernest Torrence is exceedingly good as Andrew Quainton, and Mr. Fred Ralph and Mr. Paul Plunket as Nervy Nat and John Smith respectively are admirably suited to the parts. Mr. George Carroll, Mr. George Paulton, Mr. Edmund Leith, Mr. Dewey Gibson, Mr. W. Norman, Mr. Frank Adair, Mr. Sims Woolley, and Miss Nellie Dade, Miss Lily Maxwell, Miss Ida Mann, Miss C. St. Clare, and Miss Morea Selma also fulfil their respective parts in a pleasing manner. Scenery and dresses are elaborate.

Theatre Royal.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Charles Imeson.—Mr. Wentworth Croke's company is this week presenting the new version of The Christian. Mr. Henry Renouf gives a powerful and masterly performance in the rôle of John Storm, and Miss Doris Gilham a pleasing portrayal of Glory Quayle. Mr. Oswald Marshall is excellent as Horatio Drake, and Mr. George R. Montford is excellent in the rôle of Lord Mac. Mr. Arthur E. Maskell gives a fine portrayal of Parson Quayle, and the other rôles are undertaken by clever artists.

Empire.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Brill; Manager, Mr. Charles G. Rembges.—The Gothams provide a smart turn of excellent singing and comedy; Mme. Clementine Dolcini gives a wonderful exhibition of shooting; Bert Terrell is responsible for some sweet singing; and Les Riscos give an eccentric cycling and comedy act. Ida Barr is a favourite vocalist, the Musical Jees are good in their sketch, and Argo gives some clever farmyard mimicry.

Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Signor Rino Pepi; Manager, Mr. C. E. Nicholls.—Clever ball manipulating is executed here this week by the Four Athos, who also perform novel acrobatic feats; Miss Beaumont Collins is exceedingly good in the playlet The House of Terror; and the Five Vernons play popular tunes on their xylophone. Sibb and Sibb are smart in their trapeze act, and Lottie Lennox sings some catchy songs. Howard and Collinson and the Sisters Lyton also add to the programme.

MOTHERWELL.—New Century Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. Arthur Hales.—Mr. Frederick Melville's company is here, in Married to the Wrong Man. Mr. Oswald Gray acts with commendable restraint in the rôle of the soldier-lover; and Miss Gertrude Boswell is to be congratulated on her representation of Ruth. Mr. H. Lane Bayliff acts the villainous Captain Deering to the life; and special mention should be made of Mr. Charles Vivian in the rôle of Jasper Skinner; Mr. Arthur T. Lennard is bluff and burly as Sergeant Manners; Mr. Henry Eustace does well as Dr. Brandon; Archie Bird is excellently played by Mr. Paige Lawrence; Miss Dorothy Haigh is responsible for a capital Rose O'Connor; and Miss May Davis does well as Dolly Fritters. Miss Rosalie Notrelle is quiet and convincing as Nurse Harmsworth; and Miss Violet Vincent is effective as Mother Snaggs.

NELSON.—Grand Theatre.—Proprietress, Mrs. T. Greenwood Croft; Business-Manager, Mr. Geo. E. Mudd.—The Idol of Paris has been presented here during the week by Mr. James Bell's company. Miss Annie Bell in the title-rôle performs a difficult task in a refined and purposeful manner; Mme. Sancterre is cleverly played by Miss Frances Bruce; whilst Miss Annie Megson makes a thoroughly capable Ann. Prince Sergius Zoresky receives careful treatment of Mr. Gordon Robey; and in the respective characters of Philip D'Esterre and Victor Cashelle, both Mr. Wilson Howard and Mr. Sydney Arnold display power.

NEW BRIGHTON.—Winter Gardens.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. H. E. Jones and A. Douglass.—Miss Florence Smithers and company, retained for another week owing to her great success, again scores in a very humorous sketch, entitled Hard Lines. As a vocalist Mr. Harry Drew is excellent, and his reception is most enthusiastic; the McAleaveys prove themselves marvellous barrel jumpers; Messrs. Duncan and Brasque are really admirable artists, and their domestic playlet, My Lancashire Wife, is clever and entertaining; Miss Mina Denvil is a young vocalist of promise; and Herr Karoly Czynski plays upon several instruments remarkably well. Messrs. Clive and Vera and Miss Mary Danby also appear. The animated pictures give every satisfaction.

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE.—Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. Teale Lingham.—Mr. Arthur's brilliant pantomime Aladdin continues its successful run, and as yet shows no sign of decreasing popularity. The company in every respect is one of all-round excellence, and with such principals as Happy Fanny Fields, Violet Lloyd, Harry Tate, Malcolm Scott, Miss Doris Dean, Miss Maud Thorne, Mr. Harry Claff, and Regan and Ryan there is every prospect of crowded houses during the remainder of the run.

Tyne Theatre and Opera House.—Lessees, Messrs. Howard and Wyndham; Manager, Mr. Fred C. Sutcliffe.—Humpty-Dumpty continues its merry run, and seems, if anything, to increase in public estimation. Mr. Arthur Prince has established himself a firm favourite, his singing, dancing, and speciality business being of the most attractive kind. Miss Ida Rene, the charming Princess, becomes more popular every week, and Miss Lily Iris, the principal boy, adds to the gaiety of the show. Amongst the comedians the biggest hit has been made by Shaun Glenville as the Emperor; his inimitable fooling fairly brings down the house. He is admirably suported by Carlton, J. E. Nightingall, and Jock Walker. One of the new features of the pantomime is the duet by Miss Ida Rene and Jock Walker, which goes with a rare swing, the Scottish reel with which it finishes being encored night after night.

Palace Theatre.—Manager, Mr. T. W. Rowe.—Messrs. Hallat and Howard's company is here this week in Her Love Against the World, the romantic drama by Mr. Walter Howard. The production is admirable from every point of view. The chief parts are taken by Miss Grace Heywood and Mr. Fred Emery, who are ably supported by other talented members of the company.

Grand Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. F. W. Bolam; Manager, Mr. H. G. Elliott.—Mr. John Tiller's company in the pantomime Red Riding Hood is playing to full houses nightly. As Prince Valiant, Miss Jessie Templeton is extremely popular, her singing being much appreciated; Miss May Merry is greatly appreciated for her clever dancing and charming singing as the Fairy Truelove; Miss Ivy Moore is a pronounced favourite, her popular songs being well applauded; and the Dame of Mr. Lawrence Barclay proves a huge success; his numerous appearances are cordially received. The villain of the pantomime is cleverly portrayed by Mr. Benson Kleve (the Wicked Wolf). Much of the fun is also due to Mr. C. K. Martinetti, jun., as Trotters, and Mr. Fred Lawrence as Dr. Dignum, whose amusing antics keep the house in continuous laughter. Specialities are introduced by the Lotus Troupe of Dancers.

Empire Theatre.—Resident-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; Manager, Mr. F. Teale Lingham.—The place of honour on an interesting programme is this week accorded to Max Darewski, the celebrated boy musician, composer, and conductor, whose marvellous pianoforte playing and masterly direction of the orchestra are greatly admired. Tom Hearn, the laziest juggler on earth, provides, as usual, a most diverting turn; the witty remarks of Joe O'Gorman are highly relished; and W. F. Frame, Lionette Roberty and her transformation dancers, Fred Eustace and company in the sketch The Amber Light, Charles Santon, the double-voiced vocalist, Tom Collins, comedian, and Beattie Kent, comedienne and dancer, all contribute meritorious turns, the Bioscope completing.

Pavilion Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Thos. Barrasford; Manager, Mr. W. H. Boardman.—At the head of a good bill this week are those clever club jugglers the McBanns, and other artists appearing are Fred Land, Arthur Prince's Royal Mascots, Primrose Quartette, Mark Leslie, Broadway Girls, Three Spoons, Stowe Brothers, and Walter Reynolds and Co.

Roller Skating Rink, Exhibition Buildings.—Manager, Fred B. Crowe.—Afternoon and evening exhibitions of skating are still the rage, and the pastime is rapidly increasing in public favour.

NEWPORT.—Lyceum.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Sidney Cooper.—Messrs. H. Armitage and Arthur Leigh's company is presenting With Edged Tools here. Mr. Wm. F. Grant plays Jack Meredith with a quiet force and subdued humour; Mr. J. A. Rosier as Sir John Meredith is stately; and Mr. Chas. Hartopp displays vigour as Guy Oscard. Mr. J. Pockett does well as Maurice Gordon; Miss Marie Leonard is an attractive Jocelyn Gordon, Miss Alice Esther Belmore a graceful Millicent Cheyne, Miss Marion Fawcett a dignified Lady Canbourne, Miss Violet Thorold a capital Marie, and Miss Florence Dallhunty and others do well in the small parts allotted them.

Empire.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll.—Top place is given here to a novel turn Polly Pickles' Pets in Petland, a delightful musical fantasy; Miss Maude A. Edwards is successful in her ventriloquial turn; Barrington, a trick pianist, is unique in his impersonation of "Paderewski"; and Takio, the Japanese mimic, is accorded a warm reception. The McConnell Trio are responsible for a lot of fun with their musical comedietta, The Airship; Howell and Scott introduce some lively patter; and Eily Adair sings and dances cleverly. The Bioscope shows some novel pictures. Miss Madge Temple was unable to appear on Monday evening through indisposition.

NORTH SHIELDS.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Acting-Manager, Mr. Horace Lee.—The boards here are occupied by Mr. T. Morton Powell's company with The Greed of Gold. As Tom Wolstead, Mr. James Jarrett creates an excellent impression; Mr. Henry Parr plays with skill the part of Harry Hood; Mr. Alfred Stretton proves a capable Arthur Erroll; Mr. Vic. C. Rolfe gives a capital rendering of Mr. Brightstone, K.C.; Mr. Charles E. Wood acquits himself well as Conn Creamer; and Mr. Arthur Beaufort is highly successful as Cull Snig. Miss Maud M. Powell makes a success in the rôle of Dora; Miss Jennie Douglas Hicks gives an able representation of Mrs. Maxwell; Miss Florrie Hayes is a clever Patty Marfield; and Miss Beatrice M. Hughes a pleasing Cecil.

Central Palace.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Wm. Mould.—The principal place on the bill here is occupied by the Andos Japanese troupe, who introduce a marvellous act; Mr. Dave Richardson's troupe of local lads prove themselves to be capital clog dancers; Mr. Fred Dice, comedian and dancer, goes well; Master Will Punch, comedy juggler, is smart; Mr. Dan Kennedy, Irish comedian, has made a hit; and Mr. Will Munroe's Comedy Team is re-engaged, and meets with its usual hearty reception. The pictures are, as usual, excellent.

NORTHWICH.—Central Theatre.—Proprietress, Mrs. S. Golden.—Mr. Louis Elgar's pantomime company, in Jack and the Beanstalk, are doing good business here this week. Miss Isa Bernard, in the name-part, is a success, both histrionically and vocally; Miss Rena Rees as Phyllis is charming, singing in admirable style; Miss L. Palmer as Dick Tempest had a gratifying reception; Miss Ira Davis appears with credit as Daisy Dimple, and is distinctly clever in her impersonations; as Dame Trot Mr. Harry May proves exceedingly diverting; and Baron Snatchall has an admirable exponent in Mr. Harry Hoyland. Flippit and Floppit, in the hands of Messrs. Louis Elgar and Will Belasco respectively, create unbounded hilarity; and Bert Allen as Simple Simon proves a mighty atom of comicality. The specialities include Will Belasco, dulcimer soloist; Louis Elgar, scoring particularly with her singing. Mlle. Le Mair proves a clever danseuse; Mr. Sydney James works hard as Mother Goose, and with his versatility amuses the audience; Mr. Ted Lockstone is humorous as Billy; while Mr. Jack Harrington as Parchment, Will Raglan and Tom Wright as Village Policemen; Mr. Macklin Williams as Avarice, and Master Fred Cox as Amelia Jane are successful in their respective rôles. The mounting and scenery deserve mention, and the dresses are effective.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. E. H. Bostock and F. W. Fitt; Manager, Mr. Councillor F. W. Fitt.—The Kurios, in their pantomime art and mystery, fully deserve the hearty reception they get for their funny turn; Miss Dinah Morris and company present a light opera, entitled A Village in Dahomey, with Sam Morris as Colonel Martin Muggs; Miss Alice Hughes and company appear in a comedietta, The Star of the Bazaar; and Harry Marlow and May Manton in a sketch, Winning a Wife. The other turns are Stewart and Morgan; Gladys Godwynne, juvenile vocalist and dancer; Will Goodwin, a popular comedian; and the Beautiful Lillian, trick cyclist. The Hippo. Bioscope scenes are interesting.

AGRICULTURAL HALL.—This is now opened as a roller-skating rink, and is heartily supported. The first fancy-dress carnival was held on Monday evening, and prizes were given for the best character costumes. There were two racing competitions, which excited keen interest. The hall was gaily decorated for the occasion.

AGRICULTURAL HALL ASSEMBLY ROOMS.—The New Era pictures continue to do well here.

BANK PLAIN ASSEMBLY ROOMS.—The animated pictures still prove attractive.

NOTTINGHAM.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Howard Finney.—Cinderella rings down tonight, much to the regret of many patrons, who have thoroughly enjoyed this excellent pantomime. Misses Cressie Leonard, Madge Vincent, Alice Tremayne, Marie Empress, and May Lilian Levey have endeared themselves to all by their spirited work; and the comedians, Messrs. Harry Brayne, Alexandre and Hughes, Johnnie Schofield, and Walter Uridge will long be remembered for the large element of fun and jollity they have produced.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Harry Upton.—The Prince and the Beggar Maid pays its first visit, and is receiving a hearty reception. Mr. Walter Howard submits a characteristically spirited rendering of Prince Olaf, keen and resolute, yet showing a delicacy of touch when necessary; Mr. Ivan Cleveland imparts boldness and dramatic force to the part of the villainous Hildred; and the hunchback, Michael, is capitally played by Mr. Graeme Campbell. Miss Annie Saker makes a capital exponent of the Princess Monica, every phase of feeling and passion being depicted with unerring effect; Miss Elsie Walton offers a dainty performance as Viola; and Miss Ivy Millais makes a picturesque figure of Camiola. Mr. R. H. Stephens puts a heartiness into the part of Hector that wins admiration; and Mr. Reginald Payne submits a comical reading of Lieutenant Stromberg. Mr. Francis Hawley as the Bishop and Mr. Kendal Chalmers as Nathan supply natural impersonations.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. Albert C. Duncan.—The appearance of Neil Kenyon is the signal for smiles, laughter, and jollity, which increase each moment while the clever comedian reels off his quaint quips and cranks. As an instance of untiring patience in teaching, De Gracia would be hard to beat, his wonderful elephants showing clever training as well as natural sagacity; Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Meynott supply an amusing comedietta entitled Semi-detached; Ted E. Box contrives to keep the mirth flowing by his whistling and comical sayings; jumping by the Hartleys is both interesting and smart; and J. P. Ling proves an acceptable mimic.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; Resident-Manager, Mr. E. Lockwood; Treasurer, Mr. A.V. Carnell.—The Cowboy Millionaire sketch introduces Tubby Edlin, whose comical methods are mirth-provoking to a degree. It is an excellent miniature comic opera, and the artists all acquit themselves with distinction. Vasco has many admirers, in Nottingham, and his eccentric methods are as laughable as his manipulation of numerous instruments is clever. The dancing of La Belle Greta gives unqualified pleasure, and the ventriloquism of Russell Carr is well recognised. The Eight 'Varsity Girls enliven the proceedings by their musical items, and the Society Quartette of Singers and Dancers add to the harmony. A speciality by Alexandra and Bertie, the Heroleb Brothers in a sketch, Walter Stanley, comedian, and the Barrascope are all deserving of praise.

OLDHAM.—GRAND THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. S. Mayall.—Tom Jones has been drawing good houses during the week. Mr. Robert Courtneidge's company is excellent in every respect, and every artist has a good reception; Mr. Harry Welchman again appears as Tom Jones, and his work is highly appreciated; Miss Florence Smithson as Sophia sings and acts in a delightful manner; Miss J. Ritz as Honour is clever and sings well; Miss A. Oppitz makes a most dignified Lady Bellaston, acting cleverly; Miss Mary Southwell is capital as Mrs. Western; Mr. Ambrose Manning again appears as Squire Western, and acts capitally as the jovial country gentleman; Mr. G. Elton as Partridge fairly revels in his work; Mr. John Morley as Mr. Allworthy is well suited, and sings with his usual success; Mr. D. Percival is smart as Blifil; Mr. J. T. Macmillan as Gregory is very amusing; and is ably supported by Mr. Cyril Lane as Grizzle and Mr. L. Braham as Dobbin; Miss Cicilia Wilman is very good as the Hostess; and a strong chorus and an augmented orchestra are ably directed by Mr. E. Thornton.

COLOSSEUM THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Wm. Eastwood.—The Little Breadwinner is enjoying good business here, Mr. J. A. Campbell's capital company doing full justice to the requirements of the drama. Little Irene as Meg acts in a manner which quickly makes her a favourite; Miss Josephine Richards impersonates Margaret Daventry in sympathetic style; Miss Lissa Young is very smart as Bobby Trott; and Miss Kitty Melville does well as Ruth Cherry. Miss Clara Hunt is a motherly Bridget O'Flanagan; Mr. Reginald Brown is excellent as Richard Lawrence; Mr. J. Monkhouse gives a protrayal of Lord Dorrington which is much enjoyed; Mr. Alfred Maurice as Joseph Prior makes a fine study of a hypocrite; Miss Millie Ford is capable as his ally, Kate Cherry; and Mr. Sidney Lee as Charles Prior is very good.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Hulme.—Reano and his famous band are delighting patrons with well-played selections; Miss Ella Shields had a most hearty reception for her capital rendering of coon songs; Billy Merson is very smart in his comedy; Ada Parker sings and dances daintily; and Bostock's Baboons perform some smart acrobatic feats, showing careful training. Otto and Olga are capital comedy musical experts; the Eight College Girls provide a dainty and pleasing turn; A. E. Clifford is a clever comedian; and the Bioscope depicts Wilbur Wright and his aeroplane. Mr. Fred Eplett, fully recovered from his recent illness, has returned to his post as musical-director.

ROYAL THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—General-Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Kilrow.—George Leyton presents his military scena Lucknow with success, a number of local veterans lending effect to the production; Max Gruber and Miss Adelina give a pleasing turn with their cleverly trained elephant, horse, and pony; Barry Lindon is a capital bass vocalist; the Four Elwyns sing in excellent style in their scena, Down in the Mine; Winnie Derson sings some tuneful songs; and Harry Anderson is a successful vocal comedian. The Rangers perform daring feats on the cycle; and Chas. Coll, comedian, and the Dottoscope conclude.

HIPPODROME.—General-Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Nuttall. — Luis Hardt tops the bill in his marvellous feats of strength, for which he receives hearty applause; the Tennessee Guards are excellent in their manœuvres, and furnish good singing; Martin Henderson, blind musician, is a capital concertina soloist; Leah Arden sings in a most cultivated manner; the Westbrooks are clever in a dancing scena; Nellie Ridgway has a refined novelty act; and Harry Leaton is a good comedian. The Dottoscope concludes.

THE PALACE THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. F. Thorne; Assistant-Manager, Mr. E. Sharrocks.—Fred Karno's company, in The Yap Yaps, cause endless amusement; Leslie Bros., in their musical speciality, are very smart; Hilda Dare sings and dances in capital style; Horace and Olga's dogs and cats perform cleverly, showing perfect training; the Sisters Lavender are capital duettists and dancers; Wyotti is very good in his juggling act; and the Palace pictures are again prominent.

OXFORD.—NEW THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. C. C. Dorrill; Assistant-Manager, Mr. G. T. Lucas.—The latter half of last week Miss May Palfrey appeared here with great success in Mrs. Dot, supported by a good company. This week Mr. Seymour Hicks's company is drawing crowded and highly-pleased houses with The Gay Gordons. Mr. Frank Lincoln makes a most natural and convincing Angus Graeme; Mr. Tom Graves gives us a feast of fun as Nervy Nat; Mr. Edward Nainby is very droll and quaint as Edmund Siddons; Mr. Ernest Ruston is admirably suited as Andrew Quainton; and Corporal Smith, Dalesbury, Belstairs, Elmington, Merstham, and Alister Macdonald find most excellent exponents in Messrs. N. Forest, M. Dene, M. Florence, J. C. Neville, J. A. Green, and W. Terriss. Miss Gladys Archbutt has won all hearts here with her delightful and fascinating performance of Peggy Quainton; Miss Mabel Dent is a bright and attractive Victoria Siddons; and Miss Ida Laurie an amusing Charlotte Siddons. The scenery and dresses are most beautiful, and a strong and tuneful chorus add much to the enjoyment of the play.

EAST OXFORD THEATRE. — Lessees, East Oxford Theatre Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Stuart.—Mr. Andrew Emm's company is this week presenting The Diver's Luck. Mr. Harry Cullenford enacts Martin Faber, the diver, with considerable verve and ability, while Mr. Chas. Osborne does well as Maurice Wyngate, and Mr. William J. Miller is powerful as Tom Hall. Mr. Fred A. Marston proves a general favourite with his brusque rendering of Barney Bawn, and Mr. Joe Rowland is a success as Snowball. Mr. Lyons Johnson makes an effective Captain Halton; Miss Dora Pass plays with due restraint and is graceful as Helen Wyngate; Miss Pearl Noyle is natural as Peggy Mahoney; and Miss Holly Haslewood easily wins sympathy with his clever portrayal of Winnie Hall.

PAISLEY.—PAISLEY THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. H. Savile.—The Gay Gordons is proving a delightful attraction here this week, the musical comedy having ample justice done it by an excellent all-round company. Mr. Charles Childerstone gives a very finished portraiture of Angus Græme, while the Peggy Quainton of Miss Marie West is a charming embodiment. Miss Florence Somers distinguishes herself by an exquisite presentment of Victoria Siddons; as Janet McLeod Miss Ada Mellon is to be complimented on an admirable assumption; Miss Kathleen Dighton acts effectively in the rôle of Mary McLeod; a clever and amusing portrayal of Charlotte Siddons is furnished by Miss Louie Emery; and Miss Rosa Wynford makes a stately Lady Millicent; Mr. Harry W. Johnson as Andrew Quainton plays with marked ability; the Nervy Nat of Mr. Edward Carlton is decidedly clever and humorous; Mr. Robert Rivers as Edmund Siddons is capital; Archibald Speedy is well delineated by Mr. Arthur Wooley; and Mr. R. H. Vallis is funny and entertaining as Jack MacPhrisky.

HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. Stead.—Mr. Jack Haddon's pantomime, Jack and the Beanstalk, is being performed here twice nightly. Miss Alma Obrey makes a dashing Jack, and Dora is sweetly played by Miss Bessie Knight. Mr. Dave O'Toole as Dam Trotter, and Mr. Bob Baxter as Silly Billy provided plenty of fun; Mr. Hal Forde, sen., is capital as Squire Musty; and Messrs. O'Malley and Brown as Dip and Dap are humorous and entertaining; Miss Dulsie Lloyd as Nancy and Miss Kitty Chandos as Charley Bright make an engaging couple; Miss Marie Rayner as Discordia is praiseworthy; Harmonia is cleverly enacted by Miss Nellie O'Mara; Mr. Tom Packer as Grumbles is excellent; and Mr. Blanchard as Betty does creditably. The singing and dancing of the Lovebirds, a quartette of ladies, is a particular feature of the pantomime.

PERTH.—PERTH THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. H. Savile; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Aldridge.—Mr. Savile's pantomime Puss in Boots entered upon its second and concluding week here. The pantomime has been an undoubted success, the scenery, dresses, singing, and humour being of a high standard. Large audiences have attended nightly, special attractions being provided this week.

PETERBOROUGH.—NEW HIPPODROME, LTD.—Proprietors, Messrs. Fred Karno and A. H. Edwards; Manager, Mr. Frank Gallagher.—The chief item of the entertainment here is provided by Seeley and Rhodesia, the American Novelty Entertainers; Chas. Russell is a character vocalist in up-to-date songs; the Three Gartis introduce vocalism and dancing; the Seymons give a smart juggling turn; and the programme also includes Estrella, international bare-foot sand dancer, Nellie Neil, comedienne and dancer, and Boden and Ford's company, including Pat Waddock, in a new and original farcical episode, The Cert. Hippodrome pictures complete the bill.

PLYMOUTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr. J. Langdon Lee.—The Royal on Monday opened the second half of the winter season with The Girls of Gottenberg, which drew a fine house, the tuneful music, clever dialogue, and smart sayings being as popular as ever. Mr. Bertie Wright as Max Moddelkopf was the chief means of fun, his antics never failing to elicit roars of laughter; Mr. Tom Shelford as Otto was also a clever humorist in a quiet way, whilst his topical song, "Jericho," proved very popular; Mr. Morgan Rickards was an admirable portly burgomaster; Mr. Chas. Berkeley as the sergeant proved a clever step-dancer; and Mr. Hugh Henson skilfully interpreted the dandified Albrech. As Mitzi Miss Simeta Marsden admirably filled a most exacting part, her singing being of a high order of merit; Miss Maisie North was fascinating as the General's daughter, her dancing being characterised by grace and precision; and Miss May Marshall as Clementine did capital work.

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. Jack Field.—Nat Clifford is a great attraction, his singing and dancing being fully appreciated; the Donaldson Bros. and company in the sketch, Sports in a Jungle, supply plenty of burlesque comedy; Jack Lane, a Yorkshire rustic, made a hit as a comedian, and should do well; Miss Lidy Mirvanah, mounted on a splendid white steed, is the central figure in some pretty tableaux; and Alf Gibson is a comedian of the quaint type; Miss Nellie Sheffield, fresh from her successes at the Plymouth pantomime, earns further laurels; the Armiens are heard to advantage in some high-class instrumental selections; and Evelyn Jones and company and Miss Nora Emerald give the finishing touches to the programme.

PONTEFRACT.—ALEXANDRA THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—General-Manager, Mr. Tom Diacoff. — The Four Sisters Netherland introduce their smart vocal and dancing act; the Attilas do some wonderful feats in the way of balancing on the trapeze; James Lowry has a capital baritone voice, and knows how to use it; and Miss Vesta Rae also warbles very sweetly. Prince Ishmael dispenses weird magic, and Alice Maud does some capital imitations of popular artists. Kendrick and Laura provide a smart pot-pourri act, and Willis and Warlock are agile dancers and quaint comedians. The pictures continue interesting and novel.

PORTH.—PALACE.—Proprietors, Poole's Theatres Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. C. W. Poole; Manager, Mr. Walter Bynorth.—The chief turn this week is Menotti, the Stockholm wonder, with his original creation, The Twentieth Century Cycle Track; he is accorded a very hearty reception. Frazer and French, America's premier hurricane wooden shoe dancers, fairly bring the house down with their smart stepping and dancing, and they receive rounds of applause; the Three Delanes, in their speciality act The Demon of the Grotto, are exceedingly smart; Sam Dalton extracts much merriment as the eccentric comedian; Albert St. Clair, double-voiced vocalist, sings excelently and makes a big hit—he is undoubtedly a favourite; the Three Calbas delight the audience with their acrobatic funniosities in a billiard room; Lilian Travelli, American soubrette and ballad vocalist, is all that can be desired; the Palascope with its latest pictures is greatly appreciated; and Charles Rowen makes a hit as comedian.

PORTSMOUTH.—THEATRE ROYAL. — Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Armstrong Bell.—This week the patrons of this house are enjoying a welcome visit from the D'Oyly Carte principal répertoire opera company. On Monday that ever-green favourite The Mikado was presented, and scored heavily, as usual. Mr. Charles R. Walenn fills the rôle of Ko-Ko capitally, and the fun never flags while he is on the stage; Mr. Fred Billington is a host in himself as Pooh-Bah; while Mr. Stafford Moss as Nanki-Poo, Mr. Leicester Tunks as the Mikado, and Miss Clara Dow as Yum-Yum are also excellent; Katisha is played with distinction by Miss Ethel Morrison, and Mr. Sydney Granville, Miss Beatrice Meredith, and Miss Mabel Graham fill other parts well. On Tuesday Iolanthe was presented, and The Pirates of Penzance, H.M.S. Pinafore, The Gondoliers, and The Yeomen of the Guard have been given during the week. On Wednesday and Friday evenings After All was played as a curtain-raiser.

PRINCE'S.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. E. Agate.—At Cripple Creek is being presented here this week by Miss Ida Molesworth's and Mr. Mark Blow's company. Mr. Austen Milroy capably plays the rôle of Joe Mayfield, and Miss Agnes Verity as Dynamite Ann is remarkably good. The part of Little Tatto is filled successfully by Baby Betty, "the child soprano." The play is well staged and the minor parts are filled effectively.

KING'S.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Claude Marner; Director of Entertainments, Mr. Thos. Barrasford.—The performing seals of Captain Fred Woodward are a great attraction here. They are trained in a remarkably skilful manner and win enthusiastic applause; Barton and Ashley are a clever comedy duo, and their act Canal-Boat Sal is very funny and smart; the Five Juanitas, Spanish acrobats, present a pleasing turn; Hal Godfrey and Co. appear in an amusing item entitled A Very Bad Boy, which is well received; Payen leaves no doubt as to his abilities as an impersonator, and other striking turns in an excellent programme include Mr. and Mrs. Royston Deane in My Lady's Chamber; Dorothy L. Clark, comedienne; Paul Vandy, juggler; and Harry and Paul, eccentrics.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Capt. E. H. Warren-Wright; Secretary, Mr. W. Pratt.—The sketch entitled The Little Captain is proving a great attraction here this week. It depicts an episode in the career of that popular hero Captain Kettle, and is presented by Leonard Mortimer and his No. 1 company. The story between the scenes is cleverly filled in by means of the Bioscope. Davis and Gledhill provide a smart and attractive turn in their cycle racing act on the patent track, and the clever juggling of Chas. Hera receives the appreciation it deserves; J. W. Hall is a comedian with considerable originality in his method, and the items presented by Dale and Vale, variety entertainers, Leo and Roland, novelty equilibrists, and Payne's Bio-photoscope are also deserving of notice.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Harris; Assistant-Manager, Colonel F. W. Roberts.—An extremely popular turn heads the bill at this house this week in the shape of Clark and Hamilton. The clever acting, singing, dancing, and music provided by the couple are above the average, and get a great reception. The Lyons Trio of pantomimists and dancers are amusing, and the well-trained horses in the sketch The Horse-Dealer are specially notable. A good turn is provided by Brown and Robinson, the singing bricklayers, and Carla Magda is a clever gymnast; Arthur Kenney's sensational cycling is well received; and other popular turns include Charles Sloman, comedian, Rita and Mack, and the Hippodrome pictures with the latest "animated news."

PRESTON. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Proprietors, the Executors of the late W. Johnson; Resident-Manager, Mr. Stephen Pritt.—Mr. Wentworth Croke's company is here with the Lyceum version of The Christian. Mr. Roy Redgrave as the Hon. John Storm gives a clever portrayal; Mr. Wilfred Noy is again seen here as Horatio Drake, a character he portrays in a natural manner; Mr. Herbert Hewetson is an excellent Lord Robert Ure; Father Lamplugh is capitally enacted by Mr. Thos. Barry; Mr. John J. Hooker is at home as the Archdeacon; Mr. Alan Jeayes makes a capable Paul; Miss Molly Hayden is extremely natural as Mrs. Callander; Miss Cora Deane gives a clever presentation of Polly Love; Miss Muriel Marsden and Mrs. Campbell are also very good in the small parts of Black Meg and Mother Kent; Miss Kitty Symons as Lady Robert Ure gives a sympathetic rendering; and Miss Daisy Scudamore as Glory Quayle gives a most realistic portrayal, and acts with much earnestness throughout.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Resident-Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank E. Burdett.—Sandy McNab, in the funny Scotch sketch The Egyptian Mummy, tops the bill this week and causes roars of laughter; Maud Courtney, the talkative American girl, is an excellent turn, and she fully merits the hearty applause she receives; Mr. C., who sings and talks, is an excellent raconteur, and also meets with a very hearty reception; the Rose Trio, acrobatic waiters, present a very smart acrobatic turn; Mona Vivian, juvenile comedienne (the original Wee Mona), is exceedingly clever, and her various impersonations meet with much applause; Arthur Slater, the man in white, in his whistling scena A Day in a Garden, proves himself to be an expert siffleur, his various imitations of birds being most natural; Tod Lowen is a comedian with a decided style of his own; Hector and Dale create roars of laughter with their boxing act; W. Raskello has a sensational athletic scena, Arizona, and introduces Jose Mitchell, America's daring distance leaper. Troubles of Childhood on the Bioscope concludes a capital all-round bill.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Sawyer and Woodruff.—Messrs. Jagon and Nightingale are presenting their pantomime Cinderella this week, and it is meeting with an enthusiastic reception. It is well dressed, the book sparkles with fun, and the chorus is good. Mr. Fred Lake is very funny as the Baron; Wallace Whitney and Harry Plowden, as Arabella and Isabella, the ugly sisters, cause much laughter with their drolleries; the Danbys are a clever pair of knockabouts, and are well suited in the parts of Kuff and Kollar, court bailiffs; Leo Fields, as Buttons, the page, is brimming over with fun; Miss Vera Mayne is an ideal Prince Brilliant, and Beattie Foster as Dandini sings and dances well; Flo Burnett as the Fairy Godmother possesses a very fine voice and presence, and her rendering of "Come back to Erin" brings down the house; Miss Cissie Gordon is an imposing Marquis of Taxes, and Lily Hales as Dorothy is very winsome. An effective chorus adds much to the success of the pantomime, which goes with a swing from start to finish.

RADCLIFFE. — GRAND OPERA HOUSE. — Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Geo. T. Santé; Acting-Manager, Mr. Jas. Boothman. — Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Levy and J. E. Cardwell's company, with the pantomime Little Red Riding Hood, is here for the week. Miss Fannie Adamson makes a dashing Boy Blue; Miss May Gibson as Miss Muffet deserves the warm applause accorded her; Miss Helen Dunscombe does good work as Will Scarlet; and Little Iris Vivienne distinguishes herself both in her singing and dancing. Mr. V. Wakeman is a success as Dame Trot; Messrs. Denby and Dent as Doleful Dan and Whimsical William introduce many comicalities; and the Flower Ballet and the Snow Ballet are pretty spectacular effects.

RAMSGATE.—ROYAL PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Lord George Sanger; Lessee, Mr. Ernest Mansell.—On Wednesday evening the Ramsgate Operatic and Dramatic Society commenced a four nights' production of The Gondoliers. The show was brightly and creditably carried through, attracting large audiences.

RAWTENSTALL.—GRAND THEATRE. — Lessee, Mr. Fred Granville; General-Business-Manager, Mr. A. R. Feather.—Mr. E. Hill-Mitchelson's combination in Who Is She? is proving a capital attraction. As Prince Vladimir Mr. Graham Woods is most acceptable, and Prince Bora is ably presented by Mr. Horace Booth. Mr. Sinclair Holden is an admirable Arthur Gower, and Mr. Alfred Grenville makes an excellent Sergeant Metroff, whilst Mr. Edward Swinton and Mr. George Cully are excellent as Chang-Fee and Paul respectively. Miss Alice Barber is very good as Countess Ladori, and Miss Marie Robson is an excellent Keta Noveitch. As the little King Miss Mabel Ronald gives a charming impersonation, and Miss Violet Carlyle exhibits great talent in the title-rôle. The remaining characters are all well sustained and the piece is liberally staged.

READING.—ROYAL COUNTY THEATRE.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Benton.—Mr. J. W. Boughton's pantomime of Cinderella has migrated from Portsmouth, and is delighting large audiences this week. The pantomime is splendidly mounted, the Vision of Cinderella, which closes the first part, the Ball-room Scene, and the grand finale at the Palace being specially worthy of notice. The costumes are very rich and tasteful, and the production throughout is of exceptional merit. The title-rôle is sustained in charming style by Miss Connie Leon; as the principal boy, Prince Florizel, Miss Maude Mortimer makes a great hit, and her excellent singing is highly appreciated; Mlle. De Velin as the Fairy Godmother has a good voice, which she uses to the best advantage; Mr. George Belrose, as Father Time, is also a vocalist of great ability; Miss Minnie Miriam is an attractive Dandini; the two ugly sisters are very humorously impersonated by Miss Edith Barwell and Miss Annie Cohen; Mr. Stanley Vandyke, Mr. W. T. Thomson, and Messrs. Victor and Lewis contribute to the comic element most successfully. The specialities include the Monte Carlo Girls, who figure well as vocalists and dancers, and the Harvard Sextette of male voices.

THE PALACE. — Managing Director, Mr. G. Howard Watson; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. E. Draco.—Alexandra Dagmar contributes a popular turn, in which she sings and recites, with orchestral accompaniment, very effectively; Marco gives an expert magical performance; Dare Austin and Robert Harcourt appear in an amusing comedy duologue, His Wedding Morning; Ethel Dove is an amusing comedienne; F. V. St. Clair, the up-to-date singing comedian, is well received; Effie White's kaleidoscopic dance is very effective and pretty; Fox and Melville, American song illustrators, introduce some good topical allusions in their songs, which are much applauded; and last, but not least, the Norman and Leonard Trio appear most successfully in a very clever musical item, Ye Squire's Dance, in which they play on the harp, violin, and mandoline, and also dance very artistically.

SMALL TOWN HALL.—Mr. Walter Jeffs has opened here for a season with his New Century Pictures, which include a superb operatic reproduction of Faust and many other popular and attractive subjects.

ROCHDALE.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Man.-Director, Mr. W. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Resident-Manager, Mr. S. Burton.—Woman and Wine occupies the boards here this week. The play is well staged, and full justice is done to its thrilling situations. Mr. E. Vivian Edmonds is prominent with a powerful impersonation of Dick Seymour; Mr. R. Foulis cleverly interprets the character of Alphonso Beaudet, a bully; Mr. J. Milne Taylor submits an acceptable portrayal of Hugh Seymour; and Mr. W. Manning as Professor Souter and Mr. Harry Harrop as Charlie Souter create much amusement. Miss C. St. Elmo skilfully enacts the part of Marcel Ragadout; sympathy is enlisted by Miss Violet Sims as Mary Andrews; Miss Ethel Vinroy is popular with a well-acted Janet Marlow; and Miss Octavia de Noel is all that could be desired as La Colombe.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Thomas Hargreaves; General-Manager, Mr. Frank Hargreaves.—The Lavails submit a marvellous performance of strength and skill on horizontal bars of ingenious mechanism; Will English creates roars of laughter with his burlesque on "walks"; Thiessen presents a very acceptable turn with his acrobatic dogs, Lilly and Tiffi; Aidee Mellor sings sweetly, and is heartily appreciated; Arthur Schofield, comedian; Vincent, table expert and tumbler; Raie Walters, comedienne; and the Empire Bioscope complete the bill of fare.

ROTHERHAM.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. Holbery Hardy.—The management here are giving variety a turn this week, the Six Brothers Luck heading the bill with some smart and amusing sketches, including Lift'ems, Ltd. Messrs. Jackson and Marte, patter comedians, are deservedly applauded, and the Brothers Missouri are responsible for skilful tumbling and comedy in Fun in a Canteen. Arthur Pearl is a clever comedian, and Miss Sara Rosebury is a pleasing vocalist. Miss Lilian Rigby and Mr. Wal Dorne also provided successful turns.

HIPPODROME, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. T. Edgar Fox; Resident-Manager, Mr. Claude Shayler.—Bruin gives an extraordinary performance of Pastimes on a Battleship; another great turn is the sketch Blackmail, by Mr. Henry Herne and company, including Miss Ida Millais, who is very sympathetic as Ada, the Parson's wife; a river of water across the stage is highly effective. Messrs. Abel and Welsh give a highly diverting, eccentric, acrobatic turn; the Brothers Young are clever athletes; and Mr. Guy Ryder gives a fine representation of mimicry and whistling. Messrs. Blanche and Powell are excellent society entertainers, and the Sisters Ford, comedy duettists, are well received. Miss Cissie Sinclair is also deserving of mention.

RUNCORN.—PUBLIC HALL THEATRE.—Proprietors, The Public Hall Co., Ltd.; Manager, Mr. E. S. Lea.—We have W. Graham Arthurs and Miss Mabel Liston's company here this week, in Mockery of Marriage. Mr. W. Graham Arthurs gives a strenuous picture of Sir Montague; Mr. W. Graham has the necessary qualifications as Jack Stanley; Seth Pearse is a clever impersonation by Mr. Ralph A. Armfield; Mr. Frank Masters is a quaint Toby Wright; Mr. H. Geoffrey does well as Joseph Verham; Miss Mabel Liston undertakes the onerous rôle of Alma Kenyon with much aptitude; Rose Verham is effectively presented by Miss C. Middleton; Miss H. Neilson is lively and entertaining as Mary Ann; and Miss Priscilla Barnard is a capital Nellie Kenyon.

SALFORD.—PRINCE OF WALES'S.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. E. B. Goulden; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harold Goulden.—Mr. Harry Foxwell's company had a good reception on Monday, when he gave a clever performance of the domestic drama, A Broken Heart, by Charles E. Clarke. Mr. Gerald Kennedy ably sustained the part of the blacksmith, John Barnard; the erring wife was played by Miss Lillian Herries with much histrionic ability; Miss Emma Rainbow made an excellent old Mrs. Barnard. Villainy was well shown by Mr. J. Moreton Williams as Stephen Raylton, and Mr. Edward Rawlinson as Cash Gills. Mr. Tom Armitage as Tony Tibbets, Mr. George Addison as Skrimp, and Miss Nancy Mitchell as Sally Trayner made good use of their chances in the comedy element. Little May was cleverly presented by little Daisy Rocheford, and Miss Mabel Kelland was a charming Grace Fanshawe. Mr. Vivian Charles (Rev. Mr. Stanton), Miss Ethel Grey (Mrs. Kellett), and the other members do very well in their various characters. The scenery was very pretty.

REGENT THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LTD. — Managing-Director, Mr. W. Turner; Manager, Mr. Herbert Raymond; Secretary, Mr. J. C. Patterson.—Daisy Mayer gives some clever coon stories and smart dancing; The Battle of Life is a sketch by J. Wright Aitken and company, which makes a good impression; Minnie Wren's songs are well received; Starr and Leslie cause much applause and laughter in their speciality act; Fred Curran's parodies catch on; Alberto Troupe (three ladies and one gentleman), equilibrists, are much appreciated; Bains and Reed, comical and clever acrobats; Blanko White, coloured comedian and buck dancer; Bert Powell, military illusionist; and Dick Graham, descriptive vocalist, also give acceptable turns.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; General-Manager, Mr. H. Winstanley; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. Geo. F. Slatter. — The Queen of the Adriatic, a pretty sketch, heads an excellent programme this week; James and Jenny Joe give a very clever dancing, jumping, somersaulting, and cycle act; Ruhart, assisted by La Belle Rosalind, gives a smart buriesque; Razellis, in their novel trapeze act, do some daring and very clever work. Other acceptable turns include Marie Kay, juvenile comedienne and expert dancer; A. H. Drinkwater, light comedian; Recar Trio of charming lady acrobats; Lily Hayes, chic comedienne and dancer; and Lew Peterman, Hebrew comedian.

OPERA HOUSE AND ASSEMBLY ROOMS, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Turner; General-Manager, Mr. Herbert Raymond; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. Shepherd.—The animated pictures shown here this week include good films of The Old Favourite and The Golliwog, A Good Tip, The Kaleidescope, A Cycling Maniac, Martyrdom of Louis XVII., Rum Kiln Ashore, Bother in a Bootery, When the Man in the Moon Seeks a Wife, and A Man in Pieces. "Something seems to tell me you'll forget me" is well illustrated and sung by Mr. Tom Sherlock.

SALISBURY.—COUNTY HALL.—Proprietor, Mr. Arthur Whitehead; Business-Manager, Mr. T. Brinsmead.—Mr. George Edwardes' companies are always welcome here, and not a vacant seat has been found at any of the performances of The Merry Widow this week. Miss Daphne Glenne as Sonia acted in a bright and lively way, and had an excellent partner in Mr. Alec Worcester, who delighted everyone, and had constantly to reappear and acknowledge the ovations of the audience; as Natalie Miss Violet Hobson looked charming, and sang well; as did Miss Eileen Clauford as Olga; Mr. Sinclair Cotter as Baron Popoff was a host in himself; and was well backed up by Mr. H. Emeric, whose antics and dancing as Nisch, fairly brought down the house; Mr. Cecil Warwick was clever as General Novakovitch. The entire cast worked in a faultless manner, the dresses and mounting were much above the average, and the orchestra was a strong feature of the performance.

SCARBOROUGH.—THE AQUARIUM.—Secretary and Manager, Mr. Walter Kitchingman.—Cecile François and company score well in the scena In an Artist's Studio, in which are included some smart balancing feats and clever dances. J. Stanley, the singing collier, is well received; Floria is a particularly smart equilibrist; Shenton and Chicks provide a turn which delights all; and Cliffe Owen and J. H. Crew, comedians, are amusing. Arthur Ferriss is a favourite, and Tee and Tee are responsible for a humorous musical turn.

THE NEW HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Peacock.—Kartelle, in his daring wire act, is exceptionally clever; St. George Sylvester is a remarkably smart illusionist, and Harry Taylor causes considerable amusement. Evelyn and Norrie in the sketch Set a Thief—— are highly successful; and the same may be said of Leslie and Player, comedy duettists. Tommy Nelldon and Vena Palma are pleasing musical entertainers; and Wood, Wells, and Welkins, in their comedy harmony sketch, are very fine. Pictures are shown on the Kinematograph.

SEAHAM HARBOUR.—NEW ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. A. C. Harrison.—Mr. J. A. Campbell's company is here this week with The Old Folks at Home. Lord Howard Kenilworth is skilfully enacted by Mr. Frank Liston; a powerful study of Andrew Ross is submitted by Mr. H. E. Herbert; Christopher Robin is finely rendered by Mr. Eugene Santley; a rollicking Ben Jolly is contributed by Mr. Frank Caffrey; Mr. Leslie Crowther as Joe Chaff is popular; and as Jock Mr. Arthur Dudley does well. Miss Maud Warburton is an artistic Dorothy Robin; Miss Clara Santley merits praise as Martha; Patricia Bathurst is smartly depicted by Miss Kate Froud; as Bonita Durham Miss Amy Rale gives satisfaction; Susan is vivaciously drawn by Miss Maudie Grayson, and as Dinah Miss Lillian Francis gives capable help. The Excelsior Quartette are especially pleasing.

SHEERNESS.

Mr. Hart has fully maintained the glorious traditions of the old Theatre Royal, and Goody Two-Shoes is a fitting successor to the spectacular triumph associated with the names of Joseph Eldred, Richard Younge, E. Romaine Callender, and other noted lessees of the historic house.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. William D. Forsdike; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. W. Ramsay.—Robinson Crusoe having departed for Halifax under the guidance of its lucky and successful proprietors, Messrs. Dottridge and Longden, melodrama again holds the boards. Mr. Mark Blow and Miss Ida Molesworth's company opened on Monday in The Luck of Roaring Camp, an adaptation of Bret Harte's famous story. Miss Olive Wilton appeared successfully as Neli Curtis, and all the other characters were cleverly played. The drama was effectively staged.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE.—The Moss' Empires Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Alan D. Dunbar.—There was a crowded and evidently delighted audience on Monday, when the celebrated illusionist, Mr. Horace Goldin, assisted by the graceful and piquant Mlle. Franciala, mystified all present with his clever tricks; Mr. Frank Lister and company, in the pathetic and convincing dramatic sketch, No. 99, were received with loud and thoroughly deserved applause; the acting was distinctly above the average, and every sentence told. Miss Millie Payne, a diverting serio-comic vocalist, caused great merriment in her burlesque of the "Directoire Girl"; Thora, a talented ventriloquist and impersonator, was cordially cheered; Mr. Ernest Gitten's opera troupe were very successful in a condensed version of Donezetta's delightful and melodious Daughter of the Regiment, which was excellently sung and carefully staged; the Sisters Florence and Lillian, refined instrumentalists; Mr. Harry Bedford, comic vocalist; Mr. Larry Lewis, vocal comedian; and Miss Violet Stockelie were well received; and the performance finished with a pathetic and artistically-produced animated picture, Lily's Christmas Day.

THE HIPPODROME. — Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; Resident-Manager, Mr. P. D. Elbourne.—The splendidly-staged pantomime, The Forty Thieves, written and produced under the direction of Mr. William Holland, is being played here to crowded and well-pleased houses. The principal scenes are the Market Place, an elaborate built-up set, with an artistic background of characteristic Eastern scenery, painted by the talented T. C. Ryan. Mr. Dunn's Mountain Gorge is a boldly-treated and picturesque scene. The Bazaar, by Mr. S. Shuter, is full of local colour and careful drawing, and the Robbers' Cave, a big set glowing with gorgeous and scintillating magnificence, is one of Mr. Dunn's best achievements. Mr. H. McLennan's Mustapha's Shop is worthy of this notable scenic artist's brush, and Mr. T. C. Ryan's Courtyard is one of those powerfully-conceived and vigorously-painted Oriental pictures for which the great Alhambra artist is famous. The pantomime finishes in the Grand Reception Hall, a conventional but beautiful set, by Mr. E. Egerton. The principal characters are played in a vivacious manner by Miss Cecilia Gold, a pretty and graceful Morgiana; Miss Bertha Clifton, the graceful representative of Ganem; the Three Sisters Tree (Dolly, Biddy, and Portia), who appear with great success as Captains Abdallah, Ahmed, and Ackbar respectively, and receive hearty applause for their songs and dances; Mr. Bob Selvidge, the comical Ali Baba; Mr. Walter Grosvenor (Mustapha); Mr. Chris Le Brun as Percy, the Mokeiana; Mr. Jack Waller as Hasserac; Mr. Robb Wilton as Cogia Baba; and Mr. Wallace Bosco as Cassim. There is a large chorus and ballet, the principal dancers being the Misses Sadie Cassell, P. Wardroper, Mabel Hope, and Fancy Free, who introduce a delightful "Pas de Fascination" in the Cave scene. The ballets have been arranged by Miss Maggie Donald, and Mr. Caffyn Baxter makes an efficient conductor.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. A. W. Turpin.—Some fine pictures are scheduled on the programme this week, including Scenes on the Continent, The Suffragette Boys, The Generous Bootblack, The Chelsea Pensioners, The Electric Hotel, and the fine bioscope drama, The Hunchback's Revenge.

ALBERT HALL.—Manager, Mr. J. Peace.—The Imperial Animated Picture Co., with scenes from the Ober-Ammergau Passion Play and a fine series of romantic, dramatic, and humorous films, opened to a large audience on Monday.

The CENTRAL, the PAVILION, and the SURREY, with pictures and variety turns, continue to do excellent business.

SHREWSBURY.—THEATRE ROYAL AND HIPPODROME.—Lessee and Director, Mr. W. Yates Gregory; General-Manager, Mr. Thos. Baugh.—Mr. J. P. Moore's pantomime, prettily staged and running with swing and finish, is a strong attraction here this week, the variety turns introduced being exceptionally good. Of the immortals, Miss Garibaldi as Fairy Queen merits praise, and her singing is sweet and tuneful; Mr. H. Willatts works hard and successfully as King Rat; Miss C. Hamilton as Attendant Rat is deserving of credit; Miss Simonette as Fairy Goodwill is effective; and Miss Dolly Vince as Fairy Hyacinth acquits herself satisfactorily. Of the mortals, Miss Madge Lock as principal boy is bright, smart, and capably plays throughout, her songs and dances going well; Mr. Percy Victor makes a capital Alderman Fitzwarren; Mr. Willie Oswald is a capable comedian as Idle Jack; Mr. F. Street is energetic and amusing as Captain Bunting; Mr. Ernie Victor is droll and smart as Bullock, the mate; Mr. Fred May creates merriment as Betsy Ann; Mr. E. Ellmore, who has a fine stage presence, acts capably and commendably as Emperor of Morocco; Mr. Chas. Nicholl as a bathing attendant is deserving of a meed of praise; Messrs. Doyle and Massey are a droll and agile pair as Shuffle and Slink; Mons. Paulett is really artistic as Tibby the cat; Miss Vesta Nixon makes a capital Algy; Miss Eva Street looks well and acts with success as Polly; Miss May Berry makes a very pleasing Princess Charming; Miss Lilias Gray is all that could be desired as Viscount Piccadilly; Miss Lily Vince as Sir Rowland takes her part in a praiseworthy manner; Miss Alma Round is an effective and efficient Maid Marion; Miss Ada May sings, acts, and dances in a talented fashion as Alice Fitzwarren; and the Palace Troupe of lady attendants are deserving of encomiums; Victor's musical dogs give a remarkable exhibition of canine intelligence and admirable training, the turn being novel and entertaining; the Victor Bros. are accomplished and refined acrobats; Serpentino is a lithe contortionist; and other smart turns are those of Street and Round, Doyle and Massey, Oswald and Locke, and the wonderful Pauletti.

SMETHWICK.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. C. Barnard; Manager, Mr E. Hewitson.—The Girl Who Wrecked His Home is paying its first visit to Smethweck this week, and is presented by a capable company. Miss Louise Hampton, a charming actress, sustains the title-rôle with real feeling; Mr. Fred W. Goddard is a capable representative of Jack Marshall; Mr. Walner Gregory does good work as Leonard Kenyon, a gay deceiver, and receives able assistance in his schemes from Mr. George P. Lester as Joss Crockett; William Stevenson is in the able hands of Mr. Alfred Richards; Henry Stevenson is well represented by Mr. Herbert Goddard; Miss Winifred White gives a powerful and meritorious performance as Val Raymond, an evil-doer; and Miss Lulu Bowes makes the most of her part as Winifred Marshall. The comedy is well sustained by Mr. Francis Hope as Tommy Biffin and Miss Nellie Burdette as Lottie Primrose. The scenery is deserving of special mention.

SOUTHEND-ON-SEA.—EMPIRE THEATRE.—Empire Theatre Co., Ltd.; Managing Directors, Messrs. Geo. Conquest and Richard H. Nerney; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. Lingham Power.—The representation of Raffles, the Amateur Cracksman, marks the return visit of Mr. Reginald Dance and company. Mr. Reginald Dance submits a remarkable impersonation of the title-rôle; Mr. Edward Irwin works cleverly and successfully as the detective, Mr. Curtis Bedford; Mr. A. P. Bell is capital as Harry Manders; and Mr. Oswald Griffiths is well suited as Crawshay. Miss Frances Titheradge gives dignified characterisation of Gwendoline Conran; Miss Mollie Tremaine shows both force and skill as Mrs. Vidal; and Miss Doris Digby as Marie is good.

KING'S HALL.—The Will o' the Wisp provides the entertainment here this week. Miss Sara Vrubell's singing has much charm; Miss Beatrice Read scores a success in My Moon; Miss Doris Lind carries off dancing honours; Mr. Ronald Bagnall is amusing at the piano; and Messrs. Fred Lytton, Bryan O'Sullivan, and Tom Sutton all gain favour.

SOUTHPORT.—OPERA HOUSE WINTER GARDENS.—Proprietors, The Southport Opera House and Winter Gardens Co., Ltd.; Secretary and General-Manager, Mr. R. Singleton.—The second pantomime of the season, Mother Goose, was presented at this theatre on Monday evening by Mr. J. F. Elliston's company. The production, which was admirably enacted and staged throughout, comes here with a good reputation, which was fully justified and endorsed by the hearty appreciation accorded to it by a large audience. The rôle of the principal boy Colin was depicted by Miss Margaret Ruby with charming vivacity and artistic touch, both histrionically and vocally; Miss Millie Doris essayed the part of Jill in a fascinating and dainty manner which left nothing to be desired; one of the best and most prominent impersonations was that of Miss Lola Patey as Gretchen, the Dutch servant, in which she was eminently successful, both in acting and singing; Miss Beatrice Felsted is fascinating and clever as the fairy Heartsease; Mr. Harry Rich was capital in every way in the character of Mother Goose, and created no end of hilarity by his display of whimsical humour, in which he is very ably seconded by Mr. Charles Rich as Mother Goose's son Jack; Lord Pudsey had a highly commendable exponent in Mr. Fred Barnes; and the same remark applies to Mr. Leonard Maitland as the dude Wibsey Slack. Mr. Charles Homer did full justice to the part of the demon Malignum; Mr. J. C. Scatter is seen to advantage as the Mayor of Tapham; the Goose, the Donkey, and the Horse have each capable exponents in Mr. Douglas Campbell and the Brothers Smarte respectively; whilst Miss Edith Cornish and Miss Marie Clifton are efficient representatives of Lord Eric and Lady Ida.

SOUTH SHIELDS.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. John and Fred Coulson.—Her Road to Ruin is being played to good houses by Mr. Fredk. Melville's company. Jess Willoughby is strongly and sympathetically delineated by Miss Beatrice Edwards; Mr. Alex Bradley brings out the sinister features of Philip Hardy in bold relief; the heroic part of Frank Temple is vigorously portrayed by Mr. Henry Wolston; Miss Nellie Bonser as the lass from Lancashire does good work; and the same may be said of Miss Alice Bowes as May Willoughby. The play is full of stirring incidents, and very well mounted.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. F. Thompson.—The chief item on the programme is Herbert Darnley's Comedy company in The Brigands of Tarragona. Mr. Chas. H. Bell is funny as Pepo; Mr. Cecil Morton York and Mrs. Herbert Darnley sustain the parts of Col. Montano and the Brigand Queen in good style; Theo Bouwmeester and company appear effectually in their protean sketch, Who is Guilty?; McCann's Irish terriers display wonderful training; Frank Sylvo, comedy juggler, creates amusement; and the remaining good items are Fred Pollard, Hebrew comedian; Maizie Hibbs, speciality dancer; Nellie Taylor, juvenile male impersonator; and the bioscope.

TIVOLI, LAYGATE CIRCUS.—This popular house of entertainment is now devoted to Black's living pictures, many excellent films being shown.

SPENNYMOOR.—CAMBRIDGE THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Hugh Robertson; General-Manager, Mr. Lloyd Clarance; Resident-Manager, Mr. David Collins.—The attraction at the above house this week is Mr. Frank M. Thorne's company in The Woman Pays. Mr. Phil Harper is a dashing Sid Armstrong; and as Roger Marchant Mr. John Davidson gives an excellent performance. Mr. Frank Thorne is most amusing as Micky Maloney; as is Miss Anena Walton as Polly Stokes. As Madge Armstrong Miss Maud Russell shows to advantage; and the Nell Morland of Miss Kate Blair is worthy of mention. The rest of the company are good, and the piece is well staged.

HIPPODROME AND PALACE THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. C. Algie; Resident-Manager, Mr. A. Sleep.—Miss Grace Warner and company occupy the boards here with The Scarlet Clue and The Little Widow.

STALYBRIDGE.—HIPPODROME.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. James Fioni; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. A. Jackson.—The excellent programme presented this week combines a company of much variety. John Grun Marx is well to the front as a maipulator of heavy weights, and his various feats create astonishment; the Carlsens, in their trampolin act, are amusingly clever; the Birkenhead Family of juvenile songsters have previously paid a flying visit to the town, and have now returned to enjoy the full blaze of popularity; Mlle. Zelda is an instrumentalist who always succeeds; the Two Countees, lady duettists, are appropriately described as belles of harmony; George Bernard, an actor-vocalist of much power, has made his mark. The Le Vards, comedy sketch artists, and Wal Owen, eccentric comedian, are also in the bill.

ST. HELENS.—THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—General-Manager, Mr. A. McLeod Loader; Assistant-Manager, Mr. H. E. Johnson.—The coming of the Royal Carl Rosa Opera Company is always looked forward to most eagerly, and a crowded house welcomed the production of Il Trovatore on Monday. On Tuesday the curtain rose on Carmen, before a large and brilliant audience. Much disappointment was felt that Signor Tamini, owing to indisposition, was unable to appear. In his absence Mr. Walter Wheatley fills the rôle of José with telling effect, especially in the last act, when his exposition of rage and despair was very fine. Too great praise cannot be accorded to Miss Doris Woodall for her rendition of the part of Carmen, her realistic acting and admirable vocalisation making the passionate love and hate of the fascinating but hapless gipsy girl very realistic; Mr. Charles Victor took the difficult rôle of Escamillo with entire success; Madame Ina Hill appeared as Micaela, and won unbounded applause; Miss Annie Walker as Frasquita, and Miss Christina Ritz as Mercedes, were merry and bright, and gave a welcome lightness to Bizet's tragic work; and Mr. William O'Connor makes the most of his opportunity for fun as Remendado. The other characters were in the able hands of Mr. Alexander Richard (Quniga), Mr. William Rousell (Morales), Mr. Albert Felton (Lilias Pasha), and Mr. Fred Clendon (Dancairo). The chorus is strong and well-trained and adds greatly to the success of the production, and the dances, introduced by a troupe of ladies led by Miss Annie Elliott, were exceedingly graceful and pretty. Mr. Walter Van Noorden conducted with his accustomed skill. Lohengrin, Maritana, Tannhäuser, Faust, and The Bohemian Girl are also in the week's bill.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Barrasford, Sley, and Willmot; Acting-Manager, Mr. Leo Weisker.—The bill this week is headed by the Schiavonis, whose feats in tumbling are marvellous; Graham's Juveniles sing well; Don and Mabel Keir give some Scotch songs very pleasingly; the Brothers Lawrence are capital dancers; and other turns are given by Syd Myra and his dog; Walter Wade, comedian; Charles Johnson; and Nat Watkins.

STOCKPORT.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Charles Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Revill.—Pantomime is again the attraction here, Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Levy and Mr. J. E. Cardwell's juvenile company appearing in The Babes in the Wood with distinct success. Many pretty scenes and delightful ballets, numerous up-to-date-songs, and an abundance of fun combine to make an enjoyable entertainment. Peggy McDonnell and Cissie Wyse as the Babes are exceedingly clever juveniles; Robin Hood has a captivating representative in Miss Daisy Wood, who makes a pleasing hit with her "Bombadier" song; and Miss Dolly Dodds acts charmingly and sings sweetly as Marion. Of the comedians Mr. J. G. Aitken as Sandy Simple is funny; Messrs. Graham and Baron are a pair of mirth-provoking ruffians as Willing and Weary; and Mr. Jimmie Watson is a very acceptable Nurse Lucinda.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, The Stockport Empire Theatre Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Black.—Greater London, shown in panorama, forms a very pleasing feature here this week; and among other excellent attractions are the Brontes, in a laughable sketch, Stone Broke; Raiko and Partner, marvellously clever gymnasts; Will Sullivan, comedian and amusing patterer; Will Mitcham, an entertaining vocalist and musician; the Netta Janowski Trio, who perform many smart acrobatic and equilibristic feats; Violet Ray, a pleasing soprano vocalist and 'cello soloist; and Rosie White, a capable comedienne.

STOCKTON-ON-TEES.—CASTLE THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Charles Imeson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Cecil Imeson.—Messrs. Dottridge and Longden's pantomime Dick Whittington is here this week. Miss Florrie Gallimore in the title rôle makes a charming and delightful boy, her songs being loudly applauded, especially "My girl's a Yorkshire girl." Miss Josie Delaine is very dainty as Alice, her singing and dancing being warmly received. Miss Rose Tilley as Viscount Piccadilly does well; Miss Dolly Victor is popular as Molly; Miss Rose Alderman as the Fairy Queen is responsible for good singing; Mr. H. O. Wills as Idle Jack is a clever comedian, his quaint style and songs having made him very popular; Mr. Jack Mackenzie as Sarah keeps the house in a constant uproar; Mr. Jimmy Wood as Alderman Fitzwarren takes well; Mr. Alf Clegg is very good as the Cat, and is responsible for some clever dancing; Mr. Leo King sings and acts well as the King Rat; the Herald Comedy Four sing well and are very entertaining; Harwood's Juveniles are loudly applauded for some clever dancing.

HIPPODROME.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Harry Burns; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. Stainton.—George Auger (the giant actor and author) and company present Jack, the Giant Killer; it is a very clever performance, and received loud applause. Conway and Leland, the merry monopedes, are very daring, and take well; F. S. Gilbert has a fine tenor voice; the St. Johns, musical comedians and dancers, win much applause; Harry Russell and company in a comedy sketch Milk Oh! are successful; Harry Walker, comedian, wins favour with his patter; the Cleveland Harmony Four are much liked; and the bioscope concludes.

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. John Batty; Manager, Mr. Walter Batty.—Mr. M. Montgomery's stock company presents here this week Convict 99. Mr. Fred Terriss in the title rôle, and Miss Lilian Beaumont in the dual rôle of Lucy La Touche and Nanita, play with real dramatic skill. Payne's Bio-photoscope is still very popular.

SUNDERLAND.—KING'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager Mr. S. F. Davidson; General-Manager, Mr. Alexander Telford; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Sydney Reach.—To conclude the pantomime season, the management have brought Mr. J. F. Elliston's company here with Humpty-Dumpty. Particular mention must be made of the principal boy, Miss Florence Wix, who, by her vivacious acting and charming appearance has made herself a great favourite here as Rudolph. All her songs are rendered with a beauty that completely charms her audiences. "The White Man" especially being sung with much verve and finish. The rôle of Princess Aurora is filled in a delightful manner by Miss Barbara Babington; Mr. Willie Black has much scope for his talent in the rôle of King Solemn, and creates great amusement; the rôle of Humpty-Dumpty is very ably handled by Mr. George Danvers; the Lecardo Bros. acrobats, do much to keep things alive; and the Quality Quartette contribute some part-songs in capital style; Mr. Rex Kempton is good as Bison Bob; and Mr. J. Lonnen Meadows, the energetic stage-manager, takes a prominent part in the piece. The Walmsley Quartette contribute some pretty dances.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. R. Thornton; Manager, Mr. Harry Esden; Assistant-Manager, Mr. George Dunn.—Mr. Stephen Pritt's drama répertoire company, on Monday evening played A Woman's Passion. Miss Emmie Barton gave a satisfactory impersonation of Winifred; Lord Hubert Vale was capably handled by Mr. Edmund Grogan; Mr. David McFarlane did well as Sir Randall; the villainy was effectively shared by Miss Rosa Mervyn and Mr. Archie Helsby. There is a good deal of rollicking fun, and Miss Gertrude Purnell (Barbara) and Mr. A. B. Douglas (Vicary), and Little Poulton were very successful. The company is also playing His Wife No Longer.

EMPIRE THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Harry Esden.—Heading a good bill this week is La Pia, whose gracefully executed dances are considerably enhanced by gorgeous coloured lighting effects; the Stein-Erretio Troupe give a wonderful display as hand-jumping acrobats; Mr. Andrew McManus, a well-known local artist, sings a rollicking Irish song in excellent style; Sybil St. Elmo is a sweet-toned soprano; Arthur Albert, comedian, possesses a rich baritone voice; Walter Aubrey contributes clever buck-dancing; the Carina Sisters, in a refined musical mélange, show considerable talent; and Mlle. Haydee's miniature vaudeville is entertaining.

SWANSEA.—THE GRAND.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. E. Oswald Brooks; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Page.—Mr. Haldon Crichton's company gives a delightful performance of The Cingalee at the Grand this week. Chambhuddy Ram is played by Mr. Jack Crichton in a manner that is irresistibly funny, and with Miss Alice Nixon, who is really excellent as Peggy Sabine, divide the honours of the evening. Miss Pauline Hague as Lady Patricia Vane plays with finish and ease, and Miss Molly Wolstenhulme as Nanoya sings and acts remarkably well. As the young Englishmen Mr. Harold Wardropper (Vereker) and Mr. Scott Cullen (Bobby Warren) make a capital pair, and Mr. W. F. Ford as Sir Peter proves cleverly "There is no fool like an old fool."

THE STAR.—Manager, Mr. William Coutts; Assistant-Manager, Mr. S. J. Powell.—Mr. and Mrs. Kimberley's No. 1 company stage with effect this week the military drama Two Little Drummer Boys. As General Kingsley Mr. Edward Baker endows the part with dignity and stateliness, and no less successful is Mr. Harry Scott as Captain Carsdale; Mr. Oswald Douglas as the villian, Captain Darrell, is always good; funny, indeed, is the humour served up by Messrs. Will Percy and Dick Seddon as Privates O'Quick and Trimmer. Miss Mary Ainsley as Alma Kingsley commands admiration for her playing of the part, and Miss Violet Ingram's impersonation of Margaret Rivers, later Drunken Meg, could not be excelled.

EMPIRES, LTD.—Manager, Mr. P. C. Rowe; Assistant-Manager, Mr. W. H. Lennon.—Leynard's Wonderful Lilliputians occupy pride of place here this week, and a more versatile and skilful exhibition than that given by the midgets would be hard to beat; John Warren calls himself the man of mystery, and certainly no more mystifying exhibition has been seen locally. Carrie Laurie's Kindergarten is always popular, and this week they maintain their excellence; a gymnastic act of the sensational order is given by the Trentanovi Sisters, and as a Scotch comedian Bob Hamilton does very well; the Two Kays in their scena The Cuckoos prove themselves thoroughly accomplished, and Nellie Hughes, vocalist, is an acquisition to the programme; Verto and Venita are responsible for an enjoyable musical act, and excellent Bioscope pictures conclude.

THE PALACE.—Manager, Mr. William Coutts; Assistant-Manager, Mr. S. J. Powell.—This popular house has an excellent series of Bioscope pictures this week, including Leah the Forsaken, Rover's Rattle, &c., whilst the contributions of Miss Nellie Collier, Mr. Ben Dowall, and Larry Warner are deservedly applauded.

SWINDON.—EMPIRE THEATRE.—Proprietors, The Wiltshire Entertainments Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Alfred Manners.—Mr. Tom Watts' company appeared here on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday this week in the ever-green East Lynne. Archbald Carlyle was skilfully impersonated by Mr. Edmund Kennedy, and Mr. Frank G. Bayley was seen to full advantage as Francis Levison. Mr. Spencer Goodwin was very good as Lord Mountsevern, and Messrs C. C. Gratton, E. Rayson Cousens, and Cyril Hayward as Justice Hare, Richard Hare, and Lawyer Dill respectively played with distinct credit. Mr. Joe Rowland provided a capital portrayal of P.C. Bullock; Lady Isabel was powerfully taken by Miss Julie Kennard, and Barbara Hare was in the able hands of Miss Ida Heron. Miss Lilian Mason as Cornelia and Miss Ellen Lowther as Lady Mountsevern were excelent. Little Willie and little Isabel were expressively enacted by Miss Alice Moseley and Miss Ethel Ray, and the other parts were well taken. Mr. Seymour Hicks' company in The Gay Gordons were billed for the latter end of the week.

TON-Y-PANDY.—ROYAL. — General-Manager, Mr. S. Duckworth; Acting-Manager, Mr. Ridgewood Barrie.—Miss Marie Dagmar and company, in The Tyrant, are attracting good business. Mr. Roy Fortescue fills the title rôle most creditably; Homodei is capably played by Mr. Norman A. Overton; and Mr. Edw. E. Louis is highly successful as Rudolph, Prince de Roma; Mr. T. Ashmore is well suited as Pan; and the Victor of Mr. F. Etheridge is an able assumption. Miss Marie Dagmar is par excellence as Tisbe; Miss Marg Frame merits praise as Lady Katherine; and as Eulie Miss Lallah Shelton is well placed.

HIPPODROME.—Lessee and General-Manager, Mr. Will Stone.—Little Hackenschmidt pays a welcome return visit; the Five M.P.'s are exceptionally well received; Wisper is a comedy juggler; Beattie Bloom, Daisy Almer, and H. Connorton win applause for their respective songs. The principal pictures are a tale of the Revolution and a kind-hearted shoeblack.

TORQUAY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Managing-Director, Mr. W. H. Mortimer; Secretary, Mr. Arthur Pearse.—Mr. Lionel Rignold's company is appearing to large audiences here this week in The Early Worm. Mr. Rignold, in the title-rôle of Allan Marchmount, is a tremendous success, and fairly convulses the house by his clever antics and facial expression; Mr. T. Warburton Gamble makes a typical Duke of Tadcaster, and does exceedingly well; and Mr. Frank Graham is equally successful as Lord Steyne; as Sir William Martyn, Mr. Raymond Dudley is seen to considerable advantage, and Mr. Eric H. Albury provokes much merriment as Tom; the rôle of Sybil Annesley is admirably sustained by Miss Fyfe Alexander; and Miss Marie Dalbra makes a characteristic Lady Steyne. The setting of the piece is much admired. The performance is preceded nightly by The Wedding Morn.

TUNBRIDGE WELLS.—OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee, Mr. Welton Dale; Business-Manager, Mr. C. V. Hoskins.—Hippodrome season, Mouillot and De Frece circuit.—On Saturday Mr. Mouillot's pantomime of Robinson Crusoe concluded a most successful season with great enthusiasm and presentations of bouquets and boxes of chocolate to the principal boy and girl. On Monday the Hippodrome programme was resumed, the principal turn being Capt. Taylor's marvellously intelligent baboons. Massona gives a smart juggling act; Geo. Ross and Ella Grayson a musical comedy sketch, including piano-playing extraordinary, while the songs of Tom Lee, Rose Hamilton, and Jas. Barnett proved very popular.

WAKEFIELD.—OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Sherwood and Co.—Mr. J. Gar Kiddie's pantomime The Babes in the Wood, is here this week. Miss Marion Scott makes a dashing Robin Hood; Miss Margaret Cathcart charms the audience with her vivacious acting as Maid Marion; Miss Emmie Hands is a graceful fairy as Sylvania; Mr. T. D. Dandy makes a clever Baron; Mr. Dawson Dewick is seen to excellent advantage as Sammy, his quaint humour keeping the house in continuous laughter; the villains of the piece are ably depicted by Messrs. Conan and Doyle, who cause endless amusement with their comicalities; the Twin Sisters Mawdsley as the Babes earn much applause for their clever acting and spirited dancing; Mr. Edwin Lambert is good as Infernalio. Special mention is due to Mr. Mark Stuart for his clever portrayal as Dame. Specialities are contributed by the Lobrenz troupe of dancers and Messrs. Taylor and Elliott.

HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. Sydney Tolfree.—The programme comprises Gerard, herculean juggler, whose feats merit hearty appreciation; Alix Lukos, a clever actor-vocalist; Neddy Vokes, musical comedian; the Five Bombays, vocalists and dancers, in smart turns; Stan Aubrey, who dances well; the Two Sages, comedy duo, in an admirable turn; and Tom Got, an agreeable American comedian.

WALSALL.—GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietors, The Walsall Theatres Co., Ltd.; General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. W. H. Westwood. — The Aladdin pantomime by Mr. Arthur Carlton's company is fulfilling a second week's engagement here with the greatest success. Capital new songs are introduced.

HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, The Walsall Theatres Co., Ltd.; General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. W. H. Westwood.—A capital entertainment is given by Le Roy, Talma, and Bosco. Le Roy proves a very smart conjurer, Talma, queen of coins, thoroughly mystifies the audience, and Bosco creates capital fun. Harry Herbert is a popular comedian. Other enjoyable turns are those of Kroney Bros. in their character sketch, London's Merry Coalmen; Katie Moss, entertainer at the piano and as a violin soloist; Phil Parsons, light comedian; Ida Kathrena, the dolly girl; the American Eccentric Alburtus; and Jessie Millar, presenting A Scene at the Fair Grounds. The American Bioscope completes the bill.

WARRINGTON.—ROYAL COURT.—Proprietor, Mr. J. Beecham; General-Manager, Mr. A. M. Loader; Assistant-Manager, Mr. S. Smiley.—Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company is here this week with Peter's Mother, and the delightful comedy has charmed large houses. The play is well produced and staged effectively. Miss Violet Ley as Lady Mary plays with much success, and in the passages requiring pathos she displays rare ability. Mr. Townsend as the stern Sir Timothy is exceptionally good; Mr. Vivian Gilbert submits a clever delineation of Peter; Mr. Drew Macintosh acts intelligently the part of John Crewys; a capital study of Lady Belstone is that of Miss May Griffiths, and Miss Josephine Rae scores as the impetuous Miss G. Crewys. Mr. Walter Russell is a typical specimen of the old-fashioned cleric; Mr. Edward Jephson is good as Dr. Blundell; and a charming Sarah is Miss Hilda Sims. A pretty curtain-raiser is supplied in Turtle Doves.

PALACE AND HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. H. C. Hardcastle.—Lew Lake and company are here again with My Pal Jerry, and the doings of the Bloomsbury Burglars have been responsible for much laughter. Mysticus astonishes all with his entertainment; Adah Payne charms with her vocalisation, her rich soprano voice sounding well in "Dear heart"; Sergt. Brennan is seen to advantage in a diabolo act; Wilton Heriot and company display smartness in the sketch An Anglo-American Alliance, in which Mr. Heriot scores as a German, an Italian, an American, a Dutchman and an Englishman; Kirk and Saraski are amusing aquatic acrobats; Captain Ellis and son are rare musical entertainers; and the pictures depicting the vagaries of Spring-heeled Jack are very amusing.

ROYAL THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, The Franco-British Animated Picture Co.; Managing-Director, Mr. Turner; Manager, Mr. J. Waters.—Good business is again being done here this week. Mlle. Ada Gathy scores repeatedly in a pot-pourri act; May de Rouse is a delightful vocalist, and her songs are all well rendered; Joe S. Atkins has established himself a big favourite; the Trippelos are talented musical entertainers; and Andrew Atkinson's illustrated songs continue to be a source of much pleasure. The pictures are good.

WEST BROMWICH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. R. Nightingale.—There is a strong list of attractions at this place of amusement this week and variety enough to satisfy the tastes of all classes of theatre-goers, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Draycott's company appearing in some old favourites. On Monday night it was A Stolen Birthright, in which Mr. Draycott appeared with great success as Stefano and Mrs. Draycott as Princess Miranda. Then followed The Shaughraun, The Octoroon, The Colleen Bawn, and East Lynne, in all of which the company has appeared with much distinction. All the plays, too, are well staged and mounted.

NEW HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. Tom Kuner.—Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Kimberley's company has met with a great reception at this popular house this week, where they are appearing in a military drama of much interest, the work of Mrs. Kimberley, and entitled A Soldier's Honour. Miss Mabel Mannering is very successful as Cora Lee; Miss Edie Macklin is also good as Jemima Eliza; and Miss Violet Langley is a charming Doreen Illingworth; while Miss Edie Trapnell as Queenie Deane proves herself a very clever child. Mr. Millar Anderson makes an ideal hero, and he is admirably supported by Mr. T. Arthur Ellis, Mr. Andrew Money, Mr. C. H. Gallier, Mr. Harry Lyndon, and Mr. Sydney Fiennes.

WEST HARTLEPOOL.—GRAND.—Lessee, Mr. Fred Granville; Manager, Mr. Herbert E. Feather.—The visit of the F. R. Benson Shakespearean company is an event that is always eagerly looked forward to in West Hartlepool, and local admirers of Shakespeare are this week thoroughly enjoying the excellent fare provided. The répertoire includes The Taming of the Shrew, Merry Wives of Windsor, The Merchant of Venice, Romeo and Juliet, School for Scandal, Hamlet, and a matinée Saturday of Julius Cæsar. Throughout the week the leading rôles are allotted to Mr. Henry Herbert and Miss G. Vandersee. On Monday the ball was set rolling with The Taming of the Shrew, in which Mr. Henry Herbert was brilliant as Petruchio, his masterly acting eliciting at times considerable applause. A splendid effort was that of Miss Vandersee, in the rôle of Katherine; Grumio had a capital exponent in Mr. Arthur Fayne; effective work was done by Mr. James Berry as Babista; and Mr. Robt. Atkins was satisfactory as Lucentio.

PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. A. E. Dobney.—The entertaining pair, Carney and Armstrong, give a performance which gains for them unbounded applause and is the cause of uncontrollable laughter; Mack Ollive, who is gracefully assisted by Daisy Baldry, is once more well received in his whistling scena; Elroy, the armless one, does wonders with his feet; Ethel Sheffer sings in taking style prettily illustrated songs; Sable Fern renders her numbers with agreeable distinctness; Lisbon and Barker take well; and Mark Merry is amusing. Excellent pictures by Raymond's Bioscope are an entertainment in themselves.

WESTON-SUPER-MARE. — KNIGHTSTONE PAVILION AND OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr. W. Payne.—Mr. Lewis Waller's Robin Hood company is paying its first visit here, and is exceedingly well patronised. Mr. Ethelbert Edwards, in the title-rôle, gives an interpretation replete with artistic touches; Mr. J. N. Briant as Richard makes the character stand out prominently; a fine piece of acting is given by Mr. H. Elliot Ball as Prince John; Mr. F. Clive Ross is thoroughly artistic as John Little; Mr. Bruce Winstone is most praiseworthy as Friar Tuck; and Mr. Lawrence Tessier is equally successful as Will Scarlet; Mr. Ernest Gray is deserving of eulogy for his impersonation of Fitz Alwynne; Mr. Jack Litchfield is extremely good as Hugo de Longespee; so too is Mr. V. Smart Gotlop as Sir Aymer de Botelier; Mr. Lambert Plummer is entitled to encomiums as the Abbot of Jervaux; and Mr. Ralph Leon's Tracy is most commendable; Mr. Stenson Liddiard as Allen a-Dale (with songs) exceedingly handsome and shows great histrionic ability as Lady Marion de Vaux; Miss Laurie Flockton is delightfully natural as Adela; Miss Gladys Devereux acts with distinction as Alison; Miss Roberta Pulleyne is conspicuous as Eleanor of Acquitaine; and Miss Jennie Muzzi is all that could be desired as Elspeth.

WEXFORD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, E. P. Ronan.—Dr. Ormonde's Viennese Ladies' Orchestra, Sunflower Company, and animated pictures opened here on Tuesday to a crowded house.

WIGAN.—ROYAL COURT THEATRE.—Proprietors, The Wigan Entertainments Company.—The breezy and entertaining pantomime Jack the Giant Killer is here. Mr. Harry Farrow is particularly effective as Dame

"BOY BLUE" AT BIRMINGHAM.

(SECOND NOTICE.)

Boy Blue, Mr. J. F. Graham's eleventh Birmingham "annual," has taken the town, and will continue to do so for weeks. The mounting, like the cast, is a perfect blend, from The Village of Whare, by R. C. Oldham, down to The Carnival and Bal Masque, by H. Emden, at the finish; while nothing has ever exceeded Roseland in beauty. This transpires at the end of Part I., and, when fully unfolded, transfigures the stage with its exquisite tones, the back design being one of a most entrancing nature. The dresses by Alias and Harrison, from designs by Comelli, have won warm praise, being very choice and charming; and in the ballets, &c., which are arranged by that accomplished ballet mistress, Miss Rose Tyrell, show up well. Mr. William Southworth has composed some fine incidental music, and to that he has not composed he has added fresh harmonic beauties. Among notable scenes are The Solicitor's Office, wherein the Baron (Mr. Tom Murray) and Martha (Mr. Horace Mills) meet to arrange their matrimonial differences; The Diving-Bell, wherein later the twain are ensconced to evade their creditors; and the Billiard Skit.

The artists have never left room for doubt as to their respective positions with the public. Miss Hettie King makes a very blithe and bonny Boy Blue. She looks nice, bright, and fresh, with her (apparently) close-cropped hair, while she is vivacious and sparkling, without being objectionably pushful, and, with her songs, makes indeed an excellent "boy." She works in some capital "business" in "Afraid to go home in the dark," and her pathos rings true in "Good-bye to dear old London town." She has several others, and scores in all. Miss Gladys Ivery as the wandering Princess Gloria, who falls in love with Boy Blue, shows all the empressement of her rank, acting as if to that position born, while her vocalisation and terpsichorean accomplishments are of a very high order. "The Taxi-cab" and "Antonio" enjoy a vogue here much to this lady's credit. Miss Rita Everard's fine willowy figure, plus her fine voice and prepossessing features, make the part of Prince Opulent one close approaching perfection. She sings "A tiny seed of love" with a touching strain of pathos, and her singing with Margery (Miss Connie Emerald) has its own distinctive quality. Miss Emerald has all the chic and high spirits necessary to the rôle of Margery, the Baron's daughter, singing with much charm and dancing with due abandon; and Roselaf, the fairy, is represented with all her beneficent qualities by Miss Olive Adair.

Mr. Tom Murray's Baron is quite a study in its way. The merry, unctuous, and utterly conscienceless style in which he forms a "mésalliance" with his discharged cook, Martha, in order to appropriate her fortune, his braggadocio, and his artful way of dodging his creditors, make the people roar. Mr. Horace Mills as Martha is his very antithesis, and the effect is excellent. Alert and waspish, but very humorous withal, and full of the importance of being "rich," Mr. Mills's Martha keeps the audience merry all the time. His "Salome" travesty is never offensive, but truly humorous, and his "Old cracked basin," with his remarkable gyrations which accompany it, send the audience wild with delight. Mr. Jay Laurier's full-flavoured bucolic humour as Jiggory, dropping betimes into the vernacular, is another mighty incentive to mirth, and his songs, "I don't care if there's a girl there" and "They always do" (with Miss King), meet with full applause. Mr. G. H. Elliott as Chocolate has a personality and distinction which no "colour" can efface. From the crown of his head and the curls thereof, down to the soles of his nimble feet, he is the "coon" par excellence, with a style and grace that is all his own. His songs could not be excelled in their mode of delivery; while his dancing marks him as being imbued with the spirit of Terpsichore. "My pal Bill," "Sue, Sue, Sue," and "I want you to see my girl," with their respective juvenile "dressings," create a furore. Mr. John Alexander, the "Wales" stage-manager, plays well in the rôle of the Baron's Solicitor, who receives grievous snubbings; and Mr. K. F. Graham acts wonderfully near to the manners of an obstreperous and evil-disposed bull and bear. The "book" is by J. Hickory Wood, and is written in that writer's well-known lucid style. The Eight Stella Girls charm and fascinate in the full sense of the words in their highly-attractive swing scena and dances, and the Lyric Quartette discourse after their wont.

"DICK WHITTINGTON" AT BIRMINGHAM.

(SECOND NOTICE.)

The more the public sees of Dick Whittington, the more it seems to like it, judging from the repeat bookings and generally crowded state of the Theatre Royal. The story is recounted in a fluent and coherent form by the present authors, Messrs. Philip Rodway and Douglas Buchanan, and the special music composed by Mr. Guy Jones creates an atmosphere proper to the period. The overture, with Bow Bells pealing in concert now and anon, is an instance of this, and so it continues to the end. As a production, and this on mature consideration, it has probably never been equalled here. The scenery affords a succession of pleasant surprises, and first, "Fitzwarren's Universal Stores" excites wonder and admiration with its rich and varied "stock-in(g)-trade." The artist here is Mr. W. R. Young; and Mr. R. C. McCleery's "Highgate Hill" scene is another hit, with its miles of hedgerows and charming landscape. "The Palace Gardens of the Emperor of Morocco" and "The Guildhall," by Mr. Young, both seem to have gained in beauty since Boxing Day. The dresses by Wilhelm and Crafter, and which are executed by Landolf and Co., Obronski and Co., and Elkan and Co., have shed none of the sheen of their newness and rich beauty by wear or familiarity, the effect of the chorus and ballets in "The Stores," "Highgate Hill" (with its dazzling flower ballet) and "The Guildhall" (with its gorgeous processions), being rich beyond compare. Miss Sybil Arundale as the hero, not only charms, but she animates the company as well as (indubitably) the audience with enthusiasm. She still sings with remarkable range and pathos "More than all the world to you," and has introduced several other successes. Miss Aimee Grey as Alice is quite the creamy and rosy English girl the imagination would conjure for the story, and her various songs, as well as duets with the hero, bespeak the finished artist. "The moon he loves a coon," "See-saw," and "Have you got another girl at home like Mary?" are specially featured by Miss Grey, whose dancing is also of an attractive nature. Miss Ada Whittaker puts in a lot of graceful work as Tommy Tapes, and Miss Clara Reid is a great force of attraction as Marjory Daw. Not only is she vivacious, comely, and mellifluous, but she is an exceedingly clever dancer. Miss Ethel Negretti is the fair Princess Rosydawn, the Emperor's daughter, and has only to be seen to be admired. "A tiny seed of love" works wonders from this fine artist, whose comedy powers in a coup de tête with Idle Jack keep the audience in a flutter of delight. Miss Violet Baynton as the Spirit of the Chimes is all that that good fairy should be. Mr. Tom Foy's Idle Jack might have been the original of the story, so true to the character and the period of the play is it. His big songs are "When I've a hundred pounds" and "Put me on an island where there are no girls." Mr. John Power is an energetic and bustling Fitzwarren; Mr. Arthur Reynolds as the cook puts much vim into his songs, which still include "The cookery book" and "Good-bye, Mr. Teddy Bear"; Mr. Eric Campbell is a very fine and large Emperor of Morocco, and his vocalisation helps to make the character most successful; Messrs. Drew and Alders play the Captain and his Mate, and their appearances throughout are a bright and wholesome feature of the show; and Mr. Harry Lupino does all that is needful for the rôle of King Rat. Master Lupino Lane's contributions of songs and dances as Bottles, the office boy, stamp him as an artist of rare ability already. Wee Wallace Lupino as the tiny fan-bearer, Kazrac, is also a wonder with his extraordinarily clever dancing. Mr. Fred Whittaker's impersonation of the cat is a special delight to the children, whom the pantomime is drawing in throngs; and Messrs. Ted Foy, John Foy, and E. Delfosse succeed in minor rôles. The company is completed by Mr. W. E. Gulson's Bow Bells Quartette and the Bert Coote Marigny Troupe of lady dancers, the latter of whom swell the attractions of the ballets appreciably. The dances have been arranged by Mme. Rosa, and the pantomime is produced by Mr. Herbert Cottesmore.

"BRITAIN'S AWAKENING."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—I should like to point out to you that the first and original production of a modern invasion play was produced by me at the Royal West London Theatre, Saturday evening, Feb. 8, 1908. This play, of which I am the author, was entitled Britain's Awakening. My principal character in this play was Lieutenant Dillon Roberts, and the principal aide to the foreign invaders landing in the fog was Orresa Nicolini, a foreign military spy in league with Scuttler Lee, the owner of the cottage on the coast within which all the action of my play transpires. This play was written by me in December, 1907, copyrighted and passed by the Lord Chamberlain on Feb. 4, 1908. Shortly after the production of this play I sent a copy to Lord Roberts.—Yours faithfully,

NORMAN WRIGHTON.

"THE INVASION OF ENGLAND."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—In the dark days of December, 1900, when reverse after reverse was being experienced by our troops in South Africa, it occurred to me that a play dealing with an invasion of these shores at such a juncture, when every soldier who could be spared had been sent out of the country, leaving us helpless indeed but for our—may I, in view of Lord Roberts's praise on their practical achievements—say gallant Volunteers, and illustrating what they would undoubtedly do their level best to achieve in the unhappy event of such a hostile landing, would provide an object lesson which, if taken seriously could not fail to help forward the Volunteering spirit in no inconsiderable degree.

To illustrate but one fractional part of the terrible happenings which would most surely follow such a catastrophe was doubtless a large order, but the period seemed to me so opportune that, with the assistance of my friend Mr. Stevens, the then proprietor of the Grand Theatre, Glasgow, I produced such a play for the Easter fortnight, and afterwards toured it through the principal towns of the country until the close of the year.

A combination of foreign warships destroying our commerce, with out fleets scattered in pursuit, runs on banks, a general dislocation of business, and bread at half a crown a loaf, with 3,000,000 out of London's 5,000,000 of inhabitants tearing through its streets mad with hunger and clamouring for peace, were some of the means whereby the evil genius of the play relied on securing the humiliation of England without a blow having been struck. Then we had a foreign battleship in the Thames, with a threatened bombardment of the City unless certain demands, including a limitation of naval armaments and the payment of a huge money indemnity were acceded to.

The City is shelled from the river, and a landing of guns attempted, the landing being successfully repulsed by the Volunteers; while incidents forming part of the whole included scenes underground, where the railways were being used as hospitals and affording shelter from the bursting shells.

Then the return of the British Fleet, after its successful pursuit of the enemy's ships, and the sinking of the hostile battleship by a British submarine, with the shooting of foreign spies in Hyde Park, with a distribution, amid scenes of rejoicing, of the honours of love and war. My hero was a captain in a Volunteer regiment.—Yours faithfully, WILLIAM BOURNE.

Brighton, Feb. 3, 1909.

AN address on "Some Reflections on the Queue" will be delivered by Mr. Mostyn T. Pigott to the members of the O.P. Club at the Criterion tomorrow (Sunday). The President, Mr. Max Pemberton, will occupy the chair.

IN response to a request from Miss Daisy Halling, Mr. Edmondstone Shirra has kindly consented to admit to the gallery of the Theatre Royal, Manchester, free of charge, 150 children from the slum districts of Manchester on Friday next, to see the pantomime Goody Two Shoes.

PLAYERS OF THE PERIOD.

MISS KATHLEEN CLYFFORD.

Miss Kathleen Clyfford's first appearance on the stage was at the age of five years, when she played Miss Muffett with an amateur company at the Imperial Rooms, Cheltenham. She was a tiny dot amongst the others performing, and the newspapers gave her some very good notices, one saying she was a born actress. The little lady's first introduction to the stage must have been a happy one, for during that week she was presented with no end of things, including dolls, chocolates, flowers, and a gold locket and chain from members of the company. Two years afterwards she played Red Riding Hood for the amateurs at the Victoria Rooms, Cheltenham, and again made a big success. After this she was kept at school until she was twelve years old, when she toured with her parents, singing illustrated songs. Then she played the White Queen in Alice in Wonderland for a short while.

On one occasion at one of the theatres her father was managing, The Silver King was opening. During the afternoon of the Monday the manager of the company told her father the little girl who was playing Cissie was too ill to go on that night, and she being the only child they travelled, he was in a bit of a fix. Miss Clyfford was suggested.

MISS KATHLEEN CLYFFORD.

The part was given her at five o'clock, and she was word perfect at the rehearsal at seven. She went through the part without a hitch, and played it every night during that week, achieving such a success that the manager of the company wanted her parents to let her go on with them. Some little time after this she read a part at the Haymarket Theatre for Mr. de Cordova for a sketch to go on the Stoll Tour. She was selected for the part out of six other girls, but when Mr. Cordova knew her age he could not engage her, owing to the trouble of getting a licence in each town.

Then she joined Mr. Edmund Tearle and played many parts during her stay with him, including Mary Drummond in Woman's Revenge, Little Willie in East Lynne, Little Mary Warner in Mary Warner, Lilly Black Boy in It's Never Too Late to Mend, and Duke of York in Richard III., the last-mentioned being her favourite part.

Mr. and Mrs. Tearle were always most kind to her, and to them she expresses herself greatly indebted for valuable tuition. Recently she was engaged by Mr. Rivington, Gaston Mayer's manager, for Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch, after hearing her read the part of Australia.

MR. HYLTON WARDE, having accomplished a thirty-four months' tour of South Africa, returned to England per the ss. Gaeka on Wednesday. Mr. Warde went out in 1906, having been engaged by Messrs. B. and F. Wheeler to play Augustus in Beauty and the Barge and other parts in their London Comedy Company. He met with much success, and, after a comfortable tour of ten months, he was engaged by Messrs. Woods and Williamson as principal comedian and stage-manager for their répertoire. That position he relinquished after a tour of twenty-one months, and was then engaged by Messrs. Crofton and Salisbury for similar work in musical comedies, remaining with that firm three months. Thus concluded a tour of incessant hard work, Mr. Warde having played from first to last no less than thirty-one parts.

Mr. Tom Conway, who is at present playing the Baroness in Cinderella at the Grand, Glasgow, has presented the management with a clever water-colour sketch, about 30in. by 20in., showing the principals in the pantomime. We give a photo of the picture. Reading from left to right, the names are—Mr. Barry Lupino as Capers, Miss Nellie Cozens as Elvira, Mr. Whit Cunliffe as Dandini, Mr. Tom Conway as the Baroness gazing through a magnifying glass at the diminutive Baron, Mr. George French. Then come Miss Violet Halls as the Prince, Miss Queenie Finnis as Cinderella, Miss Kate Walbran as Araminta, Miss Nellie Wigley as the Duke of Whistbridge, and Miss Olive Tempest as the Fairy. The boxes on the prompt side are occupied by Mr. Frank Withers (acting-manager for the pantomime) and Mr. Stanley Rogers, the author; while opposite there is Mr. Gordon E. Craig, assistant-manager, and in the corner of the stalls is seen Mr. Christie Grant, resident-manager at the Grand. Mr. Harry Henderson occupies the conductor's desk, and a glimpse is got of the stage-manager and assistant ditto peeping out from the wings.

DEATH OF MISS JULIA SEAMAN.

Another old actress has passed away in the person of Miss Julia Seaman, who died on Friday, Jan. 30, at her residence at Catford, S.E., from acute bronchitis, at the age of 72. The remains of the deceased lady were interred in Nunhead Cemetery on Wednesday. She was the daughter of William Seaman, actor and playwright, and Frederica Sara Seaman, who at the time of her death on Nov. 23, 1906, was the oldest actress, being 94.

The late Miss Julia Seaman was born in Dublin on Oct. 23, 1837, and made her first appearance at the age of four. Like her father and mother, the deceased lady learnt the gamut of her art by joining stock companies, whose services in the mid-Victorian era were mostly utilised in the support of London stars. She played the part of Jack Sheppard at the Garrick Theatre, Leman-street, Whitechapel, the boards of which were graced at a later period by a young actor named Tree, who made his first professional appearance there in a whimsical character. A favourite rôle with the deceased lady was Helen Macgregor in Rob Roy. Even in greater favour with her was the part of Hamlet, of which she made a particular study. Like Charlotte Cushman and Miss Marriott, she was highly successful in the character, in which she won the approval of Manchester audiences, with whom she was a warm favourite, having been connected with the stage in that town during her earlier years on the stage. She often impersonated Hamlet at the Victoria Theatre, where she was known as the "Queen of the Vic." She played in The Black Crook on its production at the Alhambra on Dec. 23, 1872, with the beautiful and shapely Cornélie D'Anka—for whom Arthur Sullivan wrote the song "Once Again"—in the title-part. Miss Seaman was the Princess Aika and Harry Paulton the Dandelion. The Black Crook was an adaptation of La Biche au Bois, produced in Paris in 1865. In this production Sarah Bernhardt made her first appearance on the stage. Miss Seaman played again in The Black Crook at the Alhambra on its revival in 1881.

She toured in the United States in The Deluge, playing the part of Satan, and supported Barry Sullivan. She commenced an autumn tour on Aug. 25, 1873, at the Theatre Royal, Swansea, in her favourite part of Hamlet, the first gravedigger being Mr. Andrew Melville, who appeared under the nom de guerre of "A. Emm." During this itinerary she committed herself to the production of four pieces, viz., Spotless; or, A Woman's Hate, written expressly for her by Paul Merritt and Henry Pettitt; Rebecca (a version of Scott's "Ivanhoe"), by W. Lowe; Dolores; or, An Actress's Love, translated from the French of Victor Hugo by Fred E. Weathersley; and Black Gang Chine, a drama written by her father, William Seaman. She starred at the Prince of Wales's, Wolverhampton, in March, 1874, as Leah, and at the Theatre Royal, Bath, presented herself in May of the same year as Rufliga (The Woman in Red) and as Lady Isabel (East Lynne). Her last appearances were associated with Irving at the Lyceum in Hamlet. She retired from the stage some fifteen years since.

AMUSEMENTS IN ROTTERDAM.

ROTTERDAM, JAN. 25.—A decidedly interesting production in Dutch of Bernard Shaw's play Widowers' Houses has just been put on at the Grand Theatre by Manager Van Eysden. The work was quite unknown here, and the impression created on the public was not unconditionally favourable, despite the very satisfactory interpretation by the members of the Grand company. Methinks that this may be attributed to the undeniable weakness of the third and last act of the play. After reaching the fine climax, due to the clever and well-developed second act, which is indeed a capital literary effort, the incidents and undercurrents of the action in the third become forced and improbable. Added to this, there is besides the counter argument that the tone of the play is sustained in such a bitter key, without a single note of sweetness or benevolence, that it produces quite a depressing effect, and makes life seem even harder than it is for many. Manager Van Eysden deserves unstinted praise for the mounting. The cast was, as I have said, capital, special excellence characterising the impersonations of Messrs. Van der Lugt Melsert, De Jong, and Poolman as Dr. Trench, Sartorius, and Lickcheese respectively. Mr. Van der Lugt Melsert bids fair to become the leading young man of the Dutch stage.

THE North Dutch Opera Company of Amsterdam has given a fine performance of Eugen d'Albert's opera Tiefland on one of the "off-nights" at the Grand. This organisation is under the artistic leadership of Miss Cateau Esser, the head of a school for vocal culture and elocution here, whilst the business interests of the enterprise are capably managed by Mr. de Haan. The extra performance of Tiefland was a noteworthy one, the favourite Dutch tenor Jac. Urlus having been specially engaged for the rôle of Pedro. Urlus was in the very best form, and deserves the warmest eulogies for his singing and acting. Mrs. Judels was an impassioned Marta, and Mr. Maal most efficient as Sebastiano. D'Albert's glorious music was done full justice to by the excellent orchestra of the Opera Company, under the leadership of François Rasse.

THE original Wiener operetten, Ensemble, is still in our midst, and a number of bright and merry performances have been given on "off-nights" at the Grand, under the management of Mr. de Haan's Bureau. Ein Walzertraum has been repeated, and with unvarying success, this tuneful comic opera having been followed by Die Dollar-Prinzessin, which caught the public fancy at once. Grete Meyer was a bewitching Alice, acting in turn with dash, humour, and pathos; Wini Grabitz captivated her audience as Daisy Gray, and Messrs. Liska, Adler, and Grüner came in for a generous share in the praise bestowed. All the numbers were, of course, encored, the crowded house ringing with applause and laughter.

MME. TERESA CARRENO, the famous pianist, has given a series of concerts throughout the country, her last one having been in this city at the Nut Hall. The concert was a musical treat of the highest order.

MESSRS. DEBENHAM AND STORR announce for sale the famous gold art-needlework frieze which ran along the bottom of the curtain at the Imperial Theatre, including the famous gold embroidered dragons with the jewelled eyes.

THE Crystal Palace Orchestral Society and Crystal Palace Choir will perform Sir Edward Elgar's King Olaf on Saturday evening next in the concert room of the Palace. The concert will commence with the overture to "A Midsummer Night's Dream," to commemorate the centenary of its composer Mendelssohn. The soloists will be Miss Ethel Wood, Mr. Gwilym Richards, and Mr. Julien Henry. Mr. Fred W. Holloway will be the organist and Mr. Walter W. Hedgcock will conduct.

THE first set of playlets in a series of performances which have been arranged to illustrate the "Wars of the Roses," was given in the Bijou Theatre, Bayswater, on Thursday, under the management of Miss Catherine Lewis. The chief incidents portrayed were the death of Henry V., the crowning of his son as King of France, the downfall and death of Gloucester, and York's recall from France. The company included Mr. Gerald Venning, Mr. Holliday Attley, and Miss Pax Robertson.

DEATH OF JOHN F. SHERIDAN.

Our Sydney correspondent sends us the sad news of the death of Mr. John F. Sheridan. He writes: "Mr. John F. Sheridan, the well-known comedian, died suddenly on Christmas night. He was to open in Newcastle (New South Wales) on Boxing night, and went up by train on Christmas Day. In the evening he complained, and died of heart failure just before midnight. His company arrived at daybreak the next morning, only to find that their beloved chief had passed away. He was buried on the 27th in Waverley Cemetery. Representatives from all the theatres and thousands of the public whom he had amused so many years paid a last tribute to 'Johnny's' memory."

Mr. John F. Sheridan was born of Irish parents in Providence, Rhode Island, and, in common with so many of his contemporaries, made his first appearance on the stage as a boy clog-dancer and minstrel on April 12, 1864. Like Mr. Eugene Stratton he gravitated later to the variety stage, and became associated with James W. Mack, the firm of Sheridan and Mack becoming celebrated throughout America as the original couple to introduce white-faced songs and dances on the variety stage. Mr. Mack and Mr. Sheridan had been shopmates when the deceased comedian was working in a rifle factory. For fourteen years the happily-associated pair worked together. Circumstances parted them, and the deceased comedian was engaged to play an insignificant part in a lurid play called Ruth; or, The Curse of Rum, by George Fawcett Rowe. Through the failure of one of the ladies of the company Mr. Sheridan was asked to take up a petticoat part, and his immediate success in it formed the turning-point in his career. Rowe declared that one day he would write a play in which Sheridan should distinguish himself. The germ of Fun on the Bristol originated with Mr. Sheridan himself, but Rowe constructed the piece, which caught on immediately. The character of Widow O'Brien, as played by Sheridan, was much admired by the late Henry Pettitt, who, at the time, was on a visit to America.

In 1882 Sheridan toured the provinces with Fun on the Bristol, the piece being produced at the Theatre Royal, Manchester, on May 15 of that year. Bridget O'Brien, Esq., a sequel to Fun on the Bristol, followed that piece at the Opera Comique on Oct. 29, 1887; but previous to the production of "Bridget" Mr. Sheridan had essayed the rôle of Pierre Cagnard in As in a Glass, taken from the French, and in this character wore, for the first and last time on the stage, a monkey disguise. Both piece and performance were failures, though the late Mr. Charles Lauri won a great triumph as Chadi, a monkey.

Mr. Sheridan was a great globe-trotter, and had acted in India, Burmah, Java, China, the Straits Settlements, where for the American plays were substituted Gilbert and Sullivan and light opera. In the course of his travels he played the Lord Chancellor in Iolanthe, Ko-Ko in The Mikado, Robin in Ruddigore, King Laurent in The Mascotte, the Duke in Olivette, Lurcher in Dorothy, Cadeau in Erminie, Gaspard in Les Cloches de Corneville, Corrigan in The Lily of Killarney, John Wellington Wells in The Sorcerer, the Judge in Trial by Jury, Blueskin in Jack Sheppard, and Captain Crosstree in Blue-Eyed Susan. Of course, in Australia he played Widow O'Brien, and must have appeared in that part at least 5,000 times during the course of his career. He played it on and off for seventeen years. It was suggested to him by the late Mr. George Coppin, at that time the doyen of Australian managers, that he might do something else besides the "widow" before he left, and The Shaughraun was produced, with a song and dance for Conn, and Mr. Sheridan made a big hit.

On Aug. 5, 1893, A Trip to Chicago was produced at the Vaudeville with Sheridan as Johanna Murphey, in which part he was very successful. Though not in the original cast of Little Christopher Columbus, by George R. Sims and Ivan Caryll, produced by Mr. Horace Sedger at the Lyric on Oct. 10, 1893, it was a happy inspiration on the part of that manager to introduce Mr. Sheridan into the piece later as the Hibernian lady, Mrs. Block. The character did much to establish him as a London favourite.

Mr. Sheridan, although fate was responsible for making him what is termed a one-part man, was extremely versatile, and though the comedy variety show which he sponsored at the Vaudeville caused remarks on the decadence of drama, there is no doubt that he was responsible for a deal of honest laughter.

BRITISH EMPIRE SHAKESPEARE.

The first attempt at King Lear by the British Empire Shakespeare Society was made on Tuesday at the Bijou Hall, Bayswater, and a very enjoyable afternoon was the result. The reading, as is usual, was under the direction of Mr. Acton Bond, and several well-known artists combined with a number of rising young actors to give a rendering of Shakespeare's tragedy which proved particularly engrossing. The title-rôle was in the hands of Mr. Lyn Harding, who rose superior to the limitations of modern attire, and seemed to make the venerable monarch live again. The passionate portions of the dialogue were delivered with stirring grandeur, and the modulations of voice were made with artistic effect, the old king's latter sentences being uttered in tones that throbbed with feeling. Mr. Acton Bond was the Edgar, and displayed a versatility that could not but be admired. He gave effective expression to the demented speeches of "Poor Tom," and lent distinction to the noble verse which falls to him. Edmund was invested with due cunning and sinister effect by Mr. Bassett Roe, who gave throughout a consistent rendering; and Mr. Fewlass Llewellyn spoke the lines of the faithful Kent with vigour and well-studied emphasis. Cordelia was rendered with refinement and infinite tenderness by Miss Dorothy Thomas, who added to a prepossessing appearance graces of elocution and style. The waspish attributes of the sister Goneril were skilfully brought out by Miss Adeline Bourne, and Miss Evelyn Weeden was no less intense in her portrayal of the spite and malevolence of Regan. Mr. Shakespeare Stewart distinguished himself as the Fool, being equally praiseworthy in song and speech, both of which he invested with varied intonation.

Influenza, as Mr. Bond explained, had been at work, and Mr. A. Harding Steerman was unable to read the rôle of Gloster, which was rendered in finished style by Mr. J. Henry Twyford, who doubled with it that of the Duke of Albany. Through the same cause Miss Violet Hunter was unable to discharge the duty of reading the stage directions, which were read with admirable clearness by Miss Gear. Mr. Howard Rose was as gallant as need be as King of France, and did useful work as a messenger, an officer, and other personages of minor importance. Admirable work was also done by Mr. Lane Crauford, a picturesque and vivacious Oswald; by Mr. Arthur Burne as Cornwall; by Mr. Cecil Du Gue as Burgundy; and by Mr. George Owen, a recruit from the Academy of Dramatic Art as the Physician.

Mr. Sheridan's last production in England was When the Lamps are Lighted, in which he played the part of the Irish showman, Dan Rafferty. It was originally produced at Salford, on Oct. 11, 1897. He intended returning to London this summer, after an absence of ten years. Some five years since he took his Australian company across to Africa, and toured there for six months, in conjunction with Messrs. Baird and Wheeler. The deceased gentleman was a life abstainer, and a non-smoker, and took much interest in sport of every kind.

LONDON & SUBURBAN THEATRES.

"CINDERELLA" AT THE ADELPHI.

(Second Notice.)

On its production on Christmas Eve we pronounced the Adelphi Cinderella—engineered so cleverly by Mr. Robert Courtneidge—to be a pretty spectacle completely captivating in its treatment of a delightful story, and answering all the natural expectations of juvenile Londoners, whose eyes have opened wide in wonderment and delight at the entrancing scene of Cinderella's toilet when the Fairy Godmother announces the glad news that the heroine of the grate is to go to the ball. And the ball itself! What a triumphant realisation of luxurious fancy! The fun, too, never slackens; and Mr. Dan Rolyat and Mr. John Humphries have increased their high reputations as comedians in the parts of the Baron and Baroness. Unfortunately, illness prevented them appearing on the night of our second visit to this most admirable pantomime. Excellent substitutes were, however, found in Mr. Vincent Erne and Mr. George Parti. The latter is a most eligible "parti" for such a rôle as the Baroness, whose malapropisms never fail to create hearty laughter. Mr. Vincent Erne, who took up Mr. Rolyat's part, naturally founds his rendering of the character of the Baron on that comedian's, and in following so good an example he is entirely right. His success is never for a moment in doubt, his resources as a dancer and his antics being always vivified by the nimble spirit of mirth. Mr. Erne's only song on Monday, "Poor Uncle John," was certainly one of the chief successes of the pantomime. Another was Miss Mabel Russell's "I don't want to come home in the dark," which was followed by a delightful dance. As Mopsa—one of the sisters—Miss Russell is a welcome contrast to the red-nosed comedian. So is Miss Marie Rignold as Arethusa, her high-falutin' being a capital foil to the prosaic utterances of the rest of the family Miss Phyllis Dare's freshness and charm and her engaging youthfulness may all be taken for granted, and she certainly is an ideal heroine, imparting, with Miss Carrie Moore as principal boy, an idyllic charm and a touch of romance to the first scene in the wood. Her dancing, too, is enchanting, and in this connection we may mention Mr. Fred Leslie, who shares her triumph in a specially fascinating number. If we have any fault to find with Miss Dare it is with her elocution, which at times is careless. It is especially so in the final tag. Mr. Stephen Adeson as Choddles has more opportunity for creating fun, and makes the most of his chances, especially in the ball-room scene. Miss Dorothy Laine is an attractive Roxana, Miss Maudie Thornton a capital equerry; and smart, capable, and good-looking representatives of the Prince's entourage are found in Miss Marjory Manners, Miss Violet Graham, Miss Belle Ross, Miss Muriel Varna, Miss Ethel Denny, Miss Rhoda Clighton, Miss Maisie Sinclair, and Miss Lily Nanton. The Fairy Godmother is effectively presented by Miss Gertrude Sinclair; and other immortals are adequately presented by Miss Louie Lochner and Miss Margaret Keane. Miss Elise Clerc is responsible for the ballets, and her direction ensures excellence in this important department of pantomime spectacle. Mr. Herbert Ralland, business-manager, brings along the best traditions of theatrical management, and is ably asisted by Mr. A. W. Ashdowne.

DALSTON THEATRE.

On Monday, Feb. 1, the Play, entitled "PETE."

Messrs. Smith and Carpenter's Lyceum production Pete is at the Dalston Theatre this week, and local playgoers are putting the seating accommodation of the house to a severe test, even standing room being difficult to secure. So far as details of acting are concerned, the production is beyond criticism. Mr. Matheson Lang's representation of the character of Pete is a finished piece of work, and altogether his performance is quite a study. Miss Hutin Briton as Kate Cregeen succeeds in securing the wrapt attention of the audience from first to last; while fully sustaining a trying part, in no sense does she over-act any of the scenes. Mr. Eric Mayne's Philip Christian fully illustrates the various phases of the part, his conception of the character being excellent. Mr. Pennington Gush as Ross Christian affords effective relief in a lighter part; the puritanical Cæsar Cregeen has a strong representative in Mr. Frederick Ross; Mr. H. K. Ayliff's Postman Kelly is a life-like sketch of a rural character; and all the minor rôles are remarkably well sustained. Miss Blanche Stanley as Grannie and Mr. Ernest Crestfan as Adam Quirk are particularly noticeable, while Miss Rita Thompkins as Nancy, Miss Dora Clements as Mary, and Miss Alys Eden as Janet are also most capable. The scene "The Keep of Castle Rushen" is an effective specimen of stage carpentry and painting.

CRYSTAL PALACE THEATRE.

On Monday, Feb. 1,
"SERGEANT BRUE."

Mr. Harry Benet's company most successfully re-introduced Owen Hall's musical comedy to this theatre, to re-open Mr. J. Bannister Howard's regular dramatic season, on the withdrawal of his record pantomime at the end of January; and the entire production went with a very pleasing freshness and swing.

Mr. Denis Lyndon embodied the Sergeant with ease and naturalness, his clear voice and incisive style being well suited to the character. Mr. Lister Morrah as Michael Brue is happy in the possession of a fine tenor voice of excellent quality, and his duet, "A Night in Venice," with Miss Mabel Davis, who enacted the part of Mabel Widget, and his song in the second act were among the successes of the evening. Aurora Brue was delicately played by Miss Daisy Dale, who was vociferously encored in her coon song "Under a Panama." Miss Kitty Clayton as Daisy, the servant, is a clever little comedienne, with a genuine vein of original humour, and made her mark in singing "I want to be an actress" in the first act. The stately Lady Bickenhall was most charmingly impersonated by Miss Ray Anderson, and her handsome dresses and good singing were both fully recognised and appreciated. Mr. Tom G. Warren as Mr. Crank, the Magistrate, was most amusing in appearance and manner, and Mr. H. Quiningborough as Crookie Scrubbs put a great deal of good work into his part and played it for all it was worth. Mr. Langdon Guy as the Police Inspector was good, and Mr. Phil Phillips as the Rev. Lamb and Mr. J. Spencer as Captain Bay made the most of their respective parts. There was a full chorus of ladies and gentlemen under the direction of Mr. Ernest Wolfe and the company carries a full set of special scenery painted by Mr. Julian Hicks, giving a completeness and finish to a most satisfactory production.

THEATRE ROYAL, WOOLWICH.

"ALADDIN."

Although arriving somewhat late in the season, as far as pantomimes are concerned, the borough is not, after all, to be entirely deprived of its annual frolicsome production, as Mr. Sam Barnard has booked for the current week Messrs. Glenville and Osmond's pantomime Aladdin, which was presented before a large and very appreciative audience on Monday last by a capable and well-selected company, who offered an extremely facile and amusing interpretation of the well-known fairy tale, which goes with a swing from beginning to end. The play is adequately mounted and well dressed, and the numerous scenes are effective and well executed. Miss Hetty Zillwood in the title-rôle makes a capital principal boy, and sustains the character with bright vivacity, and in the songs "I don't care if there is a girl there," "Johnnie in his uniform," and "I'm afraid to come home in the dark" is quite successful, and evokes considerable applause. Miss M. Hobart deserves praise for her delineation of the part of Princess Badroulbadour, and scores well in the ballad "Silver moonbeam"; the Emperor of China is made the most of in the hands of Mr. H. Glenville; Mr. Fred Osborne as the Vizier Wassit provides an amusing portrayal, and Mr. Fowler Thatcher is equally good; Mr. Arthur E. Behan imbues the character of Mrs. Twankey with irresistible drollery, and in the songs "Calligan" and "The Directoire Girl" fetches the audience and provokes much laughter; the Bros. Lavelle as Pee-Lah and Kopp-Ah prove themselves clever and amusing acrobats; Mr. Freddie Edwards makes a capable Wishee-Washee; Diabolo is ably represented by Mr. J. Sutton Pateman; Miss Lou Charlesworth as Electra is a charming Fairy Queen, and her rendering of the song "As long as the world rolls on" has a good reception; Miss Cissie Behan and Miss Kitty Behan as Pekoe and Ch-r-ke respectively do ample justice to their parts both in song and dance; and Mr. Frank Wilson (Chin-Soo), Miss Sara Wheatman (Bu-tee), and Miss Kitty Collinson (Sau-See) lend efficient aid. Favourable mention must also be made of the Gando Sextette of male vocalists, who supply some very popular contributions, and the dancing of the Ella Willmer Troupe merits commendation

ARTILLERY THEATRE, WOOLWICH.

On Monday, Feb. 1, the Musical Comedy, entitled
"GAY BOHEMIA."

Produced under the direction of Mr. Geo. Capel, the new musical comedy entitled Gay Bohemia is being presented this week by Mr. Arthur Crichton's company. The book is written by the well-known librettist Mr. J. Hickory Wood and the music is by the popular composer, Mr. John Crook. Miss Rose Hersee, who is the mainstay of the play, undertakes the character of Molly Ogilvie, a professional model, with much ability, and displays a lively sense of her responsibility. Her dancing is spirited and graceful, and her vocal contributions are daintily rendered and well received. Mr. Tim Riley as the Hon. Bertie Eames, an art patron, essays the rôle in a diverting manner; Valentine Fanshawe is portrayed by Mr. Lester Carey in a humorous style; the part of Dick Merton is undertaken by Mr. Ernest Stanley; Miss Florence Nairn as Miss Minns is the source of some merriment; Lucy Arbuthnot is in the hands of Miss Maud Marshall; Miss Ellice Rayne gives a capable characterisation of Mamie Ship, a lady journalist; and as artists' models Miss Kitty Carlisle, Miss L. Stanford, and Miss M. Hart lend suitable assistance. The orchestra is under the able direction of Mr. Arthur Roby.

THE SHAKESPEARE.

On Monday, Feb. 1, the Drama entitled
"THE SAILOR'S WEDDING."

The Sailor's Wedding, a romantic drama from the pen of Mr. H. Brinsley Hill, fills the bill here this week, and is meeting with great success. The play is a story of love and intrigue, and there is a series of thrilling incidents and powerful situations which rivet the attention of the audience throughout. The interpretation of the piece is in the hands of Hardie and Von Leer's company, and their excellent performance met with due recognition. The central figure in the story is a naval lieutenant, Gordon Drake, played by Mr. C. W. Standing in an earnest and vigorous manner. Well suited to the rôle and with a commanding presence, Mr. Standing soon established himself a warm favourite, and his stirring lines frequently evoked great applause. Mr. Cecil Klein as Sir Victor Lascelles successfully assumed the mannerisms of a society man, and gave an effective rendering of the part; Mr. Cole Aspinall was seen to advantage as Count Bellina; and Mr. Hodgson Taylor invested the scheming Giovanni Ferici with an air of brutality well suited to the character. Mr. F. Finch Smiles gave an admirable delineation of Giacomo; and Mr. Walter Pemberton as Jack Hawkins was untiring in his efforts to amuse, his love adventures with Polly Clarke, capably enacted by Miss M. Sadie, causing much laughter. Miss Laura Hansen was successful in her impersonation of Countess Bellina; and Miss Mary Pemberton made a pleasing appearance as Mary Bellina, her charm and grace of manner proving a delightful foil to the character of the abandoned adventuress, Lenore de Gresac, an arduous rôle that was played with marked ability by Miss Winifred Pearson. The other characters were in safe hands, and the scenery and general effects were admirable. The play is produced by Miss Sara Von Leer, and Mr. Cecil Klein is manager for Hardie and Von Leer.

GREENWICH THEATRE.

On Monday, Feb. 1, the Drama, in Five Acts, entitled
"DRIVEN FROM HOME."

Mr. Andrew Melville's capital company is creating an excellent impression here this week with a good performance of the popular drama entitled Driven from Home, presented in five acts and twenty tableaux. Anthony Raybrook has a clever representative in Mr. Felix Pitt, who gives a fine rendering of the part; Mr. George Beresford is a manly and convincing Walter Hatherleigh; Mr. Howard Thornley is an excellent George Clissold; Mr. C. Burdon acts well as Geoffrey Waring; Mr. George Lawrence is very good as Peter Pinder; Mr. Arnold Winter is well suited to the part of Tom Mordake; Mr. Percy Dawson is very good as Willie, as is Mr. Herbert Vere as David Wilson; Mr. Edward Finlay gives a fine character sketch as Dick Saunders; and other male parts are well acted by Messrs S. G. Hardy, F. Bates, Fred Imbert, H. Bartley, G. Dyson, Harry Cornwallis, W. Fortescue, Master Wilkins, Mr. F. Livingstone, Mr. H. Coade, Mr. G. Pike, and Mr. G. Thomas. Barbara Ashdown has an excellent representative in Miss Lizzie Inglis; Miss Susine Bevan is a clever Margaret Bailey; Miss Violet Ennis Lawson is a charming and attractive Laura; and other parts are well acted by Mesdames Kate Walfred, A. Williams, Florence Wilson, and Madge Muriel.

BRITANNIA THEATRE.

On Monday, Feb. 1, the Romantic Drama, by Adrian O'Connell and Eugene McCarthy, entitled,
"A ROYAL REVENGE."

A most attractive programme is submitted to the patrons of this popular house with a presentation of A Royal Revenge, a play that allows ample scope for picturesque costumes and elaborate mounting. We must certainly congratulate the resident scenic artist for two extremely fine specimens of scenic art in two sets entitled The Village of Santa Cecilia and The Convent Chapel. The drama is performed in a very capable manner by the stock company engaged. Mr. H. Ryeland Leigh gives an admirable impersonation of the amorous King of Spain. Mr. Harry Gresham is an excellent exponent of Pedro de Castro, Prime Minister. Mr. Herbert Young as Manuel Mondega gives a good interpretation. Mr. Conrad E. Clarke is eminently successful as Friar Dominic. A realistic impersonation of the hunchback, Count Ulrick Uzeda is submitted by Mr. C. Alan Hineson. Much amusement is caused by Mr. H. G. Brandon as Michael Sancha. A very charming and dainty Cosa Casilde is presented by Miss Lalla Stanhope, an artist who is well adapted to characters of this description, and should make a great success as an exponent of sympathetic parts. Miss Florence Barnes as Paquita Marcelia adds considerably to the success of the drama; Miss Edna Lester creditably undertakes the rôle of Mother Maria Teresa; Miss Ethyle Gordon Murray makes the most of her opportunities as Angela. The performance was brought to a close by two good pictures, shown by the Barrascope, one of which was a burlesque of Carrie Nation, and caused endless amusement. The orchestra, under Mr. F. W. Hatley, rendered some tuneful entr'actes during the evening. Mr. Fred A. Fowler is Mr. Barrasford's able and courteous manager.

THE WEST LONDON.

On Monday, Feb. 1, the Drama, in Four Acts, entitled
"THE OCTOROON."

This play was well staged and ably acted by the members of Mr. Clive Currie's company. Mr. Cecil A. Collins put in some good work as the scheming Jacob M'Closky; Mr. Gerald Merrielees enacted George Peyton in frank and easy fashion; Mr. Charles King was satisfactory as Mr. Sunnyside; Mr. Charles Wemyss imparted plenty of point and distinction to the character of the auctioneer slave salesman, Col. Pointdexter; Mr. Gordon Phillott did well as Captain Ratts, and Mr. Archibald McLean was a typical Judge Jackson. Quite the hit of the piece was Mr. William Barber's realistic impersonation of the old negro servant Pete; never for one single instance overdrawing the character, but keeping it well balanced throughout, this clever actor scored all along the line. Mr. Douglas Phillips, excellently made up, deserves every praise for his Indian chief Wah-no-Tee; whilst Mr. Clive Currie played with his usual ease and distinction as Salem Scudder. Miss Sybil Ruskin brightly portrayed the yellow boy Paul; Miss Adah Barton was a sympathetic Mrs. Peyton; Miss Maud Kirwan made many friends as Dora Sunnyside; Miss May Saker was well placed as Jules Thibodeaux; and Miss Muriel Dole sustained the rôle of the Octoroon Zoe in an impressive yet withal natural way.

COUNTY THEATRE, KINGSTON.

"HAVANA."

After a successful run of pantomime the above popular piece was performed at the Royal County Theatre, Kingston, on Monday night, and received a most cordial reception from a full house. The company, which is under the direction of Mr. George Dance, is a thoroughly capable one in all grades. Mr. Reginald Smitz appears as the bo'sun of the Wasp, and succeeds in extracting great fun from the part. Mr. Tom Seymour appears as the yacht's boy Brown, and adds considerably to the hilarity of the audience. Mr. Cyril W. Parke as Jackson Villiers and Mr. Bay Russell as Frank Charteris make most creditable appearances; and an impressive impersonation of Diego is given by Mr. Frank. Mr. George Storey is good as Theodore Adolpho; and Mr. A. Gordon Begg acquits himself well as Bombito del Campo. Chief honours amongst the ladies of the company are won by Miss Hebe Bliss as Consuelo, Miss Gladys Guy as Anita, and Miss Helen Langton as Isabelita; whilst valuable services are also rendered by Miss Rosa Sullivan, Beryl Gordon, Kathleen Haddon, José Sullivan, Maude Leonard, Elsie Deighton, and Maud Seymour in less prominent parts.

THEATRE ROYAL, STRATFORD.

On Monday, Feb. 1, the Drama entitled
"HER FATAL MARRIAGE."

New to Stratford, this piece, which is touring under the direction of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hinton, Mr. Travis Green, and Miss Ruth Zillwood, was received with much favour on the opening night of the week at the Stratford Theatre Royal. Popular audiences will find Her Fatal Marriage just to their liking, for it is well staged, is teeming with thrilling situations—the Apparition scene in the Blue Room being especially effective—very creepy and very clever, and there is an unlimited supply of capital comedy business. Mr. Arthur Hinton portrays the arch-fiend Zaco Malletto with a quiet restraint and subtle force which adds realism to his performance and makes the rascally Zaco an object of particular aversion. Miss Ruth Zillwood as the unhappy wife Myra Malletto plays with much latent strength and intensity, her fine stage presence lending point to every word and gesture. Mr. Norman Tracey is an earnest and outspoken Wilfrid Grey; Mr. George H. Childs fulfils all requirements as Colonel Crichton; and Mr. William Bailey does well as Jim Rogers. Mr. Gerald Bryne has a fine part as the half-witted Paul, always on the spot to thwart villainy, and he extracts the utmost from it, his short, ejaculatory style of speech being very effective. Mr. Frank Brunell is a droll and entertaining Peter Pimple, and he is ably assisted in the fun-making by Miss Laura Wright, very amusing as Dolly Dimple. Miss Lydia Audre looks pretty and dainty as Lily, the White Angel, and acts very appropriately. Mr. Percy Morton-Wright plays convincingly as Detective Smart; Mr. P. Laurence is excellent as Sergeant Wiggins; and P.-C. Jenkins is well played by Mr. William George.

MR. FRANK ROTHSAY'S BENEFIT.

The Stratford Borough Theatre was filled from floor to ceiling on Thursday afternoon last, the occasion being a complimentary benefit to Mr. Frank Rothsay, who has been acting-manager of this commodious suburban playhouse since its opening in 1896. A splendid programme had been arranged, as, in addition to this year's highly-successful pantomime Aladdin, the beneficiare was assured of the assistance of many professional friends now in London. During an interval Mr. Rothsay appeared on the stage, and thanked those in front for their attendance, and also proffered thanks to Mrs. Ellis Fredericks for the use of the theatre, to the pantomime and other artists, to the orchestra, and to the staffs at the back and front of the house for their services, his speech being the prelude to a happy incident which then followed. As the beneficiare was retiring from the stage, the front curtain was raised, and disclosed a merry group of the principals of the pantomime, and calling Mr. Rothsay forward, their spokesman, Aladdin, in the blithesome person of Miss Ethel Ward, said: "On behalf of the principals of the pantomime I want to ask you to accept this tea and coffee service as a small token of our appreciation of your courtesy and kindness to us on all occasions, and at the same time to convey our sincere wishes for the long life and prosperity of your charming wife and yourself." Speaking with some emotion, Mr. Rothsay, who was quite unprepared, heartily returned thanks for the charming and valuable gift, and the curtain descended on the company singing "He's a jolly good fellow."

The lengthy programme was contributed to by the following: Miss Ethel Ward (Aladdin), Miss Lena Verdi (Princess), Miss Florence Dudley (Pekoe), Miss Ethel Ashton (Sau See), Mr. Arthur Stigant (Widow Twankey), Mr. Hal Forde (Abanazar), who sang a "Territorial" song specially for the occasion, and which went vociferously, Mr. Ernie Mayne (Washee-Washee, "the English nobleman"), the Brothers Redmond (the Policemen), Mr. Frank Couch (Vizier), Mr. C. Ballard Brown (Emperor), Mr. Kelson Trueman, Mr. Storey Gofton, Mr. Fred Lay, Miss Claire Vivien, Mr. Maxwell Stewart and Miss Dulcie Garland, the Clyde Quartette, Miss Edie Harvey, Miss Nita Clavering, Miss Kathleen Cogan, and Mr. Murray Carson. Mr Arthur Linforth stage-managed in exemplary style; Messrs. Sam Fredericks, Bert Ashton, Percy Briggs, N. E. Howell. C. and B. Webb, S. P. Silver, E. Fielder, A. E. Barnes, E. J. Macdermott, and F. C. Cockerill were the acting-managers for the occasion, and Mr. S. N. Finlay was secretary and treasurer.

"A Sister's Revenge," a dramatic duologue by C. Martin, was produced for copyright purposes at the Rehearsal Theatre, Malden-lane, on Jan. 29.

The villain of the piece has taken many varied rôles in the pursuit of melodramatic evil-doing, but never before, we think, has he elected to be counsel for the defence in the trial of a man accused of a murder committed by himself. The incident is worked effectively in the new piece above named, which was first produced at the Pavilion, Mile End, on Monday. The other incidents in the play, if more familiar, are equally sensational, though that dealing with the abduction and ruin of a young girl is not particularly edifying. The central idea of the piece is developed from the beginning, when Janet Brophy, with her dying breath, confesses to her son Nicholas, a barrister, that he is illegitimate. Further, she informs him that his father, Sir Hubert Mandate, having a son by his lawful wife about the same time as Nicholas was born, had expressed the wish that the infants should be changed in order that the child of the woman he loved—namely, Janet—should come into the title and estates. The mother, however, unwilling to part with her offspring, had failed to carry out the scheme. Nicholas is furious at having lost the place and position which might have been his, and, despite the warning of his mother, resolves to put his information to his own profit, utterly oblivious to the fact that the interview has been overheard by his clerk, Rupert Dyke, whose hand protruding from behind the curtains reveals his presence to the audience. Armed with the papers containing Sir Hubert's instructions Nicholas repairs to the baronet's house, and meeting Robert Mandate, Sir Hubert's son and a captain in the Navy, claims to take his place. The young officer swallows the story without demur, and goes out in despair, having first arranged to meet his step-brother subsequently at an old mill in the neighbourhood. Sir Hubert himself is equally susceptible to Nicholas's statement and nothing remains for the latter but to dispose of a Nurse Stanger, who had been entrusted with the task of changing the children, and could testify that the substitution had not been effected. Accordingly, Nicholas, who had become possessed of Robert's handkerchief, strangles the nurse with it, and when Sir Hubert arrives to seek refutation of the villain's claim, he comes to the conclusion that his beloved son has committed the crime, and, being a magistrate, signs a warrant for his arrest.

There is yet another person of whom Nicholas is afraid, and that is Nurse Stanger's daughter, Gertrude Grant, who, under another name, is employed as a barmaid at a public house in the East End. Dyke is a frequenter of the house and Nicholas commissions him to lure the girl to his flat in order to accomplish her ruin. The project is effected, the manner in which it is accomplished being elaborately detailed. In due course Robert keeps his appointment at the old mill where, at Nicholas's instigation, Dyke and a confederate are waiting to take his life. Robert's betrothed, Beatrice Cuthbert, has overheard the plot, and gains admittance to the room overlooking the mill-stream whether Robert is shortly conducted, with the result that both are locked in. The only means of escape is by the window, and when the ruffians arrive to do their work Beatrice clambers out of the window and is carried down the mill-wheel to safety, closely followed by Robert, who has felled his assailants to the ground.

Robert has escaped one danger only to encounter another, for, returning to his father's house, he is arrested for the murder of Nurse Stanger, Nicholas's offer to appear in his defence being accepted. Meanwhile, Richard Dyke has learnt that the murdered woman was his wife and the outraged girl his daughter; so that when the trial comes on Dyke, instead of waiting to be called to testify to Hubert's guilt under Nicholas's examination, makes a dramatic appearance and denounces his master. The result is that Nicholas takes the prisoner's place in the dock and Hubert is restored to his rights.

Some of the scenes were unduly protracted, and the performance lasted till midnight. Mr. Ernest R. Abbott produced the piece and played the part of the rascally lawyer, bringing out with vivid realism the evil traits of the character. He delivered his lines with much effect, though in expression he is over deliberate. Upon the part of Rupert Dyke Mr. Charles Carte brought his long experience to bear invaluably. He gave a vivid display of the drink-sodden wretch, whose nerves are all but destroyed, and his anguished burst of rage when he learns of his daughter's fate was very impressive. It was probably due to a lapse of memory, no doubt by this time rectified, that his denunciation of his employer in the court-house was not quite clearly expressed. Miss Ada Abbott made a smart barmaid of Gertrude Grant, and though she struck a rather morbid note in the later scenes she overcame its obvious difficulties with great credit. The efforts of Mr. H. Bonhote Wilson were all in the direction of making Captain Robert Mandate a hero, and in voice and appearance he quite succeeded, leaving only a few peculiarities of expression to be toned down in future performances. Miss Florence North played the heroine with refinement, and did her share of the mill scene admirably; Mr. Charles B. Bedells acted with all the requisite dignity and resource as Sir Hubert; and an impressive rendering of the dying woman, Janet Brophy, was given by Miss Eva Trevenna, who succeeded in creating a ghastly effect when the supposed corpse sits up in bed and admonishes her erring son. Good work was also done by Miss Mary Douglas in the part of Nurse Stanger. The comedy relief rested almost wholly in the hands of an elderly butler and of an amorous widow, who pesters him with hints at a marriage. The first-named part employed the ripe drollery of Mr. Edwin Keene, and the latter the low comedy gifts of Miss Marjorie Tennant. The fun provided was at times very broad, and was highly relished by the audience. The humour of the court-house scene was added to by Miss Ethel Tinsley, who appeared as a Suffragette, and by Mr. Weedon Ross, a kind-hearted Hebrew coster, who were both cordially received. Minor parts, well enacted, were those of the Keeper at the Zoo by Mr. W. H. Davis-Brown, the Miller by Mr. D. Pentland, and the Magistrate by Mr. Francis Trevor. It should be added that the whole of the proceeds of Monday's performance were to be handed over to the Victoria Hospital for Diseases of the Chest.

ACTORS' ASSOCIATION.

Minutes of the Council meeting, held on Tuesday, Feb. 2. Present: Mr. J. Poole Kirkwood (in the chair), Mr. H. W. Mote (honorary solicitor), Messrs. Clive Currie, Robson Paige, Cecil Brooking, Clarence Derwent, F. J. Ariton, Cecil Raleigh, Frederick Annerley, C. F. Collings, and F. Morland; and Misses Lucy Sibley, Marion Lind, Rose Mathews, and Mr. Herbert Blount (secretary). The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed.

Mr. Francis Saffery, honorary auditor, attended the meeting and went through the balance-sheet with the Council, a few minor alterations being made therein.

The honorary solicitor reported that he had written to a member and asked for instructions as to writing a letter to another member.

The Finance Committee's report was read and adopted.

The Council drew up the agenda for the general meeting.

In granting the secretary a week's holiday, from Feb. 22, on which day he is getting married, the Council passed a unanimous vote of congratulation to Mr. Blount.

Harry Cabe and Edmund Vassell Vaughan were nominated for membership, and Gladys Ivery and Esme Hubbard were elected.

The chairman read a letter from Mr. Brookfield with regard to a system of life assurance, and the secretary received instructions to write to Mr. Brookfield, asking whether it was a special scheme.

The Council passed a unanimous vote of congratulation to Mr. Granville Barker on his recovery from his recent severe illness.

The Council also passed a unanimous vote of condolence with the relatives of the late M. Coquelin.

ACTORS' UNION.

The usual committee meeting of the Actors' Union took place at 49, Bedford Street, Strand, on the 29th ult., when there were present Messrs. Frank Gerald, Walter L. Rignold, D. Lewin-Mannering, Henry Bedford, Cecil G. Calvert, Robert M. Taylor, Langford Reed, E. Howard Templeman, James English, J. W. Braithwaite, H. Tripp Edgar, and Kenneth Blackmore (secretary). Communications were received from Messrs. Barnett, Paul Lovett, Geo. P. Lester, Jerrold Heather, Oswald Marshall, Royce Milton, Clifford Rean, and F. Rawson Buckley.

The Secretary was instructed to inform a member that he is not eligible to sit on the committee owing to the fact that he is at present occupying the position of manager.

The club board reported that they were of opinion that the subscription for non-members of the Union should be one guinea, payable in advance, and the entrance fee one guinea, payable on election, but that the payment of the entrance fee by the first hundred members be waived unless demanded by the Board during the first year of membership. The Board also reported that the Secretary be instructed to ask members of the committee to forward him the names and addresses of probable non-union members of the Club that they would introduce.

The following having informed the committee that they were willing to act as hon. medical officers to the Union, were duly elected: Edinburgh: Dr. James Burnet, 6, Glengyle-terrace; Torquay: Dr. Alan Bennett, Five Ways; Ilfracombe: Dr. Percy H. Gardner.

Fourteen new members were elected and three resignations were accepted.

ACTORS' CHURCH UNION.

At a meeting of the committee, held on Jan. 8 at Bishop's House, Kennington Park, with the Lord Bishop of Southwark in the chair, a cordial vote of thanks was given to Mr. Cyril Maude for his kindness in lending the Playhouse for the recent matinée in aid of the funds of the A.C.U. Votes of thanks were also passed to the performers and organisers and all others who had combined to make the matinée a success.

The annual conference of the A.C.U. has been fixed for Thursday, June 24, at 2.30 p.m., and, by the kindness of Mr. Robert Arthur, will be held in the Coronet Theatre, Notting Hill. The conference will be followed by a garden party at Kensington Vicarage, on the invitation of Rev. Prebendary Pennefather.

The annual service will take place at St. Mary Abbot's, Kensington, and the preacher will be the Lord Bishop of Southwark, President of the Union. The date will be announced later.

GUILDHALL SCHOOL OF MUSIC.

There was no lack of variety in the concert given by the students of the Guildhall School on Wednesday evening, although the first item in the programme, Liszt's 12th Rhapsodie, neatly played by Miss Elva Barnes, is somewhat too often heard at students' recitals. Miss Florence Dickinson sang "O Flower of all the World (Woodforde-Finden) with excellent tone and expression; and Mr. John Game's violin solos, "Romance" (Johannes Wolff) and a difficult but extremely unmelodious Valse by Tschaikowski, were most ably executed. A duet, "In Spring Time," sung by Miss Helena Spicer and Miss Mary Wynne-Hulm, proved very attractive, and was much applauded. The Paraphrase de Concert on Tschaikowski's "Eugene Onegin" (Pabst) is not a very attractive piano solo, although cleverly played by Miss Ruby Wastell. The School tenor prizewinner 1908, Mr. Reginald Crawford, who has a very pleasing voice, sang "A spray of lilac" and "My garden of roses" most artistically, and had a hearty reception from the large audience. Miss Gladys Platt, in her piano solo, Grieg's Prelude, displayed a refined and facile touch; and Miss Nellie Watson's fine voice was heard in Sir E. Elgar's songs "Queen Mary's Song" and "A Poet's Life." Miss Emmie Hitchcock gave a fairly correct but very mild version of the brilliant waltz air from Gounod's Romeo and Juliet; while Mr. Eldon Dacre employed his excellent baritone voice with good effect in a clever rendering of recitative ("Alzati") and aria ("Eri tu") from Verdi's "Un Ballo in Maschera." Mrs. T. D. Simmins, pupil of Mr. L. Cairns James, gave a lively recitation of Tom Gallon's sketch "Miss Peat's Extra Turn." Miss Jenny Hyman was the accompanist.

A new novel, entitled "The Fault," by C. T. Podmore, will shortly be published by Mr. John Long. The story is said to be of a highly dramatic character.

Mr. Editor.—Sir,—May I, on behalf of Mrs. Edward Sondheim, call your attention to an error which occurred in your report of the performance of Dr. Bill, given by her on behalf of the Messina Earthquake Fund? The amount realised was £110, and not over £200 as stated. May I also add that most of the expenses were defrayed by Mr. Edward Sondheim?—Yours faithfully, Geo. W. Hodgson, Manager, Welford House, Hampstead, N.W.

"MERRY WIDOW" DINNER.

The O.P. Club, founded in 1900, by Mr. Carl Hentschel, has been responsible for many interesting functions. The most noticeable that may be mentioned are the Welcome Home Dinner to Sir Henry Irving and Miss Ellen Terry, the Congratulatory Dinner to Sir Charles Wyndham, the Welcome Home Supper to Mr. Charles Hawtrey and Mr. Lionel Brough, and Congratulatory Dinner to Sir John Hare and Sir Charles Santley, and recently the celebrated Savoyard Dinner. Last Sunday's function, The Merry Widow Dinner, held at the Hotel Cecil, eclipsed all others in point of numbers and interest. It was the first time that any body of playgoers 550 strong had assembled to celebrate the success of any particular play. The O.P. Club were honouring not only Mr. George Edwardes, who is, indeed, rarely seen at public dinners, but also they were welcoming the artists who have taken part in this world-famed opera. The President, Mr. Max Pemberton, proposed the toast of "The Hit of the Century," to which Mr. George Edwardes replied, and Mr. Mostyn T. Piggott proposed The Merry Widow, to which Miss Lily Elsie and Mr. Joseph Coyne responded. As a memento of this dinner, Mr. Mostyn T. Pigott, on behalf of the O.P. Club, presented to Miss Lily Elsie a neat silver jewel casket, tortoiseshell top, inlaid with silver, bearing the inscription: "The O.P. Club 'Merry Widow' Dinner, Jan. 31, 1909." A pretty and exceedingly artistic souvenir menu, which had been specially prepared for this dinner, and designed and produced by Mr. Carl Hentschel, was in the hands of every guest.

Amongst those present were Mr. L. A. Atherley-Jones, K.C., M.P., Mr. Frank Boor, Miss Phyllis Broughton, Miss Alexandra Carlisle, Major Campbell Coffin, Mrs. Campbell Coffin, Mr. Algernon L. Collins, Mrs. Algernon L. Collins, Mr. Joseph Coyne, Mr. Harding Cox, Miss Evelyn D'Alroy, Miss Marie Dainton, Mr. Frank Desprez, Miss Desprez, Miss Irene Desmond, Miss Constance Drever, Mr. G. Spencer Edwards, Mr. George Edwardes, Miss Lily Elsie, Miss Clara Evelyn, Mr. Robert Evett, Mr. Thomas Fraser, Mr. Fred Farren, Mr. Albert Garcia, Mr. George Grossmith, jun., Miss Evie Greene, Mr. Carl Hentschel, Mrs. Carl Hentschel, Miss Hentschel, Miss Elsie Irving, Mr. Herman Jacoby, Miss Nora Kerin, Mr. Maurice Levy, Miss Phyllis Legrand, Col. Henry Mapleson, Miss Greville Moore, Mr. Ernest Mayer, Miss Gertie Millar, Mr. J. F. McArdle, Mr. G. E. Minor, Mr. Edmund Payne, Mrs. Edmund Payne, Mr. Max Pemberton, Mrs. Max Pemberton, Mme. Petite, Miss Jessie Rose, Mr. Harry Randall, Mr. George Rollit, Miss Gabrielle Ray, Mr. T. McDonald Rendle, Mr. Frank Richardson, Miss Vera Thornton, Miss Gertrude Thornton, Sir J. Somers Vine, and Miss Kate Welch.

After the toast of "The King" had been heartily honoured,

The CHAIRMAN, proposing "The Hit of the Century," said, in the course of his remarks: I cannot say that Mr. George Edwardes has satisfied me. He has not told me how to make the hit of the century. His secret, ghastly or otherwise, remains in his own possession, and so I am left to answer for him, and to tell you that the secret of his life is success, and that we are here to celebrate that success with all the goodwill we can command. We are here, indeed, to recognise the fact that he has spent more than twenty-five years in a continuous endeavour to amuse the people. I need hardly say that such a task provokes criticism, that it makes enemies—but best of all that it makes friends. If you amuse the people you are criticised by those who do not amuse the people. These go about crying as the Ephesians of old, "Great are Shaw and the Shavians," but you will discover them none the less where widows are merry, and you will not be surprised that Superman, who has known them, drowns the memory in a lingering waltz. I repeat they do not amuse the people. Now, it would be impossible to celebrate Mr. George Edwardes' many triumphs and to ignore the particular form of entertainment by which they have been won. I might speak of musical comedy in many phases. I might speak of its educational side as a well-ordered system for the secondary training of peers, a system embracing a considerable knowledge of geography and topography, with some sidelights upon the manners and customs of alien people. I might ask how many schoolboys—public school boys—knew much of Dantzig or Gottenberg, or the French Riviera before Mr. George Edwardes personally conducted them to those interesting localities. One might even venture the question: How far was the economic status of the shop-girl understood before the production of The Girl from Kay's? These I will avoid, preferring to regard musical comedy as the oldest fashion of all mere emotional display. Is it not, after all, but just singing and dancing, and is not that as all as the world? May we not believe that the children of Israel had their musical comedies in the desert, and that Moses took a stage box, while the show was generally presented by Moses? More than this, am I not permitted by the theologians to tell you that, whatever be the fate of mere comedy and drama in the world to come, singing and dancing will be the permanent recreations of the blessed. If this implies that the problem play must be performed in a somewhat heated atmosphere, the fault is not mine. I claim elemental virtues for this form of art or recreation or whatsoever you choose to call it, and I say that there is no nonsense about it. When the young art student said to Whistler, "I paint what I see," he retorted, "Ah, but the tragedy will come when you see what you paint." The man who produces a successful musical comedy must see what his artists paint all the time, and there must be no tragedy about it. For twenty-five years and more has Mr. George Edwardes done this—lavishly, fearlessly with honest purpose, great courage, and splendid achievement. He himself is the true story of musical comedy. It was in the year 1885 that he presented to us his first study of the criminal law, Little Jack Sheppard. With one exception our guest is thus the doyen of London managers. I hold in my hand a list of his children; is it not an instructive document? Seven bouncing girls to begin with, a few boys to keep the house lively—children of many lands and many colours—Greeks, Spaniards, Germans, aristocratic collaterals, and indispensable poor relations. As we read it the names of many delightful players recur to us. Some of these children have left the old home for the splendour of palaces and the realisation of unlimited bank balance—some, perhaps, have found the balances not what they expected—I pass over that; but out of it all the supreme fact emerges that though girls may come and girls may go, all London will re-echo the wish that Mr. George Edwardes—the very father of our gaiety—may go on for ever. Such is the sentiment I venture to commend to you. We are here—the ladies will permit me for the moment to address the mere males—we are here, most of us, married men, to celebrate the joyousness of widows. To this has our simple human nature been led by the thunderbolt which Mr. George Edwardes has fired among us, the hit which still leaves our ears singing. By him we have learned that when, gentlemen, we are dead and gone, are seeking new melodies from unfamiliar instruments, then our widows will be spending the twenty millions we intend to leave them in vulgar flirtations in a beer garden. This needs much courage to contemplate, but where courage is concerned, Mr. Edwardes is our friend. By him consolation shall come; by him the wind shall be tempered to the shorn lamb; with him we will forget for a little while that brief life is here our portion, and that the funds are falling one by one. He, indeed, is our true friend, and caring little about hits and little about misses, I ask you to drink his health with gratitude and with enthusiasm.

MR. GEORGE EDWARDES, who, in rising, was received with tumultuous applause, said, in reply to the toast:—Mr. President, Ladies and Gentlemen,—It is with some diffidence that I rise to return thanks for the toast that my friend Mr. Pemberton has so brightly proposed. The delivery of speeches from the stage and elsewhere is not a department of managerial duty in which I profess to be proficient. It does not matter so much on a first night, because some kind friends are cheering and other kind friends are booing, and nobody hears a word. If I could confine my speeches to these rare occasions—they could not be too rare—

I might acquire a reputation as an orator. But in the presence of an audience of orators I will be brief and not more tedious than I can help. It is good of you to allude to the piece with which I am connected as the "Hit of the Century," I hope it will not be the only hit of the century, for there are ninety-one more years to run, and I cannot afford to run Daly's Theatre for ninety-one years on the surplus profits of The Merry Widow. Certainly The Merry Widow has had a wider success than any musical piece since The Mikado. I feel somewhat shy in returning thanks for The Merry Widow and those concerned in presenting her to London. I have had long experience in dealing with girls—Gaiety girls who never went to the Gaiety, and all sorts of other girls who did, but this is my first widow. Well, I won the widow by methods of wooing unnecessary to mention here, and having won her I had to introduce her to the British public. To begin with, I had to teach her to speak English, and then I had to find her an English-speaking lover and a circle of friends.

THE CASKET.

It was not so easy to settle on the people to play the widow or her lover. Prima donnas for light opera have never been plentiful in England, and those who had already attained fame in that position were mostly engaged. I had to choose some lady, not so much for what the public had seen her do as for what I hoped they would see her do. The lady I need not name. The authors and the composer said, "Who is this lady? We have not heard of her." I replied "Come and see her!" They came, and there was no more trouble. But with the part of Danilo there was more difficulty. Danilo is, as those of you who have been in Germany will know, a singing part, and it is also an acting part. Now when one author and the composer came over, they said, "Who is your tenor? Who is going to sing as Danilo?" Then I had to explain that my tenor, though an admirable vocalist, was somewhat out of voice—that he was nervous. When they insisted on hearing Mr. Joseph Coyne, I used to turn on Mr. Adrian Ross to talk German to them. Well, by hook or crook, and by exhausting all the resources of managerial mendacity, I delayed the evil day, but at last Mr. Leon and Mr. Lehar heard my tenor, and they said, or at least Mr. Leon, who speaks English, said, "Why, your tenor does not sing at all—he talks!" "Yes," I answered, "but did you ever hear a man talk a song better?" They were indignant—they wanted to start for Vienna at once. I had to put Mr. Ross on to tell them the next train in German, and by the time he had finished the train had gone. Eventually, being very nice people, they quieted down. They did want to tell me what they thought of my conduct, but it was agreed that Mr. Lehar should express it in Hungarian or Czech. I don't speak Czech, though I write it well. They stayed to the first night—and I will say no more. To show you the difficulties with which managers have to contend, I was once negotiating with a lady to go to India as prima donna, and I thought I would approach the question artfully. We were nearly agreed—the difference between us was a paltry £100 a week—I offered her £100, the same salary as I had paid to Miss Farren, and she asked me £200 a week. I began to tell her of the rest for her voice. I spoke of the lovely voyage, the quiet Bay of Biscay, the blue Mediterranean, her arrival at Calcutta, the glories of India, how the lady would win the hearts of all the princes, of Jams and Rams and Dams, Nawabs and Nabobs, Rajahs and Maharajahs. I said, "They'll send you ropes of pearls to tie up your dresses, elephants with trunks full of emeralds, and diamonds enough for a skirt—and skirts were skirts in those days." I said, "What is a miserable hundred a week by the side of that?" Well, I thought I had impressed the lady. She promised to think it over. She did. Next day I got a note:—

"Dear Mr. Edwardes,

"Give me my terms and you can keep the presents."

If I am not boring you I would like to tell you a little story of the last night of the old Gaiety. Well, I was very anxious to get Sir Henry Irving to come and say a few farewell words for us on the stage at the end of the performance, but I was rather afraid that he would not turn up, so on the night before I called up at Drury Lane Theatre, where he was then playing Dante, and I went to his room to see him. I told him that there was intense excitement about the last night, I reminded him that he was an old Gaiety actor, and that the public were very anxious to see him at the Gaiety. "Great excitement to see me, is there?" he said. "The greatest," I replied. "Inquiries if I'm coming all day at the box-office, eh?" "The telephones have not ceased ringing," was my answer. "Telegrams and letters all day, too!" "All day!" "Edwardes, what a d——d liar you are!" And now, before I sit down, let me say how much I value the kindly welcome that we of The Merry Widow have had here to-night. It is a great honour to be entertained by the O.P. Club. There were once O.P. riots at the theatre. I am sure none of the members of the club would do anything of that sort. There is another sense in which O.P. is used on the stage—it means opposite to prompt. That also is not the meaning of this club. In their zeal for the best interests of the drama, in their friendly welcome to excellence, native or foreign, they are prompt—not the opposite. But whenever I go on the stage to rehearse before a production, or to be booed after it, I shall look across to the O.P. side, and remember to-night. For we managers, even managers of musical plays, have our artistic ambitions, even if we have to think of business considerations. We try to give the best we can get; we do not intentionally bore the critics and the public, as some people seem to think. We do not instruct the librettists to put in an especially stupid line in order to annoy the fastidious people in the stalls. Perhaps we didn't know the line was stupid—or perhaps we didn't put it in at all. We try our best—if we fail, we generally know it better than others, but, after all, it is not criminal; if we succeed, we value better than the money rewards of success the kindly recognition and welcome of those who know—our friends and hosts of the O.P. Club.

MR. MOSTYN T. PIGOTT, in submitting the toast of The Merry Widow said; "You have learnt how the Merry Widow has cast her spell over the major portion of the civilised world; how Germany, Austria, and the United States have formed a Triple Alliance to do her honour; how the Antipodes have bowed beneath her sway; and how even the illimitable veldt has yielded to her blandishments. France alone has so far kept clear of the entanglement, but there can be no doubt that before very long that beauty-loving and laughter-loving land will echo to the cries of "Vive la Veuve!" But there are certain illuminating facts to which your attention has so far not been directed. From certain unimpeachable authorities I have from time to time gleaned many items of interest and value. For instance, I find that since The Merry Widow was first produced, the various interpreters of the title-rôle have received between them no less than 19,066 proposals of marriage; that the various impresarios have comfortably banked the cool sum of £19,000,002 as their profits; and that there is a not inconsiderable section of the House of Lords which believes that the best method of reforming that much-abused institution would be to co-opt Mr. Joseph Coyne. With regard to the last-named item, I may say that I think personally that it would be a graceful act to make a peer of the realm of one who, though by the mere accident of birth an American, has been adopted by this country as a Coyne of the realm, and a sound, sterling, and true-ringing Coyne at that. And what of Miss Lily Elsie? Zounds, oddsbodikins, and gadzooks! as Mr. Max Pemberton's heroes have a habit of remarking, to say that she has brought a whole nation to her feet would be to put the matter but mildly. In these days, when, unfortunately, only too many of our leading actors and actresses appear to get bored with a part after a run of 100 nights, it is deliciously refreshing to see Miss Elsie, as I saw her only yesterday afternoon, playing her part with the same charming freshness, the same sincerity, and the same absence of exaggeration as she displayed twenty months ago. It is constantly being hurled at us as a reproach nowadays that we are as a nation wallowing in an abyss of apathy, that we are deaf to the call of duty, and blind to the imminence of danger. But I make bold to say that, were there danger impending, Miss Lily Elsie has only to don the uniform of the Territorial Army and sound her bugle, and there would not be a male inhabitant of these islands who would not cheerfully enrol himself under her banner, and who would not march to death or glory with a smiling face to the accompaniment of that haunting melody to which we have luncheoned, dined, supped, aye, and even taken our morning tubs for so long. Under the lithe and lissome leadership of our Marsovial Joan of Arc we should literally waltz round our unfortunate and foredoomed foe. But we must not let this evening pass without some words of recognition to others to whom honour is due. There are other ladies present who have charmingly represented The Merry Widow, and there are other ladies and gentlemen present amongst us who, by their sweet singing, their graceful dancing, and their genial and unforced humour, have largely contributed to the unprecedented success of this wonderful piece as members of one of the most thoroughly gifted casts ever seen in London. We are not here to-night to say "Farewell" to The Merry Widow. She is in her zenith, and it may be years and years before that sad word must be said. So it is not only with hearts full of thanks for the past but also with hearts full of hope for the future that we will drink to the toast of "The Merry Widow." But before that toast is formally put to you for your enthusiastic reception I have a pleasing duty to perform. I am deputed by the committee of the O.P. Club to ask Miss Lily Elsie to accept this little jewel casket, and to express the hope that she will live for many many years to look upon it with kindly eyes as a souvenir of a celebration which has been to her, we trust, delightful, and which has been, we know, well won.

MISS LILY ELSIE, who received a most enthusiastic ovation, responded in the following words: Mr. Ladies, Mrs. President, and Gentlemen,—Oh! there, I've mixed it up. I'm so sorry, but I am so nervous. I don't think I was worse on my own first night. I tried to learn a speech; I couldn't. All yesterday I was thinking. I was thinking where I could hide these few notes; they are not my salary. Mr. Edwardes has that, I hope. First I thought of putting it in my hat, but it wasn't large enough—my hat, I mean. I thought of putting it under these gloves, but they faded. So here are my thanks in writing—my own. It's awful writing; I can hardly read it, however. Oh! I've put down something funny I thought of. I think it is most appropriate I should address you, because you are merry. I don't mean too merry—is that good?—and although you are not widows, you are smoking my weeds. Mr. Coyne will say that to-morrow night. That's half my speech. Would you like any more? Very well. I want to say how much I owe my dear manager, Mr. Edwardes, for I fully realise that it is the part that makes the artist, not the artist who makes the part. I thought you would have said "No, no!" And another thing, it has been a pleasure to act with Mr. Joseph Coyne. Ladies, gentlemen, and others, I want to sit down, as I am so nervous; but before I do, will you allow me very gratefully to thank you—to thank you from my heart for the way in which you have been indulgent enough to endorse Mr. Edwardes's choice of the obscure little girl I was, and am still? I thank you; indeed I do.

MR. JOSEPH COYNE, replying to the same toast, said in the course of his remarks: I have not only the O.P. Club to thank for your kind invitation to this delightful gathering, but also Mr. Edwardes, who made it possible for me to be a member of The Merry Widow company, because, as everyone knows by this time, the part of Danilo in The Merry Widow is a singing part absolutely, and, as everyone knows now—or at least they knew before the first night was over—I was not a singer. When Mr. Edwardes offered me the part of Danilo I knew there was a lot of music to be sung, and told him that I knew and felt I could not sing it. But he insisted. He told me that what I could not sing or did not sing I could recite, and after much persuasion he finally got me to consent to accept the part on condition that I could recite what I did not sing. Well, rehearsals started, and of course while Mr. Edwardes was directing them everything went all right as far as I was concerned. Finally, the week before the production Mr. Edwards had Mr. Lehar, the composer, and Mr. Leon, the author, over to attend the final rehearsals. Everything went swimmingly until my entrance as Prince to sing the Maxim song, and as soon as I opened my mouth and started to sing Mr. Lehar's smiles turned to frowns, he fidgeted in his chair, and did not strike the keys at all. In fact, he looked from one to another, first at Mr. Edwardes, then at Mr. Leon and Mr. Slavinsky, as much as to say, "What the devil is this? What is this you are springing on me?" The song was finished. Mr. Lehar immediately left the piano, and got his hat and coat, and called to Mr. Leon and Mr. Slavinsky, and all three of them left the theatre abruptly. Immediately they went to their hotel and packed their belongings, paid their bill, and sent to Mr. Edwardes that they were going to return to Vienna at once. Mr. Edwardes went to the hotel to find out what the trouble was, and through Slavinsky he learned that Mr. Lehar objected to me—he objected to my playing the part of Danilo, and went off in his German, "Mein Gott, this man Coyne—he cannot sing—he will ruin my opera—Danilo! he can't sing my music"—and said that he would not consent to the production of the piece unless they got a man in my place who could sing. Of course, time was getting short, and Mr. Edwardes, through Mr. Slavinsky, said, "Well, my goodness! we must have this man. There is no other man available. Besides, this man, Coyne—I know he can't sing, but he can dance and he can act, and we must have him—he is a funny man. Tell him he's a really funny man—a very funny man," and Mr. Lehar's reply was, "Well, you tell Mr. Edwardes I haven't written any funny music!" So, as I said before, through Mr. Edwardes's loyalty to me and your kindness, here I am!

Mr. W. H. BERRY proposed "The Chairman," and Mr. Max Pemberton's reply brought the speech-making to an end

The musical arrangements during the evening were directed by Messrs. Bernard Dickson and Stanley Greig, and the orchestra played many delightful selections from Mr. George Edwardes's productions. Among the artists who assisted to make the function still more attractive by vocal and other contributions were: Miss Constance Drever, Miss Evie Greene, Mr. Robert Evett, Mr. Charles Copland, Mr. Morris Harvey, Mr. Walter Churcher, Miss Clara Evelyn, Miss Blanche Gaston-Murray, Mr. George Grossmith, jun., Mr. Albert Garcia, Mr. Spencer Thomas, and the "Daly" Glee.

The arrangements of the dinner were in the hands of Mr. Carl Hentschel, Mr. T. McDonald Rendle, and the hon. secretaries, Messrs. J. Davis and Stanley Greig.

PLOTS AND PLAGIARISMS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—In your issue of Jan. 23 you published in parallel columns what purports to be scenarios of my comic opera The Son of the Sun and of Amasis. These were sent to you by an anonymous correspondent in order that your readers might be able to compare them to the detriment of the judgment in my recent action against Amasis, Ltd., and Mr. Frederick Fenn. Kindly allow me the opportunity of drawing attention to the fact that neither of the scenarios given is a fair epitome of its respective opera.

The Son of the Sun contains two themes or plots which, although overlapping, are quite distinct, and might easily be used separately. One is the cat theme, which deals with the hero being condemned to death for slaying a sacred cat; the other is the abduction of the Princess by brigands. It was in respect of the former, an entirely original and novel theme, that my action was brought and decided. Whilst your correspondent gives in considerable detail the abduction theme, he subdues—I hesitate to think intentionally—to almost nothing the cat theme, which dominates the entire opera. He is also misleading when he states: "Muimui (proper Miumiu, who is the hero) is granted seven days to find the Princess, as anyone finding her can claim her for his bride." This implies that if the hero should recover the Princess he would be thereby enabled to marry her; whereas, having confessed that he slew a sacred cat, a capital crime, nothing whatever can save him, a situation identical with that at the end of Act I. of Amasis.

Turning to the scenario given as that of Amasis, I find in the last third thereof characters bearing the names Cleophar, Bosibus, Plasterpom, and Phizz, none of which appear in the libretto of Amasis. As a matter of fact, those characters and the incidents there set forth belong to an extravaganza, entitled The Mystic Cat, the author of which collaborated with Mr. Faraday, composer of Amasis. Subsequently he brought an action for plagiarism against Mr. Fenn and Mr. Faraday, who settled the matter shortly before trial by paying £100 and £150 respectively, all of which appeared in the reports of my action. Now it is on material such as this that your nameless correspondent invites your readers to rejudge my own case. Were it not so serious I should feel disposed to regard the whole thing as an amusing hoax.

Your also reprint a criticism of the case and the judgment written by Mr. Adrian Ross, who attacks both. He seems to argue that the evidence of plagiarism would have been stronger had the differences between the point of similarity been greater; but as he observes later: "Of course, an unskilful plagiarist simply steals the whole—merits, defects, and all," there is no need for me to deal with his arguments.

I must, however protest against what he makes it appear were the grounds on which my action was based. He says: "Anybody thinking of the consequences of killing a sacred animal would select the cat for treatment in ancient Egypt as naturally as the cow in India." The right to use the killing of a cat as the theme for an Egyptian comic opera formed no part of my claim. It is common property. I could myself invent a dozen entirely different plots based on that theme, and no doubt a hundred could be constructed; it is when two of the plots are practically identical that there is infringement. Similarly, the use of the "adage about the nine lives" of a cat, made much of by Mr. Ross, cannot be claimed exclusively by me or by anybody; a novel and quaint variant of it, employed in a special connection, may, however, form a link in a long chain of similarities.

It is perfectly obvious to me that Mr. Ross neither heard the whole (if any) of the trial, nor made the acquaintance of the twenty-nine counts of the particulars of claim, which covered over fifty points of similarity. He is, therefore, not in a position to pass judgment on the result.

As your article reflects adversely on my work and on my action, I trust that you will, in common fairness, give equal prominence to my letter.—Yours faithfully, W. GUNN GWENNET.

DRAMATIC COINCIDENCE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—I have read my friend Mr. Arthur Shirley's letter, which appeared under the above heading in your issue of the 30th ult., in which he draws attention to the fact that a situation in a new play just completed by him bears a striking resemblance to an incident in Mrs. Morton Powell's drama, How Girls are Brought to Ruin, produced by me in Liverpool a week ago.

This particular situation I may say was discussed by Mrs. Morton Powell with many of her friends and dramatic associates many months ago. The drama itself was advertised by me in the columns of your paper so far back as September last.

Of Mr. Shirley's play both Mrs. Powell and myself were entirely ignorant until I received a charming and kindly letter from Mr. Shirley, in which he discussed the matter, on Friday last.

There cannot, therefore, be any suggestion of plagiarism on the part of Mrs. Powell or myself, and I am equally convinced there is none on the part of Mr. Shirley. It is evident, as Mr. Shirley says: "Two authors have struck the same root idea," for a situation in one act of each of their plays.—Yours faithfully, MORTON POWELL.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP.

Mr. Beerbohm Tree returned to town yesterday in excellent health after his excursion to Egypt, and is now able to give rehearsals of The Dancing Girl the benefit of his personal supervision. Most of the principals of the revival of Mr. Henry Arthur Jones's clever play at His Majesty's on the 16th inst. have already been mentioned in this column, but we can now state that Mr. Tree's full support will consist of Messrs. A. Vane-Tempest, Louis Calvert, G. W. Anson, Charles Quartermaine, Basil Gill, Walter R. Creighton, Hugh B. Tabberer, Norman Page, and Henry Morrell, and Misses Alice Crawford Marie Löhr, Rosina Filippi, Juliet Hardinge, Gabrielle de Wilden, Muriel Alexander, Mrs. E. H. Brooke, and Miss Valentine.

Sir Squire and Lady Bancroft's wedding present to Captain Wilfred G. Lucas and Mlle. Catherine Béchet de Ballan, who were married last week at St. Mary's Catholic Church, Cadogan-street, took the form of a set of silver teaspoons of a quaint Norwegian pattern. Sir Squire also attended the reception at Hans Crescent Hotel, and Mr. George Grossmith, jun., Mrs. George Alexander, Mr. and Mrs. Bram Stoker, Miss Genevieve Ward, and Mrs. Kendal were likewise present.

Miss Lena Ashwell has decided to produce her new comedy at the Kingsway on Thursday next, and the present run of Diana of Dobson's will accordingly terminate this evening. The Truants is by Wilfred T. Coleby, and is in three acts, which are covered by the space of twenty-four hours. In addition to Miss Ashwell, the full cast will consist of Mr. C. M. Hallard, Miss Margaret Murray, Mr. W. Lemmon Warde, Mr. Norman McKinnell, Mr. Dennis Eadie, Miss Gertrude Scott, Miss Frances Ivor, Miss Athene Seyler, Mr. Ernest Young, Miss Olivia, and Mr. W. Fazan. The production is under the supervision of Mr. Norman McKinnel.

Mr. H. B. Irving will present his own version of Hamlet for the first time in London at the Shaftesbury on Monday, when Miss Dorothea Baird will appear for the first time in the West End as Ophelia. Mr. Frank Tyars will be the King, and included in the cast will also be Mr. Tom Reynolds, Mr. Eric Maxon, Mr. Stanley Howlett, Mr. Charles Dodsworth, Miss Eily Malyon, and Miss E. Frances Davis.

The Irving memorial was mentioned in the Liverpool Police-court on Saturday, when a man, who gave the name of Walter Wright, and described as an artist, was charged with having obtained by means of a trick sums of money from various persons, including the Duchess of Sutherland, Sir Frederick Pollock, Sir Charles Santley, Mr. J. M. Barrie, and Mr. Martin Harvey. The accused is alleged to have advertised his intention of inaugurating "The Irving Memorial Club" to perpetuate the memory of the late Sir Henry Irving. The subscription for life members would be ten guineas, while annual subscriptions would be £1 1s. Wright, on being charged, said, "I did not look upon it as stealing. I have spent the money." He was remanded for seven days.

Mr. Arthur Bourchier had a distinguished audience for the première of Samson at the Garrick on Wednesday. Among the titled people were Baron Alfred de Rothschild, the Earl of Kinnoull, Earl Howe, Viscount and Viscountess Churchill, Lord Kilmarnock, Lady Sarah Wilson, Lord and Lady Abingdon, and Muriel Countess de la Warr. The stage was represented by Sir William Gilbert, Mr. Henry Arthur Jones, Mr. Alfred Sutro, and Mr. Otho Stuart, and the law by Mr. Rufus Isaacs, K.C., Mr. C. F. Gill, K.C., and Mr. Marshall Hall, K.C.

The New Frances Club, which was started by Miss Frances, the sister of Miss Lena Ashwell, just over a year ago, for the benefit of ladies connected with the theatrical profession and journalism, is increasing rapidly in popularity. On Sunday evening a most successful concert was given at the club premises, 425, Strand, and was well attended. The artists contributing to the programme were Miss Maryon Manville, who is understudying Miss Louie Pounds in Dorothy, and proved herself a capable vocalist and elocutionist; Miss Louise Lund, Miss Lily Roberts, Miss Jackson, Mr. Isador Newmark, Mr. Ron Emanuel, Mr. E. A. Lamb, Mr. Ernest Grey, and Mr. Mark Hyam. The new Frances Club has many prominent actresses included in the list of membership.

Miss Ellaline Terriss will emerge as the star of her own company on Monday, when The Dashing Little Duke will have its first representation at the Theatre Royal, Nottingham. The book is by Mr. Seymour Hicks, and music has been supplied by Mr. Frank E. Tours and lyrics by Mr. Adrian Ross. Mr. Charles Frohman will present the play on Wednesday, Feb. 17, at the Hicks Theatre, London, with the same company as at Nottingham.

The original adaptation of The Dashing Little Duke, from the French of MM. Bayard and Dumanoir, was made by Osmond Shillingford and Aubrey Boucicault. In the present production Miss Terriss will be supported by Messrs. C. Hayden Coffin, Sam Walsh, Frank Wilson, Henry Franckiss, Lawrence Caird, Frederick Vigay, M. Protti, Hughes Croise, Charles le Galley, Roland Chester, and Courtice Pounds; and Misses Louie Pounds, Maud Milton, Elizabeth Firth, Coralie Blythe, and Florence Wood.

Mr. Martin Harvey's visit to the Grand Theatre, Hull, this week, has been splendidly successful. Remarkable enthusiasm has greeted the various plays, and both the popular actor and Miss de Silva won great success. On Monday the company appear at the New Theatre, Cardiff, and at the Opera House, Leicester, the following week.

A bride has again been sought and found by a wealthy suitor among the ranks of the Gaiety company, and on Saturday at Holborn Registry Office Miss Adelina Balfe, who is playing Sheila in Our Miss Gibbs, was wedded to Lieut. Gerard Randal Klombies, of the 2nd Dragoon Guards (Queen's Bays), who is a rich man in his own right. In the register the bride was described as an actress, daughter of Herbert Davies, deceased, musician. The bridegroom was entered as "bachelor, second lieutenant Queen's Bays, Cavalry Barracks, Hounslow." His father was described as a merchant. Immediately after the ceremony Mrs. Klombies repaired to the Gaiety, where she took her part in Our Miss Gibbs.

The author of An Englishman's Home, the production of which at Wyndham's has so stirred the patriotic pulse, is Major Guy Louis Busson Du Maurier, D.S.O., son of the late George Du Maurier, the author of Trilby, and brother of the popular actor Mr. Gerald Du Maurier. The new author commanded the 20th Mounted Infantry Regiment in South Africa in 1901 and 1902, being mentioned in dispatches. He became a lieutenant in the Royal Fusiliers (City of London Regiment) in 1885, and is still in the same regiment serving at the present moment with the 3rd Battalion at Pietermaritzburg, Natal.

Miss Evelyn Millard has secured a cast of considerable strength for Mr. Robert Hichens' new play, The Real Woman, which will follow The Adventure of Lady Ursula in due course at the Criterion Theatre. In addition to the popular manageress, Miss Annie Hughes, Miss Kate Cutler, Mr. Henry Ainley, Mr. Herbert Waring, and Mr. Alan Aynesworth will appear.

Mr. Bannister Howard has secured The Sign of the Cross company for the Crystal Palace Theatre next week, with a matinée on Wednesday. There will also be variety shows twice daily in the concert room.

Miss Edith Craig, daughter of Miss Ellen Terry, presided at a Woman's Suffrage meeting convened by the Women's Freedom League, in conjunction with the Actresses' Franchise League, yesterday afternoon at Clifford's Inn Hall. There were about 200 ladies present, and when the Chairwoman asked those who were actresses to signify as such in the ordinary way only four hands were to be seen! Miss Craig's contention in support of votes for actresses seemed to be that they got as well paid as the men of their calling, and that some of them were householders.

The Haymarket Theatre is shortly to revert to that form of entertainment with which the traditions of the house are so agreeably associated, and old English comedy is again to grace its boards. The first revival is to be She Stoops to Conquer, which will be staged on Saturday, Feb. 20. Miss Ethel Irving, whose comedy gifts have secured such wide recognition, will remain at the Haymarket to play Miss Hardcastle in Sheridan's brilliant play, and her assumption of a rôle that has engaged the talents of so many famous players will be awaited with the keenest interest. Mr. Robert Loraine will be the Young Marlow, and opportunity will be given to renew acquaintance with the Tony Lumpkin of Mr. George Giddens.

"Pete" is enjoying on tour the overwhelming business which marked its run throughout the autumn season at the Lyceum, and has had the satisfaction this week of beating all records at the Dalston Theatre. By Tuesday evening every bookable seat was disposed of for the week, and thousands were turned away. The production is identical with that of the original, and includes in the cast Mr. Matheson Lang, Miss Hutin Britton, and Mr. Eric Mayne.

It is the intention of Messrs. Smith and Ernest Carpenter to supply the provinces with Lyceum productions, and a number of tried successes will be sent in turn to provincial managers. The reputation of Mr. Ernest Carpenter as a successful producer has long been fully established, and the provincial manager booking one of the Lyceum productions may have the assurance that the piece is equipped, rehearsed, and prepared in a manner equal throughout to a London success.

The annual general meeting of the Theatrical Managers' Association took place on Tuesday at the Tavistock Hotel, Covent Garden. In the absence of the president, Mr. H. Beerbohm Tree, who was abroad, Mr. Edward Terry took the chair, and was supported by the other vice-presidents, Mr. J. Macready Chute and Mr. J. B. Mulholland. The meeting was largely attended, and the officers were re-elected for the ensuing year. Many matters of importance to theatrical managers were discussed, and there is every prospect of the Association being most successful in the future owing to the new rules which came into force last month.

A picturesque wedding took place at St. John's Church, Weymouth, on Wednesday, when Miss Violet Courtenay Blake, only daughter of Colonel C. J. Blake, late R.A., was married to the Rev. Alexander Hugh Gage, chaplain of H.M.S. Drake, son of the late General Ezekiel Gage, of Ballycastle, county Antrim, and Rathlin Island. Miss Blake was formerly a member of Mr. George Edwardes's principal company in The Duchess of Dantzic, and has lately shown great talent on the concert stage. Her mother, Mrs. Blake, is known in the musical world as Evangeline Claudette, the composer of many pleasing ballads.

The bride was given away by her father, and Surgeon F. C. Robinson acted as best man. The bridesmaids were three in number, and included Miss Dorothy Dobree, Miss Margaret Blake, and Miss Nimmo. A brilliant effect was created in the church by the handsome dresses of the ladies and the uniforms of the bridegroom's brother officers. At the reception, held after the service at the bride's house, Mr. Hugh Leslie Dobree represented the theatrical profession. The happy pair left for Monte Carlo later in the afternoon. After the honeymoon Mrs. Gage intends to resume her work on the concert stage.

A rather unpleasant experience was that of Miss Vesta Brownie, the leading lady of Lucky 'Liza company, last week at Wexford. The scenery and baskets got mixed with Mr. Benson's and taken to England. They were returned the next day with the exception of Miss Brownie's baskets, and consequently she had to play that night without any of her Lucky 'Liza dresses. Borrowing some clothes from the other ladies of the company, however, she went on and made a most satisfactory success, though she did not look a bit like 'Liza.

"The Adventure of Lady Ursula" was transferred to the Criterion on Monday, the Garrick being required by Mr. Bourchier for Samson. Miss Evelyn Millard acts the impetuous young lady with all her wonted charm, and admirable support is furnished by Mr. Herbert Waring as Sir George, Mr. Charles Fulton as Mr. Dent, Miss Dora Barton as Dorothy, and the other members of the capital company.

We record with regret the death of Mr. William N. Ramsdale, lately treasurer for the Robert Arthur Theatres, Ltd., at the Theatre Royal, Newcastle. Mr. Ramsdale, who was under medical treatment ten days ago, was removed to a private hospital, where he underwent an operation for appendicitis on the 25th ult. There appeared to be every prospect of a recovery, but a change for the worse set in last Monday, and Mr. Ramsdale died during the night. The deceased, who was about thirty-five years of age, joined Mr. Arthur's forces at Wolverhampton, his native town, when a boy. On the acquisition of the Theatre Royal, Newcastle, in 1895, by the manager named, Mr. Ramsdale was transferred to Newcastle as treasurer, and was associated with the house for fourteen years. Mr. Ramsdale married a Newcastle lady some five or six years ago, and leaves a widow and two young children. His untimely loss is greatly deplored.

At the conclusion of the pantomime at the Theatre Royal, Plymouth, on Saturday last Mr. Stanley White, on behalf of Mr. Bannister Howard, thanked a crowded house for the magnificent reception accorded Cinderella, which, he remarked, had secured a pantomime record for Plymouth, between 60,000 and 70,000 persons having visited the theatre during the five weeks' run. Messrs. Wingate and Blythe, of the orchestra, were presented with boxes of cigars as marks of appreciation by their confrères, whilst the principal ladies received large baskets and posies of flowers from admirers in front. Mr. Langdon Lee, the resident-manager, also thanked the patrons for their support, and announced the prospective bookings.

The present week will see the close of the bright little pantomime Cinderella at Fulham. On Monday next the regular season will open with a visit from Mr. Seymour Hicks's company in The Gay Gordons, one of the most successful musical comedies of late years. There will be a capital lot of artists, full chorus, and good scenery, and there is no doubt the piece will prove as powerful a draw as it did upon a former occasion.

Mr. Sydney Barraclough, who makes his reappearance on the stage in Miss Marie Dressler's new musical production at the Aldwych Theatre on Feb. 27, is to be congratulated on the astonishing cure which he has effected. Mr. Barraclough, who was last seen in London in Florodora, was told at the beginning of 1906 that his was a case of advanced consumption, and after several months' stay at a sanatorium, he was informed that an ultimate cure was out of the question. With admirable courage, Mr. Barraclough determined to attempt his own cure, and to that end he took a little workman's cottage, where, but for the companionship of two dogs, he lived alone and unattended for months.

His treatment consisted of a new application of hydropathy with a scientifically correct diet, no drugs or medicines, plenty of milk, and as much fresh air as possible. The effect was marvellous. He can now sing for hours in any atmosphere, and his voice is stronger than ever. "I have ridden as much as seventy-four miles on my cycle during a day," says Mr. Barraclough. "The great specialist who has watched my case for two years, and who is absolutely amazed at my recovery, has given me a certificate in which he gives it as his opinion that I am completely cured."

The wedding took place at St. Ann's Church, Manchester, recently of Mr. George Lee, manager of the Prince's Theatre in that town, and Miss Florence Agnes Dyer, of Brighton. The bride was given away by Mr. Shirra, manager of the Theatre Royal, and the bridegroom was attended by Mr. George Collinson, of the United Theatres Co.

Mr. Lee is a native of Australia, and came over to England about thirteen years ago with the late Mr. J. L. Toole. Many of Mr. Toole's last days were spent at Brighton, and Mr. Lee regularly visited him there. After leaving Mr. Toole Mr. Lee toured with the George Edwardes company, and subsequently opened the New Theatre at Ealing. Following a further tour of the provinces he was appointed to his present position.

Owing to a severe attack of bronchitis Miss Ethel Dunbar was unable to play Jack Grist, the principal boy, in Puss in Boots the last week of the pantomime in Peterborough, her place being taken by her understudy.

Mr. Clive Currie's rehearsal company (section A), which is now called The Revival Company, will present to-morrow (Sunday) evening, at the Rehearsal Theatre, the Forest Scenes from As You Like It, Act 2 of Still Waters Run Deep, and a one-act play, by Cyril Hallward, entitled The Guinea Stamp. The casts will include Misses Ella Erskine, Iné Cameron, Adah Barton, Gertrude De Burgh, Sybil Ruskin, Dorothy Heal, Frances Wolviston, Muriel Dole, Maud Kirwan, Clarissa Selwynne, and May Saker, and Messrs. Walter Ringham, William Pringle, Charles King, Gordon Philiott, Gerald Mirrilees, and Clive Currie.

Mr. Johnnie Schofield concludes to-night his first provincial pantomime with Mr. Robert Arthur at the Theatre Royal, Nottingham, where he has made a great success as the Baroness, in Cinderella, his appearance in the kitchen scene as the "Ballet Girl" arousing a scream of laughter. The business done has beaten the records for the past eleven years.

Mr. Charles Hartley and Miss Ethel Gordon Paull opened their European tour at Montreux on Saturday last before a large and fashionable audience. During the past week they have also given performances at Geneva, Lausanne, and Genoa. To-night they appear at Nice, and afterwards visit the following towns in the order named—Cannes, Monte Carlo, Beaulieu, Mentone, Bordighera, San Remo, Alassio, Portofino, Rapallo, Santa Margheretta, Nervi, Florence, Rome, St. Raphael, and Paris.

Miss Leila Zillwood (Mrs. Arthur Hinton) has been compelled to relinquish her part in The Power of the King by the doctor's orders, and will undergo an operation on Tuesday next at Aberdare. We join with the young actress's friends in wishing her a speedy recovery.

The extraordinary popularity of the cat "Mouser" in the Drury Lane pantomime Dick Whittington induced a well-known firm of mechanical toy-makers to obtain from Mr. Arthur Collins permission to manufacture "Mouser" toys, exact copies on a smaller scale of the original. They were sold out as soon as offered at the theatre, and the demand so exceeds the supply that it looks as if "Mouser" would prove a serious rival to "Teddy Bear" with the children.

Mr. Horton Cooper, after appearing in a series of successful productions at the Comedy Theatre, principally under the management of Mr. Charles Frohman and Mr. Arthur Chudleigh, extending from Aug. 21, 1905, to Dec. 19, 1908, has been engaged by Miss Evelyn Millard for a part in her forthcoming new play at the Criterion.

The Vedrenne-Barker production of Bernard Shaw's comedy You Never Can Tell starts its third year of tour on the 23rd inst. Mr. E. Taylor Platt is general-manager, and Mr. Trevor Lowe has charge of the stage. The towns to be visited include Torquay, Wolverhampton, Oxford, Bristol, Leeds, Hull, and many other important dramatic centres.

The Oxford University Dramatic Society will give performances of The Frogs of Aristophanes in Greek, at the New Theatre, Oxford, beginning on Wednesday, Feb. 17, and ending on Tuesday, Feb. 23, with several matinées. The music, specially composed for the production in 1892 by Sir Hubert Parry, will again be used, and an acting edition of the play has been published, with a translation, by Mr. Gilbert Murray, the Regius Professor of Greek at Oxford.

Mr. Tom Craven's latest and best melodrama, When a Lass Loves, will shortly be produced for the first time in London at the Dalston Theatre. The production will be elaborate, with special scenery by Jules Camus. Mr. H. Cecil Beryl, who is at the Pier Hotel, Brighton, is booking the tours, and dates have already been secured at many leading provincial and suburban theatres.

Mr. Norman V. Norman, who has been far from well lately, is taking a longer rest than usual, but will run a short tour in the spring, visiting, among other towns, Oxford, Cambridge, Cheltenham, Newcastle-on-Tyne, Belfast, and Dublin. Mr. Norman's leading lady will again be that clever actress Miss Beatrice Wilson.

Sir Alexander Mackenzie is giving three lectures, with musical illustrations, at the Royal Institution this and two following Saturday afternoons. Mendelssohn will form the subject of the first address, and on the second and third occasions "Chamber Music" will be discussed.

Messrs. Jay and Mann have now undertaken the London representation (with bookings) for the Royal Palace Theatre, Ramsgate. They already act in a similar capacity for many important theatres, including the Opera House, Middlesbrough, New Pavilion Theatre, Weymouth, and the Memorial Theatre, Chesterfield. All these can be booked in conjunction with their own Palace Theatre, Brighton. Most of the principal attractions touring have been secured for the above theatres.

Mr. Peter Davey has arranged for Miss Glossop-Harris to appear in no fewer than eight Shakespearean plays at the County Theatre, Kingston, next week. Such a formidable undertaking goes far to prove that Miss Glossop-Harris is endowed with the great energy and ability of her father, the late Sir Augustus Harris.

A theatrical experiment of a novel and enterprising character is about to be inaugurated in the forthcoming tour of Mr. Henry Arthur Jones's comedy Dolly Reforming Herself, which has just passed its hundredth performance at the Haymarket. In place of the ordinary provincial method, by which a stay of a week is made in each town, a flying tour will be undertaken, the company travelling from town to town in specially-designed motor-cars, thus avoiding the dreary process of long cross-country Sunday journeys. Only one performance will be given in any town.

Scenery specially adapted for transport by motor is being built, and rehearsals are in active progress. The strong company includes Miss Aimée de Burgh as Dolly and Mr. Clayton Greene as Harry. The flying tour will start on Feb. 22, and it is certain that Dolly will "sweedle" her way into the hearts of the country as happily as she has done at the Haymarket. The tour is under the direction of Messrs. Jerrard Grant Allen and Geoffrey Besant, and a comprehensive itinerary has already been mapped out.

A general meeting of the Actors' Association will be held on Tuesday, at 2.30, at the Victoria Hall, Criterion Restaurant.

Mr. George Edwardes has generously waived his fees for the acting rights of Veronique for the charity matinée of that opera at the Court on Thursday for the benefit of the Fresh Air Fund. The Misses Iris and Daphne FitzGeorge, granddaughters of the late Duke of Cambridge, and nieces of Lady FitzGeorge, will appear as flower girls.

At the King's Theatre, Hammersmith, on Monday a performance of Mr. J. B. Mulholland's seventh Christmas pantomime was given for the benefit of the West London and Shepherd's Bush Philanthropic Societies. There was a crowded audience.

The Annual Hospital Matinée given by Mr. George Dance at the Richmond Theatre, will take place on Thursday next, for which occasion an exceptionally fine programme has been arranged. The following artists have generously given their services:—Mr. Edward Terry and members of his company, Mr. Rutland Barrington, Mr. Lyn Harding, Mr. Basil Gill, Mr. C. H. Workman, Mr. E. Dagnall and company, Miss Georgina Delmar, Miss Grete Hahn, and the wonderful child dancer, Miss Elsie Craven, from His Majesty's Theatre. It is satisfactory to learn that the last three matinées have been the means of handing over £350 to the Richmond Hospital.

Miss Helena Millais has been re-engaged by Messrs. Smith and Carpenter, and will open at Derby on the 15th as Kate Cregeen, in Pete.

After a most successful run Cinderella, the twelfth Christmas pantomime at the Royal County Theatre, Kingston, was withdrawn on Saturday night, when the house was packed in every part. At the close Mr. Davey, who designed and arranged the show, and Mrs. Davey, were called on to the stage, and Miss Bessie Butt (Dandini) presented to the popular managing-director and his wife a silver soup tureen, and Miss Dolly Grassdorff presented to Mrs. Davey a beautiful silver slipper, both suitably inscribed, as souvenirs of the Cinderella season.

"God Save the King; or, The Two Lieutenants," an original military sketch, especially written for Mr. John D. Saunders and Miss Dora de Winton, is to be produced very shortly, and would have been done almost immediately but for the fact that parts of the MSS. mysteriously disappeared from Mr. and Mrs. Saunders's dressing-room on the 3rd inst., together with a pass-book, copy books, and private domestic notes. This will necessarily cause a few days' delay in preparation. Details as to plot and effects have been sent to influential managers, and we trust that Mr. and Mrs. Saunders may quickly trace the missing property.

Mr. Fred Fredericks's brilliant Stratford pantomime Aladdin finishes to-night with flying colours, and thus snaps its fingers at superstition. For in addition to being the thirteenth pantomime at the Borough Theatre, there are thirteen principals, the part of one of the comedians who has made a striking success is contained in thirteen pages, the chief topical duet is the thirteenth item, and in this, as if to complete the coincidence, the hired vehicle used happens to bear the number thirteen.

A special matinée was given at the Theatre Royal, Glasgow, on Tuesday in aid of the local Jewish charities. The principals in the pantomimes at the Royal, Grand, and Princess's all gave their services, and, in addition, a contingent, including Messrs. Will Evans, Phil Ray, Misses Ethel Erkskine, Jane Eyre, and Florence Warde, specially travelled from Edinburgh. Miss Ethel Haydon and the principals from the Havana company were also included in the lengthy programme.

The pantomime season is on the wane. Dick Whittington at the Coronet, Cinderella at the Fulham, The House that Jack Built at the Marlborough, Aladdin at Stratford, and The Babes in the Wood at the King's, Hammersmith, will give their last performances to-night. Among the "survivors" are Red Riding Hood at the Kennington and Babes in the Wood at the Elephant and Castle, the run of the latter being expected to last some weeks longer.

For the Duchess of Rutland's matinée, organised by Lady Constance Hatch, in aid of the Royal Ear Hospital at the Queen's Theatre on Thursday, Feb. 18, a number of leading artists have promised their services, included in the long list being Miss Evelyn Millard, Miss Mary Moore, Miss Ruth Vincent, Miss Margaret Cooper, Miss Marie Tempest, Mr. Lewis Waller, Mr. Walter Passmore, and Mr. George Graves. Lady Alington will appear in the Screen scene from The School for Scandal, with Mr. William Farren, Mr. Gerald Laurence, and Mr. Henry Ainley, and the Hon. Mrs. Edward Stonor will make her first appearance on the stage in The Impertinence of the Creature with Mr. A. E. Matthews. A souvenir of the occasion, consisting of a handsome book, to which prominent artists and writers have contributed, is being prepared.

A most enjoyable function was the seventh annual pantomime supper of the King's Theatre, Hammersmith, which took place on Monday night at the local Constitutional Hall. Over 100 guests were present, and with Mr. George Mozart as chairman, and Mr. Norman Walters, the acting-manager of the theatre, for vice-chairman, the proceedings passed off very satisfactorily. The toasts were commendably brief and productive of much hilarity. Afterwards dancing was indulged in, and it was well on to Tuesday morning before the gathering broke up. Among the ladies and gentlemen also present were Mr. Alexander Leighton, Miss Winnie Browne, Miss Olive West, Mr. J. A. Watts, Mr. A. Bradshaw, and Mr. F. S. Jenninga, manager of the Lyric, Hammersmith. Mr. J. B. Mulholland was unavoidably absent.

Mr. Felix Pitt's present contract with Mr. Andrew Melville expires at Easter, thus ending a fourth successive year with him, and he has just received another contract from that gentleman for the autumn season. Mr. Pitt's many friends will rejoice to learn that his little girl, Winnie Pitt, has successfully passed her College of Preceptors' Examination, gaining three prizes, and making the tenth out of eleven to score for the High School, Twickenham.

Mr. Clive Currie will revive The Ticket-of-Leave Man at the West London Theatre on Monday, with himself as Hawkshaw and Miss Muriel Dole as May Edwards, supported by a strong cast.

Mr. Herbert Blount, secretary of the Actors' Association, is to be married on the 22nd inst. to Miss Rita Everard, who is at present playing in the pantomime at the Prince of Wales's Theatre, Birmingham.

At the annual meeting of the proprietors of the Theatre Royal, Dublin, on the 27th ult. Mr. D. Telford, chairman of the company, who presided, in moving the adoption of the directors' report and statement of accounts, said it was his pleasant duty to announce that the profits for the year 1908 had substantially exceeded those of any previous year since the theatre was opened eleven years ago. After payment of the usual dividend, at the rate of 6 per cent. per annum, their reserve funds and undisturbed profits would amount to over £18,000, partially invested in Consols and in the company's own Debentures, and partially in the Winter Gardens. Within the past few months they had erected and opened the new Winter Gardens adjoining the Theatre Royal, and had entered into a contract to purchase the Gaiety Theatre, of which they would take possession on May 1 next. He added that the Gaiety would be devoted very largely to the lighter form of entertainment.

Mr. F. Mouillot, the managing-director, in seconding the resolution, expressed himself highly pleased at the continued prosperity of the company. He gave a series of important bookings, including many leading London actors, which he had secured, and announced for the Hippodrome season a list of foremost variety stars. Some of the attractions he had mentioned would be presented at the Theatre Royal and others at the Gaiety. They had decided to run one theatre or the other as a Hippodrome all the year round, except during the Christmas season, when they would produce pantomime at one theatre and opera at the other, as in past years. The retiring director and auditors were re-elected.

In the Court of Chancery on Tuesday an interim receiver of the Crystal Palace Company was appointed. The application was made on behalf of Sir Douglas Fox (acting for the First Debenture holders), and counsel said he also represented other members of the Fox family, who held the Second and Third Debentures. Sir Douglas Fox, it was stated, had a sort of hereditary interest in the Crystal Palace, his father having been one of the engineers who constructed it. Counsel asked for the appointment of Mr. Keen, a chartered accountant and a director of the company.

On behalf of the company, it was said that in view of the very important financial interests involved, the directors hoped to be able to formulate a scheme of reorganisation unless pourparlers now going on for the Palace to be taken over for the use of the public were effective, in which case the debenture stock holders would be paid in full. His lordship appointed Mr. Keen interim receiver until yesterday, when, on application by the counsel, the appointment was extended for a week, the motions to come up again.

Dresses of exquisite design are displayed in The Chief of Staff at the Lyric. In the first act Miss Evelyn D'Alroy appears in a lovely gown of soft white muslin over white satin, with a broad border hand-painted with pink roses in their natural colours. Over this she wears an overdress of pale blue tulle, opening in front in the tunic style, and edged all round with a hem of pale blue silk. The sleeves are of transparent blue, and a huge pink rose worn at the waist completes this charming summer costume.

The evening gown worn by Miss D'Alroy in the second act on the Loggia is composed of very soft satin charmeuse, in a very delicate shade of yellow. The skirt, with its long sweeping train, is but slightly high-waisted, and opens at one side over an underskirt of the same material veiled with net embroidered with silver sequins. The bodice is composed of swathed satin arranged over the shoulders in the style of bretelles, with a deep-pointed chemisette back and front of embroidered net. This is also used to compose the short, full sleeves which are finished with heavy silver ornaments.

Miss Auriol Lee wears in the first act a Princess robe of fine white muslin, richly ornamented down the front with bands of lace insertion. Her costume in the second act shows to perfection the beauty of the new shawl type of drapery for tall and graceful women. The shawl, which is fine black crêpe de chine, with a heavy black fringe, is swathed over the dress so that it completely compasses the bodice, droops slightly over one arm, and forms the whole train of the skirt. Beneath the drooping fringe in front appears the skirt itself of black charmeuse, heavily embroidered with gold, and the short sleeves of the gown, one of which is virtually veiled by the falling fringe of the shawl, are also made of the same rich material. A wide fillet of gold net, which Miss Lee wore in her dark hair, gave a beautiful finish to her toilette.

Although only thirty-one years of age, M. Henri Bernstein, the French dramatist, whose latest play, Samson was presented by Mr. Arthur Bourchier at the Garrick on Wednesday, has had eleven plays produced in Paris, eight of them successes. M. Bernstein speaks English fluently, with only the slightest foreign accent.

The Board of Trinity College of Music, London, announce the awards of sixty-two local exhibitions at centres through the British Empire. These exhibitions have been awarded on the results of the examinations held in 1908, and provide for the further education of the winners for twelve months in the subjects in which they have already been successfully examined. The exhibitions represent a disbursement by the College of over four hundred pounds.

"The Green-Room Book; or, Who's Who on the Stage," for 1909, will make its appearance early this month. It is still increasing in bulk, and will include some 900 pages of letterpress. The biographical section of the work alone approaches 550 pages, and embraces nearly 2,000 biographies, all of which have been brought up to date. An addition of some 300 names, including the leading dramatists and artists of the Continental stages, has been made. The numerous appendices include reviews of the drama in London and New York, contributed respectively by Mr. Sidney Dark and Mr. Stephen Fiske, the veteran American critic. The volume will also include a synopsis of playbills and a full list of productions in London, the provinces, New York, Paris, and Berlin, the Dramatic Directory, seating plans, and dimensions of all the London theatres, and an interesting contribution to theatrical data, covering a period of 350 years, compiled by the Editor, Mr. John Parker.

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

Irving's Alleged Indistinctness.

A WRITER in the Pall Mall Gazette has objected, for reasons which he gives, to the suggestion that the late Henry Irving's occasional, almost complete, indistinctness of utterance was due to an overtaxed voice. "That may, I think," says Mr. Pollock in the Evening Standard, "be ruled out on the grounds adduced by this writer, to whose instances I may add one more, that never was Irving more fatigued in voice, mind, and body than in Dante, and never was he more clear and distinct in articulation. I think myself that the indistinctness may have been due indirectly to what was directly and assuredly the cause of the long pauses between words, sometimes even between syllables, that were counted among his 'eccentricities.' Years ago, after he had become his own manager, he told me during an intimate supper-party of three that in his early youth he had stammered terribly, and had been cured of this affliction by being made to pause carefully before every utterance.

"Obviously this was the reason of the 'Macready pauses,' and I think very likely it had a good deal to do with the indistinctness. Then, the writer in the Edinburgh speaks for a particular and too ingenious purpose of Irving's want of music in his voice. Hardly can he have heard Irving's diction at its best; and surely he cannot have heard the great actor employ a small but distinctly musical singing voice when, as Mephistopheles, he delivered a mere scrap of a serenade in perfect time, tune, and taste. As for the passages that rang music in Hamlet, Becket, and many another part, who shall number them? Again, the Edinburgh writer tells us of a 'complete absence of native peculiarity' in Garrick; whereas, if anything is certain about Garrick it is that he was chock-full of native peculiarity and of mannerisms. Other matters I would like to contest with 'blunts' should I meet the writer. With the pen's point I leave them alone, for his is 'an honest method,' and as such not to be flouted."

"An Englishman's Home."

"MAJOR DU MAURIER'S play," writes Mr. Austin Harrison in the Mail, "has achieved what the critical hammer and the theatrical anvil of Mr. Bernard Shaw, and all his sparks and fire and all those of his satellites, and all power of criticism have not hitherto succeeded in accomplishing during all these years—namely, to tear away the mask which has so long palsied our stage, the mask of unreality and stage-puppet convention. At last we have a melodrama of real people. At last we have a play pointing and enforcing a great lesson. At last we have our stage used as an informative, an educative, an ennobling platform, a thing of reality, a power which is really a power. Why so many of our plays fail is because the characters are drawn as puppets rather than as people. Major du Maurier has cleaned and reformed our stage. He has swept away the tarraddidle of convention and the fee-faw-fum of jejune, false melodramatics. What even the Boer war failed to drive home An Englishman's Home may yet accomplish. That is a notable, a dramatic achievement. Now we need one or two more such revolutionary Beaumarchais to restore our stage to its own again."

Only a Mistake.

SIR CHARLES SANTLEY, in his "Reminiscences," which have just been published by Sir Isaac Pitman and Son, Ltd., says:—"A good funny story, of which I was the hero, appeared some years ago in a provincial comic paper. Two young fellows were on the road to their places of business; a short distance in front of them walked an individual, solacing himself with some florid vocal passages. One of the two said to his companion, 'I'll bet you a sovereign that I kick that fellow in front of us, and he won't retaliate.' 'You'd better be careful,' said the other, 'or you'll get yourself into trouble.' 'Not a bit of it,' said the first; 'not the slightest danger! Will you take the bet?' 'Very well, I will,' said the other, 'but mind, I'm not going to help you out of the mess if he shows fight.' 'Oh, he won't do that,' said number one, and, starting off at a rapid pace, overtook the vocalist, on whom he bestowed a sounding kick. The victim turned furiously upon his assailant, prepared to administer condign punishment; the aggressor started back, as though intensely surprised. 'God bless me!' said he, 'I have made a dreadful mistake, I beg your pardon, I mistook you for my friend Santley; I am really very sorry.' 'Don't mention it,' replied the victim, taking off his hat and making a graceful bow; 'but pray be more careful another time.'"

Pachmann in America.

"Returning from Philadelphia to New York, after one of my concerts, I met Pachmann on board the ferry-boat, crossing the Hudson River; we had the following dialogue:—'Ah! my dear Santley, how do you do?' 'Very well, my dear Pachmann, and how are you?' 'Oh, vat a horrible country!' 'Hush! the people about will hear you, and may retaliate!' 'I don't care, it is horrible; nossing to eat, nossing to drink, except very dear vine. I cannot sleep, I get no rest; oh, it is horrible!' 'Well, have patience, you are going to leave it soon.' 'Thank God! I suffer with my liver, oh! I cannot tell you, awful! Ah! you remember ven I vas in London I vas nice pink and vite, and now I am green; oh, it is horrible; I never come no more!'"

Macready and the Dagger.

"ALFRED MELLON told me an anecdote of Macready, apropos of his irritability when engaged in a performance. He was playing Macbeth one night at the Theatre Royal, Liverpool, during a starring engagement. When the bell rang for the second act, the call-boy, who was an Irish lad, gifted with the ready wit of his countrymen, entered the great actor's room to tell him the curtain was about to rise, and placed on the table the dagger used in the first scene. Macready called out in a gruff voice as the boy was disappearing, 'What is that, sir?' 'That's the dagger, sir,' the boy replied. 'Take it away, sir, and bring me another,' said Macready. 'Very sorry,' said the boy, 'but we have no other.' 'Take it away!' shouted the actor, 'I must have a better.' 'But we haven't got a better, sir,' replied the young joker. 'That's a very good dagger, sir; it's the one Mr. Kean used, and—with a snigger—he wasn't a bad actor, sir!'"

National Theatres and Defence.

MR. WILLIAM POEL, in his lecture at the London Institution on Thursday, on "Shakespeare and a National Theatre," gave as an illustration of how the value of a play could be destroyed by concessions, The Englishman's Home, which had been written in order to make young men good citizens by becoming good soldiers. That was a controversial subject, and the author should have been careful to show all sides of the argument. That he had not done. He had based the whole play on an event that might be an impossible incident, for a raid of the kind described in the play was altogether contrary to the usages of warfare. A most serious blemish was the omission of the conscientious objector, who would say that a man could defend his home in two ways—by his fists and by his brains—and insisted that Governments should settle their differences by other methods than brute force.

"THE CHIEF OF STAFF."

Play, in Four Acts, by Ronald MacDonald, produced at the Lyric Theatre, on Tuesday, Feb. 2.

General Sebastian de Solatierra — MR. WILLIAM HAVILAND
Colonel Stephen Cavendish — MR. LEWIS WALLER
Major Dennis O'Driscoll — MR. A. E. GEORGE
Guillermo Herrero — MR. SHIEL BARRY
Sergeant Baltazar — MR. CRONIN WILSON
Pedro Costanza — MR. S. J. WARMINGTON
Jaime — MR. REGINALD DANE
Marcos — MR. CATON WOODVILLE
Frasquito — MR. GEORGE COURTNEY
A Despatch Rider — MR. PATRICK DIGAN
Engracia de Solatierra — MISS AURIOL LEE
Iduna de Solatierra — MISS EVELYN D'ALROY
Lola — MISS MADGE TITHERADGE

The Chief of Staff is an excellent example of the drama of incident, excitement, and interest, containing many ingenious and novel inventions, and with a sentimental interest running parallel to the sensational. It is partly a comedy of the affections, and partly a thrilling melodrama, and, as a whole, it is genuinely effective. And not least of the attractions of the play is the author's choice of a suitable background and surroundings. The South American Republics have the great advantage of giving a free hand to the romancer, as so few of his hearers can say for certain whether he is romancing or not. Anthony Hope has cynically burlesqued the petty but pugnacious politics of one of these States in a clever novel; and Mr. Ronald MacDonald has shown the dramatic, not to say melodramatic, possibilities of these Commonwealths with their eruptive patriotism, their murderous expediency, and their feverish combativeness. It is much easier to believe in "alarums and excursions" when they take place in countries which are practically uninvestigated. And Mr. MacDonald has not failed to note the odd contrast between the native character and the imported Englishman, between the wild and beautiful tropical scenery and the majesty of Nature unspoilt, and the modernity of the telephone and the tramcar. All this adds interest to the play, especially as it has the advantage of being more than usually well acted, thanks to Mr. Waller's excellent judgment in the selection of artists.

The scene is laid in an inland Republican State of South America, the President of which, General Sebastian de Solatierra, has for right-hand man and trusted comrade an English adventurer called Stephen Cavendish. Cavendish has been wounded in a recent engagement, and the President's wife, in nursing him, has fallen in love with her patient. Cavendish never lets women "count for anything"; but the Signora Engracia makes love to him so warmly that he does not entirely repel her advances. The situation is becoming dangerous when the President's step-daughter Iduna interposes to save the Signora, to whom she is deeply attached, from ruin. She has an interview with Cavendish, in which she tells him frankly that she detests her cold-blooded, merciless character, and will do all she can to prevent the affair with Signora Engracia from going any further. Her opportunity for interference soon comes. The General sees his wife and Cavendish together, and starts with loaded revolver to defend his honour; but when he surprises the Colonel with a veiled lady in his arms, it turns out to be Iduna, who has taken this means of saving her step-mother's life. "After what you have seen, General," says Cavendish, "I have only to ask you for the hand of your daughter!"

In the second act there is much plot and counter-plot. The villains of the piece are Guillermo Herrero, a repulsive anarchist, who is secretly in love with Iduna; Pedro Costanza, a rascal whose life the too-generous General has spared; and Lola, a native girl of very fertile invention, who, with Herrero's help, concocts a most complicated scheme. The General leaves the Presidencia to suppress a revolt outside the city, and the villains having cut one of the telephones, and drawn the cartridges from Cavendish's revolver, come upon him with Iduna. The Colonel, however, has discovered that his weapon has been unloaded, and has hidden another in the sling in which he sustains his recently-injured arm. The ruffian's cover him with their weapons, disarm him as they think, and order him to sign an order to release the rebel prisoners from the gaol. He pretends to consent, and when they drop their revolvers, draws his reserve "gun" and shoots them down one after the other. Herrero, dying, confides to Iduna the details of a plot by which Cavendish is to be decoyed to a log cabin on the "Condor's Ridge," to which Engracia, her escort drugged, will be conveyed, the General then being informed that his wife is unfaithful to him, and induced to start for the spot and shoot the despoiler. In order to substantiate the statement, the artful Lola has secured two of Engracia's letters, and placed an affectionate epistle from her to her husband, beginning "my darling," in the envelope directed to Cavendish.

The last act takes place at the hut in the hills. Cavendish arrives, realises the situation, and prepares for the worst. Iduna, who has, by this time, fallen in love with Cavendish, follows, and is placed in a side apartment with Engracia. The general makes his appearance as expected, and endeavours to force a duel upon the Colonel, who at last, by circumstantial evidence, manages to convince her friend of the tricks that have been played. Iduna confesses her love for Cavendish, Costanza is executed, and Engracia, who has returned heart and soul to her marital allegiance, is entirely reconciled to her husband.

The rôle of Colonel Stephen Cavendish suits Mr. Lewis Waller exactly, and he plays it in his very best style. He looks the part admirably, and his sharp, clear, resolute delivery is very appropriate, the admirable inflexion of his love pleading being, however, equally effective. Mr. A. E. George is capital as the hearty, straightforward Major Dennis O'Driscoll, handling the remonstrances of the subordinate in the first act with great tact and judgment. Mr. Shiel Barry's Guillermo Herrero is a graphic piece of character acting, the pale, servile, treacherous rascal being depicted in the most picturesque and striking style. Mr. Cronin Wilson is bluff and soldierly as Sergeant Baltazar; and Mr. S. J. Warmington gives a bold, broad, and vigorous rendering of the rôle of Pedro Costanza. Miss Auriol Lee's pale dark beauty and feminine method are well suited to the embodiment of the fickle and feeble Engracia de Solatierra, and she makes the alterations of affection in the General's spouse as probable as possible, and her deviation from the path of virtue as childlike and as pardonable. Miss Evelyn D'Alroy's success as Iduna de Solatierra is complete, and she merits warm praise for the intelligence and tact with which she comprehends and treats the character. The gradual growth of love in the breast of the earnest and upright maiden is sketched with great skill and delicacy, and the nuances of the dialogue are excellently understood and revealed. Miss D'Alroy, with her tall figure and spiritual grace is exactly the actress for the part, and she sustains it with thorough credit. Miss Madge Titheradge, who plays Lola, is occasionally too impulsive to be entirely distinct, a fact which may be excused by the anxiety of a first-night performance. Her rendering is vivid, animated, energetic, and intense, and makes a marked impression by its spirit and strength. Minor personages have conscientious representatives in Messrs. Reginald Dane, Caton Woodville, George Courtney, and Patrick Digan. Mr. McCleery's clever stage pictures take one away to the Tropics entirely, the mountain scenes being very beautifully painted.

"SAMSON."

Play in Four Acts, from the French of Henry Bernstein, produced at the Garrick Theatre on Wednesday, Feb. 3.

Jacques Brachard — MR. BOURCHIER
Jerôme de Govain — MR. CHARLES BRYANT
Marquis d'Andeline — MR. ARTHUR WHITBY
Maximilien — MR. KENNETH DOUGLAS
Flack — MR. LEON QUARTERMAINE
Marcel de Fontenay — MR. BERTRAM FORSYTH
Jean — MR. WILLIAM BURCHILL
Josef — MR. CHARLES VERNON
Zambo — MR. ALFRED BRISTOWE
Waiters — MR. DOUGLAS IMBERT, MR. NEWTON DUNNE
Anne-Marie Brachard — MISS VIOLET VANBRUGH
Marquise d'Andeline — MISS MARIE ILLINGTON
Elise Vernette — MISS EDYTH LATIMER
Suzanne Delgarde — MISS MARGARET VIVIAN
Clotilde — MISS PAMELA GAYTHORNE

The success of the English version of Mr Henry Bernstein's Samson at the Garrick Theatre on Wednesday was fully and confidently expected. The main idea of the piece is so strong that it would have prevailed even with less excellent treatment, literary and dramatic, than that given to it by the anonymous translator and by Mr. Arthur Bourchier and his company. There can be little doubt that Samson is destined to fill the Garrick Theatre for many months to come.

The hero, Jacques Brachard, is an immensely rich Paris financier, who began life in a Marseilles slum, and by wit, perseverance, and lucky speculations has made himself one of the monarchs of the Bourse. He has fallen in love with Anne-Marie Brachard, the daughter of the Marquis and Marquise d'Andeline, and has been allowed to marry her on the clear understanding that she does not love him and never can. Brachard's connection with the family has caused the friends of the Andelines to give them the cold shoulder, but has led to the enrichment of the family by his advice as to their speculations. Brachard has also made the fortune of a scamp of good family named Jerôme le Govain, who, when in reduced circumstances, was engaged to a wealthy widow, Elise Vernette, whom he deserted when he became rich, though he had borrowed largely from her in his poverty. Having got rid of her brutally, Le Govain is making love to Anne-Marie, who repels his attacks feebly, and eventually assents to his proposal that, while Brachard is absent for a couple of days in London, she shall come with him to a supper-party at the Café de Paris. Elise, who has frequented such gatherings for the sake of being near Le Govain, with whom she is still infatuated, and who is under deep obligations to Brachard, who has helped her when she was in trouble, gives the financier a hint of what is going to take place, and advises him, while letting it be thought that he has gone to England, to remain in Paris and knock at his wife's bedroom door at midnight.

The next act takes place at the Brachards' house, where the Marquis and Marquise, summoned by a watchful maid-servant, have hurried to learn that Brachard, getting no reply to his knocking, has broken down the door of his wife's bedroom. Brachard enters; and soon after Anne-Marie returns from her supper party. After dismissing the parents, the financier has an explanation with his wife, and, after angry resistance on her part, extracts from her the name of the man who took her to the Café, and an account of her adventures there. It appears that the behaviour of the party was so outrageous that Anne-Marie fled from the place in horror. Brachard locks his wife in her room, and then telephones to his man of business to meet him early on the following morning for extensive operations on the Bourse.

The scene of the third act—the strong one of the play—is laid in a room at the Hotel Ritz, Paris. Here Brachard has a serious conversation with his agent Flack, who is reluctant to carry out Brachard's instructions, but is sternly ordered to do so by the financier, who has determined to ruin de Govain by causing Egyptian copper shares, in which the treacherous scoundrel has invested all his money, to go down to a low level. Flack represents that, in order to accomplish this it will be necessary to jeopardise Brachard's whole fortune; but the agent is told to go on selling Egyptians to the bitter end. Having made his enemy's downfall certain, Brachard asks him to breakfast, and having told him what his punishment is to be, prevents him from leaving the room to interfere with the manœuvres on the Bourse. Le Govain, furious, tries to stab Brachard with a sword stick; but the ex-dock-hand is too strong for him, and deprives him of his weapon, contemptuously refusing to give the practised duellist "satisfaction." When the panic is assured, and the paper-boys are crying the news of it in the streets, Brachard releases his prisoner, and has a grotesque paroxysm of triumph.

In the last act Brachard is ruined, and has been requested by the Minister to leave Paris. Anne-Marie's parents want her to obtain a divorce; but she refuses to desert her husband now that he is in trouble, and the play ends with every prospect of his winning his wife's love.

Mr. Bourchier gave a very powerful performance as Jacques Brachard. The sturdy stature and plain exterior of the self-made man were graphically depicted; and the vigour and vitality of the embodiment were admirable. Mr. Bourchier made his great effect, of course, in the scene of the third act, when Brachard's muscular strength was well shown by the actor, whose fine physique stood him in good stead there. Mr. Charles Bryant did justice to the cruel and faithless character of Jerôme Le Govain, making love in the first act with fervency, and expressing the bitter resentment of the detected rascal with keen intensity in the grand scene of the third. Mr. Arthur Whitby as the Marquis d'Andeline contributed a quaint and reposeful study of utter vacuity, and was very well made up. Mr. Kenneth Douglas gave a bold and British version of the rôle of the jaunty youth Maximilien; and Mr. Leon Quartermaine put realistic earnestness and sincerity into his rendering of the honest and sagacious Flack. Mr. Bertram Fortsyth supplied a smooth and easy representation of Marcel de Fontenay; Mr. William Burchill and Mr. Charles Vernon were neat and efficient as Jean and Joseph, and Mr. Alfred Bristowe spoke his lines well as the negro Zambo. Mr. Douglas Imbert and Mr. Newton Dunne were excellent as the waiters. As Anne-Marie Brachard Miss Violet Vanbrugh played with all the necessary fire and spirit in the scenes with Brachard, and the angry opposition of the wife and her helplessness in the struggle with the stronger nature were shown with pure and practised art. In the second act—the only one in which the representative of Anne-Marie has much opportunity—Miss Vanbrugh acted with admirable skill, tact, and energy; and throughout she realised the aristocratic and self-willed woman effectively, her touches of sentiment in the last act having much charm and delicacy. That practised artist, Miss Marie Illington, as the Marquise d'Andeline, added another to her well filled gallery of conventional overbearing, "stylish" wives; and a performance meriting marked notice and warm praise was Miss Edyth Latimer's Elise Vernette. Miss Latimer expressed hopeless passion with skill and power, and delivered a long and unpleasant description of a Parisian orgie with clear distinctness and excellent inflection. Miss Margaret Vivian was satisfactory as Suzanne Delgarde; and Miss Pamela Gaythorne played the artful and officious maid Clotilde very smartly and crisply.

The piece was mounted and dressed with all the liberality and care to which Mr. Bourchier has accustomed us at the Garrick, and its reception was heartily enthusiastic.

"THE EASIEST WAY."

Drama, in Four Acts, by Eugene Walter, produced at the Stuyvesant Theatre, New York, Jan. 19.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

The author of this play has certainly "arrived." A year ago he was practically unknown. A month later he was acclaimed as the author of one of the most successful plays of the season, namely, Paid in Full, which ran for many months in New York, and was also produced in London. And now the critics all agree that he has turned out a dramatic masterpiece. The Easiest Way is a forceful and vivid representation of a certain phase of life in the American metropolis, and the success it has scored is nothing short of sensational. In telling his story the author of this play is direct, logical, and consistent. Neither in the dialogue nor the situations does he gloss over the truth, and the heroine, a lady of easy virtue who tries to be good and makes a sad mess of it, is not "happily married." Her life story was evidently suggested by the adventures of a young person who was very much in the public eye a few months ago, and the "moral lesson" that all plays dealing with such a subject must perforce contain may in this instance be summed up in Murger's words, "Ce n'est point gai tous les jours la Bohême." The first act has a situation to which exception must be taken. But as the Americans are more direct and unreserved than the rest of us it is just possible that in this part of the world the situation might be handled in the manner described.

Laura Murdock has been living under the protection of Willard Brockton, a Wall-street broker. She has been in the "show business," while he has backed plays in which his favourites were allowed to "star." Laura is twenty-five and a widow, her husband having committed suicide. During a summer engagement in Denver she has met John Madison, a newspaper reporter, and they have fallen in love with each other. He is a much younger man than Brockton, who is forty-six. Madison knows all about Laura, but he has been a profligate himself, and is disposed to be tolerant, his idea being that their marriage will work a complete reformation in both of them. Brockton crosses the continent to Denver, intending to escort the girl back to New York, where he has provided a luxurious home for her. He means to form a theatrical company in which she is to hold first place if she continues to live with him. But Laura bluntly informs him that during her stay in Denver she has met a "real man," who has promised to marry her. Even as she speaks, she is expecting him to call on her. Now Brockton is a cynical man of the world, who makes no pretence of virtue, but believes in "honour among men" and chivalrous consideration for all women, although he never takes them seriously. What Laura tells him he receives quite calmly, and leaves it to her to make her choice. Madison calls, and the matter is discussed in a business-like way. Thus the opening scene becomes a sort of contest between two men for a woman who has coolly asked her protector to efface himself whilst she finds happiness with a new lover, and although the characters of the two men are cleverly drawn the situation strikes one as being decidedly unnatural and the impression it creates is far from agreeable. When the two men are left alone together the hot-tempered Madison expresses his that there is almost a duel; but the older man that there is almost a shooting; but the older man controls himself and compels his rival to listen while he places his intimate knowledge of the girl's character at the disposal of her new lover. The girl is fearfully extravagant the latter is told, and the possession of her affections will cost him a lot of money. The young man replies that he means to acquire the necessary funds, although at the moment he has nothing better in view than his present position at a moderate salary. Then the two men make an extraordinary agreement. Laura is to return to New York alone and support herself by acting, while Madison pursues his calling in Colorado until he is in a position to marry. Whilst she is in New York, if she should ever return to Brockton he will compel her to write to Madison informing him of the fact.

Laura returns to New York, and in the second act she is living in a cheap theatrical boarding-house. She has failed to obtain an engagement, has had to pawn her jewels, and is about to be turned out for not paying her rent. Nothing is omitted that will enforce the contrast between her present surroundings and those to which she had been accustomed. Mr. David Belasco staged this play, and once again his master hand has put in the little realistic touches that count for so much and compel the admiration of the close observer. The daily letter from the lover whose portrait hangs over her bed is the one thing that sustains the girl in her struggle for decency and genuine affection. He knows nothing of her plight, for she has written him that she is prospering in her profession. The seriousness of the situation is not unrelieved by passages of humour, thanks to the entrance of Jim Weston, an "advance agent," who lives in the same house and is also out of employment. He visits the "second floor back," and compares notes with Laura, telling how his wife wanted to return to the stage to do her old acrobatic act, but had grown too fat, and how his chances of employment had been spoiled by the managers engaging college men. One manager had actually asked him what he knew of the Greek drama. "I told him," says Weston, "that I didn't know the Greeks had a theatre in New York."

Then Laura is visited by one of her old friends, Miss Elfie St. Clair, who has prospered because she is not too particular. Elfie is an "actress," but she admits that she has not worked for a year, and she tells the distracted Laura that she is a fool to go on living for a man whose letters contain no money. This outspoken lady is being taken care of by a well-to-do man about town named Jerry, and, as she puts it, "If Jerry's cheque wasn't in the mail every Saturday night you can bet there'd be a new lock on the door on Sunday morning." When she advises Laura to communicate with Brockton it comes out that he has sent her and is waiting in his motor-car below. It is also made clear that with his influence withdrawn it will be practically impossible for Laura to secure an engagement. Angry at first, she shows Miss St. Clair the door and tells her not to return, and the lady is going out in a huff when Laura weakens and tells her friend that Brockton may come up. He is ready to take her back, and the temptation is too great to be resisted. She chooses the easiest way. Brockton comes in, tells her how he has missed her, and that "everything will be the same as before." He lays some bank-notes on the table and plans for Laura to go to a first-class hotel. Then he tells her that he must keep his promise to Madison, and much against her will she writes the letter that he dictates, bidding her lover farewell, and telling him that she has returned to Brockton. That is the hardest thing of all for the girl to do, but the letter is not sent, for when Brockton leaves she burns it.

Laura Murdock's apartments in an expensive hotel are the scene of the third act. It is the morning after a debauch. Brockton is surly, and Laura is sick of the sight of him. In the morning paper he comes across an item of news that startles him. John Madison has made a fortune in the gold mines and is on his way to New York. A few moments later Laura receives a telegram, the contents of which she tries to conceal from Brockton, but she inquires about the trains from the West and is so anxious for him to go out that he finally accuses her of lying and forces the telegram from her. Madison is coming to New York to marry her, which means, of course, that he has never been informed of her infidelity. A quarrel occurs, but the girl pleads so pitifully for one chance of happiness that Brockton consents to go before the Westerner arrives, on her promising to tell him everything. In comes Elfie St. Clair, however, with the philosophy of life she has acquired in the "Tenderloin." The men lie to us, says Elfie, and the only thing to do is to lie to them. Tell Madison nothing. Hurry out to the minister's and get married, then everything will be all right. A man will listen to anything about his girl, but he will believe nothing about his wife. That's Elfie's argument, and it prevails. It is the easiest way.

Madison arrives, full of enthusiasm and love, and there is a moving scene of tenderness between the lovers. Laura has indeed prospered in her profession to be able to live in such luxurious surroundings That is what he thinks, and she does not undeceive him. She can get ready to leave the hotel in an hour, so Madison goes forth to arrange for the marriage whilst she packs up. In the midst of her preparations Brockton returns and accuses her of not having told Madison. This time Laura is hysterical in her fury, and pouring out her hatred the while, tries to force Brockton from the room. He seems determined to stay where he is, but she is so persistent that the futility of "fussing with a woman" finally prompts him to retire.

In the fourth act the trunks are packed and Laura is ready to go, but Madison has not returned. She is in a terrible state of anxiety. Happiness is within her reach; will it be snatched away? At last her lover comes, but his face is clouded. He has heard certain things about Laura and Brockton, and he asks if there is any truth in them. Of course not, she tells him, she has not seen Brockton, and he feels so sure of her that he believes her readily. A moment later, as thy are about to depart, a key is turned in the door and in walks Brockton. Without a word or sign of recognition he walks across the room with the air of a man entering his own home, takes off his coat, and sits down. A tense situation this—a swift plunge from happiness to despair, and all that it means to Laura is reflected in her face. As for Madison, he stands as one paralysed, but in a trice he whips out his revolver and points it at Brockton. "Don't shoot!" cries Laura, and he drops the weapon. He advises Brockton to clear out, but before he goes the latter tells how the girl came to him of her own free will. How he kept his promise to inform Madison, and how she tricked both of them by not posting the letter. Laura makes a despairing effort to win the forgiveness of the man who was willing to marry her but a few moments ago, but he turns a deaf ear, and in forceful words sums up the character of the unfortunate girl. Then she produces a pistol and threatens to kill herself, but Madison derides her by calling the negro servant to witness the shooting, and when the pistol slips from her grasp, as he knew it would, he retires. Laura collapses for a moment, but quickly revives, and then the courtesan is herself again. Flinging the pistol into a drawer, she poses before the mirror and orders the servant to bring her best hat and gown. She is off to a popular restaurant "to make a hit." The rôle of Laura Murdock is splendidly acted by Miss Frances Starr. Mr. Joseph Kilgour admirably realises the character of Willard Brockton, and Mr. Edward H. Robins plays John Madison in a sincere and manly fashion. Miss Laura Nelson Hall is excellent as Elfie St. Clair, and Miss Emma Dunn and Mr. William Sampson are good in minor rôles.

"DOLLY'S" 100th PERFORMANCE.

Two excellent motives for a visit to the Haymarket were provided on Saturday evening by the return of Miss Ethel Irving to the cast of Dolly Reforming Herself and by the presentation of a souvenir to mark the hundredth night of Mr. Henry Arthur Jones's successful play. The occasion added fresh laurels to the credit of the young actress who has been so heartily welcomed to the very foremost rank of the profession and for the distinguished dramatist who has given so many artistic creations to the stage. The process of Dolly's reformation and of her efforts to regulate the conduct of her friends and relations was carried out to the delight of a large audience, whose enthusiasm was displayed in the repeated recalls of the principals. Miss Ethel Irving was the object of a cordial demonstration on her appearance, and her acting showed no sign of the indisposition which had for a few days kept her out of the cast. Dolly's distress at her frequent lapses into debt was as prettily acute as ever, and her determination not to allow her cousin to pass the bounds of propriety was equally keen. The debt-discussing scene, an inspiration on the part of the author and a triumph for the players, held the house again in thrall. Mr. Robert Loraine repeated his fine embodiment of the adoring young husband and his share in the stormy scene of settlement of accounts was sustained with the artistic skill of which he has given many evidences. The rich sense of humour possessed by Mr. C. M. Lowne was invaluable in the rôle of Dolly's father, to whose credit some of the merriest moments of the performance are due, and by a clever variety of expression the witty lines of the part were rendered still more effective. Miss Margaret Halstan again attained to superbly regal heights as that "queen of tragedy," Mrs. Sturgess, whose influence in promoting the laughter of the evening was invaluable. The scientific Sturgess once more proved highly diverting at the hands of Mr. E. Lyall Swete, who completely loses his identity in the rôle of the eccentric professor; and Mr. Charles R. Maude made his customary success as the amorous young officer. Mr. Herbert Bunston carried out in its entirety the description of the author, and was as bright, brisk, buoyant, and breezy a parson as need be. A well appreciated piece of low comedy was submitted by Mr. Gilbert Porteous as the butler, who is so far influenced by the New Year's Day sermon as to forego his betting propensities. Miss Ada Webster completed the cast as the pretty and refined Peters.

The souvenir took the very acceptable shape of a copy of Mr. Jones's play, admirably printed, and containing numerous photographs of scenes in the piece, which was presented to each member of the audience.

The Odder the Better.

SIR F. BRIDGE, in the lecture hall of the City of London School on Thursday evening, referring to the career of Paganini, said that master's reputation had been somewhat dimmed by the number of remarkable violinists we had heard of late years. There seemed no end to the marvellous performers on that beautiful instrument. It was astonishing what perfection was attained on the violin by children of tender years, and that was certainly a consolation for the fearful infliction on amiable relatives by budding violinists, according to the usually received descriptions. These little geniuses did not persecute their families like the fiddle players of the ordinary type. "Oddity in music goes a long way," added the Westminster Abbey organist; "the more odd you look the better you are thought to be."

PRINCESS LOUISE DUCHESS OF ARGYLL witnessed An Englishman's Home at Wyndham's Theatre on Thursday night.

THE Queen, with the Hon. Lady Hardinge, the Hon. Violet Vivian, the Hon. Sylvia Edwardes, Earl Howe, and Sir Charles Frederick in attendance, was present at the performance of Rhinegold at the Royal Opera, Covent Garden, on Thursday night.

INVENTIONS.

[The particulars furnished below of recent applications for patents are taken from the official records. Correspondence is invited with our readers on all matters relating to new ideas and inventions, with a view to affording them advice and assistance. Letters should be addressed to the Manager, Inventions Department, "The Era," 5, Tavistock-street, Strand, London.]

Inventors and others who have no business representative are invited to communicate with the Manager of the Inventions Dept. as above.

APPLICATIONS.

1,364.—Arthur Harold Taylor, of Peterborough. Spiral switchback railway.

1,413.—James Hamilton Beattie, of London. Improved hat, coat, and umbrella retaining device, suitable for use in cloakrooms and the like.

1,520.—Tadeus Siewicz and Johann Gensler, of London. Improved device for automatically unchaining horses, cattle, or the like.

1,534.—Charles Vincent Fournier, of London. Improvements in and relating to swings.

1,584.—George Townsend, Reginald Townsend, and Charles Ralph Townsend, of Birmingham. Improvements in roller skates.

1,609.—Llewelyn Morgan, of London. Improvements in apparatus for physical exercise.

1,692.—Frederick William Dart-Kelly, of London. Method of and means for operating roller blinds, theatre curtains, or the like.

1,713.—Alexander Crutchley Beech and William Henry Halstead, of London. Improvements in or relating to roundabouts of the Hiram Maxim flying machine type.

COMPLETE SPECIFICATIONS ACCEPTED.

1,129.—Walker and Walker. Roundabouts.

17,915.—Mills. Spring friction, non-slipping adjustment for violin and violoncello pegs.

ABRIDGMENTS OF SPECIFICATIONS.

20,522.—Violins and like musical instruments. Wertheim, S. L., and Hern, M. B., both of London.

In a mute for use with violins, violas, violoncellos, and like instruments, the legs which come in contact with the bridge are formed of wood, and some pairs of legs may be made shorter than others. As shown in Fig. 4, the middle pair of legs (h) is made shorter than the other pairs (a, b), so that the mute can be fixed in such a manner that either two or three pairs grip the bridge of the instrument. The wooden legs (a, b) are connected to metal plates (c) by riveting, the plates having side lugs (d), through which a pivot pin (e) is passed, and also manipulating lugs (f). In the form shown coiled springs (g) around the pivot pin force the wooden legs together; but in modifications the springs are arranged between the manipulating lugs (f), a blade-spring being used in some cases. Other material than metal and wood may be used for making the mute.

20,569.—Coin-freed shooting apparatus. Gruner, W., of Cologne a/Rhine.

A revolver (2) (Fig. 2) is automatically loaded by a chain (11) passing over a wheel (3) and bearing scoops (7). Each scoop carries a ball, and at its highest point is deflected by a pin (16) to shoot the ball into a funnel (14), from which it is led to the revolver. The deflected scoops are returned to their original position by springs (10), and the shot-balls are led to a position where they can be picked up by the scoops. The chain (11) is actuated by a handle released by coin-freed mechanism. As shown in Fig. 5, the shot-balls may be led directly to the revolver, which has two chambers (1, 5). The chamber (5) receives the balls, and is connected to the other chamber by a coin passing down the shoot (6), and entering a slot in each chamber.

20,586.—Targets. Sutherland, I., of Victoria, Australia.

A cinematograph throws pictures on a screen placed in front of a target (20) or on the target itself, the film being momentarily stopped to indicate the value of the shot by electric contact breaking apparatus and a friction-clutch disconnecting device. The back of the target is provided with electric contacts, consisting of overbalanced levers bearing against insulated contact-pieces (53). The impact of a bullet breaks an electric circuit through an electro magnet (16), and releases two levers (11, 33). The lever (11) operates a spring friction-clutch to throw the loose driving-pulley (4) of the cinematograph out of gear, instantaneous stoppage being effected by a lug (22) on an arm (21) attached to the pulley-spindle (5), engaging a spring (23) on the lever (11). Electric contact is also made between spring pieces (25, 26) by the lever (11), causing a lamp in front of the target to light. The lever (33), acting through levers (32, 30), causes an opaque disc (29) to fall between the lantern and the target, the motion of the disc being regulated by means of a pin and slotted link, and a piston and cylinder dash-pot arrangement (39). If a screen is used in front of the target, the bullet-hole in the screen is made visible by the momentary dimming of the lantern by the disc, and the lighting of powerful electric lamps between the target and screen, the impact of the bullet on the target effecting all the above operations. Two screens, connected by an endless rope, may be used, one screen being behind the mantlet for patching or repairs while the other is in use. A glass tank, containing glycerine or the like, may be interposed between the lantern and film.

Tobogganing; railways for recreation. Circular or elliptical cars slide down an inclined track and rotate as they go against various obstructions.

The track may end in a miniature canal, in which the cars float. The cars, shown in section (Fig. 1), are mounted on castors (e), and may be provided with rubber buffers (d) or friction-wheels. The track (Fig. 5) is inclined, and may be plain or undulating. Obstructions (k, *k*1) are placed so as to cause the car to rotate as it slides down the track. A chain (g) serves to return the cars. In a modification the track (i) (Fig. 8) ends in a canal (l), in which the water may be made to flow in one direction.

FINANCIAL.

MOSS' EMPIRES.

The directors have resolved, out of the profits of the year to Dec. 31 last, to write off the entire expenses, including discount and underwriting commission, in connection with the recent issue of debentures, amounting to £16,264, to carry the sum of £6,825 to a reserve fund for the redemption of the six per cent. debentures, and to recommend payment of a dividend on the ordinary shares for the half-year to December 31 last at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum, absorbing £28,000, and leaving a balance of £11,288 to be carried forward.

ALHAMBRA.

The directors, in their report for the year ended Dec. 31 last, state that, after providing for debenture interest, directors' fees, and commission, the net profit for the year amounts to £7,531, and with £6,213, the amount brought forward, the net balance to the credit of revenue is £13,744. The directors recommend that an amount of £3,000 be appropriated to the alterations, additions, and improvements account, that a dividend of 10 per cent., free of income-tax, for the year, being £6,000, be now paid, and that the balance, £4,744, be carried forward to the next account.

Mr. Editor.—Sir,—In your notice for the Palace, Aberdeen, in last Saturday's Era, you mentioned the Marvellous Steens. It should have been yours truly, Mahatma, assisted by Prof. C. N. Steen. P.S.—The marvellous Steens no longer exist.

Sacco, the fasting man, who is the talk of the Potteries, is daily visited by vast crowds at the King Edward Hall, Hanley, where he is appearing under the management of Messrs. Moore and Kennedy, of the King's Theatre.

In our account of the Holloway Empire Sunday concert, given in aid of the workless of Islington, the credit of reciting "Unemployed—and Why?" was given to Mr. Leo Dryden. It was Mr. Leo Stormont who declaimed the piece.

Mr. Editor.—Sir,—In your obituary notice last week of the late Joe Lawrence, the writer's memory has played him false in one respect. Mr. Lawrence never had anything to do with the Empire (Moss and Thornton), Leeds. What he did was to take over, in partnership with Professor Morritt, the old Mechanics' Music Hall, Grimston-street, Hull, afterwards renamed the Empire, by the late Leotard Bosco. The place (originally Enderby Jackson's waxworks) was always a financial frost till Bosco tackled it with success.—Theo. Arthur.

LONDON VARIETY THEATRES.

HOLBORN EMPIRE.

There is an exceedingly entertaining duologue to be heard at the Holborn Empire this week bearing the title of The Wire and the Liar, played, or rather spoken, by Hunt and Thomas. It is one of the best written and most cleverly conceived little trifles that we have had the pleasure of listening to for a long time. The story of it is told through the means of the telephone, and the scene shows sections of two houses which are some distance from each other, the communication being conducted by "wire." A young lady is first seen at a telephone, and we learn that she is trying to "get on" the telephone with the gentleman to whom she is engaged to be married. We learn too, from her own sweet lips, that her fiancé has given up all his old wild ways, and has become a teetotaler and non-smoker, all through his love for her. While she is waiting for the telephone connection to be made, she sings in quite agreeable style a few verses, "Your love is new." A few minutes later we see the male lover entering his room or office, and he complains that he has had a rather bad night, and is still suffering from the effects of the previous evening's debauch, which, apparently, he intends to resume, judging by the free manner in which he makes use of a bottle of whisky. Entering into telephonic conversation with his sweetheart, the latter, hearing the sounds made by the drawing of a soda water syphon, asks him whether he is sneezing, and he leads her to believe that he is suffering from a cold. He continues sipping the whisky, and it becomes obvious to the auricular susceptibilities of the lady at the other end that he is drinking something. She takes the view that it must be his medicine, and he is pleased to confirm that view. She expresses the hope that he is taking his medicine regularly, and that he will empty the bottle, and he promises her that he will carry out her injunction most faithfully! She inquires as to who is the doctor who has prescribed for him, and he replies that he is a gentleman named Dewar, who has a great reputation in Scotland. Finally she gets suspicious as she hears the frequent drawing of a cork, and her feminine shrewdness assists her in arriving at a correct conclusion as to the nature of the medicine and the "malady" he is suffering from. Angrily she tells him that he has been deceiving her, and that he must consider the engagement at an end. Hunt and Thomas cleverly enact the little piece, which has been hugely enjoyed by the audience.

As to the rest of the programme, one wonders how it can be got through in the short space of time limited by the exigencies of the two-houses a night system. Mr. Arthur Roberts and his company appear in the highly diverting farcical sketch, Till Sunday, in which Mr. Roberts assumes in his well-known quaint manner the three different characters of an English and German detective, and a nurse. He is ably assisted by the other members of the cast, namely, Miss Ruby Celeste, Miss May Hallatt, and Messrs. William Rokeby, Harry J. Worth, and Harry Huddleston. Johnson and Brett, the talented comedy duo, submit a laughable little entertainment, and Mr. Arthur Woodville wins golden opinions as a light comedian. The Four Garricks present a delightful "society" act, while Mr. Harry Nelson's efforts in his particular comedy line are much appreciated. Les Valencias, a couple of young ladies who look most attractive in scarlet frocks, give a smart dancing performance, and the Five Saxonias are responsible for a most agreeable musical turn of the "speciality" order. Miss Helen Charles, "the girl at the piano," interests her hearers with her vocal imitations of a whistling coster and of two little girls singing to her own pianoforte accompaniment. Miss Alice Hollander, the Australian contralto, renders in cultured fashion a song which savours of the Scriptures, and Miss Leoni Dixon distinguishes herself as a comedienne. Mr. Ben Albert has a diverting vocal number on the subject of "work," which he renders with much expression, and Chanti, the "modern Proteus," is seen and admired in a cleverly-arranged quick-change act. The Boisset Troupe present their screamingly funny comedy acrobatic act, The Evening Party, and the Three Laurels cause merriment with their very lively and well-known act. The Bioscope shows a laughable film entitled The Two Pigtails.

THE PALACE, TOTTENHAM.

Variety in abundance, and of an interesting character, is to be found in the present programme at this well-known establishment, and business is well up to its usual standard. Cissie Lawson (Mrs. John Lawson) occupies the position of honour in the bill, and is assisted by a very capable company in The Woman and the Apple. Sensational were but a mild epithet to employ in connection with this original "pocket drama," which has been received with loud and prolonged plaudits throughout the week. Kit Keen's song and dance is given in a quaint and humorous vein, and makes a decided hit. Miss Maud Wilton is another big success, being very entertaining in her imitation of a negress singing "Will the congregation please stand up?"

Miss Georgette Thierry's company, which includes Mr. Bernard Lieli, an accomplished actor, give an intensely dramatic sketch, entitled A Daughter of the Revolution. Miss Thierry plays the part of Marcelle with much feeling and grace; and Mr. Lieli makes a romantic and artistic Maurice Senlis, being very ably assisted in minor parts by Messrs. A. Thompson and T. Avery. The sketch is smartly and forcibly played by all concerned, and met with much success. Cliff Diamond, a juvenile comedian, makes one of the hits of the bill. His turn is very bright and entertaining, and includes a couple of songs, "Oh! those girls" and "Carolina Brown," supplemented by a smartly-executed dance. The original Lancashire singing collier, Percy Farrimond, provides a selection from Faust and "Dreamland." His voice is rich and well modulated, and he renders his selections in cultivated style.

Wyndham and Wyatt contribute a most laughable sketch, The Professor and His Pupil, and are accorded a hearty welcome. Lambert and Glover are also very amusing in their farcical duologue, My Birthday. That excellent low-comedy artist, May Moore Duprez, appears as a jolly Dutch girl, and sends the house into convulsions by her eccentric and original manner. Ruffell's Bioscope, with some excellent films, concludes a capital entertainment; and a word of praise is due to the work done by the admirable orchestra under the direction of Mr. W. Burgess, their execution of the opening overture, "Across the Desert," being well worth listening to. Mr. Nuttall is in front of the house, and is "the right man in the right place."

THE EMPRESS.

Crowded houses are nightly testifying their appreciation of the delectable fare provided at this cosy South London hall this week. A prominent place in the evening's entertainment is being taken by the great Little Tich, the appearance of whose number is the signal for a storm of applause. He is fairly surpassing himself this week, and is giving three of his latest successes, "Julius Cæsar," "The Keeper at the Zoo," and "Police Sergeant Rose," in the fun of which the audience fairly revels. His quaint and original dancing is also most amusing, and on concluding he has many times to appear before the curtain. Miss Eileen Douglas, a dainty and refined comedienne, has a voice of penetrating quality, and reaches the hearts of the audience in her songs, "Someone rat-tat-tatting at the door" and "The Musical Comedy Girl," sung with captivating charm; Miss Douglas also dances expertly, and the house is very loth to let her go. Kisbey, the Call Boy, meets with a cordial reception, his patter being both original and clever, although at times somewhat daring. His song, "Much obliged to you," is funny.

Miss Phœbe Mercer and company present an amusing little duologue entitled Mistakes Will Happen. The scene is the office of a matrimonial agent, where a lady has been led to believe that she can purchase a dog. The matrimonial agent thinks she wants a husband, and the cross-talk which ensues causes great laughter. One of the best items of the bill is that presented by Viviana and company. The scene is the interior of a toy shop where a number of mechanical dolls are made to dance. The shop assistant is a versatile comedian, and is the cause of roars of laughter. The Oaks Duo supply a very acceptable number, the lady's singing and dancing being of the best. They also introduce some very clever patter. Adey Spencer proves herself a capable dancer, and receives cordial approval for her work. Herbert Rule is singing a couple of absurdities, "Welcoming him in" and "It's easy to pick up the chorus." The choruses literally consist of nothing, but in the hands of this capable comedian they prove very effective. In the latter number he is assisted by a friend in one of the boxes, who enters into a long and comical discussion with the comedian, to the great amusement of the audience. Rosie Archer, at the piano, is giving some capital impersonations of several of our leading comediennes, including Marie Lloyd, Vesta Victoria, Kate Carney, and Victoria Monks, all of whom she hits off capitally. Those popular Jewish comedians Jordan and Harvey are scoring another success here, the chorus of their song "S-O-L-O-M-O-N" being taken up with much fervour. Their patter is the cause of many a hearty laugh. Arthur Woodville sings and dances in a manner that calls for nothing but praise; and others in the bill are Mamie Fenton, a Scottish comedienne, Anderson and Dallas, and Newcome and Delph's company in The Footstep, of which a notice appears elsewhere. A pleasant evening is brought to a conclusion with some excellent pictures on the Bioscope. Mr. Francis L. Winchcombe, Mr. Nelson Francis's able lieutenant, does everything possible at the front of the house for the comfort of patrons.

THE MIDDLESEX.

There are some good vocalism as well as amusing incidents in the original scena, entitled Singing 'em to Death, presented by Messrs. King and Shepperd at the Middlesex this week. The scene opens in a forest glade, and two disreputable characters, carrying guns, come before our gaze. It is not long before we are made aware as to the nature of their vocation, which is poaching. And now we learn they are going to try a new method of killing rabbits and hares, and that is by singing to them! They sing snatches of popular songs, such as "Excelsior" and "Kathleen Mavourneen," which, with others, form a medley on which is bestowed the general title of "In the Woods." While the merry poachers are busily engaged upon their vocal efforts, rabbits and hares come from all parts and fall dead at their feet—so effective is the death-dealing influence of their singing! The little scena is quite clever of its kind, and laughable, and it has the further merit of bringing to our notice a couple of artists who possess voices which surely would be heard to advantage in more serious work.

Jessie Ward, comedienne and dancer, with a delightful item in "Sweetheart May," sings with expression and tunefulness, and Henshall and Foster prove a most entertaining couple in the scena Cabby Knows His Fare. Hunter and Williams appear in their speciality act, the coster and donah portion of which is particularly well done, and not less so the Apache dance performed by the two people. Miss Mabel Clovelly distinguishes herself by her enchanting interpretation of a couple of descriptive songs, and Miss Elizabeth Watkins and her company appear with success in the dramatic episode A Magdalen Married, to which we referred in terms of commendation last week. Miss Watkins has able support from Messrs. F. Beaumont and D. Lewin Mannering.

Hind and Bromley have a diverting comedy act, the absurd garb and exaggerated burlesque work of the male partner causing roars of laughter. Topical allusions are made, including a very happy one to a case now occupying the attention of the Scottish Divorce Courts, and a song, "I still love you," is effectively sung. Mr. Reg. Bolton, "the editor's imp," makes for merriment with his funny references to newspaper advertisements; Mr. Fred Herbert is once more welcomed as a favourite comedian; and Martinett and Wallace, the coloured musical entertainers, submit a most attractive little programme. Miss Dot Hardy has a humorous ditty in "When father gets his old-age pension," in which she predicts lively doings, and her second number, in which she appears as a somewhat flighty slavey, also excites the risible faculties of her audience.

Mr. A. C. Lilly and company are presenting the now familiar and still very popular military episode Drummed Out, and Mr. Rex Fox furnishes an exceedingly interesting ventriloquial and musical act on the high wire. Deans and Wilton, the talented comedy acrobats, perform an astonishing variety of difficult turns and somersaults, and their mock wrestling is hugely relished. The Soho Trio submit a refined musical and dancing act, the songs "Nelly dear" and "If I plant a tiny seed of love in the garden of your heart," as well as clog-dances, securing unbounded approval. The Soho Trio should certainly be seen and heard at all the prominent theatres of variety. Mr. Wilson Hallett, whose reputation as a comedian and mimic is now so firmly established, has won high favour with his latest impersonation, "A Husband of a Suffragette," and the New Bioscope is showing Jack Johnson, the world's champion boxer, training for his great fight with Burns.

ISLINGTON HIPPODROME.

A very extensively advertised attraction at this hall for the week has been Miss Violet Gordon-Charlesworth, whose name has figured so prominently in the Press lately. The lady was expected to make her appearance in a sketch entitled A Clever Woman and to sing two songs. These anticipations, however, were not realised. On the evening of our visit, when Miss Gordon-Charlesworth's number went up her manager came forward and made a speech dealing with some reports concerning the lady which are claimed to be inaccurate. He further stated that, owing to the lady's loss of voice, anything in the shape of a performance by her was out of the question. Miss Gordon-Charlesworth then advanced to the footlights, bearing every sign of being greatly agitated, and, in response to an invitation by her manager, thanked the audience for their reception of herself, the curtain then falling.

The remainder of the bill follows more usual lines The Two Clares do well in a song-scena, and were well received; the Donnas Trio perform some very smart work on a trapeze, and gain a well-deserved "curtain" at the end; Reg Bolton in a comedy scena proves himself to be an entertaining comedian; Gillin submits a good ventriloquial act that is well received; the Four Blackbirds, coloured comedy artists, are very good both in song and dance.

Alec C. Lauder and company in a sketch, The Christening, make a hit. It is very humorous and very faithful in its delineation of a typical Scotch episode. Mr. Lauder himself is capital, and he receives excellent support from Miss Alvina Mining and Mr. George Adair. Miss Addie Dorina in an original protean sketch, Dr. Spot's Patients, proves herself to be a very clever quick-change artist and, in addition, a very capable character impersonator, her acting obtaining a very cordial reception; the Sisters Desmond in two items made themselves popular; and the Bioscope was good. The orchestra gave great assistance during the evening under the direction of Mr. J. J. Starck.

MASONS AT WORK.

The January meeting of the members of the Lodge of Asaph, held at Freemasons' Hall, Great Queen-street, on Monday last, was, in a measure, saddened by the memories of the passing away of one of the old Past Masters, Mr. Edward Swanborough, who, as long ago as 1879, occupied the exalted position of Master of the Lodge. The brethren appeared in full Masonic mourning, and during one of the most important ceremonies a fitting tribute was paid to the memory of the departed chief.

Mr. Ernest H. Paterson, the reigning Master, admitted Messrs. F. Lyndhurst Schmitz and Phil Howden into the order, and then, having to journey to Leamington to take up his professional duties, handed over his authority to Mr. Herbert Chenery, who, in a masterly manner, did what was necessary to complete the ceremonies connected with the admission of Messrs. Frank Desprez and Chas. A. Doran to the full privileges of Masonry, the latter gentleman being sent from the Green Room Lodge for that purpose by Mr. E. H. Bull, whose good fortune it is to preside over that community.

Messrs. J. E. Donegan (Chelsea Lodge) and Leslie Carter (also of the Green Room Lodge) were candidates to be admitted to the benefits of one of the stages in their novitiation; but both were unable to attend owing to professional engagements.

Mr. Tom Clare gave notice of motion, seconded by Mr. Chris Hilton, concerning the altering of the day of meeting, and the question will be fully discussed at the next convocation.

Besides the gentlemen already named there were present Past Masters J. D. Beveridge, L.R., J. E. Hambleton, W. J. Holloway, C. B. Powell, James W. Mathews, Algernon Syms, Herbert Leonard, Edward W. Whitmore, and Messrs. A. B. Tapping, Rev. W. P. Besley, W. Edwyn Holloway, Wesley Woolhouse, F. W. Crellin, Ed. Humphrey, Chas. J. Taylor, C. H. Phillips, Geo. Henderson, Oscar Grimaldi, Edmund Woolhouse, H. Burrell Saunders, and Jesse Birch; and also Messrs. Wolfe Lyon and Hambleton, and Dr. Sam Lloyd, of Deal, as visitors. Messrs. E. H. Bull, Frank Lister, and Ernest R. Abbott sent letters of apology for non-attendance. Mr. John Gilbert acted as Tyler. The Grand Lodge of England was represented by Messrs. James Weaver, P.G.Std.B., and Charles Cruikshanks, P.A.G.Std.B.

The business of the day being ended, the brethren and their guests journeyed to Simpson's, in the Strand, and there, after indulging in the good cheer of the establishment, adjourned to the sanctum of the "Knights of the Round Table" and revelled in the delights of speech-making on every conceivable point connected, more or less, with Freemasonry, while the proceedings were further enlivened by some excellent original contributions in the way of songs by Messrs. Tom Clare and Charles J. Taylor, whose efforts were highly appreciated.

Mr. A. B. Tapping, the Senior Warden of the Lodge, having announced that he had "made up his mind to sail away" to Australia in order to take up a professional engagement, the brethren present accorded him a hearty send-off, and expressed a wish for his prosperity abroad and safe return to his native country.

THE PRIMROSES.

To the Editor of The Era.

Sir,—Would you kindly permit me to appeal through The Era columns to my ever good-hearted brother and sister artists to subscribe just as much as they can afford towards the most distressing case of the Primroses, otherwise known as the Sisters Worth? The details of the recent lawsuit will be fresh in the minds of your readers. Edith Worth will probably never be able to walk again—certainly she will never be able to perform on the stage—while her sister is recovering from an attack of brain fever. To be given £700 one day, and have it taken away a couple of days later—think what that means! Boys and girls, when I have asked you before to aid me in helping those in need and in suffering, right royally have you rallied round and handed over cheques, gold, and silver. I feel justified in asking you now for a case so thoroughly deserving of your sympathy and your subscriptions. I herewith enclose a donation. Thanking you in anticipation,

Yours faithfully,
JOE ELVIN.

[Subscriptions sent to Mr. F. H. Pedgrift, Hon. Treasurer, at The Era Offices, will be duly acknowledged in these columns.]

Mr. Frank Macnaghten and his directors, recognising the hardship of the above case, have very kindly promised to head the appeal with a generous donation of £100. They also promise a benefit at the Surrey, which should yield another hundred pounds. It is intended that the amount collected for the appeal shall be doled out weekly for the sole benefit of Edith Worth.

The wisdom of sketch artists having a répertoire always ready was forcibly exemplified last week at the Hippodrome, Putney. The fog having prevented Miss Victoria Monks from appearing on Wednesday and Thursday, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Finden, who were also on the bill, came to the rescue, and played two different sketches in each house. They were warmly thanked by the management and vociferously applauded by the audience.

This week the capital contributions of Miss Mabel Thorne, an old favourite at the Hippodrome, Stoke-on-Trent, are very highly appreciated; the Three Cunards conclude with a well-executed sand dance; Bayne and Hope present, in a finished manner, the well-known episode An Emperor's Divorce; the Hodginis appear in a novel aerial act; and the vocal efforts of the Brothers Carney are much liked. Also to be noted are Olive Gill and her Farmyard, Fred Errick, the Ring-Ling Trio, and the Bioscope.

ROYAL ACADEMY OF MUSIC.

On Monday afternoon the students of the Royal Academy of Music gave an organ and vocal recital of considerable interest. Mr. C. H. Stuart Duncan played Introduction and Passacaglia in D minor (organ), Max Reger, with much ability. Two effective songs of Mr. Garnet Wolseley Cox, "Night" and "Morning sun," greatly pleased the audience, and were admirably sung by Miss Lily Fairney; while Miss Kathleen Robinson's well-executed organ solos of the slow movement from Sir E. Elgar's "Sonata in G" and Bach's "Fugue in D" received hearty applause. Two flute solos, "Romance" and Edward German's characteristic and difficult "Saltarello" were beautifully played by Miss Edith Penville; and Mr. Barry Coney's rich and sonorous voice was heard to advantage in Sullivan's song, "Thou'rt passing hence, my brother," the organ accompaniment being skilfully played by Mr. H. G. Dutton. In the not particularly interesting Introduction and Variations for Organ (Battison Haynes) Mr. Arthur B. Wilkinson, a Sir John Goss scholar, displayed talent, and the first movement from Spohr's "Duet in D minor," for two violins, was capitally played by Miss Irene Richardson Le Brun and Miss Beatrix Cashman. Dvorák's "Bagatellen," for organ and strings, was cleverly performed by Mr. Henry Gilleece Dutton (organ), Miss Elsa Owen (first violin), Mr. Raymond Jeremy (second violin), and Mr. John Mundy (violoncello). Miss Olive Turner was a little faulty in her enunciation in her singing of Goring Thomas's "Voices of spring," "A love lullaby," and "A song of sunshine"; and Miss Nellie Fulcher was better in her execution than intonation in the first movement from Vieuxtemps' violin "Concerto in D minor." The recital concluded with Guilmant's "Grand Chœur" (organ), played by Miss Florence Rolfe-Fisher.

MISS MILLIE WOLFGANG deputised on the 28th ult. at Putney Hippodrome, for Miss Victoria Monks, with great success.

PRESENTATION.—At the termination of the run of The Fair One with the Golden Locks pantomime, at the Grand Theatre, Hull, last Saturday, Mr. Wallace Stranack, the stage-manager, was presented by the members of the company with an elegant gold fob and seal; also, by Mr. Eric Green, of Green and Wood, with a handsome walking-stick. Both presents were highly appreciated by the recipient.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

[We cannot undertake to answer the inquiries of correspondents by post. In all letters names and addresses must be given as a guarantee of good faith. Initials only or pseudonyms will be used in the replies if so desired.]

H. A. B.—The Coliseum was opened by Mr. Oswald Stoll on Dec. 24, 1904.

R. GIBBS.—We know nothing of the deceased gentleman but what appears in the obituary column of our issue of Dec. 19 last, which will be forwarded from the office on application to the Publisher, 5, Tavistock-street, Strand, W.C., with a remittance of six stamps.

T. C.—Write to the managers of the several halls named.

H. CLEMENT.—Your question involves too much search. Why not write to Mr. Harvey himself enclosing stamped envelope? His address can be found on our front page.

H. M. LEWIS (Willesden). — There are several courses open to you. You might write and give full particulars to such managers as Miss Lena Ashwell or Mr. George Alexander, in order to negotiate a purchase; you could take your piece to a music hall manager for production as a music hall sketch—try Mr. Joseph Wilson, Tivoli, Strand; you could organise a small company yourself and negotiate engagements through a music hall agent; or you could apply to French's, Southampton-street, Strand, or Mrs. Douglas Cox's Agency, Tavistock-street, Strand, who with more expert knowledge might advise you as to the placing of the piece.

BIRTHS, MARRIAGES, & DEATHS.

THE King and Queen visited the Comedy Theatre on Wednesday night and witnessed the performance of Penelope.

THE "La Scala" Operatic Company is to appear on Monday at the Hippodrome, Mrs. Arthur Rousbey taking the leading part. Mrs. Rousbey, who with her late husband toured the English provinces with great success, has won favour in some of the most important rôles.

PATRONS of the Alhambra Theatre, Stourbridge, are having a return visit from Mr. Edmund Tearle and company. The Three Musketeers was staged for Monday night, and the representation given was of a high standard. The most prominent artist was Mr. Tearle, and his acting all through won high favour. As Miladi Miss Kate Clinton received a warm reception; and the dignified impersonation by Miss Mary Campbell of Anne of Austria impressed the audience. Another character that is worthy of mention is the Cardinal by Mr. Russel Davis.

AT the Theatre Royal, Tyldesley, Mr. Fred C. Somerfield's company in Geoffrey Langdon's Wife forms this week's attraction. Mr. Paul Beckett gives a powerful and convincing portrayal of Felix Beverley; Mr. Edward E. Ashby sustains the character of Jack Stirling with much ability; Geoffrey Langdon is suitably acted by Mr. Wilson Summers; Mr. Cyril Grier makes a good impression as Colonel Mills; and Mr. Arthur Lowry is an efficient Arthur Bellairs; Miss Mary Lovett plays the part of Mary with appropriate feeling; Mrs. Sands has a capable representative in Miss Kathleen Magee; Miss Katie Lever is a sprightly Nancy; and Mr. Percy Brown (Thomas) and Mr. Victor Raymond (Charles) are highly diverting.

AT the Treherbert Opera House Mr. Ronald Yorke's talented company opened on Monday last in The Old Home. Mr. Charles Franmore made an excellent Daddy Dean; Mr. Horace Denton gave a fine representation of the part of the Rev. Eric Armstrong; Mr. Roland Yorke appeared to advantage as Lord Avondale; Mr. Fred L. Connynghame was extremely humourous as Sammy Adams; Miss Gertrude Bonser was loudly applauded for her exquisite rendering of Hazel Dean; Mrs. J. W. Braithwaite was very amusing as Bridget Donoghan. For the last three nights of the week F. R. Benson's company is announced.

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 6, 1909.

AN INFLUENTIAL PLAY.

Mr. B. W. FINDON, in replying in the Morning Advertiser to our leader of last week, takes a rather pessimistic view of the influence of the drama on the public. He is evidently incredulous as to the story of GEORGE BARNWELL which we told in the article, and says that if the incident had been reported in our days we should probably have congratulated the management on the efficiency of its Press agent. He never, he says, met a person who was permanently influenced for good or evil by a play. "Immediately the strong temptation comes to man or woman," says Mr. FINDON, "it needs something more than the recollection of some emotional drama to conquer the baser impulse."

This latter statement is probably exact; but the influence of the drama is no less great for all that. What are the influences which prevent a man from doing a bad action? In the highest and most enlightened, it is the social instinct and the sense that if everyone were to act wrongly society would be impossible. If no one could be trusted not to rob and cheat, there could be no trade; if everyone was a libertine, family life would be a failure; and if murder were considered one of the fine arts, we should carry our lives in our hands and steady labour would be difficult. The sense of these truths acts indirectly on every member of a civilised community. To be a good citizen is the ideal to be cultivated, and the bad citizen is shunned, despised, and reproached. Every individual is more or less affected by the opinion of him which is held by his fellow-creatures; even the arch-egoist NAPOLEON wept when he was execrated by the populace on his way to Elba. Fraternity, as Mr. JORROCKS said of fox-hunting, is like the air we breathe; if we have it not we die.

We have no proof that even the primitive cave-dwellers were hermits; and probably the series of "Prehistoric Peeps" which appeared in Punch represents roughly the state of things in the Stone Age. But the elementary animal, the ape and tiger strain, still remains in man, and comes out strongly at times. It is quite true, as Mr. FINDON says, that when we are most tempted to murder, rape, and robbery, it is not the recollection of a moral melodrama that will save us. The only efficient "break" that can then be applied to the wheels is a general habit of feeling and thinking rightly; and perhaps a conviction that crime in the last analysis is folly.

This habit of feeling and thinking can be cultivated like any other habit; and two powerful agents of its culture are the drama and literature. The influence of these is undoubtedly great, and the drama is powerful because it affects the youngest and the most impressionable of the people. Upon those whose characters and opinions are formed, literature and the drama may have little effect. It is from sixteen to twenty-five, when the moral man is growing—with the usual accompaniment of "pains"—that the purity of the atmosphere is most important.

The drama, then, acts as an influence, and not as an immediate and particular antidote to an evil impulse. On the diet depends the health of the individual; and on the tendency of the plays seen and books read depends the individual character. But there is another important function performed by the drama—that of awakening and revealing. For this it is fitted by its actuality and by the immediate strength of its appeal. A description, however able, gives nothing like the effect of a representation. The average man has not imagination enough to build a scene upon a scaffolding of words. We read vaguely of invasion without in the least realising what war means. But when, in An Englishman's Home at Wyndham's, we hear the humming of the shells, and see the gaping wounds on the walls and ceilings of the little villa; when the blatant "bounder" falls from the table dead, with a jeer upon his lips; when a poor fellow is dimly seen dying of a ghastly shrapnel wound, and fire and slaughter are put before us with all the fidelity which modern scene-painting and stage-management can employ, the "object-lesson" is irresistible. The fact is undeniable; Major DU MAURIER'S piece has created a sensation unequalled for some time in the annals of play-production. Yet, for years, the same sermon has been preached to the English nation in vain. From the time of "The Battle of Dorking" we have had stories with a purpose describing our unpreparedness to resist invasion; but the man in the street has regarded them with indifference. The play, however, has taken hold of the public completely. We confess we are delighted by its reception at Wyndham's. People are inclined to resent any satire that is aimed at themselves; and as most of those present had neither made the smallest sacrifice in the way of military service, or had supported Lord ROBERTS'S views either by attendance at public meetings or by pressure on their parliamentary candidates—the last election turned on the question whether Chinamen or Kaffirs should be employed in some gold-mines in a distant continent—it is obvious that the author, had he appeared, might have remarked to almost each applauder De te fabula narratur. We should have expected An Englishman's Home to be "booed" off the stage, or at least received in offended silence. But the British public has swallowed its sermon sans rancune. The influence of the drama has been again most clearly and convincingly proved.

COMPLIMENTARY SUPPER TO MANAGERS.

A large company was present on Tuesday evening last at the Elephant and Castle Theatre, on the occasion of a complimentary supper given by the theatre staff and personal friends to Messrs. Charles, Dan, and Sydney Barnard. The stage had been artistically decorated, and the tables were arranged thereon. In the absence of Mr. Jack de Frece, who was to have taken the chair, Mr. Lester Collingwood was prevailed upon to preside. At the conclusion of the supper a handsome illuminated address was presented to the Messrs. Barnard by Mr. George Osborn on behalf of the staff of the theatre. Mr. Osborn asked the Messrs. Barnard to accept the address as a slight though tangible token of the united good wishes of the staff for the future prosperous career of the Elephant and Castle Theatre. Since the Messrs. Barnard had acquired the house, less than a year ago, great changes had taken place. He wished to thank those gentlemen for the kind consideration they had always shown to the staff.

Mr. Charles Barnard, in responding, said he had had a good many gifts at various times, but the one he had just received on this unique occasion would be most dear to him. He was pleased to say he had, during his short time here, been most successful, but he attributed the secret of his success to a very loyal staff.

Mr. Lester Collingwood, the popular producer of the current successful pantomime, who had journeyed from Birmingham in order to be present, in a very well-chosen speech said in his capacity of travelling manager he had never had dealings with any firm by whom he had been better received than the Messrs. Barnard. They were always willing to help him, and placed no obstruction in his way. Mr. Fred Bernado (acting-manager for Mr. Collingwood) said, in his eight weeks' connection with the Messrs. Barnard he had had the most comfortable time of his life. It was a pleasure to work with such gentlemen.

Mr. Knowles paid a very pretty compliment to the orchestra and stage staff. The stage staff were the best lot of boys he had had to deal with. A willing stage staff was of great assistance to the artist; on the other hand, an unwilling stage staff could do a good deal towards spoiling a show. As one of the artists in the pantomime, he wished also to thank the orchestra on behalf of himself and colleagues for the hard work they had put in during the present run. The orchestra, from the public point of view, was perhaps passed over as quite a secondary consideration; but he and his fellow artists recognised the fact that without a capable and willing orchestra their efforts might have met with little success. Mr. W. Stephenson (conductor) replied on behalf of the orchestra. He and his assistants thanked the artists for their good feeling expressed through Mr. Knowles. It was sufficient recompense to them to know that their efforts had been appreciated by the artists.

Messrs. Fred and Walter Melville both contributed speeches, in which they expressed their appreciation of the treatment they had received at the hands of the Messrs. Barnard in their business relations.

Mr. Collingwood proposed the health of the ladies. Miss Kitty Clinton responded on their behalf.

An excellent musical programme was provided, and a very merry party broke up with the dawn of Wednesday morning. Nearly the whole of the pantomime principals were present, and a good many friends, among whom were Miss Kitty Clinton, the Sisters Morgan, Miss Alice Maple, Messrs. Barrett and Knowles, Mr. Will Lorenzi, and Mr. Arnold Bell.

PREMATURE PLOT-TELLING.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—On the instructions of the committee of the Society of Authors, I am requested to draw your attention to a grievance under which dramatic writers and those concerned in the production of a theatrical work have suffered for some time past.

There is an increasing tendency to publish in the Press information relative to a forthcoming stage production. Some of this information is unauthorised and misleading. It can be of little or no value to the reader and is a frequent cause of annoyance and trouble to those of whom it speaks.

But the most damaging element of the evil, and that to which I am asked to invite your very serious consideration, is the premature disclosure of what is alleged to be the "plot" of a forthcoming play. This is, more often than not, a distorted version which has been obtained from irresponsible sources, and sometimes by methods much to be deprecated. It needs no argument to show that this state of things is damaging in the extreme. Not only is "the wind taken out of the sails" of an author, and the valuable criticism of the representative of the Press discounted, but the garbled material is placed before the public in such a way that the play may be practically prejudiced.

It must not, however, be supposed that an accurate disclosure would be less objectionable than a garbled one. On the contrary, such a disclosure is a breach of copyright and an invasion of the author's property. Either way, the practice of disclosing the contents of unpublished copyright matter is an indefensible one.—Yours faithfully,

G. HERBERT THRING.

A FEW days since, at Bedford, a company of eminent French actors honoured the town with their first performance in this country, playing Le Voyage de Monsieur Perrichon to a crowded house at the Bedford Grammar School.

A DRAMA SOCIETY FOR OXFORD.

A circular was issued in Oxford last November proposing the establishment of a drama society, in order to secure the performance of good modern plays at Oxford. A meeting was held on Jan. 29, at Balliol College, for the purpose of constituting the society, and electing officers. There was a large attendance. Professor GILBERT MURRAY moved, and Mr. CYRIL BAILEY, Fellow of Balliol, seconded, that the Master of University College (Dr. R. W. Macan) be elected president of the society, and the motion was carried unanimously. Dr. MACAN said he thought they might take it for granted that all those who were present were in favour of doing something to encourage the representation of sound and interesting dramas at Oxford. That was the main purpose for which their society had been formed. They wished to welcome the best dramatic poets and actors into their midst, and that society, if it went forward, might do something towards achieving that object.

Professor Murray was unanimously elected vice-president, and a committee was formed, consisting of Mr. Hadow, Fellow of Worcester College; Mr. Cyril Bailey, Professor Walter Raleigh, the President of the Oxford University Dramatic Society (Mr. J. H. M. Greenly, Trinity College), Mr. E. S. Corbett, University College; Mr. B. H. Blackwell, Mrs. Gotch, the Principal of Somerville College (Miss Penrose), and Mrs. Ball, with Mrs. H. D. Leigh as secretary.

Professor MURRAY said that as far as they could judge 460 persons had signified their intention of joining the society, and he thought that would place them in a strong financial position. They had to consider whether they would enter into relations with some particular company and if so what company. Practically at this moment there was only one effective répertoire theatre in England, and that was Miss Horniman's company. By a répertoire company he meant the opposite of a long-run company theatre. If they were going to have a répertoire theatre in certain respects they must lower their expectations. They could not get "star" actors; they would get intelligent young actors who had not made their name yet, and that was what they must look out for. The alternative to having a répertoire theatre was to get in touch with some agency or other which would try to appeal to various touring companies to bring them plays that would interest them. He had had a great deal of experience in reading plays, partly because people sent them to him and partly because he was for some years on the Reading Committee of the Stage Society; so that in the last two years he had read 250 original, or so-called original, modern plays. In that great mass of work he thought there was a good deal of intellect and interest and something of suggestive promise, but of the whole he did not think that there were twelve which he would recommend to the society with any confidence. The members of the society should keep their eyes open for good plays, whether English or foreign, when they happened to hear or read them. By that means they would have a reasonable chance of getting a good number to select from.

Mr. W. H. HADOW (Worcester) spoke hopefully of the future of the society. They were not in competition with any existing dramatic pleasures offered to them in Oxford. They did not want to keep people away from those musical comedies which delighted the eyes of all who attended them, but they believed that there was a large amount of drama which appealed to a different kind of audience and which they had only a sporadic chance of hearing. He thought that they had a better chance now of bringing that project to a successful issue than they had ever had before.

DRESSES AT THE PLAY.

The gowns in the new production of Samson at the Garrick are chiefly Empire with gorgeous embroideries. Miss Violet Vanbrugh's first frock has a tight-fitting underskirt of the palest lemon-coloured soft satin, over which comes an Empire tunic of cream net heavily embroidered at the foot with silver thread, bugles, and cut beads, and finished with a deep fringe of silver tassels. The tunic is cut up at each side and caught together by heavy "bell-rope" tassels of silver. More of the beautiful embroidery appears at the top of the tunic, above which are soft draperies of hydrangea coloured chiffon. Under each arm is a rouleau of hydrangea silk arranged in bows and loops. Over this gown is worn a beautiful cloak of purple satin trimmed with purple braid and lined with a dull shade of cerise.

Miss Vanbrugh later in the play is arrayed in a wonderful arrangement of copper and silver thread lace over an underskirt of pale pink satin. The lace, which has a border studded with amethysts, reaches just below the knees in front and curves off into a train at the back. A long scarf of white chiffon crosses the shoulders and is fastened front and back with big gold buttons set with amethysts, the long tasselled ends reaching nearly to the ground. There are a deep rounded yoke of cream tucked chiffon and tight-fitting undersleeves of chiffon. The crowning touch to this beautiful frock is given by a lovely amethyst necklace and amethyst earrings.

Miss Marie Illington wears in the first act a dinner dress of black tulle embroidered with silver and worn over silver tissue. Some lovely Venetian lace and silver and bugle embroidery cross the shoulders and are caught at each side of the bodice by diamond buttons. The only ornament worn with this dress is a rather wide neck-band of black velvet, with a diamond butterfly in front. For her second gown Miss Illington dons one of a beautiful shade of tulip pink, of the new ribbed silk, with a long cutaway coat ornamented with black buttons. The collar and cuffs are of sable, and a huge sable muff is also worn. An effective touch is given by a big bunch of faded mauve roses, which is fastened in the coat. A novel black jet hat that fits well over the head has a group of ostrich tips arranged cascade fashion all round the crown.

Miss Edyth Latimer has on a beautiful robe of rhododendron mauve satin charmeuse with a tunic of burnished gold net, bordered with pale blue and dull gold embroidery studded with amethysts. The elbow sleeves are made of folded net, caught here and there beneath tiny ornaments, and the modestie is of cream tulle threaded with mauve ribbon. A feature of the costume is the girdle, composed of bands of padded satin charmeuse ending in long plain ends with knotted terminals. Long turquoise earrings and a long chain of uncut turquoise add their note of blue to a very fine harmony of lovely shades.

Miss Latimer's dress in the third act is a robe of mouse chiffon velours, with a hint of green in it—a loose sack-like garment without shape, but of a very smart appearance. Long sheath sleeves are given to it, as well as turned-back revers of Ottoman silk and a guimpe of tucked net. The whole is trimmed with grey braid in bands and loops. A black hat of the Empire character composed of astrachan straw and velvet is worn with the redingote, trimmed with one huge stiff ostrich plume caught beneath a jet ornament, and a stole and huge muff of grey marabout complete the picture.

MR. JACK HADDON'S pantomime company, The Babes in the Wood, is at the Muncaster Theatre, Bootle. Messrs. August and September create fun as the two Robbers; Mr. Charles May plays the Baron capitally; and Miss Millie Engler makes a dashing Robin Hood; Miss Dorma Morgan a pleasing Maid Marion, and Mr. Harry Elliston is excellent as the Dame. Miss Winnie Usher is a capital Little John; and the Misses Dolly and Madge M'Calla enact the Babes sweetly.

THE DRAMA IN PARIS.

PARIS, THURSDAY, Feb. 4.—M. Romain Coolus' new comedy brought out at the Bouffes-Parisiens bears the strange title 4 fois 7—28, the explanation of which is given in the final act. Paul Lorbey and Juliette are husband and wife. Paul loves Juliette, but he worships his mother-in-law, Mme. Ciriette, who really can lay claim to no ordinary amount of admiration. The young couple, dissimilar in temperament, have frequent squabbles, which, but for Mme. Ciriette's exquisite tact, would soon degenerate into a catastrophe. One day, however, Mme. Ciriette being unfortunately absent, Paul and Juliette have a desperate quarrel, and all the mother-in-law's attempts to bring about a reconciliation prove fruitless. Juliette leaves with her mother for Cabourg, whilst her husband remains in Paris. In Cabourg Juliette, pretty and fascinating, is very much courted; and, being of a flighty disposition, she indulges in several flirtations, one of which is likely to compromise her. Paul, hearing of his wife's pranks, at once leaves for the seaside to fight the gentleman whose name he has heard mentioned in connection with his wife. Juliette is frightened, for she never expected that the affair would take such a serious turn. For all that, her pride prevents her from acknowledging to her mother that she still loves her husband, whereupon the irate Mme. Ciriette brings her giddy daughter to her senses by boxing her ears. Juliette being vanquished, Mme. Ciriette takes Paul in hand, and explains to him that, according to a great physiologist, the human body undergoes a change every seven years. "My daughter," says the lady, "being now twenty-two, has only had three transformations; and at the fourth she will be as perfect as I am now. And I may add that at her age I was just as intractable." Paul is only too happy to accept this theory, and, clasping his wife in his arms, promises to wait patiently for the final metamorphosis. The charming comedy met with an excellent reception. Mlle. Clarens was a sprightly, lovable Juliette; Mme. Leriche was shriekingly funny as the model mother-in-law; and the greatest praise must be bestowed on the remainder of the cast.

REFERRING to the above play, I may mention that "Clarens" is the pseudonym of Mlle. Dietz-Monnin, a young society woman who has just joined the profession. She is bright, clever, and will, I am sure, do very well on the stage. It, therefore, was a great pity that a certain clique among the "professionals" tried to raise a cabal against the new-comer, whom they would persist in dubbing an amateur. The public, however, did not join in the conspiracy, and awarded Mlle. Clarens a reception that must have been gratifying to that young artist.

MM. MESSAGER AND BROUSSAN, the managers of our Opéra, are still being violently attacked by a certain section of the Paris Press. There can be no doubt that these gentlemen have been going rather foolishly to work, and have spent large sums without any apparent necessity. I say "apparent" because I happen to know that at the time of their appointment pressure was brought to bear upon them from certain quarters which virtually tied their hands. The matter is of too delicate a nature to be explained here in all its details; but those who remember the time when M. Gailhard was appointed manager will not have forgotten the onslaughts to which he was subjected during the first few years of his tenure of office. And when I add that much of the dirt that is flung about emanates from people anxious to take MM. Messager and Broussan's places, you will understand that too much credence must not be placed on all that is said and written against the present luckless management. To-day a meeting will be held of the sleeping partners, i.e., the gentlemen who helped MM. Messager and Broussan to obtain the necessary capital to work the Opéra. From this meeting will depend whether the present management will be left in peace, or whether—— But, qui vivra verra!

THE Théâtre de l'Œuvre produced two new works, one of which, La Chaîne, is a "drame intime" by MM. Maurice Level and J. Monnier. The plot is as follows:—Mme. Jardy's husband has just died. She does not regret him, for she can now marry Chalandret, with whom she has a liaison, of which she thinks her husband was not aware. When, however, in Chalandret's presence she breaks the seal of the envelope that contains her husband's will, she discovers, to her dismay, that she has been disinherited. Chalandret, up to his ears in debt, and furious that old Jardy's money, on which he speculated, is lost to him, at once shows his despicable character by turning on the woman he pretended to love, and declaring that everything is now finished between them. Before Mme. Jardy has recovered from her astonishment her husband's notary enters and hands her the deceased gentleman's last will, wherein he bequeaths her his whole fortune provided she marries Chalandret. A clause is added that unless she gives notice within three days that she accepts this condition all the money will go to charitable institutions. And, to crown it all, the notary gives her a letter the husband left, with instructions to have it opened three days after his death. In that document M. Jardy informs his wife that the first will was only a bluff, and that he played that trick upon her because he foresaw that Chalandret would at once prove himself the blackguard he had always been. "And," adds the husband, "I have now forged the chain that will rivet you to this fellow, for, being penniless, you and he will marry to have the money. It is my posthumous revenge!"

THE second work produced was Perce-Neige, by Mlle. Jeanne Dortzal, founded on one of Grimm's well-known fairy tales, four harmless acts that will not set the Seine on fire, even with the mild incidental music with which M. Massenet has ornamented it.

PARIS has gone hysterical over Coquelin's death. When Pasteur, the great public benefactor, died hardly more fuss was made. And "All Paris" went to Pont-aux-Dames to the funeral because it was the proper thing to be seen there; as "All Paris" stayed at home a week ago when poor Zulma Buffar, who had once been a shining light on the operatic stage, was laid to rest in that very same Pont-aux-Dames. But those terrible creatures who constitute "All Paris" only worship the great, even when they are dead. And stones are thrown—in a figurative sense, of course—at Suzanne Desprès because, when the irrepressible reporter interviewed the leading actors and actresses about their grief at Coquelin's death, she answered: "It did not affect me in the least!" It certainly sounded very bad. But I happen to know Mme. Suzanne Desprès very well, and I also know that she is outspoken and straightforward. She and the departed actor were not on friendly terms, and Suzanne Desprès did not care to show a grief she did not feel. But whether it was wise is another question.

AND who is to play the leading part in Chantecler?

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

BERLIN, THURSDAY, Feb. 4.—The author is a Hungarian—of note, I believe, in his own country, although hitherto unknown here. The name of the translator does not transpire, but he has evidently done his work in very creditable manner, and the piece met with a most cordial reception. If, however, the plot may be taken as representative of morals in Hungary, they are in urgent need of reform. Suza Horvath is a young and pretty teacher who comes to the village to take charge of the girls' school. What she has to suffer at the hands of the rustic Don Juans is almost inconceivable—from the wealthy farmer's son, Stefan Hegedus, to the lowest rustic lout—and perhaps the worst of all are the village magistrate and the young priest—the Kaplan—who persecute the lonely girl in the most shameless manner. She repudiates all their advances in disgust, and her persecutors determine to revenge themselves upon her. They hold a conclave, and decide Suza must give up her situation and leave the village, on account of the danger to public morals caused by her presence. In a very drastic scene the poor girl is summoned before her rustic inquisitors and condemned. Suddenly her patience gives way, and the floods of indignation burst forth. Suza, in a dramatic tirade, denounces the villains who would fain have caused her downfall, and tears the written verdict in two before their faces. Only a solitary friend—a young schoolmaster—ventures to take her part, and the girl prepares to leave the neighbourhood. Now, however, Stefan comes forward, and asks her to marry him; but although she loves him she refuses on account of the opposition shown by her lover's parents. The elder Hegedus insults her by asking Suza to name her price to let his son go, and is so much impressed by the spirit she displays that he bids his son run after her and bring her back as his honoured sweetheart. Thus all ends merrily to the distant sound of wedding bells. There are so many good scenes and so much humour interspersed that the author was called repeatedly, and warmly applauded. The piece was, I am told, given repeatedly in Budapest before crowded houses last winter.

THE Lessing is giving one of its famous Ibsen cycles. Nora met with a tremendous reception, and the author's early play, Der Bund der Jugend, was scarcely less well received. Perhaps the clou of the whole was reached by the performance of Gespenster (Ghosts) on Monday night. It created a profound impression on the large audience, who followed every word spellbound. The part of Frau Alwing was given in a masterly manner by Fräulein Lehmann, and the unhappy Oswald found an excellent impersonator in Herr Bassermann. The Engstrand of Herr Reicher is well known as a perfect piece of acting, and Fräulein Wuest and Herr Sauer gave satisfactory renderings of the rôles of Regina and Pastor Manders.

HERR KAINZ continues to fill the New Schauspielhaus at every performance, and the enthusiasm of the audience is always the same, whether the great artist portrays Hamlet or Leon, the cook-boy, in Grillparzer's ever-popular comedy Weh dem der lügt.

SIR CHARLES WYNDHAM has been paying Berlin a visit, studying the Berliners and their city, and uttering good-humoured criticisms on both. The eminent actor has been much fêted, and has thoroughly enjoyed his visit.

THE Berlin première of Elektra takes place on Saturday, all tickets having long been disposed of. Talking of this opera, I must not omit to give a witticism for which Herr Heinrich Grünfeld, the Court 'cellist, is responsible. Herr Grünfeld was one of the small, select group who went over to Dresden for the production. Coming out of the Opera House, he was heard to say, with deep pathos, to a friend: "If it must be Richard, why not Wagner; and if it must be Strauss, why, oh, why not Johann?" And yet the famous composer and the 'cellist are capital friends in private life!

THE LATE J. A. LILLY.

Mr. John Arthur Lilly, who died on Thursday, Jan. 28, at 11, Westwick-gardens, West Kensington Park, at the age of fifty-five, had a chequered career. After starting in London as a reciter, he paid a visit to America, where he became associated with the late Edwin Booth, who thought so highly of the English actor that he entrusted him with important parts. After work in England Lilly tried another tour in the States, which proved disastrous. He caught cold, and a severe illness followed. At last he came to rely on alms, and stood at Piccadilly Circus, tall, picturesque, in threadbare coat, and with long hair and artistic soft hat, his calm, classic face and his complete detachment from all surroundings attracting notice. A gentleman who knew his career got up a benefit for Lilly. Before a crowded and paying audience he recited Shakespeare admirably. But a few weeks after he was standing again in Piccadilly. His poverty increased, till one who had known him in happiest days befriended him, and a humble couple offered a friendly shelter to the unfortunate actor. In December last he became so ill that he had to remain in bed, and the people of the house did all they could for the lone man. He persistently objected to a doctor, and it was only on Wednesday evening, Jan. 27, that Dr. Crowley, of Shepherd's Bush, was called in, and soon saw that the patient was in extremis, and the doctor, who was a Cambridge man, learned that Lilly had been to that University. Lilly left not a penny, and at The Era's suggestion an appeal to the Actors' Benevolent Fund was made, and £5 was granted to save the actor from a pauper's grave, so that Lilly's obsequies were decently performed in Hammersmith Cemetery. A cross of violets and lilies of the valley was laid on the coffin with the inscription:—

ARTHUR LILLY,
Actor.
Died Jan. 28, 1909.
A Tribute to a Broken Life, and a poetical tribute to the deceased.

Amongst those present at the funeral were Mr. and Mrs. Higgins, who helped the dead actor for twelve years; Mrs. Sullivan, and Mr. Edwin Drew, an old friend.

THE Prince and Princess of Wales visited Terry's Theatre on Thursday evening, and witnessed Mr. Forbes-Robertson's production of The Passing of the Third Floor Back.

AT a meeting of the shareholders of the Paris Opera House on Thursday, it was shown that out of a capital of £60,000 only £16,000 of working capital was left. It was decided that the resources should be increased. MM. Messager and Broussan will remain managers.

VARIETY GOSSIP.

Miss Vesta Tilley's forthcoming engagement in America is not, as has been stated, a lengthy tour. As a matter of fact, Miss Tilley plays only six weeks in New York, and returns direct to the Palace Theatre, where she is at present meeting with her usual great success.

Mr. Fred Farren and Miss Beatrice Collier now have the unusual opportunity of being able to witness their own performance in "La Danse des Apaches," as a picture of this dance is presented at the Empire on the Cinephone, a remarkable invention which gives a perfect combination of bioscope and gramophone.

Mr. Harry Rickards gave a special matinée performance at the Tivoli Theatre, Sydney, on December 14 last, for the purpose of providing funds for 1,000 dinners in the Town Hall, Sydney, on Christmas Day. Mr. Rickards once more appeared on the stage, and delighted the large audience by singing three songs. His old patrons had evidently not forgotten him. There was a record house.

In moving on Wednesday the adoption of the annual report of the London Coliseum, Mr. Oswald Stoll said that from the statements made at company meetings this year concerning the great depression in trade in 1908 as compared with 1907, it was clear that they had reason to be satisfied with the results so far obtained, especially as the circumstances in which they commenced business were not generally regarded as hopeful from other points of view.

The Coliseum was now more than justifying its existence, and he trusted that those who had stood by it were to be well rewarded. That nothing succeeds like success was true of many businesses, but of none more true than of such a business as theirs, so that the success disclosed by their report might be relied upon to maintain itself and produce a degree even greater.

Their financial position was a strong one, for they had a property immensely more valuable than their total capital, a prosperous business, and plenty of cash in the bank, whilst the redemption of the debentures was equivalent to the establishment of a reserve fund year by year. The report, which provides for the redemption of £2,500 debenture stock, and the writing off a portion of preliminary expenses amounting to £1,598, recommended a dividend amounting to 15 per cent. for the year. The report was adopted amid applause.

"The Queen of the Fairies," which is to be "musicked" by Mr. Edward Jones, will be given at the Coliseum, for the first time, on Monday, Feb. 15. Miss Elise Craven, the pretty little dancer in Pinkie and the Fairies at His Majesty's, will play the title-rôle in the sketch, which is from the pen of Mr. Sydney Blow, whose name as author is now continually cropping up at West-End variety houses. There will be six speaking parts.

Mr. Jack Stavordale, of the Miles-Stavordale Quintette, has sent the sum of £6 for the Music Hall Home, being part result of a concert on board ship on the homeward journey from Australia. He says there were very few passengers on board, or the result would have been greater. The Miles-Stavordale Quintette and Mr. Tod Lowen were the only variety artists on the ship, and both contributed several items.

As befitting the times, a flying bicycle on the aeroplane system will be ridden on and above the Coliseum stage next week by Mons. Romain Noisset, a Parisian inventor. The bicycle is an ordinary one of the motor type, and has affixed to it several pairs of wings. The cycle is placed on a platform provided with traps. After Noisset has mounted and started the motor, the traps are opened. In consequence, so strong a draught is caused that the cycle rises, and is held suspended in the air until the fall of the curtain. The act is the first of its kind, and has never been seen on any stage.

Mr. Alfred Butt, of the Palace Theatre, returned recently from a trip to Tunis which he found to be thoroughly enjoyable. Thence he proceeded to Biskara on the edge of the desert, witnessing many strange things in the course of his wanderings. He stayed on his way out in Paris, where he witnessed the performance of une belle Américaine, a diseuse who should make her mark at the Palace Theatre, where she is to appear before long. He will present also shortly a couple of clever Spanish dancers—Maria and Pepita Florida—who hail from Seville.

A monkey almost human was found some two years ago and trained. He was brought to London at the beginning of this week and examined by Dr. Forbes Winslow, the brain specialist. Dr. Winslow noted the manner in which the animal's big toes shot right away from the other extremities, and pronounced him a monkey, but a very fine specimen. "The finest I have seen," added the doctor. Consul, as the animal has been named, was at once "commandeered" by the management of the London Hippodrome and will appear there next week.

Miss Maud Allan during her stay at the Palace Theatre is going to interpret the famous Peer Gynt suite, and has entered upon her task very seriously. The piece which has most fascinated her in it is, as might be imagined, "Morning." There was some thought of engaging the London Symphony Orchestra to play the suite; but the directors of that corporation of star instrumentalists did not take kindly to the idea. They probably thought they would be taking the position of mere accompanists. Of course, they would be the interpreters in one sense, and Miss Allan in another. One day they may be able to realise the true artistic sympathy that exists between musical and terpsichorean interpretations of great composers' masterpieces.

"An Englishman's Home" at Wyndham's has given the cue for a patriotic outburst at the halls, and we understand that Miss Dora de Winton and her husband, Mr. John D. Saunders, who have been recently supporting a virtuoso in a musical sketch, will shortly produce, on an unusually elaborate scale, an original military sketch, especially written for them, entitled God Save the King; or, The Two Lieutenants. Patriotic items became a drug in the market during the Boer War, and at its conclusion it was thought that the less said on the halls about the glory of the British arms the better.

Miss Dora de Winton is much concerned at the mysterious disappearance of manuscript concerning important portions of the new sketch referred to above. It appears that as late as Tuesday last the note-books and memoranda now missing were in the possession of Miss Dora de Winton in her dressing-room at the Exeter Hippodrome, but that on Wednesday evening these had vanished. Whether or not the loss is due to carelessness, practical joke, or other means cannot be said. The matter is being most carefully investigated, and every means taken to find and obtain the return of the missing documents. We give a short statement of the facts in the hope of helping Miss Dora de Winton. Anyone who can throw light on the matter should communicate at once direct to Mr. W. Rackwood Cocks, solicitor, Exeter Bank Chambers, Exeter.

At the Aldershot Theatre Royal Empire and Hippodrome Mr. Clarence Saunes started a variety season on Monday with a capital company of entertainers.

The Zoo Hippodrome, Glasgow, where Mr. Bostock intends to make extensive alterations, will be closed after April 24 to allow of the work being carried out.

We regret to hear that Mr. Fred Evans, the well-known clown, now living at Granby House, 6, Lower Church-lane, St. Michael's, Bristol, is very ill with cancer in the throat.

At a meeting of the directors of the Sunderland Empire Palace, Ltd., held at the registered offices of the company, 40, Westgate-road, Newcastle-on-Tyne, on Tuesday, it was resolved to declare an interim dividend for the half-year ended Dec. 31, 1908, at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum.

The Empire Theatre, Deansgate, Bolton, which was opened in August last by Mr. Thomas Hargreaves, sen., of Rochdale, has been acquired by Mr. Walter de Frece, of the Manchester Palace Theatre of Varieties, and Mr. Will Sley, of Oxford-street, Manchester. The theatre will open under their management on Monday, the 15th.

Councillor E. H. Bostock, of the Zoo-Hippodrome, Glasgow, has now decided on the closing date of that establishment, and is announcing it for April 24. He has not finally settled the details of the new building to be erected in place of the Zoo, but in all probability a large skating-rink will be included.

The alterations that have been proceeding at the Grand, Bolton, for the past three months are fast approaching completion, and the house will be one of the finest in the kingdom. It can be converted into a vast circus in twenty-four hours, and we are given to understand that it is likely to be so converted, and at an early date.

The spacious auditorium of the beautiful Empire Theatre, Sheffield, was crowded on Saturday last, when a grand matinée took place for the benefit of the Royal Infirmary extension fund. The programme consisted of high-class selections by the splendid band, under the direction of the popular chef d'orchestre, Mr. H. Renton Gardner, and the comedy by Captain Robert Marshall, The Second in Command, cleverly acted by Captain Jeffcock and other distinguished amateurs.

The performance was under the patronage of the Lord and Lady Mayoress, the nobility of the district, the local M.P.'s, the principal dignitaries of the city, &c. The noble house presented a brilliant spectacle. London West-End prices were charged for all parts, so the proceeds should be worthy of the object.

Negotiations have been completed by Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton for the erection in the ancient city of Chester of an up-to-date Hippodrome. These popular proprietors of the Royalty Theatre have made arrangements for the purchase of a large space of ground with a capital frontage to City-road, and there will be three entrances—from this thoroughfare, Boughton and Russell-street. The promoters have also purchased the commodious empty house, No. 161, Boughton-street.

It is intended to erect a first-class Hippodrome to hold about 3,000 people. Plans have already been prepared by Mr. W. T. Lockwood, F.R.I.B.A., of Foregate-street, Chester, and as soon as these have been sanctioned by the City Corporation building operations will be commenced. The building will be of handsome design, and the interior arrangements will be on a scale of luxurious elegance.

It is hoped to give the usual vaudeville entertainments at the Hippodrome twice nightly all the year round, and at the Royalty Theatre the usual comedies, dramas, and grand operas will be introduced. There is every probability that the resident manager's duties for both houses will be in the capable hands of Mr. C. B. Fountaine.

The Royal Hippodrome, Blackburn, the latest addition to the De Frece Circuit, opens on Monday. There will be a special reception to view the beautiful new building to-day. The Hippodrome has been erected on the site of the old Theatre Royal, in the very heart of the town, from designs by Mr. Bertie Crewe. The builders are Messrs. Parkinson, of Blackburn, and the furniture and draperies are by A. R. Dean and Sons. Mr. Harry Yorke is retained as resident director, and the managing-director is Mr. Walter de Frece.

Dr. Walford Bodie is again in the capital of his native country, and performing this week to large and fashionable audiences. The King's Theatre, Edinburgh, is packed to the doors nightly, the advance booking being phenomenal. Dr. Bodie has been inundated with letters and wires of congratulation on the great success of the first of his series of hynotic tales, entitled "Harley, the Hypnotist," which appear for the first time in this month's Novel Magazine. Several of the leading papers describe it as a serious rival to "Sherlock Holmes" and "Captain Kettle."

The death took place on Saturday morning of Mr. Jas. Edward Culeen, of the Cattle Market Hotel, Burnley, after only a few days' illness, death being due to pneumonia. He was only twenty-nine years of age, and was the youngest son of the late Mr. Thos. Culeen, the founder and proprietor of the Gaiety Theatre, Burnley. In the old days when Mr. Culeen ran it as a circus, young Culeen was trained in the ring, and occasionally took part with his elder brother in equestrian feats.

At one time he was a trooper in the Duke of Lancaster's Own Yeomanry, and volunteered for the South African War, where he took part in the battle of Faber's Spruit, in Griqualand. For his services he was the recipient of the Queen's medal, and also of one of the gold medallions presented by the Burnley Corporation.

Of a daring and fearless character, Mr. Culeen entered the den of the large lions on the occasion of the visit to Burnley in September last of Bostock and Wombwell's menagerie, this being in fulfilment of a wager of £10. The cage was the one occupied by "Cecil," said to be the handsomest and most perfect forest-bred lion in captivity, and which was purchased from the late Mr. Cecil Rhodes. He had kept the Cattle Market Hotel for about three years, and leaves a widow and three children.

It has been decided to organise a testimonial benefit for Billy Richardson, who has been for so long a favourite entertainer. His name as a stump orator, with the late Sam Hague's famous minstrels, is not only a household word in Liverpool, but held in happy memory universally. It is the desire of the committee to place him during his declining years in a position that is free from anxiety. The benefit is fixed for Tuesday afternoon next, at 2.30, at the Star Theatre, Liverpool, which has been kindly given for the occasion by Mr. Harris Fineberg. The secretary is William Harris, Victoria Hotel, St. John's-lane, Liverpool, to whom all subscriptions from old admirers of Billy should be sent.

The next committee meeting of the Music Hall Home will be held at the Empire, Camberwell, on Thursday, Feb. 18, at 12 noon. The thanks of the committee are due to Mr. E. C. Webb, the Metropole, Denmark-hill, for a box collection of 14s.

Miss Katie Lawrence has reappeared at the Camberwell Palace, where her popular songs and her clever comedy have been highly appreciated.

The Grand Order of Water Rats' Annual Ball will be held on March 4, at the Trocadero. Dancing commences at 11.30.

Miss Maud Allan will deliver a lecture on the subject of classical dances, under the auspices of the O.P. Club, at the Criterion on Sunday, Feb. 21.

Cull Pitt, a new artist found by Tom Pacey for Mr. Harry Rickards, left London yesterday for Australia. He returns in October, and is fully booked by the same agency.

Mr. Carl Hertz, the well-known illusionist, opens at the Holborn Empire on Monday next. Mr. Hertz, who is a great traveller, and has performed his business in almost every corner of the globe, is invariably assisted at his entertainments by his clever and fascinating wife, Mlle. D'Alton, who has accompanied him on all his travels.

Peggy Pryde is at home at the Sussex Hotel, East-street, Brighton, and she is also very much at home at the Empire, Edmonton, where she is delighting large audiences this week. Peggy loves to entertain the British public, and they love her inimitable low comedy.

Miss Melinda May, secretary of the Music Hall Ladies' Guild, begs to gratefully acknowledge the cheque for £5, received from T. G. Hales, Esq., in response to the appeal which appeared in last week's Era on behalf of Miss Flora Lington and family. Any further contributions to the same good cause may be sent to the Guild, 61, New Oxford-street, W.C.

Mr. John L. Shine, who commences the Stoll tour on Monday next at the Hackney Empire with his enormously succesful sketch An Actor's Art, has materially strengthened his company by the inclusion of his brother, Mr. Wilfred E. Shine, who will play the fine part of Gerald Guinness, the unlucky Irish barrister.

We have always recognised that An Actor's Art, although giving the fullest scope to the marvellous changes of Mr. Shine from one character to another, even to the duplication of two of the actors while they are actually on the stage, still presents a perfectly constructed and well dramatised humorous story, which is unusual in the majority of protean entertainments.

Mrs. Vernon Cowper, supported by a company of picked London artists, will shortly present her entirely new and original fantastic farcelette entitled Ladies Only, written by that well-known and successful author Mr. Charles Darrell. The story is entirely new. She is also having elaborate costumes made and scenery painted.

"The Experiment," originally given at the end of November last year at the Battersea Palace, goes to the Middlesex on Monday. The cast includes Ruth Wallace in her wonderfully successful comedy creation of "Melierann Honeydew," Miss Evelyn Vaudray, and Mr. Claude Haviland. Mrs. Albert Bradshaw is the authoress.

Miss Frances Letty has been fortunate in securing three great numbers from the pen of Percy Edgar, who has supplied her with most of her recent successes; these are entitled "Because I loved your mother," "I don't want to go to Canada," and "I ain't going to wait till to-morrow, Mr. Borrow." These she will produce on her return to London on April 5 at Stoll's Empires.

This week she is playing at the Paragon, and next week makes her first appearance at the Holborn. She has been offered the Syndicate halls for immediate and later dates, but her bookings debar her from accepting these until 1910. Tom Claxton is acting exclusively for Miss Letty.

The musical comedietta The Suffragettes will be presented by Miss Ada Francis and company at the Middlesex on Monday. The clever and experienced comedian Mr. George Thorne will appear as an "arm of the law." A famous bulldog will also make his appearance. The music is by E. Bogetti and Carlile Vernon.

"Tuppence a Minute," an up-to-date sketch, was produced with success at the Tivoli, on Saturday. In the part of John Petrol, a chauffeur, Mr. E. W. Colman proved himself once more a capital comedian, and he had excellent support from Miss F. Walton as Cynthia Beverley and Mr. Ralph Lynn as Percy Fitzroy.

There will be produced at the Canterbury on Monday for the first time two entirely new sketches. One, of the musical-comedy order, is from the pen of H. Maurice Vernon, and is entitled The 10 o'clock Squad. The plot is laid at Liberty-street Police Station.

The other sketch is powerfully dramatic, being founded on an episode in Sir Walter Scott's "Ivanhoe." A Daughter of Israel, as it is called, is being produced by Mr. Charles Garry, who was recently leading man with Mrs. Patrick Campbell. Mr. Garry will take the part of Isaac of York. The sketch is in two scenes, and special scenery has been painted by Mr. W. T. Hemsley. This will be the first time that Sir Walter Scott's work has been adapted for the variety stage.

Miss Gracie Grahame has purchased a big novelty number from the musical director of Jack the Giant Killer at the Opera House, Leicester, where Miss Grahame has made a big success as Jack. Mr. Damant, the author and composer of the song, has absolutely struck an original idea, and great things are expected from "There's a good time coming for the girls." Jack the Giant Killer concludes a record run to-night.

Mrs. Ryder Slone, the wife of the well-known comedian, who had to undergo such a severe operation four weeks ago, is still in the private nursing home at 118, High-street, Chorlton-on-Medlock, Manchester, but anticipates being able during the next fortnight to take a journey south, attended by one of her nurses. Mrs. Slone's room has been a miniature garden of flowers and fruit sent in by her many friends, and she wishes to tender her grateful thanks to her many well-wishers for their numerous attentions and inquiries.

Miss Helen Charles will have very pleasant memories of her visit to Bristol last week, her engagement there being through the courtesy of Mr. Walter Gibbons, who kindly released her. She met with one of the greatest receptions ever accorded to any lady entertainer in the town, and the management secured her immediately for a return engagement. The critic of the Bristol Daily Press remarked that "Miss Helen Charles, who takes Miss Cooper's place on the programme, is a charming entertainer, and gives one of those refined items which are so delightful to listen to, and which are doing so much to surround the music halls with a purer atmosphere."

The usual monthly meeting of the committee of the Music Hall Sick Fund will be held at the Crown Hotel, Charing Cross-road, on Wednesday next at 4 p.m.

Miss Ruth St. Denis will appear shortly at the London Coliseum. The recent persistent rumours that she will be seen at other West End houses is, therefore, incorrect.

The charming Della Sisters have been greatly complimented on their first appearance in Ireland, where they have been singing six songs nightly at their various engagements. These types of English beauty should be immediately secured for the West End.

The Brighton Hippodrome was crowded at the matinée performance on Wednesday, given on behalf of the local police-aided scheme for clothing destitute children. The programme was sustained by artists of the Theatre Royal and Grand Theatre pantomimes, in addition to those appearing this week at the Alhambra and the Hippodrome.

Further support was given by popular Peggy Pryde, whose very amusing turn evoked hearty laughter and enthusiastic applause. The duties of conducting the orchestra were shared by Mr. W. Sommerlad, Signor G. D. La Camera, Mr. C. W. Johnson, and Mr. A. W. Leggett.

On behalf of his committee the Chief Constable cordially thanked Mr. and Mrs. Barrasford for kindly lending the Hippodrome Theatre free of cost; Mr. B. J. Brown, the manager, and the staff; Mr. Clark, the stage-manager; all the artists, who had given their services gratuitously; and the directors and managers of the other places of amusement in the town for their hearty support. Mr. Gentle also gave interesting particulars of the admirable work effected by the police-aided scheme, which will benefit by the sum of £200, raised by the matinée.

The remains of the late Mr. George Scott, music hall manager, whose death occurred under tragic circumstances on the 29th ult., were interred in Kensal Green Cemetery on Wednesday. Wreaths were sent by the directors of the Alhambra, Mr. Tom Scott (National Sporting Club), the New Olympia Company, Mr. P. C. Sheridan (Tavistock Hotel), the outside staff of the Alhambra, the Eccentric Club, Our Club, the Palace Theatre (Plymouth), and others.

Among those at the graveside were Mr. Harry Wieland, Mr. Richard Northcott, Mr. Arthur Binstead, Dr. Byrd Page, Mr. Murray Griffith, Mr. Harry Woodford (secretary of the Alhambra, Limited), Mr. T. J. Noble (box office), Mr. Roberts, Mr. J. Hunt, Mr. Mitchell, and others.

It was impossible for Mr. Harry Scott to attend his father's (George Scott) inquest and funeral, as he was playing in Wales when the news came to him as a terrible shock. He was represented at both the inquest and funeral by his uncle, Mr. W. J. Goodchild. We are asked to state that the late gentleman's wife was not born in Lancashire, but Plymouth.

The whole of the Crimea and Indian Mutiny veterans (including three from the Gateshead Association) of the Northumberland Veterans' Association assembled at the Central Station, Newcastle, on Sunday, to say good-bye to Mr. George Leyton, the celebrated actor-vocalist and Crimean soldiers' friend, who has been appearing at the Empire Theatre, and who is this week at Oldham in his military scena, The Last Muster.

Present also on the platform were Mr. C. E. Mowatt, the vice-chairman, and Mr. W. G. Finlay, the secretary of the association. The veterans were "formed up" in line, all wearing their medals. Just as the special was leaving the station, at the invitationof Mr. Finlay, the veterans gave three lusty cheers for Mr. Leyton. Prior to leaving, Mr. Leyton warmly shook hands with each of the veterans.

Through inadvertence the name of Mr. George Bellamy was omitted in our notice last week of the sketch Artful at the Coliseum. He should have been bracketed with Mr. Sydney Blow as part author.

The Liverpool Pavilion was honoured on Wednesday evening by the presence of the Lord Mayor and Lady Mayoress, who appeared to thoroughly enjoy Tiller's excellent pantomime, Red Riding Hood. This is the first time that Messrs. Broadhead's place has been visited by the Chief Magistrate. During the week seats have been at a premium.

At the Empire on Thursday was given the first performance of a new skating scena. Mr. Fred Farren, whose artistic work is so often displayed at the same house, is responsible for the production, which includes a large number of skaters of both sexes. At their head is the world-renowned Video, whose performance is a revelation to those interested in this now popular pastime. Besides the scientific side of skating, there is also plenty of comedy, and, indeed, some of the "falls" which take place require the very greatest skill. The entertainment is very attractive and exciting, and its popularity should be great.

The scena is entitled Winter in Holland, and windmills, a landscape intersected by frozen canals, and a setting sun form a picturesque background, some pretty winter sports are played, and as a climax M. Video and his family cut some effective figures.

The Dunedin troupe of cyclists, after their triumphs at the Coliseum and London Hippodrome, opened at the Palace, Cork, on Monday with extraordinary success. They will embark at Queenstown on Thursday next, Feb. 11, on the s.s. Teutonic for New York, where they open with Percy Williams at the Colonial Theatre on March 1. The ladies of the troupe are twin sisters, and are the grandchildren of Mr. James E. Donegan. They are very clever roller skaters, and were offered an engagement at the Empire, Leicester-square, but an American contract prevented them.

At the 594th meeting of the Music Hall Artists' Railway Association, on Wednesday, Mr. Jeff Vendome occupied the chair, pending the arrival of Mr. Fred Herbert. There were also present: Messrs. Albert Voyce, Lieutenant Albini, W. H. Atlas, H. Cee Mee, John Alexander, T. C. Callaghan, and C. Douglas Stuart (secretary). Mr. George Bourne, of the Horseshoe Hotel, Dudley, was appointed agent, and two complaints from railway companies regarding the conduct of certain members of the Association were considered. The weekly financial statement, showing fifty-seven new members and a total of £71 2s. 6d., was passed.

Mr. George Gulliver, ventriloquist, had a narrow escape from drowning last Saturday at Northampton. He was just coming off the lake at Abington Park, where he had been skating, when the ice broke and precipitated him into the water. Fortunately, it was only about 4ft. deep at that spot, but he had great difficulty in getting out, as the ice broke all round him when he tried to raise himself. Eventually he managed to roll over full length on to his back, and so, by distributing the weight, was able to gain firmer ice and eventually the shore. He has suffered no ill-effects from the immersion.

Mr. Mark Melford strangely disappeared on Jan. 17 last and, save for a disquieting letter received by Mrs. Melford, he has not since been heard of. Messrs. Stringer and Stringer, of Kilburn, the solicitors to Mrs. Melford, will be glad of any information which may tend to a solution of the mystery.

Mr. Chris Van Bern will have reason to remember his first appearance at the Metropolitan on Monday, for on driving from the Edgware-road house, after his first turn, the horse attached to his brougham took fright from some unknown cause, and bolted. The vehicle was overturned, but the occupant was only temporarily "upset." He was unable to appear at the Tivoli, but entertained the second house at the Met., but he was minus one or two of his tricks.

That well-known entertainer Harry Gold (Pat J. Ricks) had the misfortune a day or two since to lose his father, who died at a ripe age.

Mr. Ross Gilmore made his first appearance in America at Hathaway's, New Bedford, Mass., on Jan. 18, and scored an immediate success in his comic parody of a London policeman. The make-up and business immensely tickled the audience.

The large sum of £80 was taken at the Theatre Royal, Worthing, last week, that amount representing the proceeds of a concert held in aid of the Lord Mayor's Fund for the sufferers in Messina. A new playlet, entitled Joan's Kiss, presented on the occasion, created a very favourable impression.

Mr. D. J. Clarke, proprietor of the Argyle Theatre of Varieties, Birkenhead, gave his annual entertainment to the inmates of the workhouse on Tuesday afternoon in last week. The show took place at that institution, both artists and band cheerfully attending for the purpose, and an excellent programme was received with unbounded delight and satisfaction.

At the final performance of Robinson Crusoe, at the Crystal Palace last Saturday, the principal ladies of the company were almost hidden by the baskets of flowers and bouquets presented by their numerous admirers. Miss Lillie Lassah (Robinson Crusoe) very kindly forwarded her floral tokens to the Croydon General Hospital, and received a charming letter from the matron on behalf of the patients for her thoughtful act.

At the annual general meeting of Hackney and Shepherd's Bush Empire Palaces, Ltd., held at the registered offices, Cranbourn-mansions, on Feb. 3, Mr. Oswald Stoll, the managing-director, declared a dividend of 20 per cent., free of income-tax, for the past half-year.

Miss Florence Smithers has been meeting with unqualified success with her new sketch Our Mary Jane on the Moss and Stoll tour, and, owing to the great reception accorded her at the Winter Gardens, New Brighton, is retained another week at the top of the bill. The continued advance booking and crowded houses nightly testify to her popularity at this charming hall, the management of which has specially complimented her on the entire performance and the excellence of the company supporting her.

On behalf of the committee of the Music Hall Ladies' Guild, 61, New Oxford-street, W.C., Miss Melinda May (secretary) wishes to gratefully thank the following:—Mrs. H. Maud Gamble, for gift of one guinea; the Rev. Arthur Brinckman, for letter admitting a patient to Brompton Hospital; Miss E. G. Clarke, A.C.U., parcel of clothing; parcel of clothing anonymous from Hamilton; Miss Ray Hayden, collecting 2s. 6d.; Mlle. Roza (although thousands of miles away from us) has been kind enough to give and collect 17s., and sends from Kroonstad, Orange River, South Africa; Mr. Tom Fancourt, 1s., for Miss Flora Lington who is now in the Royal National Sanitorium, Bournemouth, leaving a husband behind who is blind, and who has been so for five years; there are two children. Anyone who is willing to help this poor man will they kindly post direct to Mr. F. H. Pedgrift, The Era Office.

Will all members please communicate with Miss May and send an address that will find them for the next two weeks? All friends of the charity are heartily welcome to tea and receptions held every Wednesday, four to five o'clock. Every kind of clothing is urgently needed.

Captain Tupper, formerly of the Salvation Army, who is professionally known as Harry Vaux, will produce his scena, The Night Policeman, at the South London on Monday. There will be a realistic struggle and arrest, and the piece will conclude with a eulogy on the late Police-constable Tyler. The piece will also be produced at the Palace, Tottenham, which is not a great distance from the scene of the recent outrage. The producer will give his salary to the fund being raised for the widow of the brave constable.

Much regret will be felt by many of our readers on hearing of the death of Mr. Fred G. Brooke, who passed away on Friday, the 29th ult., after a short illness from congestion of the lungs at his residence, 55, Ridley-road, Dalston. The deceased actor, who was brother to Leonard Mortimer, was only thirty-nine, and had been no fewer than twenty-one years in the dramatic sketch business, seven years of that time having been in partnership with his brother as the Brooke and Mortimer combination. The funeral took place on Friday at Tooting Cemetery. Mrs. Brooke, the widow, will carry on the company under the title of Mrs. F. G. Brooke and Co.

La Tortajada, the beautiful Spanish dancer, made her rentrée to London on Monday at the Coliseum, where she introduced The Début of Dolores, an operetta in three acts, words and music by Señor Ramon Tortajada. In this the artist undertakes five distinct characters, and the novelty serves as an excellent vehicle for the display of her art. Dolores, the wife of a toreador, who discovers her husband's faithlessness, attempts to engage in a duel with daggers with her rival, who she is just about to kill when some unaccountable desire to become a music hall "star" takes hold of her. La Tortajada, who originally made her début at the Aquarium, has a fascinating personality, and her dancing and singing are as attractive as ever.

The Barnyard Carnival, held in the roller-skating rink at Olympia on Tuesday evening, proved a highly successful and most enjoyable function. The centre of the floor was made up to represent a barnyard, and there were real goats, hens, &c., and a real milkmaid, dealing out real milk at one penny per glass. On the floor every character representing village life was to be seen—the village squire with his dame, the parson in clerical garb, the sturdy yeomen and farm labourers, policemen, tennis men, shock-haired yokels (some of whose complexions did not give evidence of very recent acquaintance with country); and, of course, there were the humbler servants of the village, an old broken-down dobbin, whose efforts nearly disconnected his fore- and hind-quarters; several dogs, cats, and a caterpillar the size of a man, whose skating attitude was one not often met with in the real article.

SONGS, WRITERS, AND SINGERS.

"BRAVO, TERRITORIALS; OR, THE GALLANT TEDDY BOYS," is the highly original title of an up-to-date song from the practised and graceful pen of Charles Wilmott, the verses of what will undoubtedly be a strikingly successful number being set to inspiring music by Hermann E. Darewski. It is in active rehearsal, and will be sung by Miss Carrie Moore in the pantomime of Cinderella at the Adelphi on Monday. "Teddy boys" is a highly original term for the young men who are willing to train and ready to fight for King Edward. The song has been prompted by the successful production of An Englishman's Home at Wyndham's, and marks the commencement of a new wave of patriotism at the halls.

THE latest additions to Messrs. Francis and Day's series of "Sixpenny Pops" include "La Gitana Waltz" (new dance), "On Parade" (military two-step), Fred W. Leigh's "Goo-goo Land," a song sung with splendid effect by Miss Ada Reeve in pantomime, and Miss Kitty Colyer's chorus number, "Good-bye, Jenny," by T. F. Robson This last is No. 527 of the Sixpenny Series issued by the well-known firm.

QUITE an inundation of requests have reached Mr. Leonard Bellamy (of Messrs. Francis and Day's Orchestral Department) for band-parts of Archibald Joyce's fine waltz, "Visions of Salome," the applications coming from conductors of the principal theatres, palaces of variety, restaurants, &c. Each and every one of them will be supplied during next week.

MESSRS. KING AND BENSON'S smart and tuneful new act, entitled "Round the town," has caught on capitally. It is by Arthurs and Lonsdale, and the song, "If you want to be popular, girls," so archly rendered by Miss Benson, is quite in the style of George Arthur's famous "If the world were ruled by girls." Mr. T. W. Thurban, of "Brooklyn cake walk" fame, and for many years leader of the Oxford orchestra, has composed and arranged the incidental music, and conducts for the popular duo at the various halls.

MR. HENRY F. GREENFIELD has just completed a strong comic song, entitled "Just because she's been to see the great invasion play," in which the warlike preparations of the valiant wife of a timorous Cockney are set forth with much humorous detail. The lyric is by Edgar Bateman, and Mr. Harry Randall has the first refusal of the music hall rights.

MESSRS. B. FELDMAN AND CO. have a chorus song written on the subject of An Englishman's Home, and entitled "There's a foe at the gates of England." Messrs. Ralph Roberts and Philip Braham are responsible for the words and music, and Messrs. Feldman and Co. predict that audiences all over the country will very soon be raised to a high state of excitement when listening to this great chorus number.

MR. BERT FELDMAN is returning to town in the course of a few days, after his very successful annual pantomime tour. He is greatly delighted at the reception he has had everywhere, and his firm's songs are nightly received all over the country as well as he has been personally—and that is saying a great deal.

WILL HYDE has again joined hands with Harry Heath in song-writing, after a somewhat extended lapse of time. Mr. Heath's entertainers have added considerably to the gaiety of Dovercourt for more than one season.

MR. ANGELO ASHER'S characteristic piece for orchestra, entitled "Hindoo Revels," now being played nightly as overture at the fine new Empire at Edmonton, has concentrated the attention and won the applause of large audiences at each performance, the weird singing effects being particularly striking.

MR. F. V. ST. CLAIR, who some fifteen years ago sang a song "An Englishman's Home," has rewritten the same and produced it with enormous success. It is written in the style of "Jap Horner" and other of this author-vocalist's patriotic successes, the moral being that Britons, if united, can yet "keep the brokers out."

"THE FOOTSTEP."

M. Viet .....MR. G. TEMPLETON
Mme. Viet .....MISS JESSIE NEWCOMBE
Jeanette .....MISS DOROTHY REES WEBB
Scaramel .....MR. C. LILLFORD DELPH
Louis .....MR. HAROLD MAXWELL

The housebreaker figured again in the above sketch, which was produced by the author at the Empress on Monday, when its progress caused no little sensation. The remote cause of the excitement was a footstep heard at midnight by the young wife of a French advocate, who imagines it is her husband returned from a journey. It proves instead to be that of a notorious criminal who wishes to secure some important papers. The lady, having sent her maid home, is alone in the house, and in a frenzy of terror searches a cabinet for a revolver which she knows her husband keeps. She is unable to discover the weapon, and hides behind the curtains of the bed as the burglar enters. She is soon discovered by the intruder, who flourishes a formidable knife and bids her remain quiet while he carries on his search. The courageous lady only screams the louder, until her assailant endeavours to bind and gag her; but he finds he has a tough opponent, and it is only after a long struggle that he at length succeeds in rendering her insensible. Going to the dressing-table the ruffian picks up a portrait which he recognises as that of his wife, whom he had deserted many years before after inflicting upon her a wound with a knife. He recalls the fact that her child was born bearing the mark of the knife, and, returning to the girl, he finds a livid weal showing up prominently on her arm. The thought flashes upon him that he has killed his own child, whom he had been seeking for many years. His anguish is great, but it is relieved when the lady shows signs of returning consciousness. She has almost fully recovered when her husband returns, and her father, now thoroughly repentant, obtains forgiveness. The piece is a little crude, and some of the pathetic scenes were not received in the spirit intended, but the desperate struggle, in which the combatants roll over and over round the room, was watched with much zest. The exacting rôle of the intrepid young wife was taken by Miss Jessie Newcombe, who did not spare herself in its portrayal, the distress of the hapless lady being very effectively assumed. Mr. C. Lillford Delph gave a performance of considerable power as the burglar, and delivered his lines with praiseworthy distinctness. The sketch was elaborately mounted, and at the close the two principals were warmly recalled.

JACK BINNS, the Marconi operator, who did such splendid work on board the sinking liner the Republic, has refused half a dozen offers from music halls to do a nightly turn on the stage. Several of the offers were for £200 a week, while one enterprising manager in a last effort raised his offer to £250 a week for a ten weeks' engagement. In refusing the offer Binns said, "I am a wireless operator, I can't act, and I don't want to be made a tin god." Sensible chap, Jack!

OPEN LETTER TO W. H. CLEMART.

MY DEAR SIR,—Dexterous and able as you are, it is surprising that your reference to the "usual length of my letter" (which occupied two-thirds of a column in the daily Press) does not restrain you from taking five columns in the Performer of Jan. 21 to reply to "one statement therein," and yet return to the charge in the same paper of the 28th of the same month.

You state, "We ourselves placed some figures before Mr. Gros the last time we had the pleasure of addressing him. We asked him to prove that something like £1,560 per annum was requisite to spend on office expenses caused by the kindly act of deducting commission at six halls. Mr. Gros has not replied. Both ourselves and the Referee are displaying great anxiety on this point."

My reply is (a) that I never stated £1,560 was requisite in office expenses, nor did I name any sum.

(b) I did not state it was a kindly act; but my statement was that it in no wise injured the artist. My evidence on the point was particularly plain before the Arbitrator. It has since been published, and it answers you.

These figures, given in the Performer for the second time, as well as those quoted by you as spokesman of a deputation before the Committee of the L.C.C., are the product of your imagination. If you can prove that I collect the sum of £1,560, or anything approaching this amount for seven halls (not six as you state), I will forfeit a respectable amount to the music-hall charities, the proof to be extracted by the auditors of the V.A.F. from the auditors of the seven halls where I hold the position of managing-director. It is easy to make statements, but figures refute these by their simple logic, especially when vouched for on behalf of shareholders by responsible accountants and auditors.

Your memory, too, my dear sir, seems a little defective, or else you presume on the forgetfulness of your readers, or else why trot out the contract from Chelsea, &c., with the exclusive "bar," on which, if you will turn to the file of the Performer of Oct. 1, 1908, you will find my reply. You seem to complain that Mr. Askwith, in his letter of Nov. 20, 1908, accepted the statement that "inadvertently" I was a delinquent by printing the 10 per cent. in my contracts. Strange as it may seem to you, I was ill in 1907 from July 16 till November—too ill to attend to anything. While other contracts were altered mine were overlooked, and when my attention was called to it (not over long ago), I at once withdrew them in obedience to the arrangement.

Finally, you instance exceptions of managers who did not abide by the Award. The executive of our Association have advised all the members to abide by the Award, and I think in each instance our solicitor acted on this principle; but our Association, unlike the V.A.F., cannot coerce or command its members. You have quoted seven cases, two of which are members of the Association. I claim, notwithstanding this, the managers have loyally, on the whole, abided by the Award, while I reiterate the statement made repeatedly in print that artists have broken it and break it daily.

You challenge me to go before the Arbitrator. If the "commission clause" as to collection is to be discussed, our solicitor will claim to be heard on it. Your lengthy censures of my statements I find no fault with. You are young, dear Mr. Clemart; but it is a complaint that "time will cure." If you intend to apply your talent to promote peace and goodwill, as you suggest, and if the era of threats, discourtesy, and random statements is to cease, and the olive branch is to replace the bludgeon (all too frequently used), then none will be more pleased to assist and promote that "desideratum" to the best of his power than—Yours faithfully,

HENRI GROS.

ANOTHER volume from the same pen bears the title "Hercat's Chapeaugraphy, Shadowgraphy, and Paper-Folding," the excellent photographic reproductions in which are a most useful explanatory aid to the text. Hercat tells us that the three arts dealt with in this booklet are easily acquired, and amateur entertainers who are from necessity compelled to make frequent changes in their programmes will find chapeaugraphy, shadowgraphy, and paper-manipulation a pleasant substitute for conjuring or ventriloquism. (Dean and Son, Ltd., 1s.)

MR. VASCO, the "mad musician," denies the stupid report that he had a disagreement with Mr. Harry Lauder during his recent visit to America. He is on the best of terms with that comedian. A chance offered of going home before his time, and he gladly took it, as he was fairly run down after the strenuous work of one-night stands. Once he appeared at a matinée at Milwaukee, and at night at Chicago, a distance of ninety-seven miles. Old England after all for comfortable music-hall engagements.

"HERCAT'S VENTRILOQUIST AND VENTRILOQUIAL DIALOGUES" (new and revised edition) has just been published by Messrs. Dean and Son, Ltd., 160, Fleet-street, at one shilling. In this little volume the well-known society entertainer makes his instructions as to how to acquire the art of ventriloquism as plain and as simple as possible, and at the same time he has contrived to render the book entertaining. He also furnishes some dialogues which he wrote for his own use, and he has added others to suit various combinations of figures and for entertainments in which mouth-moving automata are dispensed with. The book has several illustrations.

LONDON VARIETY THEATRES.

THE ALHAMBRA.

Mr. Alfred Moul has added greatly to the interest of the variety at the Alhambra during the current week both by the newcomers he has engaged and by the return of one who completely won over Alhambra audiences last year by her brilliant singing. We refer to L'Incognita, who we should guess is an Anglo-Saxon, though she hides part of her face behind a mask. For her first selection the "unknown" chose on Monday Bishop's florid air "Lo! here the gentle lark," and conquered its difficulties with all the ease of a highly gifted and well-trained singer. L'Incognita repeated her triumphs in the Polonaise from Ambroise Thomas's Mignon, and, conceding an encore, sang, much to the delight of pit and gallery, Balfe's "Killarney." Of the new comers, the earliest to appear is Victor Ferreros, who has an amiable French poodle named "Virt," and more important still a charming lady partner who plays the fiddle, and wins favour by her rendering on that instrument of "Love me and the world is mine." Mr. Ferreros, somewhat ungallantly, we think, omits the name of this lady from the announcement of his turn in the bill. The poodle is a treasure. Of course, he is of Gallic origin, and when, with no uncertain note, he plays "God Save the King" on the bells, he may be said to be doing his best to sustain the entente cordiale. Music with "paws" is evidently considered by him a very joyous sort of désœuvrement; for he utters a series of short barks while performing. His versatile master directs a remarkable series of instruments, trumpet-mouthed, which have an effect similar to the immense modern musical apparata that are now part and parcel of the up-to-date English fair. Ferreros is certainly entertaining, and his doings create both amusement and enthusiasm.

Schichtl's marionettes, which supply the second novelty of the programme, are making their first appearance in England, and do not belie their reputation, which is crystallised in the word "wonderful." The mise-en-scène of the miniature stage is exceedingly rich, and the lighting capital. The fun, too, appeals to everybody, the clowning of the little figures having quite the English flavour. In the course of the variety entertainment, several of the dolls manage an instant change in sight of the audience. Two diminutive artists increase rapidly in height, though as far as our observations went they did not suffer from swollen head—a complaint so common to their human prototypes. A comic-looking frog with a winking eye becomes a comedienne, and more laughter is caused when the ostrich lays an egg which hatches out a remarkable-looking serpent. This disappears into the "flies" with a clown on its back. Much ingenuity and cleverness mark Herr Schichtl's show, and he is the recipient of warm compliments at its conclusion. Bobker's Royal Moorish Arabs, a troupe of energetic, agile, and skilful acrobats, are making their first appearance in England. Their doings are marked by much enthusiasm and animation, and they work together con amore, their various tricks being accomplished with an ease, a grace, and a celerity that make them distinguished and intrepid exponents of the higher cult of the acrobat. Their bewildering exhibition meets with very great favour.

Since our last visit it has leaked out that Mr. Alfred Moul is the author of La Petite Bohémienne, an ingenious and well-acted gesture story that gives employment to the gifted and beautiful Leonora, whose pantomimic art is always so eloquent and inspiring. Miss Julia Seale is a highly dramatic minstrel, and M. Volbert and Mlle. Salandri complete a cast that does full justice to an admirably presented trifle. Miss Carlotta Mossetto, who now dances a couple of solos in the beautiful ballet Paquita, completely justifies Mr. Moul's confidence in her abilities by her success. Mlle. Britta has become a firm favourite, the charm and eloquence of her style being more manifest at each succeeding performance. Mr. Frank Lawton is making his first appearance at the Alhambra in a whistling entertainment that has been for a number of years one of the chief attractions of the representations of The Belle of New York; and Charlene and Charlene are repeating their success in a versatile entertainment. Jury's pictures are an attractive feature of the entertainment, and no one willingly misses the selection given by the fine band under the direction of Mr. G. W. Byng.

THE METROPOLITAN.

The magnificent "Met." in the Edgware-road, with its luxurious seating, its spacious, admirably designed, and artistically decorated auditorium, and its low prices of admission, is always in touch with the masses, and Mr. Henri Gros, who has been associated with the fortunes of the house for a long period, is to be felicitated on the enterprise which has marked his latest developments at a house of popular traditions. He has at his elbow a manager in Mr. Jack Edgar who knows the "business" from A to Z, and the programmes compiled by this astute gentleman are exactly to the taste of the people of Paddington. There is nothing that the gallery gallants at the Met. admire so much as a good chorus, and with lusty voices they "vociferise" at every possible opportunity. They find just exactly the kind of ditty they adore in the répertoire of Miss Dora Lyric, a lady whose artistic qualifications and gracious personality have won for her considerable favour at all points of the compass. There is comedy of a domestic kind in her opening number, "Winkles and watercresses," and the invitation to come round on Sunday to tea is responded to with a will by gods and pit. Her second selection, "I'm leaving Monte Carlo," leaves one in no doubt as to the singer's immense popularity.

A turn of considerable originality and cleverness is submitted by Mr. Chris Van Bern, who incidentally is a magician, but who contrives also to be a banjoist with comic ideas. He elects to be serious, however, for a few minutes, when he sings the famous bass German drinking song, known in English as "In cellar cool." An innocent-looking portmanteau becomes a wizard's table, and the "surprises" include the changing of the colour of a pocket-handkerchief and of water, a self-rising cane, and the immediate acquisition of a "button-hole." Mr. Van Bern is an entertainer whose versatility will make him go far in the halls. There is an entire absence of the sense of effort, and every minute of his turn is enjoyable. The chief comedian of the programme is Mr. Joe Elvin, who is here with his favourite cockney character, Obedient Billy, the title of a farce that gives him all the necessary chance of forcing the laughter of his kinds friends in front. As a "handy" boy he obeys his orders to the letter, and hence the fun.

Valazzi, a remarkable juggler, still "pedals" a small cannon up a narrow platform, a feat of balancing that is certainly unique. With a lamp nicely adjusted on his head he empties a glass of wine down his throttle, and manipulates eight balls with much cleverness. His assistant adds to the fun of an interesting show by his well-simulated alarm and active interference to prevent contretemps that are never likely to happen. Mr. Tom Edwards, the huntsman ventriloquist, parodies a well-known hypnotic healer, and his whole entertainment provokes mirth. Miss Alice Hollander, the Australian contralto, sings with considerable culture and effect; and other turns in a capital bill are Dusty Rhodes, comedian; Miss Radie Furman, and the Three Panamas. Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope shows the latest and best of animated pictures, adding much to the variety of the bill.

SHEPHERD'S BUSH EMPIRE.

There is always a fine programme at this popular hall, but the one this week is of particular excellence. Miss Evie Greene, by arrangement with Mr. George Edwardes, is singing four or five songs from her répertoire, including "The Queen of the Philippine Islands," the ever-popular "Molly married a Marquis," and a number which we had not heard her sing before, called apparently "I'm a Corsican maid." Miss Greene looked extremely beautiful, and was in fine voice, her singing being listened to with great admiration. Her contribution to the programme was brought to a conclusion by a dialect recitation, just the kind of thing in which this fine and versatile artist excels. An altogether charming turn. The Chernatsky Trio of juvenile musicians (John, violinist; Sophie, pianist; and Bessie, 'cellist), quickly find favour with the audience, and Cline and Clarke, "the original black and white comedy artists and speciality dancers," provide an item full of humour and merit. Austin Rudd, always popular, has a couple of good songs in "I don't want to be a policeman any more" and "Come out, come out!" and has no difficulty in causing much laughter. Lydia and Amelys, the celebrated dancers, appear in their latest French creations, introducing a version of the now famous "Apache Dance." That excellent tenor Mr. Arthur Aldridge sings a couple of songs, including his latest success, "In manus tuus, Domine." Mr. Aldridge always "goes well." The Three Lloyds provide good entertainment with a turn billed as "the only double bounding cable act in the world," and George Young, the blind musician and concertina soloist, is the recipient of much applause.

One of the finest sketches that we have seen for some time is Scotch Mixed, a little musical comedy by Frank Price. In this appears an excellent company, headed by the well-known comedian Mr. Daley Cooper and Miss Mabel Lait. Scotch Mixed is beautifully and elaborately mounted—the scene represents the great hall in Lauchlie Castle, in Scotland—the music is bright and tuneful, the comic business orginal and extremely funny, and it is well played. Mr. Daley Cooper, who is always cleverly comic (as those who saw him years ago as Tweedlepunch in Florodora, and more recently as Coquenard in Veronique well know), was suffering from a severe attack of laryngitis on Monday evening, but in spite of this he achieved a great personal success, all his efforts, whether in dancing, gagging, or singing, being instinct with humour. Miss Mabel Lait is very charming, looking as pretty as a picture, and singing and acting delightfully. Praise, indeed, must be bestowed on the whole company, which includes, amongst others, Miss Violet Clare, Mr. Clifton Yates, Mr. Napier Barri, and Mr. Reginald Crompton.

The programme terminates, as usual, with the American Bioscope, which this week shows pictures illustrating the devastation of Messina. Mr. E. P. Morgan remains the acting-manager, with Mr. Herbert Mack as his courteous assistant.

VARIETY ARTISTS' BENEVOLENCE.

Mr. Joe Elvin presided at the first annual general meeting of the Variety Artists' Benevolent Fund, held on Wednesday afternoon at the Bedford Head Hotel. There was a very small attendance, which was regarded as a compliment to the committee and a pleasing comment on the satisfactory condition of the Fund. Amongst others present were Mr. G. H. Chirgwin, Mr. Fred Herbert, Mr. Geo. Jackley, Mr. H. Cee Mee, Mr. Johnny Alexander, Mr. Eddie Comet, Mr. G. B. Sinclair, Mr. J. H. Milburn, Mr. T. B. Brydge, Mr. T. C. Callaghan, Miss E. G. Clarke (secretary Actors' Church Union), Mr. Jeff Vendome, Mr. C. C. Cornish, and Mr. C. Douglas Stuart (secretary).

The chairman, in opening the proceedings, said: I am somewhat sorry to see that we have such a poor matinée, but it shows me that our profession places every confidence in our committee. I am very pleased at that. I shall now call upon our secretary, Mr. C. Douglas Stuart, to read the report.

The secretary (Mr. C. D. Stuart) then read the report as follows:—

The Executive Committee has great pleasure in presenting this, their first annual report of the newly-formed Variety Artists' Benevolent Fund, and in so doing desires to call special attention to certain of the epitomised items in the accompanying balance-sheet.

It will be seen that no less a sum than £1,632 10s. 7d. has been received altogether since the middle of December, 1907, and £689 6s. 7d. has been granted to performers in poverty and in need of financial aid, while £314 9s. 2d. has been lent to applicants. With regard to both of these items the committee would particularly state that no money is either given or lent until after proper and careful investigation by one of the committee, or their representatives, whether in London or in the provinces, and a number of cases have been refused assistance when it has been proved either that they were not bonâ fide artists or were undeserving of help, thus enabling the committee to donate the money that would have been squandered to those starving and in real need.

With regard to the loans, it will be seen that scarcely a sixth of the amount granted has been repaid, but it may be mentioned that a considerable sum has been received during this pantomime season, and that others have, through obtaining no engagements since the amount was lent them, been unable, though willing, to return the money. Certain others are repaying slowly, but surely, a little every week. The funeral expenses of four well-known artists, whose deaths the committee regret to record, were met by the Fund, and also in two other cases a portion of the burial expenses was granted. The expenses of management and administration have been kept down to the very lowest figure compatible with efficiency, being just 15 per cent. on the amounts paid out, and the committee promises that in the future the same strict economy will be exercised.

Regarding the amount of donations and other receipts, the principal item included under donations was the result of the dinner and dance given by the Music Hall Artists' Railway Association in aid of the Fund in March last, Mr. W. H. Clemart being in the chair. Over £200 was received on that occasion, special thanks being due to the Grand Order of Water Rats for their most handsome subscription, which amounted to not less than £400. Through the Variety Artists' Federation the Fund has received over £200, being 2½ per cent. on the profits derived at various charitable and other concerts at which members of the profession kindly gave their services. For this also the committee desire to express their gratitude, as also to the artists who have so kindly "gone round with the hat"—or rather collection-boxes, and obtained silver and copper, aye, and gold, from the public. The subscription lists sent out at the beginning of last year brought in a considerable total, but it was decided not to issue any this January, but rather to wait until the forthcoming dinner (which it is sincerely to be hoped will prove as great a success as that of last spring) before calling on the friends of the Fund for renewed support.

A word as to the first Athletic Sports held under the auspices of the new committee. In spite of particularly heavy expenses, and the fact that the promoters were working on new ground, the result was gratifying, as there was a profit of over £60. Of this total there is a large amount yet to be received, most of which the committee considers to be "good debts," and will be included in next year's account. It is also deemed to be almost certain that having had experience, and being able to curtail the expenses considerably, the sports of this year, which will be held on July 21, are likely to realise a much larger amount.

It would be invidious to mention many names where the profession in general have been so liberal, but the committee feels it impossible not to specially refer to three gentlemen who have contributed very largely to the year's success. The first is, of course, the most worthy president of the Fund, Mr. Joe Elvin, who, throughout his year of office, has repeatedly handed over large donations from himself and his friends, and in many other ways shown his deep interest in the welfare of the Fund. The second is Mr Joe O'Gorman, who by his excellent suggestion to add one shilling on the subscription cards of the M.H.A.R.A. has obtained a weekly revenue for the Fund of nearly £6 a week, or £300 a year. And the third is Mr. Edwin Adeler, who kindly made a collection on the Saturday before August Bank Holiday at the various seaside towns at which he was giving out-of-door performances, and which amounted to over £30, in addition to which he has promised an annual subscription of £5 5s.

The committee desire to emphasise the fact that nearly the entire amount of donations, certainly three-fourths of the amount, has been subscribed by the profession, so that no one in the future can say that variety performers are not looking after their own needy and starving.

In giving this account of their stewardship of the monies placed in their hands the committee wishes to tell the subscribers something of what has been accomplished, how the sums granted have been spent, and in what ways. By subscribing to the Hospital Saturday Fund numerous letters to hospitals and sanatoria have been obtained, thereby restoring the weak and ailing back to health and strength to renew life's work, surgical instruments and the like having been secured free of charge for others, through Mr. Fred Herbert, the delegate for the committee on the Hospital Saturday Fund. In several cases the brokers' men have been paid out and the little home saved; others, alone and uncared for in London, have been sent to their friends to be nursed and looked after. A performer who had nearly lost his eyesight was sent abroad to a specialist, and his rent during his stay paid. He is now cured and well. Sewing-machines and tools of trade have been purchased or redeemed, enabling those who depended on them for sustenance to continue to earn their livelihood. Instruments, stage clothes, and properties have been taken out of pawn, and fares paid to enable artists out of work to fulfil their engagements.

This is but a tithe of the good work done with the money donated. In many cases the rent of artists with large families who have fallen out of work, and remained out of work through the stress of demand and supply, has been paid each week, and by arrangement with that excellent Sister society, the Music Hall Ladies' Guild, food and coal have also been provided. Nearly £8 a week has been the average of small amounts paid out in this way to the aged and infirm old men and old women, the stars and favourites of a bygone era of musichalldom, and though this sum has been lessened by those over seventy having obtained the Old Age Pension, yet a considerable total is still being given, and the committee believe that more real good is being effected by this method than by any other. In certain cases only a small sum can be given, there being so many to be assisted, all of whom are in want and deserving of aid. For the past three months Mr. T. C. Callaghan, a member of the committee, has generously placed his services at its disposal as special investigator of cases, doing this without any fee or remuneration, and a warm expression of thanks is due to him for his valuable assistance.

The committee desires to publicly state, to avoid misapprehension and misunderstanding, that the Benevolent Fund is a totally distinct society from the Federation. It has different offices, different officials, and is administered by a different committee. Charity should have no creed, and so, whilst deeply grateful for the unvarying support and aid received from the Variety Artists' Federation, collectively and individually, the committee feel bound to remove the erroneous impression that has been circulated, and repeat that the two societies are in every way distinct and separate.

Mr. Elvin, at his own desire, relinquishes the position of president, and the committee have persuaded Mr. G. H. Chirgwin, who has been an ardent worker for the Fund, to occupy the position for the ensuing year. Mr. Harry Blake, the hon. treasurer, who has kept a watchful eye upon the incomings and outgoings of the exchequer, is willing to continue his good work. The committee desire to record its high appreciation of the valuable services of the secretary to the Fund, Mr. C. Douglas Stuart, who has carried out his duties to the entire satisfaction of everyone.

Let those in the profession who, by their talents given them by Providence, are starring on the big circuits, remember their sisters and brothers who have not been so favoured, and who, in the mighty competition around us, have had to fall by the way and give place to others; it may be on account of illness, of advancing age, or inability to please the public. Be it what it may, surely they deserve help. It does no good to give rashly to those begging at the stage door; rather subscribe to the Fund and send applicants where their cases will be duly considered and, if worthy, relieved without delay. The committee would like to stop all stage-door hangers-on, but this cannot be done unless the profession refuse such help.

In conclusion, the committee "feels good" by doing good, and desires no praise for its work; but if the profession are satisfied with what has been done, they can reward the labours of their executive by not forgetting that there is £15 and more to be met every week if the most urgent cases are to be sufficiently relieved, and by continuing to subscribe liberally and often, certain that their good deeds will be rewarded a hundredfold.

Mr. George Jackley proposed, and Mr. Eddie Comet seconded, the adoption of the report.

The chairman then delivered an address to the meeting, and in the course of his remarks he said: I do not think there is very much for me to say, but there is one question I would like to ask first: Are there any complaints? (No answer.) There are none. I am pleased, as I said before, that there are not many here, and I regard it as a great compliment to our committee, and it shows that the members of the profession know that the money is in good hands, and is being properly distributed among the poor and starving in our profession. There are several little items in the report concerning which I cannot go into details. There have been relieved during the past twelve months over 1,200 cases, and the money has been given to the poor and deserving. The people who come along and would impose upon the Fund we leave out with the washing. It is a pleasure to me to have to thank the committee, who give their time every week to this work. I have, too, to thank the Music Hall Artists' Railway Association for the start it gave to this benevolent fund by its splendid donation. We have had over £1,000 since then. To Mr. Joe O'Gorman our thanks are due for his suggestion of putting a shilling on the railway tickets. If the members only knew the amount of good that the shilling did for the poor of our profession they would not be content with giving less than five. The charity matinée question has cost us a great deal of trouble with the proprietors, but it realised for us over £200. I am retiring from the chair as president, but you could not have a better president than Mr. George Chirgwin—a man who has been in our profession for two or three months, and who knows the game to half an ounce. Later on, when the dinner comes round I am going to put before the profession a scheme which may meet with approval. I am going to appeal to the profession, with the assistance of the committee and our new president, to lay before you my plans. The idea was suggested by a friend of Mr. Fred Herbert, but I cannot disclose its nature now. I want to see the Music Hall Home and the Ladies' Guild combined with the Variety Artists' Benevolent Fund, so that there may be one great charity which will make one united appeal instead of three as at the present time. I would like to see the Music Hall Home as an institution similar to that of the Licensed Victuallers or the Commercial Travellers. But I will place my ideas before the profession at the dinner. I once more thank the committee and Mr. C. Douglas Stuart, the secretary, for their exertions in the past.

The report was then put to the meeting, and declared carried unanimously.

Mr. Fred Herbert, the chairman of the committee, read the balance-sheet and proposed its adoption. He believed that in the future the matinée percentage trouble would come to an end. The balance-sheet was as follows:—

We have compared the above summary of receipts and payments with the books and vouchers relating to the Fund, and certify same to be correct. We have accepted a certificate given by Messrs. Charles Preston and T. C. Callaghan as to the receipts and payments in connection with the dinner and the sports. Some of the applicants having omitted to return the official receipts for relief granted to them out of the Fund, we are unable completely to vouch the payments. A member of the committee certifies that in such cases the allowances have been properly charged and made with their approval.

JACKSON, PIXLEY, BROWNING, HUSEY, AND CO.,
Chartered Accountants, Auditors.
58, Coleman-street, E.C., Feb. 2, 1909.

HARRY BLAKE, Hon. Treasurer.
C. DOUGLAS STUART, Secretary.
W. H. MCCARTHY, Accountant.

Mr. Arthur Were seconded, and the motion was carried.

The chairman, in proposing the election of Mr. George Chirgwin as president, said he thought that "dear old George" was the right man in the right place.

Mr. Fred Herbert, in seconding, expressed the gratitude of the committee to the retiring president, Mr. Elvin, who had been something more than an ornamental figurehead. Mr. Elvin had frequently taken into his employment old and distressed artists for his sketches.

Mr. George Chirgwin, the new president, who on taking the chair was greeted with loud applause, thanked the meeting for the honour it had conferred upon him in electing him to that office, and he would work as hard as he could for the Fund.

Mr. George Sinclair proposed, and Mr. Atlas seconded, the election of Messrs. Wal Pink and Edwin Adeler as vice-presidents. This was carried.

Mr. Fred Herbert proposed, and Mr. Ben Woodger seconded, the election of Mr. Joe Elvin as a trustee, the other trustees being Messrs. Harry Lauder and J. W. Cragg.

It was proposed by Mr. Vendome, and seconded by Mr. Sinclair, that Mr. Harry Blake continue as treasurer. This also was carried, as was also a motion of Mr. Sinclair, seconded by Mr. J. H. Milburn, that Mr. C. Douglas Stuart be retained as secretary, a high tribute being paid to Mr. Stuart's services.

Mr. Stuart acknowledged the compliment in a few words, and thanked the meeting for his re-election.

During the meeting Miss Clarke, one of the secretaries of the Actors' Church Union, expressed her gratitude to the committee and to Mr. Stuart for many little courtesies rendered on behalf of sick and distressed music hall artists. She asked permission to place Mr. Elvin's name before the Bishop of Southwark as a Vice-President of the A.C.U., and to this proposal Mr. Elvin assented.

VAUDEVILLE CLUB.

Under the genial chairmanship of King Rat, Mr. Fred Ginnett, the members of the Vaudeville Club assembled in goodly force at the rooms in Charing Cross-road on Sunday evening. This was the Club's first concert in the New Year, and, in spite of other attractions going on elsewhere and the bad weather, the function proved eminently successful and enjoyable. It may be of interest, while dealing with this tenth concert of the series, to state that the Vaudeville Club was founded in 1901 for the association and convenience of members of the Grand Order of Water Rats, but is also open to gentlemen connected directly or indirectly with the vaudeville profession and with music, art, the drama, and sport.

The programme on Sunday evening was as delightful as it was varied and comprehensive in character. It opened with an exceedingly well-played pianoforte selection by Mr. Penyston Miles. Then Mr. "Dusty" Rhodes created a huge diversion by his singing of some verses on the subject of "Eggs and bacon"; and Mr. Burt Sheppard delivered in his quaintest style a parody on "Daddy"—this time with a cabby as the central character—and as an encore an amusing little item entitled "Potted plays." Mr. Carl Hertz was in his most mysterious mood, and he treated the audience to a number of magical tricks which were so smartly executed as to arouse a feeling of astonishment. His manipulation of playing-cards and his demonstration of thought-transmission, as well as a laughable little hoax, in which he was helped by Mr. Arthur Reece, all combined to form a most attractive "turn." Mr. Harrison Latimer's magnificent voice was heard to good effect in the Prologue to Pagliacci, and, along with Mr. Penyston Miles, he gave a duet from The Lily of Killarney, "The moon hath raised her lamp above." Mr. Story Gofton showed himself in capital form, and exhibited fine dramatic talent in "Christmas Guests," his succeeding item being descriptive of how a village choir vociferously rendered "The Old Hundredth" after the manner of "The Charge of the Light Brigade." Mr. Morny Cash created great hilarity with his song "Shirts," and Mr. Fred Grey enchanted his hearers with his performances on the violin of the solos "La Légende" and "Humoreske." Mr. Alfred Hurley was highly successful in a laughable Irish song, "Mariar"; and Mr. Percy Yorke submitted a stirring interpretation of "The Trumpeter," which evoked enthusiastic applause. An artist possessing a well-trained baritone voice came forward in the person of Mr. Robert Dennant, who made a powerful appeal to the hearts of the audience with his admirable rendering of "The Recruiting Sergeant of the Line," giving as an encore "Willie, won't you wait a little longer?" This was Mr. Dennant's début at a Vaudeville Club concert, and it may be taken for granted that he will be much in request at functions of the kind in the future.

The Scotsmen present were profoundly interested in Mr. Alfred Leonard's violin imitation of the bagpipes, Mr. Leonard's playing affording ample proof that he had complete mastery of the art and technique of the handling of his instrument. Mr. V. L. Granville submitted a realistic impersonation of Mr. Tree as Svengali; and Mr. Wingrove Grant delivered in most agreeable style the verses on the subject of "My Dreams." The well-known tramp pianist, Mr. James Stewart, contributed a humorous recitation which bore the comprehensive title "Lightning, the defunct cab-horse; or, How to get to the Bank from Charing Cross in three and three-quarter hours"; and not less diverting were the chorus songs of Mr. C. R. Whittle, "I want you to see my girl" and "There's nothing like this in America or France." Mr. W. B. Raby brought the risible faculties of "the house" into play with his rendering of "Whiskers," burlesqued to suit the tune of "The Men of Harlech"; and Mr. Hal Forde was accorded a flattering ovation for his rendering of "Every fellow's in love with a girl." Mr. Andie Caine once more aroused merriment with his ditties, "Houseboats" and "Sparrows"—the last a particularly spicy and well-relished tit-bit—and Mr. Julian Rose was excruciatingly funny with his Yiddish stories and his songs. Mr. George Formby was responsible for three pleasing vocal items, including "A sailor's knot" and "John Willie, come on"; and Mr. Charles Austin gained favour with his quaint recital of "The Absent-Minded Beggar," imitated in Mr. Joe Elvin's style, his second impersonation dealing amusingly with an anecdote concerning Mr. Walter King and an insurance agent. Some truly enchanting flute and piccolo solos were excellently played by Mr. Eli Hudson, to whose musical efforts we have had the pleasure on many occasions of referring in eulogistic terms. Mr. Penyston Miles performed yeoman service at the pianoforte, and largely assisted in the success of the evening's entertainment. A word of congratulation should be passed to Mr. Case, the manager, for his exertions in arranging the concert. The proceedings were brought to an end by a vote of thanks (proposed by Mr. V. L. Granville) to Mr. Fred Ginnett, the chairman, who, in replying, expressed the gratitude of all to the artists for their able performances, and to the members of the Club for their attendance.

MR. ERIC WILLIAMS, so widely and favourably known in connection with his elocutionary efforts on behalf of Field-Marshal Earl Roberts's Veterans' Relief Fund, has been engaged for his costume recitals by the managing-director of the Canterbury and Paragon halls, to appear for a run commencing on Feb. 8, with Mr. Geo. R. Sims's "Lifeboat."

NEW YEAR'S COLLECTION FOR THE MUSIC HALL HOME.

1,608 SHILLINGS.

In again directing the attention of our readers to The Era New Year's Shilling Fund on behalf of the Music Hall Home we are in the happy position of being able to associate with the appeal thus being made the name of the foremost music hall comedienne—Miss Marie Lloyd. It seems scarcely necessary to remind our readers of the deep interest Miss Lloyd has ever taken in matters affecting the welfare of her brothers and sisters of the variety profession. It is her desire that her "year" will be marked by a considerable increase in the subscriptions of previous years, and she therefore, through The Era, commends the Music Hall Home to the charitably-minded. Mr. Thomas Barrasford, the President of the Fund, is again this year exerting himself in its behalf, and this fact is sufficient indication that he is satisfied as to the way in which the institution is being conducted, and that he considers it worthy of support.

Mr. Ben Woodger, the secretary of the Music Hall Home, tells us that in 1907 the inmates averaged ten, but that in 1908 there have been as many as twelve. The address of the Home is 31, Wilson-road, Camberwell, and there the matron (Mrs. Fruin) busies herself for the comfort and convenience of her "family." At present there are eleven of these, and the desire is to increase the number, which can only be done when sufficient funds for the purpose are collected. During the past twelve months three or four of the inmates have recovered their health and strength sufficiently to enable them to look for engagements. These secured, they left the Home, and the vacancies thereby created were immediately filled up. Now, this Home requires keeping up, and it cannot be kept up on air. There is no need for us to refer to all the good work which has been performed by the institution in the past, as that must for the most part be within the recollection of our readers. The ages of the inmates range from fifty to seventy-six. In all probability these men will be maintained in the Home until the day of their death, and their funeral expenses paid for out of the funds of the Home.

The Era New Year's Shilling Fund is the main source of income to the Home, and this means of sustenance is added to by the donations of artists, either given directly, or through the collecting boxes through which many managers of variety theatres collect pennies from "dead-heads" and from artists who desire free admission.

Anyone can be supplied with a collecting-card by sending a postcard to Mr. Woodger.

Briefly, we may once more repeat that the objects of the Music Hall Home Fund are to provide shelter for deserving members of the variety profession who have been stricken with poverty or illness in their declining years, or who have in other ways fallen on evil times. Mr. F. H. Pedgrift, the hon. treasurer, will be pleased to receive filled-up collecting cards addressed to him at The Era, 5, Tavistock-street, Strand, W.C., and to acknowledge them in these columns.

THE LATE TOM LOVELL.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—Reading the notice in your issue of Jan. 16 of the death of my late old and esteemed confrère, relating a portion of his professional career, I beg respectfully to add some few particulars that may be of interest to his friends. Tom (our Tom) was for some years with myself and pantomimic troupe. He played Pantalcon to my Clown as far back as Christmas, 1870, at the Crystal Palace in the successful pantomime of Dick Whittington. The late Miss Caroline Parkes was Dick. Tom afterwards toured with my company, performing in the principal provincial towns as well as in Belgium, Germany, and Holland. He was with me when exclusively engaged for twelve months to perform at the Alhambra and the Canterbury by Mr. Fred Strange.

It was during this joint engagement that I produced at the Alhambra the pantomime trick ballet Quicksilver Dick, the title being given by the late Mr. John Hollingshead, at that time the Alhambra manager. Our Tom played the Village Blacksmith (an ideal one). In such old bluff characters he excelled. When my troupe was engaged at Drury Lane, the late pantomime author, Mr. E. L. Planchard, was deputed to write an original pantomimical musical farce, which that gentleman named Nobody in London. In this piece, which was produced on Sept. 20, 1873, I sustained the part of Hal Fresco (a double character) and Tom was cast for the Eccentric Policeman. The combination playing the piece, which was produced in front of Antony and Cleopatra, consisted of the following noted artists: Mr. Brittain Wright, Mr. Fred Morland, Miss Harriet Coveney, Miss Clara Jecks, and Miss Amy Rosalind. The theatre was then under the management of the late Mr. F. B. Chatterton. After this our Tom had a wish to play Clown (he certainly had the "go" in him). He said, "Will you start me, Pa?" which he usually called me. I wrote his comic scenes and made models for his first engagement as Clown at the Prince's Theatre, Manchester. He afterwards voyaged to America to try his luck, and I believe was successful.—I am, yours faithfully,

FRED EVANS

Bristol, Feb. 3.

WINTER GARDENS, NEW BRIGHTON.

Mr. Laurence Irving, Miss Mabel Hackney (Mrs. Irving), and company finished their week's engagement at the Winter Gardens, New Brighton, on Saturday last, amidst a scene of great enthusiasm, the house being crowded. After the curtain had been raised several times, and in answer to loud calls for a speech, Mr. Irving thanked the audience on behalf of his wife, his company, and himself for the enthusiastic reception which had been accorded them during the week. He had had several conversations with the other members of that week's company, and all agreed that they had never had a more comfortable engagement or played before a more appreciative or intelligent an audience. He felt sure that any star, no matter how big he or she might be, would always be glad to come to the Winter Gardens, New Brighton, for their profit and pleasure. In conclusion, Mr. Irving said he was pleased to say that his company and himself would be paying a return visit in September next.

MUCH regret has been expressed at Belfast at the departure from that city of Colonel Fred T. Cummins, manager of the new skating rink, which has been such a success since its opening some few months ago. Colonel Cummins has been placed in charge of the Share Department in London of the American Roller Rink Co., of which Messrs. Crawford and Wilkins are directors. Mr. O. E. Laumann has been appointed to succeed Colonel Cummins at Belfast.

INQUEST ON MR. G. SCOTT.

Mr. John Troutbeck held an inquest at Westminster Coroner's Court on Monday on the body of Mr. George Mitchell, professionally known as George Scott, who was until quite recently manager of the Alhambra Theatre of Varieties, and who was found shot in his bedroom at the Tavistock Hotel, Covent Garden, on Friday. The deceased, who was born at Plymouth, fulfilled important positions in music-hall circles at Manchester and also in connection with Barnum and Bailey's circus and the Southend Kursaal. A number of the deceased gentleman's friends were present in court.

Mr. John Goodchild, of Donovan-avenue, Muswell Hill, said that he did not come with the idea of giving evidence, but as the deceased's son was not present he would tell all he knew about the matter.

P.S. Overton, the coroner's officer, said the son was with a travelling company in Wales and had written to say it was impossible for him to get away.

The Coroner: I believe there has been considerable difficulty in communicating with any relatives?—The Coroner's Officer: That is so.

Mr. Goodchild said he was not a relative of the deceased, but had known him for some years. His name was George Scott, and he was fifty-two or fifty-three years of age.

The Coroner: It is reported to me that his name was Mitchell?—The other is his professional name.

Has he ever taken steps to change his name?—No, not that I am aware of. The witness added that the deceased was formerly engaged in the wholesale drapery trade. That was some years ago. The witness last saw him alive in September. His last professional engagement terminated in the middle of the summer.

The Coroner: Was he at all depressed about it? Oh, no, quite the contrary.

Had he a wife alive?—I believe so.

They did not live together?—No. The witness, continuing, said that so far as he knew the deceased was of sober habits, and he never knew him to have had any financial embarrassment.

Leonard Fisher, valet at the Tavistock Hotel, said he had attended upon the deceased and had noticed no change in him recently. At eight o'clock on Friday morning last the witness took the registered letter produced to his bdroom.

The Coroner: It contains a reference to a bankruptcy notice. It is from a firm of process-servers, giving him an appointment for ten o'clock to-day to serve a bankruptcy notice upon him.

The witness, continuing, said that after taking the deceased his breakfast at ten o'clock he saw nothing of him. He was then at the end of the corridor when he heard several shots fired. There were four shots altogether.

What did you do?—I went to try to find out where they came from. I entered the deceased's room—the door of which was not locked—and saw him lying in bed, with the electric light full on his face. There was a double-barrelled gun between his legs. His left hand was on the barrel, and in his right hand was a cane, one end of which was on the trigger. He was in his night clothes.

Was it his gun?—Yes, he had had it some time.

Did you notice any damage in the room?—Yes, the mirror on the dressing-table was smashed, and two books on the floor were damaged. A picture beside the door was smashed also.

Mr. Charles Collier Sheridan, manager of the Tavistock Hotel, said he had known the deceased for the last six years. During the last few months he had been very nervous, and had complained of sleeplessness. The witness knew nothing of his financial affairs.

Was he able to pay his way at the hotel?—No.

That was different from formerly?—Yes.

The Coroner remarked that a pawnticket relating to an Albert chain pledged for £8 on Jan. 16, and a judgment summons for £16, returnable on the 23rd of this month, had been found.

The witness said he knew nothing about these.

The Coroner: Do you know anything about an action in the High Court?—Yes; he told me he won it in the lower court, and was surprised to find the verdict went against him in the higher court. He said the case was being taken up by other people interested, and that it would not cost him anything.

Police-inspector Monk said that he found an empty cartridge on each side of the bed, and one in the right barrel of the gun. There was nothing to suggest that the injuries could have been done other than by the deceased's own hand. He must have shot at the picture and looking-glass to test the gun. The witness thought that only three shots were fired altogether. The damaged books must have fallen off the bed. The box of cartridges was very dusty, and appearerd as if it had been kept in one place for a long time.

Dr. Michael Joseph Ryan, of Drury-lane, said that the whole of the upper part of the deceased's face, his left eye, the skull bone, and the scalp was shattered. The injuries, in his opinion were self-inflicted.

At this stage a young lady, who had only just arrived at the court, was called as a witness. She gave her name as Lily Scott and said she was the wife of the deceased's only son. The deceased's full name was George Richard Mitchell, and his age was fifty-six. He never changed his name to Scott by deed-poll, but took it when he became connected with the stage. She had not seen him for some time, and expressed the opinion that he would not have taken his own life unless he had been worried very much, because he was a very cheerful man.

The Coroner said it was evident that the deceased had been much worried over financial matters, and there appeared to be no doubt that this resulted in him taking his own life.

The jury returned a

THE SHOWMAN WORLD.

Attack upon Showmen in County Durham.

Messrs. Monte Brothers forwarded the following paragraph from the Durham Advertiser of Jan. 21 to the Executive Council of the Showmen's Guild :—

"Protest Against Travelling Caravans.—At the Hexham Rural District Council meeting on Tuesday, Mr. J. Scott presiding, a lengthy petition was submitted from the inhabitants of Corbridge, praying that travelling caravans and their accompanying shows might be prevented from taking up a position in the Market Place at Corbridge. The petitioners objected to the obstruction as caused in closing the way to vehicular traffic in many parts of the Market Place, to the continuous and unvaried noise, and to the insanitary conditions introduced by the caravans, which resulted in the outbreak of infectious disease after the caravans had been in occupation.—It was reported that the Parish Council were in communication with the Duke of Northumberland's agents on this matter.—The Council decided to await the result of this correspondence before taking any action."

The Rev. T. Horne, the Guild Chaplain, was requested to answer the aspersions upon show life, and has sent to the Hexham Rural District Council the following letter, forwarding at the same time a copy of the protest to the editor of the Durham Advertiser, with a request that he would be good enough to give the answer of the showmen as wide a notice as the Durham Advertiser had given to the aspersions upon show life :—

"To the Members of the Hexham Rural District Council.

"Gentlemen,—The attention of this society has been called to a petition sent to your Council by certain inhabitants of Corbridge, asking you to take steps to prevent show caravans taking up positions in the Market Place at Corbridge.

"Judging from the brief report of the wording of that petition given in the Durham Advertiser under date Jan. 21, most serious and damaging charges were made against the sanitary and health fitness of show caravans. The committee of the Showmen's Guild object most strongly to sweeping charges of an extremely damaging and libellous nature brought against the movable dwellings of showpeople.

"It must be well known to you as a public authority that the health and sanitary laws of the realm apply with equal rigour to movable dwellings as to fixed and permanent ones.

"Travelling showpeople (with just indignation) deny the truth of the charges made without any specific evidence against the health conditions of their domestic life.

"On the contrary, showpeople are a clean-living class, a long-lived and healthy class, spending the greater portion of their time of necessity in the open air.

"It is an insult of the most gross and gratuitous character to imply that showpeople are not as eager as other people to avoid conditions of life that would be a menace to their neighbours.

"Your Medical Officer of Health and your Sanitary Officer have exactly the same powers and the same duties to perform in the interests of public health as they have with any other class of people or individual in the community.

"To stigmatise showpeople as being in this sense outlaws is to do them a grievous injury. With regard to the other objections in the petition, alleged 'obstruction of traffic' and 'continuous and unvaried noise,' it is quite sufficient to answer that the King's law is just as applicable to a travelling showman as to a resident shopkeeper or inhabitant.

"Any attempt to promote class legislation will be opposed by this trade organisation, and we have to point out that it is impossible for Corporations to obtain from Parliament legislation affecting show life that is avowedly in excess of the ordinary law.

"Although showmen follow an extraordinary business, they are in all other respects ordinary citizens of the commonwealth, industrious workers in an honourable craft, and loyal subjects of our King.

"The Showmen's Guild is a trade organisation, it also works for the uplifting and the betterment of the popular open-air amusements of the people.

"It is concerned with an honourable and ancient calling in life. Fairs, feasts, and wakes have grown with the growth of the nation.

"It is an industry that employs directly seventy thousand people, and in addition to that it provides work for many other trades and industries.

"It will be readily seen that any undue interference with the business on the part of local authorities would be a serious matter and of far more than local importance.

"With the approval of the Bishops of the Church and the active assistance of the clergy, I have carried on a religious and educational work for the past twenty years amongst showpeople.

"I claim to know them and their life from the inside, and it is because I know them to be industrious and God-fearing citizens that I venture to champion their cause whenever they are unjustly attacked.

"Trusting that this matter in the light of this communication will be put in its proper perspective, and that exaggerated local prejudice may not prevail against the greater claims of tolerance and charity.—I am, gentlemen, yours ever, for God and for good, "T. Horne."

The Earl of Onslow and Nomad Life.

We quote from the Daily Telegraph of a recent date the following paragraph :—

"'GIPSY' NUISANCE.

"Earl of Onslow's Offer.

"The Earl of Onslow has written a letter to the Surrey Advertiser relative to the nomad vandwellers, whose conduct has been a matter of considerable complaint in Surrey. Lord Onslow points out that the lord of the manor is the only person who has a right to warn these people—'who retain none of the picturesqueness or interest of the old Romany'—off the roadsides and common land on which they camp, and as he has little or no enclosed property adjoining the wastes of which he is lord of the manor it is not worth his while to pay anyone to 'move them on.' He has delegated his powers to the Guildford Rural District Council, but the officials are fully occupied with other duties.

"'It would seem,' his lordship continues, 'that the proper officers to discharge these duties in the interests of the security of property and of good order are the police, but we know that in Surrey their hands are exceptionally full, and I am informed that they have declined to undertake any duties which the law has not expressly put upon them, nor to act unless accompanied by the representative of the lord of the manor.

"My object in addressing you is to say that I am quite willing to invest with the necessary authority some person or persons resident near each of my commons who has a material stake in the neighbourhood, and who, suffering from the nuisance, is willing to undertake the duty.

"Parliament last session recognised in the Children's Act the necessity of taking drastic measures to see that the children of these nomads are no longer brought up, as heretofore, without any education, while to the adjoining county of Middlesex have been given special and extraordinary powers to deal with them. I have ascertained that other lords of manors in the county, including the Lord Lieutenant, the Earl of Lovelace, Lord Farrer, J. Evelyn, Esq., and H. C. Lee Steere, Esq., are willing to adopt a similar course If any interested in this matter is willing to assist, perhaps he would kindly communicate with Viscount Cranley, Clandon Park, Guildford."

The Showmen's Guild on the Question.

The Rev. T. Horne, apprehending that there would be the usual confusion of thought with regard to gipsy life and showmen vandwellers, has written the following letter to the London Press :—

"The Committee of the Showmen's Guild have considered the letter written to the Surrey Advertiser by Lord Onslow with regard to the alleged nuisance of gipsy encampments.

"During the past twenty years the organised showmen have been engaged in an extremely important work, a work that evidently is not yet finished, to enlighten the governing classes, and, indeed, in a large measure, the general public, on the question of van-dwellers who are legitimate entertainers and traders, and van-dwellers and tent-dwellers who are Romany or gipsy.

"The Bill promoted by Lord Clifford of Chudleigh, and now awaiting Committee in the House of Lords, is a striking example of the lack of accurate knowledge on the part of legislators dealing with show and van life.

"On behalf of the organised showmen of Great Britain I state again for the 10,000th time that a showman is not a gipsy—that there is not even a strain of gipsy life in showland.

"With regard to nomad children, the Executive Council of the Showmen's Guild, when the Children's Bill was before Parliament, made it clear to the Government that showmen as a class heartily approved of the educational clauses of that Bill as it affected child life.

"To return to Lord Onslow's communication to the Surrey Advertiser, I venture to remind his lordship that there is an exhaustive report (a departmental report) of the Home Office dealing with gipsy life. I think that Lord Onslow and others who wish for more drastic legislation to penalise gipsies would do well to study that report.

"Whilst I am not at all concerned with the problem of gipsy life (running counter, as it does, to all our later developments of local government) I think it is well for legislators to get to the bottom facts and to reject all romancist or fanciful tales of gipsy life, and to know the gipsy as he is.

"It is a remarkable commentary on the promoters of such legislation as the Movable Dwellings Bill that the promoters definitely refused to embody an exemption clause removing the stigma and disgrace of the legislation from the legitimate traders and show people, who do not squat down on either the waste lands or the commons of the country, but regularly travel from place to place (from fair to fair) in pursuit of an ancient and honourable craft that has grown with the growth of the nation.

"As the spokesman for the showmen I am ready to prove that they are itinerant traders and amusement caterers, and not squatters on common lands. I am also ready to prove that the children of show people are educated, and that, in almost every case, until they have passed the required standard, they do not travel with the show, but remain at the permanent home of their parents. I am also prepared to prove that the domestic and the moral life and character of the showmen are as good as that of any other class in the community.

"It is not true that the showman is an outlaw. It is true that the Public Health Acts and Notification of Infectious Disease Act, the sanitary laws of the land, apply with equal vigour and rigour to the movable home of the showman as to the fixed home of the town dweller.—Yours for God and for good, "Thomas Horne.

"Showmen's Guild,
5, Tavistock-street, W.C."

Why Not Deal Fairly with Showmen?

We again approach the promoters of the Movable Dwellings Bill and ask them to consider the just claims of travelling showmen. It is no fanciful objection, but a real dread, that animates the showman when he opposes class legislation having reference to van life. Upon a recent occasion we stood upon the roadway watching the erection of the various shows, roundabouts, and other concerns at Barnet Fair. Our neighbour also engrossed in observing the showmen at work was a sergeant of the county police. Without any leading on our part, the sergeant of police opened up a conversation, with this remarkable and staggering statement: "What a lot of gipsies, to be sure!" We replied, "Do you know, officer, that if you searched from end to end of the whole line of shows, roundabouts, and stalls that you would not find a single gipsy?"

We speak that we do know from inside knowledge of show life, and we must express our astonishment that an officer of police holding the rank that you do should not know the difference between gipsy vans and show vans, gipsy tents and show booths.

What would be the result if the Movable Dwellings Bill became law?

We did not choose the particular officer, and we take it that he was just the average sergeant of police.

Lord Clifford of Chudleigh proposes that its entire administration should be handed over to the police. It may well be imagined that the police vested with these extraordinary powers would confuse vans of all kinds, and in order to be on the safe side would feel it their duty to be as officious and inquisitorial with the showman van-dweller as with the undoubted gipsy.

The Triumph of Peace at Penzance.

In the great haste of getting the extremely important news of the peaceful settlement at Penzance to our readers in our last issue, we were not able to deal with the matter as fully as its importance deserved. Far and away the most important points are those that do not appear on the surface of the official report. There is just a brief allusion to the exceedingly valuable concessions which the Corporation have very readily (on the suggestion of the Guild) given to the showmen.

It has been the custom not to allow the showpeople to draw on the ground until late in the evening of the day before the fair.

Instead of being permitted to draw upon their appointed places on arrival in the town they have had to find lodgment for several hours in yards or in side streets until such time as it pleased the Corporation to allow them to draw on to the fairground. Besides the annoyance and humiliation of this there was the importance of the loss of business on the opening day of the fair.

First-class shows and roundabouts of to-day cannot be built up in a few hours, and the result has been (as far as the big concerns are concerned) only a few hours' business was possible on the opening night.

Under the new agreement all the concerns will be permitted to draw on the ground and to build up (undertaking, of course, not to open until the legal fair day) on the eve of Corpus Christi. The concerns, big and little, will be now able to build in comfort on the Tuesday and open on the Wednesday in the early afternoon, and thus practically the business facilities will be extended and all irritating elements of friction eliminated.

The Second Important Concession.

Hardly less valuable than the first is the new rule with regard to pulling down and drawing off the fairground. There appears to have been strong objections to the shows leaving the town on Sunday in the middle of the day. We understand that the rule was to lock the gates of the fairground at ten o'clock, so that no concern could leave the ground after that time.

This was an exceedingly irksome restriction, and involved all night labour to the employées of the larger concerns. It meant that everybody about the show or roundabout, at the end of an exhausting Saturday's hard work, without any time to snatch an hour's rest, had to set to work and pull down and pack up to get clear of the gates before locking-up time on the Sunday morning. The next fair on the circuit commences on Tuesday, and it happens to be Falmouth, some twenty-five miles away, and the journey is over a hard and toilsome road for both animals and men.

It will be seen how hard and irksome were the restrictions as to leaving the ground. The agreement arrived at was—that the showmen undertook not to give offence by parading their caravans through the streets of Penzance when the good people were going to either church or chapel, but to leave the town (those who could before church time and those who could not between morning and evening church time), so as to disturb the Sabbath as little as possible.

It was the discussion of these matters and the mutual desire on both sides to arrive at an amicable understanding that brought both the Corporation and the organised showmen into closer touch and understanding. Indeed, the importance of this understanding is so great that the money paid by way of damages is the best-spent money possible, because it has led to a concordat of enduring peace.

The local paper the Cornishman has the following interesting note on the question under the heading :—

PENZANCE POINTS.

"Hearty congratulations both to the showmen and our sagacious Town Council on settling their Corpus Christi Fair dispute happily and without recourse to law. This is a triumph of diplomacy and common sense, and will be hailed with satisfaction by the burgesses and the juveniles, to whom the annual and ancient three days' fair means so much. It will be remembered that the point in dispute was whether the showmen or any private individual had the legal right to hold a fair in opposition to, or as a substitute for, the fair or fairs granted to the Corporation of Penzance under their charter. Last year, owing to the unwillingness or inability of the showmen to pay the revised rates demanded for the use of the Recreation Ground, the showmen went on strike, and took a field at Heamoor, where they held what was nominally a fête or carnival, but which was actually as much of the time-honoured fair as they could transplant to the field owned by Col. Bolitho, and of which Mr. White is the tenant. The Corporation felt that they must have their charter rights not only defined, but defended, and that failing the payment of compensation for the infringement of such rights, they must carry the case into Court. Happily, they acted in the spirit of Mr. Stead's motto, 'Arbitrate before you go to war'; only instead of arbitrating they held a powwow in their wigwam and came to an amicable arrangement with regard to their past trouble and future programme. So all's well that ends well.

"The showmen acted wisely in sending as their deputation the Rev. T. Horne, chaplain of the Showmen's Guild, Miss Hancock, Mr. Geoffrey Norton, the showpeople's friend, and Messrs. Rowland and Brewer, two of the leading showmen. Not the least efficient of the deputation was Miss Hancock, but whether she 'fixed them with her glittering eye,' or persuaded them with her eloquent tongue, I cannot say, for the conference was strictly private, if not confidential. There can be no harm in announcing the terms in due course, but, after all, these do not matter so much as the cessation of the quarrel and the restoration of the most popular showmen's fair in Cornwall."

Many points of deep interest to showmen in general have some out in the course of the negotiations for peace at Penzance. Amongst these is the better treatment by Corporations of showmen when asking for information as to the extent of the powers claimed by the local authority. We hold strongly (and we press the point home to other Corporations) that the powers they possess should be plainly shown (at least on request) by the proper officials. When in the earlier stages of the dispute the Guild officials asked to see the Charter—a most simple and obvious request—they were met by merely technical and vexatious difficulties. They were told to apply by formal letter to the Corporation through the Town Clerk, and that in due course their request would receive consideration. The matter is now at an end, and there is no mystery about the Charter, for its material clauses are set out in the statement of claim—and we printed them in full last week. Our query is: Why should Corporations possessing such powers hide away the sources of their strength from the very people whom it most concerns.

The Showmen Sinned in Ignorance.

We are quite sure that had the West of England showmen known the strength and power of the Penzance Charter they would not have taken the precipitate action they did. We are also sure that Mr. White would not have risked the letting of his field at Heamoor had he known the extent of the Charter powers.

We are supposing the case in the light of fuller knowledge (knowledge that every burgess has a right to obtain freely). Would any of the defendants have acted in the way they did had they been in possession of the jealously-guarded secrets of the Charter? Certainly one could ultimately get at them; but the showman is a man of rapid travel, and he cannot wait for formalities to be got through, and certainly property owners ought to have immediate and full knowledge of their possible risks.

The Claim of the Corporation.

It is, as we have already admitted, a big monopoly that the Corporation "by prescription and by divers Letters Patent and in particular by the Letters Patent hereinafter in this paragraph mentioned entitled to and possessed of a Fair or Mart holden in the Borough of Penzance on the Eve of the Day of Corpus Christi and the two days following—By Letters Patent dated the 9th day of May in the twelfth year of the reign of His Majesty James I. being the Letters Patent hereinbefore particularly referred to his said Majesty granted to the Mayor Aldermen and Commonalty of the Vill of Penzance and to their successors (inter alia) that they and their successors hereafter for ever have hold and keep and shall be able to have hold and keep within the aforesaid Vill of Penzance and within the liberties and precincts of the same yearly and every year for ever seven Fairs or Marts therein particularly mentioned the first of the same Fairs or Marts to be holden continue and last on the Eve and Feast or Day commonly called the Body of Christ's Day together with Courts of Pie Powdre there to be holden at the time of the said Fairs or Marts from time to time for ever with all liberties and free customs tolls stallages piccages fines amerciaments and all other profits commodities advantages and emoluments whatsoever to such Fairs or Marts and Courts of Pie Powdre appertaining arising happening accruing or in any manner belonging and further his said Majesty did grant and confirm to the aforesaid Mayor and Commonalty of the Vill of Penzance aforesaid and their successors all and all manner of liberties franchises immunities privileges profits easements pre-eminences commodities advantages customs rights jurisdictions emoluments and exemption whatsoever which the inhabitants of the vill aforesaid then had held used and enjoyed or ought to have had held used or enjoyed by reason or pretext of any gift grant or confirmation theretofore had made or granted by his said Majesty or by either of his progenitors or ancestors late Kings or Queens of England or by reason or pretext of any prescription use title right or custom theretofore had used or enjoyed or holden."

"Within the liberties and precincts of the same"—

We interpret this to mean the seven miles radius so much talked about during the dispute. How, it may be asked, is the seven miles' limit read into the wording of the Charter? The great authority is Blackstone, and he says :—

"Fairs and Markets, with the tolls belonging to them, can only be set up by virtue of the Royal grant, or by long and immemorial usage and prescription, which presupposes such a grant. The limitation of such public resorts to such times and such places as may be most convenient for the neighbourhood forms a part of economics or domestic policy which, considering the kingdom as a large family and the Sovereign as the master of it, he clearly has a right to dispose and order as he pleases."

"Again, a man may have a right to hold a Fair or Market either by Royal grant or prescription from which a Royal grant may be presumed to have been at some time conferred."

"The right to take toll is usually (though not necessarily) a part of the privilege; and the tolls of a Fair or Market are due either in respect of goods sold there (that is from the seller, not the buyer), or for stallage, or pickage, or the like, in respect of stalls or polls fixed in the soil."

"If I am entitled to hold a fair or market, and another person sets up a fair or market so near mine that he does me a prejudice, it is a nuisance to the freehold which I have in my market or fair. But in order to make this out to be a nuisance it is necessary (1) that my market or fair be the elder, otherwise the nuisance lies at my own door; (2) that the market be erected within the third part of twenty miles from mine. Sir M. Hale confirms the dieta or reasonable day's journey mentioned by Bracton to be twenty miles; as, indeed, it is usually understood, not only in our own law, but also in the civil law, from which we probably borrowed it. So that if the new Fair or Market be not within seven miles of the old one it is no nuisance, for it held reasonable that every man should have a market within one-third of a day's journey from his own home: that the day, being divided into three parts, he may spend one part in going, another in returning, and the third in transacting his necessary business there. If such Market or Fair be on the same day as mine, it is prima facie a nuisance to mine, and there needs no proof of it, but the law will intend it to be so; but if any other day it may be a nuisance, but of this there must be proof."

OLDHAM CORPORATION AND THE GUILD.

The following correspondence has taken place between the Guild Chaplain (the Rev. T. Horne), acting as official organiser for the Showmen's Trade Protection Society, and the Town Clerk of Oldham (Mr. J. H. Hallsworth). The first letter was a request that the Corporation should receive a deputation.

"The Guild Offices,
"5, Tavistock-street, Strand, W.C.

"Gentlemen,—The Committee of the Guild have had before them and have fully considered the additional powers clauses in your new Bill. They respectfully point out :

"(1) That in recent years the Private Bills Committee have invariably thrown out such clauses on our petition.

"That in the Halifax Corporation Bill similar powers to those you are seeking were thrown out; also that in the Rotherham Corporation Bill the Corporation upon a representation from us withdrew like clauses.

"We do not desire to enter upon opposition to your Bill by petition and counsel until we have exhausted all possible means of conciliation.

"(2) We ask you to receive a small deputation, consisting of our president, Mr. P. Collins (a tenant of your Fair on Tommyfield), Mr. T. Hurst, hon. secretary (also a tenant of your fairground), and myself, the official organiser and chaplain of the Guild.

"Fix a date, say, Feb. 9 or 10, or suggest another date more suitable to you, and we will meet you and explain our position.

"(3) I have to forward you the following resolutions passed at our annual gatherings in Manchester and in London :—

"Resolution I. : 'That this meeting of showmen protests against the proposed monopoly of Fairs clauses in the Private Bill of the Oldham Corporation, and it pledges itself to take all possible means to defeat the reactionary proposals of the Corporation, manifestly aimed at the principle of free trade in fairs.'—Passed at the Memorial Hall, Albert-square, Manchester, Jan. 13, 1909.

"Resolution II. : 'That this annual meeting of delegates of the Showmen's Guild, drawn from all parts of the United Kingdom, protests against the Oldham Corporation Bill asking for a monopoly of fairs in the borough boundary.'—Passed at the World's Fair, Islington, Jan. 20, 1909.

"Awaiting a reply, yours faithfully,
"T. Horne.

"To the Mayor and Corporation of Oldham."

"OLDHAM CORPORATION BILL. MARKETS AND FAIRS.

"Jan. 27, 1909.

"Dear Sir,—I have to acknowledge the receipt of your letter dated the 23rd instant (but only received here yesterday) upon the above subject.

"I am seeing the Chairman of our Markets Committee thereon, and will write you further in due course.—Yours faithfully,
"J. H. Hallsworth, Town Clerk.

"Rev. T. Horne, Organiser to the Showmen's Guild, care of The Era, 5, Tavistock-street, Strand, London, W.C."

The Guild Mediation Accepted.

"Town Hall, Oldham, Jan. 30, 1909.

"Dear Sir,—Adverting to your letter of the 23rd inst., I have now consulted the Chairman of our Markets Committee, and wired you this morning that the Committee would receive a deputation from the Showmen's Guild on Thursday next, the 4th prox. at 4 p.m.

"I shall be glad to hear from you as early as possible whether your deputation can make it convenient to attend at the time fixed.—Yours faithfully,

"J. H. Hallsworth, Town Clerk.

"Rev. T. Horne, Organiser to the Showmen's Guild, care of The Era, 5, Tavistock-street, Strand, London, W.C."

The Guild Chaplain replied, thanking the Town Clerk for his good offices in the matter, and intimating that the deputation as indicated in his first letter—P. Collins, President; T. Hurst, Secretary; and himself, as the Organiser—would wait upon the Markets and Fairs Committee at the place and time indicated.

Free Trade in Fairs Threatened.

When in the bad old times of the last two centuries several of the great towns of England gave up their old Charter Fairs, one of the things they lost was the Monopoly Rights secured under the Royal Grant or Charter. The case at Penzance is an example in point. Penzance never having broken their charter or abolished their fair still hold a valuable monopoly—the right to prevent a fair or mart on private land within seven miles of the centre of Penzance.

The Value of Ancient Charters.

Exactly what the Corporation of Oldham wants to obtain by a special Act of Parliament Penzance enjoys by Royal Grant. Parliament has for years past steadily refused to grant monopoly rights that are obviously in restraint of trade and that patently invade the rights of private property. There is another reason that does not appear on the surface of things. Such trade monopoly by charter or Royal grant is a prerogative of the Crown, and Parliament is extremely cautious in dealing with matters that can only be dealt with properly by the Sovereign acting in accordance with the advice of his Ministers for the time being.

Halifax Failed to Obtain a Monopoly of Fair Rights.

Section 72, part XI., 2 Edward VII., Sess. 1902, sought to obtain a monopoly of fair rights within the largely extended boundaries of the Borough of Halifax in these words :—

"If any person shall, without the licence in writing of the Corporation, on any land belonging or reputed to belong to or occupied by him in any part of the Borough hold or permit to be held any fair he shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding twenty pounds, and to a daily penalty not exceeding five pounds."

The Clause Struck Out.

In the amended Bill as passed by Parliament this and other restrictive clauses affecting the show business were, on the petition and opposition of the Showmen's Guild, thrown out, and the Halifax Corporation Act, 2 Edward VII., Session 1902, as it now stands on the Statute Book, is without such powers.

Rotherham Corporation Sought the Same Monopoly Powers.

Section 164 of the Rotherham Corporation Bill, 4 Edward VII., Session 1904, asked for powers "to prescribe the places within the borough and the hours within which during any fair or at any other time any show booth, caravan, circus, or exhibition may be held and kept open, and for preserving order therein." It was extremely gratifying to the Guild executive officers to find, as they did, that upon a proper representation the Rotherham Corporation dropped this section out of their Bill

The amenability of the Corporation to listen to the showmen was due in a large measure to the fact that Rotherham, like Hull, Gloucester, King's Lynn, and a score of other towns, has recognised that public opinion is behind the claim of the showman for fair play and justice.

What Oldham is Asking For.

Section 109 of the Oldham Bill seeks to obtain a full monopoly within the borough of both market and fair rights. The wording of the section is explicit and to the purpose :

"If any person shall without the licence of the Corporation on any land belonging to or reputed to belong to or occupied by him in any part of the borough hold or permit to be held any market or fair he shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding fifty pounds and to a daily penalty not exceeding ten pounds."

Monopoly With a Vengeance.

The all-devouring maw of local authorities never received a more apt illustration. The twenty pounds penalty of the Halifax demand is increased to fifty pounds and the daily penalty from five pounds to ten pounds.

The Work of the Guild Deputation.

To endeavour to show the Markets and Fairs Committee of the Oldham Corporation (1) the reactionary and restrictive nature of their demands; (2) Failing to obtain the dropping of the section from the Bill (at least, so far as affects fairs, with a definition clause safeguarding existing suburban wakes held within the extended borough boundaries) to make it quite clear that the organised showmen will use all constitutional means to defeat the measure, by petition and by counsel and witnesses against it.

Our Hope and Expectation.

Considering the past decisions of the Private Bills Committees, we confidently expect that wise counsels will prevail, and that the triumph of peace at Penzance last week will be followed by an equally satisfactory termination of the showmen's dispute with the Corporation of Oldham.

Carmarthen.

At Cowell's Phœnix Theatre, at the Carmarthen Pleasure Fairground this week, an attractive programme has been presented. On Monday evening Sherlock Holmes was played; Tuesday, The Maniac's Knife; Wednesday, The Face; Thursday, Engaged; and Friday evening, Under the British Flag. For Saturday afternoon a special pantomime performance for children was announced, and for Saturday evening The Slave Hunt. Large audiences have patronised the theatre each evening.

The Bolton Press on the Guild Chaplain's Book.

"We have before us a copy of 'Humorous and Tragic Stories of Showman Life,' the author of which is the Rev. Thomas Horne, chaplain to the Showmen's Guild, a well-organised association formed in the general interests of that most extensive body of itinerating public entertainers who have been largely represented at the Bolton Fairs one might almost say from time immemorial. That there is a good deal of mystery and romance among these nomadic people who come periodically to bring a transient enlivenment into the cities and towns of the country is undoubtedly true, and this has been Mr. Horne's opportunity to compile within the compass of a sixpenny publication a series of storyettes based on occurrences both humorous, pathetic, and tragic in the lives of these people. It is as it were a glimpse behind the scenes in Showland wherein one obtains pictures of life, little character studies, and reminiscences of the famous shows of bygone days, such as Wombwell's, Pablo Fanque's, Mander's, Williams', &c., which Mr. Horne has picked up in his intimate and useful association with the showpeople as their chaplain, and, indeed, one might say their 'guide, philosopher, and friend,' for he has had an eye to their welfare in many respects. In this book he has exercised the gentle art of the storyteller to very interesting effect in thirty sketches of life and adventure. The book is issued from The Era Publishing Offices, London."

Showman and President.

A showman named Atlas, of Bridgeport, Connecticut, the winter quarters of Buffalo Bill, Pawnee Bill, and Barnum and Bailey, has written to President Roosevelt offering him an engagement for thirty weeks at £2,000 weekly, to head a Wild West show to be named "Atlas's Amazing Aggregation of Roosevelt Roughriders." There is no limit to the resourcefulness, enterprise, and ambition of American showmen, and I do not share the view that Atlas has written merely for the sake of an advertisement. Atlas recollects that Mr. Roosevelt has signed an agreement to act as associate editor of an American magazine, and he thoughtfully adds in his letter to the President: "I will gladly fit up several special cars so that you can pursue your literary activities en route." Once Atlas had the privilege of wrestling with President Roosevelt, when the latter was Police Commissioner in New York, and he believes that the President may consider his offer.

Salisbury.

The Old Gaol Ground.—Haines's grand variety of amusements and galloping-horses, which have been open nightly from the beginning of December, still provide plenty of amusement. A special feature is the illumination of electric light every evening. This ground which, for so many years, has been closed to showmen, is now a central and spacious walled-in space.

FILM GOSSIP.

Showmen and Managers throughout the United Kingdom, and in every English-speaking country, will find in this column particulars of some of the best and newest Films in the Market. Many of these Films we have seen ourselves, and can confidently recommend showmen to add them to their list of attractions.

Pathé Frères.

A WONDERFUL OUTPUT.—More than the diameter of the earth is the length of film which represents the yearly output of Pathé Frères. Eighty miles per diem has been their actual output, representing in 313 working days 25,040 miles. This is not enough to meet their customers' demands, so the daily output is to be 100 miles, or 31,300 miles per annum, enough film to reach through the earth to the Antipodes.

PORTRAIT OF THE KING AND QUEEN.—Messrs. Pathé Frères have just issued a really beautiful photograph of King Edward and Queen Alexandra in film length which should be in great request at music hall and showmen's entertainments. The price of it is 15s.

THE WITCH'S DONKEY.—A faithful little donkey has been stolen by highwaymen, and its mistress, an old witch, has been bound to a tree with ropes. In spite of the donkey's reluctance to follow them, which it shows in the kicks it deals to right and left, the highwaymen drag it to their den and tie it to an iron ring in the wall. The witch appears in a flame, and in order to mystify the robbers she drops a note containing these lines, "In one of the hind hoofs of the donkey is the key to a large treasure." The men by turn try to possess themselves of the key, but the brave little donkey kicks furiously and shows its teeth. It is impossible for any one of them to come near it. Suddenly the pads find themselves locked in an iron cage. One of their accomplices who has just come to their rescue is bound up with ropes, whilst the donkey avails itself of the ensuing confusion to snap its chain and return to its mistress, who welcomes it warmly.

MISS TROTT THE MILLINER.—Young and charming Miss Trott, a milliner, is on her way to a customer, to whom she has a hat to deliver. In the street she is surrounded by a crowd of mashers, but Miss Trott, like a sprightly fairy, disappears into her huge hat-box, to the astonishment of her admirers. The box rolls along, and changes into a quantity of smaller ones. The men chase them as fast as they can, and at last they succeed in securing the large one, which has swallowed up the others. They open it and find—a hat inside. They throw it down with rage, and in its place Miss Trott appears, laughing at them while she runs away.

THE MISER.—This is an exceedingly interesting dramatic series. At St. Jean-Pied-de-Port, while taking a walk in the mountains or along the river Nive, in the south of France, two young peasants pledge their faith and become engaged to each other. Their designs are thwarted by the boy's father, who, being a miser, refuses him the necessary money for buying himself a farm. There follow scenes of thrilling realism, where the avaricious father defends his gold with a wild energy, and eventually hides it in a hole dug at the bottom of the calvary. His wife, having surprised his secret, and unable to stand her son's grief, steals the gold. The miser, finding out the theft, is so angry that he tries to strangle his wife. Their son, attracted by the noise, hastens to the spot, and restores the gold to the old man, who clutches it with frenzy. Suddenly his eyes become fixed, and he dies in a fit of madness.

OLIVER CROMWELL.—Here we get a story based on events connected with the Civil War. There is a gathering at Whitehall. Alarming news has just been received that the Roundheads are gaining in strength every hour against the Cavaliers. It is urgent that the Royal Family should leave London. Queen Henrietta is preparing to sail for Holland, while Charles I. takes command of the Cavaliers. In Cromwell's camp the Parliamentarian leader's daughter entreats her father to abandon the struggle against their King, but he will not renounce his cause, and he orders his daughter to leave the camp. Elizabeth goes away. On her way she finds the body of a Cavalier killed during the battle. She hesitates at first, then she exchanges her dress for the dead man's garments, and going to the King she offers him her services. The King is pleased with the young Cavalier's appearance, and gives him a horse. The Cavaliers are vanquished at the Battle of Naseby. On the point of being overtaken by the Roundheads, about a dozen Cavaliers stop and offer up their lives in order that their King may escape. Danger is still very near in spite of the gallant soldiers' sacrifice. The unknown Cavalier entreats the King to let him exchange his own garment for that of the King, who refuses. At last, being pressed by all, he resigns his royal cloak and hat to the boy, who, having put them on, takes his horse by the bridle and waits for the enemy, while the King and his followers run away. Cromwell's partisans arrive, and the seeming King makes a show to try and flee; he is overtaken, however, and Cromwell recognises with amazement his own daughter Elizabeth in this guise. While he hesitates between his love for her and his duty one of the soldiers rushes towards the girl with his dagger in his lifted hand. Cromwell comes forward, and smashes the man's wrist, while another man searches the King's cloak, and finds in it papers which will be the cause of his downfall and death a few years later. After this the Scots, having offered Charles hospitality, the King goes to Newcastle, but eventually the Scots deliver the King up into the hands of his enemies. "I would rather," says the King, "be in the power of those who have bought me for a roundly sum than in the hands of those who have so cowardly sold me." The King is sentenced to death. After reading his judgment, a girl throws herself at his feet, weeping. The King recognises in her the gallant Cavalier of Naseby. He draws her to him, and kisses her with great emotion. On Jan. 30, 1649, the King is beheaded outside Whitehall.

DUST IN HIS EYES.—A young man is walking along, with his hands deep in his pockets, when a house-porter sends a cloud of dust into his eyes in beating his carpet. This prevents the young fellow from seeing things in front of him clearly, and he becomes the laughing-stock of everybody in the street. He collides with a bricklayer, and receives the contents of a hod on his back. Then he upsets a house decorator's ladder, pulls down some scaffolding, &c., until a scavenger gives him a free douche which takes all the dust from his eyes.

Gaumont Company.

A MEDITERRANEAN TRAGEDY.—A little boy on his way to school finds an infant abandoned on the steps of a house. He takes the child home to his mother and she decides to adopt it. Twenty years pass, and the young man has fallen in love with the girl, and the two set off travelling with a tambourine and accordion to earn a living. They fall in with a band of gipsies, and after performing before them one of the girls makes violent love to the young traveller. He explains he is already engaged to his young companion, at which the gipsy becomes jealous and makes up her mind to remove her rival. She tells one of the men to take two packets of cigarettes out of her own bundle and place them inside the girl's. This having been done the travellers depart. At the frontier they are questioned by the police as to whether they have anything to declare, and answer "No." On searching the valise the cigarettes are found, and the girl is locked up. The man goes home alone and explains things to his mother. While smoking outside his home the gipsy passes and recognises him. Again he refuses to listen to her, and she stabs him. He is assisted home and the gipsy throws the knife into the sea. The crime is brought home to her. When she sees the other girl being led between two policemen, and after explaining the plot, confessing the murder, she is led away, the girl being released.

SCENES IN NORTHERN ITALY.—In this picture we are introduced to some of the lovely views for which North Italy is famous. At the frontier we see the police examining everything which passes for contrabrand, the mail-coach included. The series concludes with a view of the Paris-Rome Express crossing one of the gorges.

RICH AND POOR.—A party of beggars are slowly toiling along the dusty road when a lady and a gentleman drive past. The request for a copper is unheeded, and a young man of the party turns and follows the carriage. Shortly afterwards the lady returns alone and, seeing the wretched party, takes pity on them. Making them enter the carriage, they proceed to her house, where good food and clothes are provided. Meanwhile the gentleman has been followed by the beggar, and on entering his garden is struck down from behind. The rest of the party hear the cry for help and rush down. After the struggle has been stopped the young man is ashamed to find that he has attempted to rob the husband of the woman who has taken compassion on his family.

"WHERE IS MY WANDERING BOY TO-NIGHT?"—This is a question often asked in the quiet evening hour by loving mothers the world over. "Happy he with such a mother! Faith in womankind beats with his blood, and trust in all things high comes easy to him; and though he trip and fall, he shall not bind his soul with clay." This is the kind of mother our young hero is blessed with and leaves behind when he goes to start on his business career in the great city far away. Wishing him every success, his boyhood's sweetheart turns to his mother for consolation. Arrived in the great city the loneliness is appalling, and although he sees new faces and makes new friends he has no mother to counsel or warn him. Inexperienced and light-hearted, he is overcome by temptation, but a mother's prayer saves him from a felon's cell. For the youth from the simple country fireside the city is like a huge machine, knowing neither pity nor remorse, and life is an unequal fight. We find our hero indulging in a supper with boon companions, and in the midst of the revelry a telegram for him arrives. One of his jealous lady friends snatches this away, he laughingly pursues her, but all gaiety ceases when he reads of the death of his mother. His companions are now dumb. Going back to his old home he finds friends tried and true, and he gets sympathy in his sweetheart's presence when the "Wanderer" returns.

DRAWING THE COLOUR-LINE.—Mr. Jack being in a happy condition, before going home journeys to his club to enjoy a nap. Being found by some gay members they decide, for a joke, to blacken his face. Awakening, he starts for home, making sundry calls on the way. He is surprised when requested to make himself "scarce," but more so when he is thrown out. A driver refuses to accept him as a fare, friends do not return his well-meant salutes, and when he attempts to speak to some lady friends their male escort sweeps the road with Mr. Jack. When he arrives home and his own child refuses to recognise or have any dealings with him he thinks his evil star pursues him still. He is no wiser when the cook, taking him for a kidnapper, sets about him with the broom. At sight of him his wife faints, and poor Jack looks in a fair way to land in a lunatic asylum when he espies himself in a mirror carried by a furniture remover. The mystery solved, he is able to remove all traces of the "colour-line," and peace and happiness reign upon his return to his own fireside.

CINEMATOGRAPH IN THE LIGHT.—A new form of cinematograph (says the Morning Leader), invented by a Frenchman, which enables the performance to be given in a fully-lighted hall, should have the effect of revolutionising moving-picture entertainments. The first exhibition of this machine in England was given at the Electric Palace, Marble-arch, on Thursday. In spite of the fact that the hall was brilliant with light, the pictures were as bright and clear as could be desired. The machine works automatically, and the light is thrown from behind the screen instead of from the front, as is the case with the ordinary cinematograph.

MESSRS. FULLER, of the New Zealand theatres, write:—"We buy our films from England from the descriptions which appear each week in the 'Film Gossip.'"

ATTACHMENT AND JUDGMENT.

The case of the London Music Hall v. Kitts and Windrum, London Coliseum garnishee, which was before Deputy Judge Bevan in the Westminster County Court on Monday, was a dispute in reference to the right to salary earned by defendants at the London Coliseum, the London Music Hall having obtained judgment against Kitts and Windrum for £10 damages for breach of agreement in October last. That was not satisfied, and they sought to garnishee their salary at the London Coliseum.

The evidence of a witness from the Coliseum was taken to the effect that Kitts and Windrum performed at the Coliseum for one week, starting Nov. 30 last. The money would be due after the twelfth performance.

Mr. Victor Vowler, clerk to Mr. Henry Wills, solicitor to the judgment debtors, Kitts and Windrum, gave evidence that the notice was served as to the garnishee on the Thursday before the week's performance concluded, and satisfied the judge that the garnishees were not then before him. They had told him that they were going to appear and dispute the attachment.

The Judge remarked: "How can I make an order in the absence of the garnishees, as I am only concerned with the garnishees and the judgment creditors?" The witness pointed out to the judge that it was the garnishees' intention to appear and support the judgment debtors in their contention. In the result the judge decided to proceed.

Mr. Martin O'Connor, counsel for the judgment debtors, cited several cases in support of his contention that the evidence before the Court proved his case, that the judgment debtors were entitled to their salary, the notice having been served on the Thursday, which was a date at which the salary had not been earned. Salary could not be garnisheed before it was due.

Having heard Mr. Chisman, counsel for the judgment creditors, the deputy judge found in favour of the judgment debtors, with costs.

AT the recent Covent Garden ball Mr. W. Clarkson was successful in taking first prize for a costume called "She sells sea-shells."

THE L.C.C. AND AMUSEMENTS.

The usual weekly meeting of the London County Council was held yesterday at the County Hall, Spring Gardens.

CINEMATOGRAPH SHOWS.

The Education Committee brought up a report stating that they had considered a memorandum from the Theatres and Music Halls Committee respecting the use of schools for cinematograph displays in connection with an application for the hire of a school for this purpose. In view of the danger attending displays of this nature, the Education Committee were of opinion that a clause should be inserted in the regulations for the letting of schools to the effect that the schools of the Council were not available for cinematograph entertainments, and they recommended accordingly.

Mr. Walter Reynolds moved an amendment to refer the matter back to the Committee in order that they might consider whether cinematograph shows could be held in schools under proper regulations such as the Council required for premises which held the Council's music hall or theatre licences. He said he should be very sorry if the public were deprived of the educational advantages which could be derived from cinematograph exhibitions. He hoped to live long enough to see every school and college in the country in possession of a cinematograph. He did not think the Council properly realised the possibilities of the cinematograph; its teaching possibilities were boundless. Bible stories could be illustrated and also history, which could by this means be made as attractive and entertaining to children as a play, making an impression on their memories that would never be effaced. He therefore asked the chairman of the committee whether he could not modify the recommendation so as to allow cinematograph exhibitions to be given in schoolrooms provided the Council's regulations were carefully observed. The danger from fire could be met by the cinematograph house being placed outside the room in which the exhibition was given, or by the compulsory adoption of a film which for all practicable purposes was non-inflammable. This would make the risk from fire infinitesimal.

Dr. Forman seconded the amendment.

Mr. Cyril Jackson said that they wanted to adopt a working rule until it was found that cinematograph pictures could be shown free from danger from fire. Then there would be no difficulty in bringing up another recommendation with regard to cinematograph exhibitions in schools.

The amendment was lost, and the recommendation adopted.

THE boom in roller-skating is very active in Birmingham. There, in Monument-road, a large and fine building, yclept the American Roller Skating Rink, has been erected, and is thronged night and day with sightseers as well as participators in this healthy form of recreation. The promoters, Messrs. Crawford and Wilkins, have in Mr. H. E. Weaver a resident-manager who is very much alive to the possibilities of the "boom," and he has some attractive entries for the great International Mile Roller Race for the Championship of the World on Feb. 10, 11, and 12. The recent carnival here was a great success. A band is engaged always, and adds, of course, to the pleasure of the exercise.

270 Replies.
Sir,—
I inserted an advertisement, asking for Music Hall Artists in the last week's issue of "The Era." May I say that I am absolutely astounded at the number of replies I received to my small advertisement, no less than 270 Artists favouring me with applications. May I by this means thank the many artists who sent in their terms, as it is impossible for me to reply to each individual. I thank all for their very kind promptitude in responding to my advertisement.
I remain, yours faithfully,
Alfred Ball.

IMPORTANT NOTICES.

RE APPLICATIONS FOR ENGAGEMENTS.

All applications by either Artists or their Agents must be made to the Head Office. Lowest terms must be stated, and distinction made between salaries required for larger and smaller towns. Vacant dates should be stated. If a list of existing bookings be sent, it will render selection easier.

Artists employing Agents should accredit one only at one time, as the friction arising when several Agents are employed at the same time, all expecting the one booking to go through each of them, often renders it expedient to avoid that booking altogether rather than give undeserved offence to several Agents.

New Acts seeking Engagements, or turns not rebooked (possibly because they have played a series of dates without introducing new business), will facilitate matters by having their acts seen by our District Managers. Their Districts and Postal Addresses are as follow :—

EDINBURGH, GLASGOW, NEWCASTLE, AND DISTRICT.
MR. S. GETHING, Empire Theatre, Glasgow.

BIRMINGHAM, NOTTINGHAM, LEICESTER, AND DISTRICT.
MR. HATTON WHARTON, Empire Theatre, Nottingham.

SOUTH WALES DISTRICT.
MR. ALBERT MITCHELL, Empire Theatre, Cardiff.

LEEDS, SHEFFIELD, HULL, BRADFORD, AND DISTRICT.
MR. T. GERALD MORTON, Empire Palace, Leeds.

LIVERPOOL, MANCHESTER, AND DISTRICT.
MR. ALBERT BULMER, The Empire, Liverpool.

LONDON DISTRICT.
MR. J. CHRISTIE, Empire Theatre, Shepherd's Bush, W.

N.B.—Mr. OSWALD STOLL or Mr. FRANK ALLEN can be seen by appointment on all matters arising out of the above, and for the discussion of entirely new Numbers.

All Artists or Agents who communicate with our District Representatives must have made definite applications, in accordance with above directions, to the Head Office, at the same time, or just previously.

Artists and Agents are requested to note that the Alexandra Theatre, Stoke Newington, Standard Theatre, Shoreditch, and the Terriss Theatre, Rotherhithe, come within the areas absolutely barred by us. Artists and Agents are also requested to note that the Hippodrome, Aston, Birmingham, comes within the area absolutely barred by the Grand Theatre and Empire Palace, Birmingham.

INSTRUCTIONS TO ARTISTS.

Artists must have at least Fourteen Band Parts for English Orchestrations, and Seventeen Band Parts for Foreign Orchestrations. Matter of Bill, Blocks, and Specimens of Pictorials FOR ALL THE ABOVE THEATRES must be sent to Co-operative Offices, at above address, THREE WEEKS before Opening, failing which Artists will run the risk of having their Engagements cancelled.

IMPORTANT.—Artists must forward Copies of Songs to the STAGE DEPARTMENT, ABOVE ADDRESS, TWO WEEKS previous to opening, with Assignments for same, which will be returned. Artists are requested to note carefully that the clause in their contracts relating to rehearsals will in future be strictly enforced. Artists' Scenery, Properties, &c., MUST be fireproofed in accordance with the regulations of the Licensing Authorities.

ARTISTS WILL CLEARLY UNDERSTAND THAT THEIR BUSINESS MUST BE FREE FROM ALL VULGARITY.

No order or contract for goods or services must be accepted for any of the foregoing theatres except upon receipt of an Official Form, issued from the Co-operative Offices, London, and signed by either Mr. Oswald Stoll, Mr. Frank Allen, or the Chief Accountant, otherwise the Company concerned will not be responsible for same, and will refuse payment. In special cases, where goods are required at once, suppliers must look to the individual placing the order, who will be personally liable, unless an official confirmatory order, signed as above, is received within forty-eight hours. Invoices must be sent to the Theatre, but monthly statements should be sent to the Co-operative Offices. The individual Company on whose behalf orders are signed is solely responsible for payment. The Management will not hold themselves responsible in the event of loss of or damage to any MSS., Songs, &c., submitted for consideration.

FILMS FOR HIRE

WHY HAVE YOU NOT CALLED ROUND?

WE ARE SURPRISED!

Are you satisfied with an inferior show? You must have a good programme and a good machine. Neither wise men, nor fools, can work without tools. Do not wait until it is too late before you buy a

DREADNOUGHT.

SLEEP EASY IN YOUR BEDS.

It is too late to give an order for a battleship when war is declared.

SHOWMEN,

Do not buy a machine because it looks pretty.

Do not purchase a machine which is rock steady when you buy it, and in a week's time is simply useless; buy a

THE BEST IS NOT TOO GOOD FOR YOU.
WE ALWAYS GIVE YOU THE BEST.

Have you ever asked yourself the question why all our customers are successful. It is because we know our business, and are successful ourselves. Our business is built up by not by swollen heads. Which is impossible. Get in touch with us immediately. Delays are dangerous. Don't think your business will run itself because you wear a gollywog.

IT WON'T.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1909.

"The Era" Annual for 1909 has doubled its size, from 122 pages in 1908 to 244, the increase being chiefly due to the publication for the first time of the full casts of new productions (including music-hall sketches) and revivals both in London and the provinces. The new feature adds greatly to the value of the annual, which has long been a recognised vade mecum of the theatrical profession. Among the contributors to "Stories Told by Well-Known People" this year are Mr. George Alexander, Mr. Martin Harvey, Mr. H. B. Irving, Mr. Albert Chevalier, Mr. Gus Elen, Mr. Willie Clarkson, and Mr. Alfred Lester.—Sunday Times, Jan. 17, 1909.

THEATRICAL ACCOUNTS
— FOR —
BUSINESS MANAGERS.
How the Affairs of a Theatre can be Most Efficiently Controlled by the Adoption of Systems of Internal Check.
By CUTHBERT E. SMEDLEY, A.C.A.
Price 3/6. Post free, 3/9.

All concerned with the business side of a theatre will find much useful information and many valuable hints in "Theatrical Accounts for Business Managers," by Mr. Cuthbert E. Smedley, published at The Era office.—Referee, Jan. 31, 1909.

"Theatrical Accounts for Business Managers," by Cuthbert E. Smedley, A.C.A. (The Era, Ltd., London, 3s. 6d.), is a most concise and comprehensive little work, calculated to prove of assistance to the theatre-manager. It shows how the affairs of a theatre can be most efficiently controlled by the adoption of systems of internal check. Specimen pages of the books to be kept are given, and the chapters treating of receipts, tours, book-keeping, and accounts, and audit will be found to contain much useful information. In the appendix is given "a form of agreement with artists for touring engagements."—Liverpool Daily Post and Mercury, Feb. 3, 1909.

"Theatrical Accounts" ("The Era," Ltd., 5, Tavistock-street, W.C.), we should say, is a very useful compilation for business managers of our places of amusement. It is practical, exact, and analytical; it should stop leakages, and needs only good houses to keep it fully employed.—Sportsman, Feb. 8, 1909.

"Theatrical Accounts." By Cuthbert E. Smedley (The Era, Ltd., 3s. 6d.). Shows how the affairs of a theatre can be most efficiently controlled by the adoption of systems of internal check. Specimen pages of the books to be kept are given. Receipts, tours, book-keeping, and accounts, audit—each is allotted a separate chapter. In the appendix is given "a form of agreement with artists for touring engagements."—Morning Post, Jan. 27, 1909.

"Theatrical Accounts for Business Managers." By Cuthbert E. Smedley, A.C.A. 3s. 6d. The Era, Ltd., 5, Tavistock-street, W.C. The work of accountants has now been brought to a fine art, and in almost every branch of business a different system has been elaborated. The present work deals in a small compass fully and clearly with all the special features of theatrical management on the business side.—Financial Times, Feb. 1, 1909.

Skeleton schemes of book-keeping, &c., with explanations, showing how the affairs of a theatre can be efficiently managed by the adoption of systems of internal check in all departments. Contains also a draft agreement as between manager and artist.—Birmingham Daily Post, Jan. 27, 1909.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

ABERAMAN.—Grand Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. A. Jackson Withers; Resident-Manager, Mr. Archie Ainsleigh. — Mr. John Gerant's company opened here on Monday night in At Duty's Call. Mr. John Gerant gives an excellent rendering of Harold Alison; Mr. Charles Calvert submits a powerful performance of Captain George Alison; as General Gordon Mr. Ernest St. John does some good work; Mr. Harry Ives is humorous as Terry O'Hallaron; Miss Beatrice Western makes an ideal Dora Drummond; Miss Ada Roscoe is to be congratulated on her performance as Salema; whilst Mary is admirably played by Miss Eva Belle. The play is well staged.

ABERDARE.—New Theatre.—Proprietors, The Aberdare Public Hall Theatre and Billposting Co., Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Z. Andrews; Acting-Manager, Mr. B. Richards.—Mr. Dickie Clarke's company is here this week in Lucky 'Liza. Mr. Dickie Clarke plays the part of Silas Slim in capital style; Mr. T. W. Benson as Peter Pettitoe is a distinct success; Mr. J. W. Forrest is very humorous as William Biffins; Mr. H. Norman H. Lee is extremely amusing as Paul Pettitoe; and Mr. Harry George is seen to advantage as Barnaby Bladderwick. Sadie Potts is most vivaciously impersonated by Miss Evelyn Wood; Miss Vesta Browne made a decided hit as Eliza Bird; Miss Helen Douglas was good as Marie Pettitoe; and Miss Kitty Clark is equally successful as Virginia Blatherwick.

ABERDEEN. — H. M. Theatre. — Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Adair Nelson.—The Silver King is played this week to large houses. Mr. Edward J. George portrays Daniel Jaikes with wonderful freshness and fervour; Mr. Fred D. Daviss shows power and sympathy as Wilfred Denver; Miss Madge Morley is conspicuously successful in the more pathetic scene; Miss Flossie Daviss makes a hit as Cissie; and Mr. E. Stanton-Sharp is a suitably efficient and polished villain.

Palace Theatre.—Lessees, The United County Theatres, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Walter Gilbert.—The favourite farcical sketch, Casey's Court, is delightfully played, with Mr. Will Murray as Mrs. Casey; the Four Royal Scots are thoroughly appreciated as vocalists and instrumentalists, in a pleasing sketch, When the Cat's Away; and the company also includes Miss Carlotta Lunn, a charming American vocalist; Boden and Bell, clever juvenile vocalists and dancers; Mr. Walter King, an exceptionally amusing comedian; Little Dott Moss, a dainty comedienne; Dacey and Lewis, in a bright comedy sketch; the Robertys, whose wonderful balancing feats are keenly relished; and Mr. Harry Bent, a really excellent "star" mimic.

Alhambra Music Hall.—Managers, Messrs. R. Calder and J. Montague.—Miss Florrie Du Barrie is an exceedingly piquant male impersonator and singer; and Little Miss Dolly McCarthy excels as an imitator of Mr. Harry Lauder. Mr. Archie Murray shows all his accustomed vivacity as a coon comedian; Miss Marie Rose is repeatedly encored for her singing and dancing; and Mr. Jack Marson delights the house with splendidly rendered songs and quaint stories. The same artists also appeared at the Empire. An excellent cinematograph display is given at both houses.

ABERTILLERY. — The Pavilion.—Lessees, E. and H. Tilney; Manager, Mr. E. Pryce.—The Power of the King is being presented here. Mr. Travis Green shows skill in the impersonation of Prince Oscar; Rupert Landgrave is played with force by Mr. Gerald Blake; Miss Marguerite Trevosper is an impressive Lady Anastasia; Lady Florina is effectively portrayed by Miss Georgina V. France; and little Hilda Yorke makes a natural Phillipe. Mr. Charles Whitlock does justice to the part of King of Vallambrosa, Mr. Charles Clifford is a capital General Stenovic, Alberta, the avenger, finds a clever exponent in Mr. Victor Millard, and Mr. Wilton Drury is smart in the comedy character Fritz Talheim.

ACCRINGTON.—Prince's Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. B. Ormerod; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. E. Barnes.—Mr. George Dance's company is here in Miss Hook of Holland. As Mr. Hook Mr. Alfred Wellesley makes a success, his every saying and movement being provocative of hearty laughter; Mr. Walter Balfour acts and sings ably as Captain Paap; Mr. Frank Crimp as the bandmaster Van Voyt is decidedly smart; and Mr. George Mudie, jun., as Schnapps plays with ability. Mr. Fred Lyne as Simon Slinks is excruciatingly funny, his quaint style and natural gift of comedy showing to the greatest advantage and enabling him to keep his audience in the best of humour whenever he is visible; Miss Daisy Manning in the title-rôle plays with spirit and grace; Miss Tattie Leonard gives every satisfaction as Gretchen. As Mina Miss Cissie Sephton is delightful; ever merry and gay, she infuses an undoubted charm into the character which is heartily appreciated. The dressing and mounting of the piece is on a lavish scale, and the chorus, under the conductorship of Mr. Evelyn Baker, is effective.

New Hippodrome.—Proprietors, The Accrington Hippodrome Co.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Walter Mould.—Mr. Jack Haddon's pantomime The Babes in the Wood is here on the twice-nightly system. The production is of all-round excellence, and is being well received. Miss Millie Engler as Robin Hood makes a dashing principal boy; Miss Dorma Morgan as Maid Marion is very successful. The Babes, Eric and Rost, have capital representatives in the Sisters M'Calla; and Miss Carrie Parry as Innocence, the good fairy, is stately and sings well. The comedians are all very good. Mr. Charles May as the Baron, Mr. Harry Elliston as the Dame, and Messrs. August and September as the Knockabouts' cause endless amusement. A feature in the performance is the speciality turn introduced by the Seener and Fridkins troupe of Russian vocalists and dancers, who contribute an exceedingly smart act and receive a most flattering reception. J. W. Rowley, the popular comedian, also appears, and wins favour.

ALDERSHOT.—Royal and Hippodrome.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Clarence Sounes; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Gladwin.—Messrs. F. Marriott-Watson and Saunderson Moffat's company, in What a Woman Did, are here on a return visit. Miss Florence E. Florence gives an effective portrayal of the leading rôle of Elise; whilst Miss Phyllis Hamilton appears with success as the temptress, La Papillon. Mr. F. Marriott-Watson as the villainous Marquis is decidedly good; and Mr. Saunderson Moffat as the much-wronged Conrad plays with capital effect. Specialities of songs and dances, humorous situations, &c., are contributed by Messrs. Elton Morgan (Fritz), Reginald Kloof (Pitou), Owen Edwin (Pippin), Misses Norah Waylett (Nanette), Flo Norman (Fanchon), the Clancy Girls, and others.

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE.—Theatre Royal.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas Revill, jun.—Mr. J. Rice Cassidy's company is here this week with In Holy Russia. The play gives Mr. Cassidy opportunities, as a sturdy hibernian, of making his personality prominent, and his humour is diverting. Mrs. Rice Cassidy finds in Renée Rubinoff a character suited to her gifts. Miss Amy McNeil's dramatic skill makes the rôle of Catska Lovatski an impressive one; Colonel Richard Forrest is soldierly in the hands of Mr. Henry Compton; Mr. Geo. H. Doyle gives effective interpretation to Laurice E. Steragoff; Mr. Rolf Leslie scores as Count Gregoris Petroiski; and Madame Natolski is safe in the hands of Miss Alice Holland.

Empire Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr W. Leech; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Jesse Burslem.—Mr. John Tiller's comic pantomime Jack and Jill is drawing well here. At both houses each evening delighted audiences testify to the pleasure received in its performance. The Scotch ballet, The Gathering of the Clans, receives ovations nightly. As Jack and Jill, the children of the well, Cissie Iris and Nellie Grimshaw are popular favourites; Jessie Vernon as Truth, the fairy, wins admiration; and Carl is well depicted by Mr. S. Oscar Karno. Mr. Harry Cotton as Baron Joliiboy indulges in pantomimic absurdity of laughter-provoking kind; and Mr. Bruce Green makes Dame Durden an exceedingly comical old lady. A capital duo of performers are Horace Jones as Ginger and Jean Gaynor as Trim; equally funny are the impersonations of Biff and Baff by Messrs. H. and F. Le Cren; and Miss Adah Le Cren as Fantine, the maid to the Princess, is remarkably agile and attractive.

New Pavilion.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Leech; Assistant-Manager, Mr. T. Edward Owen.—The animated picture entertainment, with vaudeville interlude, is attracting interested audiences twice nightly to the Pavilion.

The Picturedrome. — Lessees, Messrs. Welsker Bros.; Manager, Mr. J. Marks.—The old Church-street theatre, cosy and comfortable as a picture drome, is filled nightly with interested sightseers The pictures are up to date, and the quality of the entertainment is evidenced by its power to attract. The most striking of the pictures this week is a long series of panoramic views of Mount Bellew and district, depicting scenes before and after the recent disastrous bog-slide in Ireland.

ATTERCLIFFE.—Theatre Royal, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manageress, Miss Ethel J. Hope.—The principal pictures of this week's interesting series are The False Coiners, Braving Death to Save a Child's Life, Oh! Red Tapism, Venice in a Gondola, Tale of a Harem, Vulture Hunting, The Cabman's Wife, and Sherlock Holmes. Talking, living pictures by the realistic Cinephone is a special feature, and Miss Ethel Sheffer is responsible for several illustrated songs.

Palace Theatre of Varieties.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. Bert Dent.—Topping the bill here this week is Mr. Archie Goodall, the one-time international football captain, in his sensational and novel act, Walking the Hoop; a clever performance is given by the Three Sisters Lee, acrobats, vocalists, and dancers; a welcome return visit is paid by Vena Velma, the "Musical Comedy Maid," who, prettily costumed, introduces songs and dainty dances; the programme is also contributed to by Wright and Elton, comedy duo; Miss Marie Altina, vocalist; the Two Wiltons, vocalists and dancers; Mr. Fred Errick, comedian; and a pleasing series of "Attergraph" pictures is also an attraction.

AYR.—New Gaiety Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry W. Day.—On Monday night the theatre was well filled in every part to welcome Mr. Ian Maclaren and his Shakespearean company, who are here for the week. In the representation of Hamlet, the opening piece of the engagement, Mr. Maclaren took the part of the Prince himself, and presented an intellectual study of the exacting part. Miss Ruby Maclaren as Ophelia spoke her lines well and was graceful; Mr. Matthew Boulton drew a powerful portrait of the King; and the Queen was well portrayed by Miss Gertrude Littlewood. The other pieces down for production are The Merchant of Venice, Macbeth, and Romeo and Juliet.

BACUP.—New Court Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Denman-Wood.—Mr. G. Carlton Wallace's company is here with The Lancashire Lad. Mr. Charles Stafford gives a powerful rendering of the title-rôle; Mr. Hugh Wallace as Jem Wincote is responsible for some fine acting; Mr. Ernest Waughan's performance as the callous villain Max Carlton is sufficiently repulsive, and he has a powerful accomplice in Miss Mell Oliver as Lorna Wincote. Mr. Walter Kenion as John Willie Wardle is highly amusing, and Miss L. Pearce as Jane Ann Clitheroe is accountable for a good deal of humour. Jessie Wincote is pathetically presented by Miss Phyllis Elton; Miss Molly Monaghan gives a fine study of Mother Wardle; Miss Gertie Gaye and Miss Daisy Gaye as Flossie Mayfair and Trixie Golightly are responsible for some excellent singing and dancing; Mr. H. N. Wilkinson as Professor Napoleon Boulanger is worthy of special mention.

BARNSTAPLE.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietors, The Bridge Trustees; Manager, Mr. Harry Ashton.—Two performances of The Thief were given here by Mr. Ernest Bodkin's talented company, the skilful acting being followed throughout by critical, but highly appreciative, audiences. Chief interest was of course centred in the title-rôle, undertaken by Miss Kathryn Stocks, whose intense and vivid delineation of a victim of the modern "dress" craze received well-merited approval. Miss Mary Forrester displayed deep feeling in her conception of Isabel Leyton; Mr. Frank Darch was eminently successful in his vigorous portrayal of Richard Chelford, the final reconciliation with the "Thief" being extremely realistic; Mr. Ernest Bodkin as Raymond Leyton showed a capable and sincere interpretation of an arduous part; Mr. C. W. Lindsey revealed rare ability as Harry Leyton; and a praiseworthy study of the detective came from Mr. T. Taylor-Vinson.

BARROW-IN-FURNESS.—Royalty Theatre and Opera House.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Stone.—Messrs. Paumier and Howard's company, in The Prince and the Beggar Maid, is here this week. Mr. Lionel Gadsen is exceedingly clever in the rôle of Michael, a difficult part, well handled; Mr. W. E. Cox is very admirable as Olaf; Mr. A. Brandon makes a strong character of Hildred; Mr. R. Nobel makes a capital Captain Hector; Miss Ethel Bracewell displays undoubted ability as Princess Monica; Miss Gertrude Branscombe is delightfully charming as the beggar maid, Camiola; Mr. J. H. Vyvyan as Karl and Miss Jessica Black as Viola are very amusing in their love-making scenes.

His Majesty's.—Lessees and Managers, Mr. and Mrs. Calvert Routledge. — Mr. Herbert Sleath's company in A White Man is here this week. Mr. F. Tennant make a big hit as Jim Carson, and Mr. Harold T. Richardson a dignified Earl of Kerhill. Mr. A. Brandon and Mr. Martin Henry are typical cowpunchers; and Mr. Eric Hudson plays the difficult Tab-y-wana with effect. Miss Eleanor May is a superb Diana; and Miss Bertha Hanbury as Little Hal and Miss Margaret Fairleigh as Nat-u-rich both do well.
